IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

CROSBY & NICHOLS

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE THAT THE

North American Review

WHICH has for the last ten years been so ably conducted by Dr. Peabody, passes now into the editorial charge of Prof. James Russell Lowell and Charles Eliot Norton, Esq., gentlemen who, for sound elegant scholarship, have achieved an enviable reputation, both in this country and in Europe; and whose taste, education and experience eminently qualify them for the position they have assumed.

Of the former, it may be said that his essays in the periodical which, under his editorialship, reached the summit of its fame, surpassed in vigor and force those of any contributor.

Of the latter, that he has added new honor to the name he bears by the extent and variety of his knowledge, and by the force and elegance which he has exhibited, both as a writer and a speaker."

And of both, that their thorough loyalty to the liberal institutions of our country, and their sympathy with the progressive element of the times, render them peculiarly fitted to conduct the Review, which has by competent authority been pronounced the leading literary organ of the country, and of which it has been said that it has not its equal in America, nor its superior in the world.

The North American Review will maintain in the hands of its new editors its established reputation for independent criticism, and for well-considered opinions in politics and literature.

In discussing political and social questions, the spirit of the Review will be thoroughly national and loyal. It will defend and illustrate the distinctive principles on which the institutions of America are founded.

In literature, it will avail itself of the best material of thought and scholarship which the country can supply.

Bound by strong associations to the past, and sympathy with the present, hopeful for the future, the Review will do its part in the intellectual movement of the times.

☞ The North American Review is published Quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, in numbers of about three hundred pages each, containing matter equal to an ordinary octavo volume.

TERMS - Five dollars a year, or one dollar and twenty-five cents per number.

A new volume of the Review will commence with the January number, and the publishers trust that the increased expenditure consequent upon the changes proposed in the future conduct of the work, will be met by a generous increase in the patronage of the public.

Improved Lands For Sale.

CONSISTING of Lot No. 14, in the 8th Concession of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, 200 acres, with about 130 acres cleared, with a good frame house and large wood shed attached to it, beside the door of which is an excellent well, pump, &c. Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 16 feet posts, and all under-housed with stalls to tie up 36 head of Cattle and 3 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors; close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

Also.—The East half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

Canada Farmer

A NEW

FORTNIGHTLY JOURNAL,

OF

Agriculture, Horticulture AND RURAL AFFAIRS.

THE Subscriber has determined to make the experiment whether a first-class Agricultural Journal can be sustained in Canada. He proposes to issue early in January, 1864, the first number of The Canada Farmer, and to continue the publication on the 1st and 15th days of each month. Each number will contain sixteen pages quarto of closely printed matter. It will be printed on fine paper, from an entirely new font of type. The services of an able agricultural writer as Editor-in-Chief have been secured, and he will be assisted by an efficient staff of writers, reporters and correspondents. First-class artists and engravers have also been retained to prepare illustrations for the paper. No exertion or expenditure will be spared to render the new Journal a worthy representative and advocate of the Agricultural interests of Canada.

In the conduct of The Canada Farmer, the following ends will be zealously labored for:—

1.—To arouse public attention, by frank and temperate discussion, to all questions scientific, commercial, legislative or otherwise, specially affecting the farming interest.

2.—To stimulate the Agriculturists of our country to adopt an improved system of husbandry, by blending the lessons of modern science with the practical experience of the Canadian Farmer.

3.—To bring under the attention of our Farmers all improvements at home or abroad, worthy of adoption, affecting the management of Field Crops—the Barn-yard—the Stable—the Dairy—the Orchard—the Poultry Yard—the Apiary—the Kitchen Garden—and the Flower Garden; and to excite an interest in the progress of Rural Architecture and Landscape Gardening, and in all that concerns the Domestic Economy of the Farm-house.

4.—To mark and report all improvements in Agricultural Machinery—foster new inventions—and promote the adoption of all labour-saving machines in the work of the farm and garden.

5.—To keep prominently under attention all that specially concerns the Dairy-farmer and the Grazier; the best breeds of cattle—the best systems of feeding—the most approved processes of cheese and butter making—the best mode of packing—and the best markets to sell in.

6.—To keep prominently in view whatever is specially interesting to the Sheep-raiser and Wool-grower—the breeds best adapted to our climate—the best systems of winter and summer management—and the varying prospects of the wool market.

7.—To afford the Farmers of Canada an ever-open medium for addressing their brother Agriculturists throughout the Province, suggesting matters of common interest and advantage, and eliciting information or advice on practical questions of difficulty or doubt.

8.—To report concisely the Proceedings at Agricultural Shows, Fairs and Sales through out the Province—note the condition and progress of the Herds and Flocks of prominent Stock-breeders; record the importation of Thorough-bred stock from abroad, and publish Engravings of First Class Prize Animals.

9.—To watch and report carefully and promptly the actual state and probable prospects of the Produce Markets at home and abroad; and specially promote all movements designed to secure the best prices in the best markets for Canadian Farm Produce.

10.—To afford the Farmers of Canada a common medium where all who have for sale Live Stock, or Seed Grain, or Land, or who may wish to buy such, can make his desires known directly to the whole farming population of Canada.

☞ The Canada Farmer will be published for ONE DOLLAR per annum, POSTAGE FREE payable strictly in advance.

CLUBS

Will be furnished at the following rates:—

TWELVE COPIES for.....TEN DOLLARS.
TWENTY COPIES for.....FIFTEEN DOLLARS.
FIFTY COPIES for.....TWENTY-FIVE DOLS.
ONE HUNDRED for.....SIXTY DOLLARS.

Communications on Agricultural subjects are invited, addressed to "The Editor of the Canada Farmer," and all orders for the paper will be sent to

GEORGE BROWN,
Proprietor and Publisher.

☞ As FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES of the first number will be printed and circulated, an unequalled opportunity for Advertisers will be presented. The charge will be twenty cents per line.

"PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER,"

Only $1 Per Year in Advance.

What family should be without Godey's Lady's Book? It costs $3.00 a year. We will, however, furnish both the EXAMINER and LADY'S BOOK for $2.75! that is: both for 25 cents less than what you pay for the LADY'S BOOK alone. Or, to every subscriber paying in advance we will, for an extra 75 cents, furnish Madame Demorest's Mirror of Fashions, and Quarterly Journal du Grande Mode, each number of which contains large and magnificent Fashion Plates, splendid illustrations of all the fashionable and Paris novelties, for Ladies' and Children's Dress, useful information, and the four life-size Patterns, cut ready for use, etc., etc. It should be remembered that each yearly subscriber to Mme. Demorest's Mirror of Fashions is entitled to the selection of 50 cents' worth of extra patterns, or a copy of Mme. Demorest's System for cutting Children's Dresses, or for 50 cents more, the Ladies' System. That is, for 75 cents, we will give to every subscriber of the EXAMINER paying in advance, $1.50 worth. More than this, we will likewise pay the American postage, which is no small item. Those who have paid in advance are entitled to the same privilege. Or, if farmers prefer they can, instead of the above journal, for the extra 75 cents, have Judd's celebrated American Agriculturist, which ought to be in the hands of every farmer. Names should be sent in at once.

To any one sending us 6 subscribers we will give Kinglake's Crimean War; to 8 subscribers, Alcock's Tycoon Capital; to 10 subscribers, Webster's Dictionary; to 20 subscribers, Worcester's Largest Dictionary.

And other articles too numerous to mention.

Well knowing [after an experience of twenty years in the trade] that the "nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling," he will sell for small profits, having bought his stock with CASH he is confident that he can sell goods for ready pay cheaper than any other merchant in Peterboro'. As the goods offered for sale by the undersigned are all paid for, he does not confine himself to selling them "cheap for cash only," but will cheerfully exchange them for all kinds of country produce, at cash prices. The subscriber does not attempt to enumerate all the articles which he offers for sale.

☞ Call and examine the goods and see how cheap the "yankee" can sell them.

Poetry.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE.

Up this world, and down this world,
And over this world odd through
Though drifted about,
And tossed without,
Why, paddle your own canoe.

Whether you're up the top o' the sky with clouds
Or sailing a field of blue;
If the bleak wind moans,
Or the sunshine glows,
Still paddle your own canoe.

What if headlands rise up ahead,
With dark waves rushing through,
Move steadily by,
With a steady eye,
And paddle your own canoe.

If a hurricane rise in the morning skies,
And the stars are lost to view,
Glide calmly along,
With a smile and a song,
And paddle your own canoe.

Up this world and down this world,
All over this world and through,
Though weary and worn,
Bereft and forlorn,
Still paddle your own canoe.

Never give up when trials come.
Never grow sad and blue;
Never sit down
With a tear and a frown,
But paddle your own canoe.

There are daisies springing along the shores
Blooming and sweet for you;
There rose hued dyes
In the autumn skies,
Then paddle your own canoe.

CALCUTTA IN DANGER.—An English paper says: "It is possible, even probable, that before the new year begins the telegram may announce that Calcutta, the single trading port of Bengal having direct communication with the sea, is inaccessible to any ship over six hundred tons, that is to any ship not greatly below the average of those employed in the trade." The river Hooghly, which connects Calcutta with the sea, brings down with it, at the season of the floods, an enormous volume of sand, which forms bars, obstructing navigation. Several channels at the mouth of the river have already been rendered impassable by these bars, and now the only remaining channel is rapidly filling up.

THE COURT-MARTIAL UPON LIEUT.-COLONEL CRAWLEY.—The finding of the court-martial was submitted to the Queen on Wednesday, and received the Royal approval. The decision is in the following terms:—"The Court, having duly considered the evidence in behalf of the prosecution, the evidence the prisoner has adduced, and what he has stated in his defence, and the prosecutor's reply, is of opinion, with regard to the first charge, that he, the prisoner, Lieut-Colonel Thomas R Crawley, of the 6th Dragoons, is Not Guilty. With regard to the second charge, the Court is of opinion that he, the prisoner, Lieut-Colonel Thomas R Crawley, is Not Guilty. The Court does therefore fully and honorably acquit him, Lt-Col Thomas R Crawley, of both charges.

RAILROADS IN THE UNITED STATES.—The American Journal gives some interesting statistics with reference to the railroads of the United States, among which we note the following.—"From 1826 to 1829, there were only three miles of railway in the country: on the 1st January, 1834, the number of miles had increased to 1,311; in 1854, to 15,973; and on the 1st January, 1864, the amount of completed railway had grown to 33,860, with 16,000 more miles in progress. Of the completed roads—1,890 miles of which were finished last year—24,927 miles are in the Federal, and 8,933 miles in the Confederate States. The total cost of the completed roads and their equipment is $1,266,000,000. Ohio has the largest number of miles completed and under construction; but Pennsylvania has the largest number of miles actually finished."

A MAN BAKED TO DEATH.—The Newark New Jersey) Journal records the following:—"On Saturday last a man named David Winston, employed in Stengen's patent leather manufactory, Plane street, was missed from his work, and it was supposed that he had left the premises. On Tuesday an unpleasant smell was noticed in the vicinity of a large heated chamber, and on Wednesday, the smell increasing in offensiveness, one of the men in the factory entered the archway to ascertain the cause, and there discovered the body of Winston reclining against the wall. The chamber was too hot to allow of the immediate removal of the remains, but it was evident that the unfortunate man had been literally baked to death. He had probably gone in for the purpose of warming himself, and was so overpowered by the heat as to be unable to find his way out. The oven was cooled off yesterday afternoon and the body removed from its awful tomb."

THE WELLAND R. R. STEAMSHIP LINE.—Mr. Lewis Shickluna, the shipbuilder of St. Catherines, has succeeded in obtaining a contract for building two propellers for the Welland Railway, to ply, in connection with the road, between Port Dalhousie and Oswego. The Journal says that he will commence operations immediately, and intends having the first ready for launching by the month of June, and the other by August next. It is needless to say that these propellers are merely the pioneers of lines to be established on both lakes, to run in connection with the road. We have no doubt that ere these boats are completed, contracts will be given out for two or more boats to run between Port Dalhousie and Montreal and Quebec. The connection will be made with Toronto by means of the steamer now in course of erection by Messrs. Donaldson & Andrews of Port Dalhousie.

A WONDERFUL MACHINE.—A machine has recently been perfected, which in so simple in its construction, and will perform such accurate work that is bids fair to accomplish a revolution almost equal to that of the sewing machine. This machine was invented in Philadelphia, and patented July 26, 1859, but it was only recently improved and completed. It makes buttonholes, does cording, braiding, embroidering, binding, and stitching, and, besides all this common sewing, it makes a beautiful and substantial button-hole, much handsomer than can be made by hand, finishing the work on both sides, and does it other work they ought and well. The machine, although doing all this and more work, and that of an ordinary sewing machine, can be sold, we understand, at the same price. It is simple, and a very handsome profit realizes. The patent is in the hands of a company which is manufacturing them in Philadelphia, where a large factory, with plenty of hands, and a fast increasing demand.

TWENTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY OF THE STAR PAPER OF AMERICA!

January 1, 1864.

The New York Mercury

THE

COMING YEAR.

AFTER more than a quarter of a century of uninterrupted success, The New York Mercury—standing first on the muster-roll of the Literature Press in this country—points proudly to its past career as a guarantee of new triumphs in the future.

Heretofore, it has eclipsed all rivalry; but it proposes to make the coming year memorable by eclipsing its own past history, and looming up half-a-head of the world as the most marvelous specimen of a fascinating, brilliant amusing, and comprehensive Literary Newspaper that has ever been published in either hemisphere.

THE GENIUS OF EUROPE

will be laid under contribution to give brilliancy to its columns, and side by side with original productions of the most popular romancists of the Old Word, will be placed the chef d'oeuvres of the most eminent story-writers of the New.

MISS M. E. BRADDON,

Authoress of "Aurora Floyd," "Lady Audley's Secret," "John Marchmont's Legacy," etc., etc., who has suddenly risen, like

A STAR OF THE FIRST MAGNITUDE

in the literary horizon of Great Britain, has been specially engaged to supply The New York Mercury from time to time with the wonderful creations of her genius, at a cost which no other weekly in America could venture to incur.

☞ Among the multitude of distinguished writers and artists who have become familiar to the masses through the vast circulation of the STAR "WEEKLY OF AMERICA, may be mentioned the following, all of whom are still upon its staff:

Dr. J. H. Robinson,	Cousin May Carelton,
Margaret Blount,	W. O. Eaton,
Ned Buntline,	George Martial,
Arthur M. Grainger,	Julia S. Ingraham,
Grace Gardner,	Edward Willett,
Felix O. C. Darley,	Mary Chef,
Miss M. E Braddon,	George Albany.

Scores of other distinguished literati, under various nom de plume, contribute to its columns, while its pictorial illustrations are from the inimitable pencil of Felix O. C. Darley, Esq., the best draughtsman of the age.

The War, which has given the coup de grace to so many pretensious publications, and half destroyed those that still survive, had added thousands to the circulation of The New York Mercury.

Its heart-stirring short stories, its military historiettes, its matchless serial romances, its racy burlesques, its general wit and humor, its delicious gossip, its fairy tales for little folks, its rare poetry, its fresh and vigorous editorials the infinite variety of its contents, and the large amount of reading matter that it comprises, render it welcome everywhere, and to classes of society. Containing, as it does, of closely-printed matter, it may safely be pronounced the cheapest, as well as the best literary newspaper extant.

Three favorite writers, Doctor J. H. Robinson, Cousin May Carleton, and Ned Buntline, are now preparing three stories for The New York Mercury. One of these productions will be commenced in the Opening Number of the New Year. The authors being aware of this fact, are engaged in an emulative contest for precedence, and the result will unquestionably be that the most effective story ever penned by any of the three, will commence in the

of the great REPRESENTATIVE WEEKLY of the Western World.

The New York Weekly is sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. To subscribers, it is regularly mailed every Saturday morning, for $3 a year; three copies for $8; six copies for $9; eight copies for $12, with an extra copy, free, to the getter-up of the club. Six months' subscriptions received. Always write plainly the name of your Post office County and State. We take the notes of all solvent banks at par. Payment must invariably be made in advance.

☞ Specimen copies sent to all applicants. Address all letters and remittances, post paid, to

MANHOOD

VIGOR OF YOUTH RESTORED

IN FOUR WEEKS,

By Dr. Sicotte's Essence of Life.

DR. SICOTTE, (OF PARIS) after years of earnest solicitation, has at length acceded to the urgent request of the American public, and appointed an agent in Toronto for the sale of the valued and highly prized Essence of life. This wonderful agent will restore Manhood to the most shattered constitutions, whether arising from excesses, the effects of climate, or natural causes. The time required to cure the most inveterate case is four weeks; and if used according to printed instructions, which are very simple, failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as its effects are permanent. It is acknowledged by the medical press to be the greatest discovery ever made. Its developing powers are miraculous. Success in every case is as certain as that science overthrows ignorance.

Dr. Sicotte's Essence of Life is sold in cases, with full instructions for use, at $3, or four quantities in one for $9, and will be sent to any part, carefully packed, on receipt of remittance to his accredit agent.

MONEY EASILY MADE,

By either Gentlemen or Ladies.

I AM in possession of a beautiful French Art, which has been introduced in this Country only to a limited extent, and that in New York City. It is something which every person stands in great need of, consequently will be extensively patronized. Persons can make money with it at home or abroad. Thousands in France have made small fortunes at it, and are still doing so. I would state what it is, but persons purchasing the knowledge of it do not desire it made public. One Dollar sent to the undersigned will ensure the immediate return of a circular giving full information in the Art, and the requisite instruction to peruse it. It is strictly genteel, and the best and only thing ever introduced which every person can make money at. NO LETTERS NOTICED, except those containing the required amount for instructions.

SOLDIERS in the ARMY!

AND OUR PEOPLE AT HOME,

Are now offered an opportunity by which they can obtain a

GOOD AND DURABLE TIME-PIECE,

At a very Low Figure.

OUR WATCHES are warranted to keep time one year, and the buyer is allowed the privilege of examination before the payment is required.

Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions.

A first-class Hunting Time-Piece of silver material, over which is electro-find plated 18 k. gold, most durably wrought, making the imitation so faultless that it cannot be detected from the solid material by the most experienced Judges: acids will not affect it. London made movement. Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions has sweep seconds, and is not to be excelled in general appearance. This decidedly the one of the best articles ever offered for traders and speculators. Engineers, emigrants and persons travelling will find them superior to any other; alteration of climate will not affect their accuracy. Price, packed in good shape and good running order, only $35, or case of 5 for $200.

Silver Double Time Hunting Levers,

Best quality silver cases, over which electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, similar to our Improved Duplex, and superior adjusted movements with "stop," to be used in timing horses, etc.; has four luderes for Washington and Greenwich time, sweep second, and all the improvements. All in all, taking its beautiful and faultless appearance and its superior movement into consideration, we regard it as decidedly the cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price, if good running order, $35, or case of 5 for $200.

☞ We ask no pay in advance, but will forward either of them to responsible parties, to any part of the loyal States, with bill payable to the express-man when the Good are delivered, giving the buyer the privilege of examination, and, if not satisfactory, the watch can be returned at our expense.

The express companies refuse making collections on soldiers, and other parties in the disloyal States, consequently all such orders must be accompanied by the cash to insure attention. We make a deduction on either Watch when the payment is forwarded in advance.

Money may be sent by express at our expense.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK,

For 1864.

GREAT LITERARY & PICTORIAL YEAR.

THE PUBLISHER of Godey's Lady's Book, thankful to that patronage which has enabled him to publish a Magazine for the last thirty-four years of a larger circulation than any in America, has made an arrangement with the most popular authoress in this country—

MARION HARLAND,

Authoress of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Miriam," "Moss Side," and "Nemesis,"

Who will furnish Stories for the Lady's Book for 1864. This alone will place the Lady's Book in a literary point of view far ahead of any other Magazine. Our other favourite writers will all continue to furnish matter throughout the year.

The best Lady's Magazine in the world and the Cheapest.

THE LITERATURE

Is of that kind that can be read aloud in the family circle, and the clergy in immense numbers are subscribers for the Book.

THE MUSIC

In all original, and would cost 25 cents, (the price of the Book) in the music stores; but most of it is copyrighted, and cannot be obtained except in Godey.

OUR STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

All efforts to rival us in this have ceased, and we now stand alone in this department, giving as we do many more and infinitely better engravings than are published in any other work. Godey's immense double sheet Fashion-Plates, containing from five to seven full length colored Fashions on each plate—other Magazines give only two—are far ahead of any Fashions in Europe or America. The publication of these Plates cost $10,000 more than the Fashion Plates of the old style, and nothing but our wonderfully large circulation enables us to give them. Other Magazines cannot afford it. We never spare money when the public can be benefited.

These Fashions may be relied on. Dresses may be made after them, and the wearer will not subject herself to ridicule, as she would be if she visited the large cities dressed after the style of the plates in some of our so-called Fashion Magazines.

OUR WOOD ENGRAVINGS,

Of which we give twice or three times as many as any other Magazine, are often mistaken for steel; they are so far superior to any others.

IMITATIONS.

Beware of them. Remember that the Lady's Book is the original publication and the cheapest. If you take Godey, you want no other Magazine. Everything that is useful or ornamental in a house will be found in Godey.

DRAWING LESSONS.

No other Magazine gives them, and we have given enough to fill several large volumes.

OUR RECEIPTS

Are such as can be found nowhere else. Cooking in all its varieties—Confectionary—the Nursery—the Toilet—the Laundry—the Kitchen. Receipts upon all subjects are to be found in the pages of the Lady's Book. We originally started this department, and have peculiar facilities for making it most perfect. This department alone is worth the price of the book.

LADIES' WORK TABLE.

This department comprises engravings and descriptions of every article that a lady wears.

MODEL COTTAGES.

No other Magazine has this department.

Terms to Subscribers in the British Provinces:

One copy one year, $3; two copies one year, $5; three copies one year, $7.

Five copies one year, and an extra copy to the person sending the club, making six copies for $15.50.

Special Clubbing with other Magazines:

Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Magazine, one year, $4.

Godey and Harper, one year, $6.

Godey, Harper, and Arthur, one year, $7.

At these prices subscribers in the Provinces will have only the British postage to pay.

Treasury notes and notes of all solvent banks taken at par.

Be careful and pay the postage on your letter.

THE GREAT HEALER OF MANKIND,

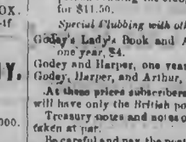
The Whole World United!

SICK PEOPLE THINK!

AFTER WHICH, ACT.

Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills,

CHILDREN CRY FOR THEM!



THIS remarkable American remedy is carrying the world by storm. Over five million boxes are sold annually. Composed entirely of Flowers, Roots, Balsams, and Extracts,—their effect on the human system is pleasant, satisfactory, and successful.—Acting directly on the blood, glands, solids and fluids of the body, their use is attended with the happiest effects. In sudden attacks of disease any one of them alone is a prompt cure. In obstinate cases of sickness, small doses, repeated frequently, so cleanse the system that good health is the result. No change in employment or diet is necessary. They never cause sore mouth, swollen joints, sore limbs, etc., as do many other kinds. They are warranted to give satisfaction, or the money will be refunded. They are considered cheaper, safer, prettier, and in all respects superior to any purgative pill in the world.

☞ The discovery of coating a pill with sugar emanated with Dr. Herrick. All others are counterfeits, and if used, will do harm. And disappointment will. Herrick's pills are elegantly put up, 40 in a box, with a large sheet of directions, and sell for 25 cents a box, 5 boxes for $1.

☞ The GREAT STRENGTHENER AND PAIN DESTROYER. THE BEST AND CHEAPEST HOUSEHOLD REMEDY IN THE WORLD.

Herrick's Kid Strengthening Plaster.

These renowned Plasters cure pains, weakness and distress in the back, side and breast, five hours. Instead of steam use they to do this. Prepared from rennet, lambskin and gums of Canadian Kid leather, rendered both peculiarly adapted to the wants of females and

THE HYPOCRITE.

Have you not seen him in the house of God,
Arrayed with his best looks of holiness,
All sanctity and meekness to a proverb,
As if an angel's wing had fanned his brow
With odours from the flowers of Paradise?
Unlike the pink of fashionable life:
With sealed up lip and spy-glass at his eye,
Who deems it impolite to praise his God.
Unlike the herd of worldlings: who come
To mumble o'er the tedious weekly psalm,
To calm the restless whispers of their conscience,
And go white-washed into the world again.
Unlike the humble-hearted christian:
Who weeps a silent tear above his sins,
Holds high communion with his God, and seems Ripened for yon assemblage in the sky.
Your painted devil, your Judas in disguise!
See how he shakes his head with very piety;
He gives his hymn a louder, bolder note,
As if his anthem would be first in heaven.
Look on him with his downcast, half shut eyes,
He seems to breathe the very soul of prayer,
As if the gross and villaneous thoughts of earth
Could find no entrance in a breast so holy;
And if with stealthy look he glances round,
As he were stealing for a miser's carnival,
'Tis quick withdrawn—this good man cannot bear
To lift his eyes on so much vanity!—
Do make a purchase of that Sabbath saint,
His sweet discourse and honied words will win you;
He is a man so pure and spiritual
That all the grosser passions of the heart
Are strangers to his elevated nature;
Talks of religion with a fluent tongue—
Tells you that God is merciful but just—
And with his sweetest smile he cheats you!
Ha! holy traitor, have I caught thee thus?
Hast thou an altar 'neath the pall of night,
Where thou mayest worship like a bacchanal?
Where is thy Sabbath veil? Thy daylight garment?
Flung by, like idle trappings for a show;
The garnished sepulchre has broken down,
And thou, the rotten inmate, thou art here
With all the foulness of thy bloated nature,
Leaning thy head upon Delilah's lap!
Go, finish thy debauch; and then to-morrow
Enlarge, make broader thy phylactery—
Be still a paragon of seeming excellence.
Not all the jests that Infidelity
E'er uttered in her most blasphemous mood;
Not all the tricks of vain philosophy
When catering the earth and heaven for reasons
To prove the Bible but a cunning fable;
Not the strong essence of their baneful poison
Concentrated upon one arrow point,
Has done so much, so fearful injury
As the dark, hollow-hearted hypocrite.
He is religion's living pestilence—
The good man's hatred and the wicked's sneer—
The jest of devils, and the angels' scorn—
The worthless semblance of our fallen nature
'Gainst whom the Saviour, when he dwelt below,
Denounced his dreadful, most tremendous woes!

Miscellaneous.

HOW I TOLD MY LOVE IN A SLEIGH.

Oh, the glories of a sleighride in the sparkling, bracing air of a Canadian winter! The sky clear and exhilarating—keenly bright, but with a different degree of lucidity from that of a bright summer's day. Broad expanding plains—the city receding behind us, as the horses, leaping onward to the music of their chiming bells, make for the broad, boundless country. The firforests are clasped in a shadowy, ghostly slumber. Far away on our right are those pathless funeral groves where the wolves aggregate in hundreds. To the left lies a range of hills sloping down to the river, which is locked up in the iron manacles of the Winter King. Ahead, and right before us—whither we are bound—over waste and plain, and clearing—lies a snugly-sheltered village, the headquarters of the lumberer and the voyager. Our destination is not quite so far.

This said destination is a broadly spread, low lying farmstead, with its almost numberless outhouses, consisting of cattle-sheds and dairies, corn stores, roofings for winter fodder, woodstacks, and other concomitants surrounding the dwelling, all palisaded by zigzag fences, so as more outbreaks to protect the comfortable citadel. Within it, warm fires blaze and sparkle from the huge and odorous logs crackling on the broad, bounteous hearth. In the great common chamber, tattered and picturesque as an antique gothic hall, we warm hearts and flashing eyes. Bearded men and fair women are there—laughing maidens and strapping young hunters, who have just shaken the snow off their furs at the portals. Despite the stern yet musical baritone of the singing wind, as it goes by, stinging cheeks, biting noses into purple, and making the blood tingle, shouts of mirth and laughter rise above the boreal blasts; and our leaping sleigh flying along rather—to the music of the soft musical bells, is fast, fast approaching its terminus.

"In the meantime" asks the reader, "who occupy the sleigh?"

I hasten to answer.

First, there was your humble servant, the narrator, Dick Harding by name, rather good looking, a fair shot, a stunning strokesman, can hit with wonderful vigor and straight ought from the shoulder, am five feet ten and—growing; can play the fiddle, a game of pool, and have the temper of an angel. I had been one of a party of adventurous sportsmen, "going in" for something worthy of Alexander, and, with fishing-tackle, spears and "shooting-irons" had done no inconsiderable execution among the denizens of Canadian woods and sounding rapids, and hunted the bear in its own bold and picturesque fastness.

Enough of myself. Now for my companions.

Place aux Dames therefore—for nestling by my side, wrapped up in rugs and warm furs, is Lota d'Arville—a bright eyed, rosy-lipped, laughing Canadian girl, as lovely a girl-woman of seventeen as glance of man ever rested complacently upon. Her playful lambent eyes had exercised their sorcery upon me ere this, and the modulations of a voice unequalled for its low, soft sweetness, completed the young syren's triumph. This by the way, for we had exchanged no confidences as yet on a subject near to my heart.

We were bound to a merry sleighing party at Windygap Farm—ostensibly to hunt upon a vast scale, which accounts for my two rifles and ammunition lying in the sleigh, and for the noble deerhound, the individual who had curled up his great body at our feet, and aided to keep them warm I had known her brother—a young officer in the Canadian Rifles—had killed "bar" at the "Salt licks" with him; had met Lota and her family on board of a St. Lawrence steamer, and was now a guest at their house, enjoyed their frank and bounteous hospitality.

"Hurrah!" Through the keen, sonorous air sleigh and horses bound along! "Cling—clang!" go the chiming bells. "Crick—crack!" goes the long-thonged whip, with a sharp cheery significance. My "Madawaska Carriole," a sleigh which is the perfection of locomotion, is not less perfection than the fiery steeds with their sinews of elastic steel which I drive.

Driving sleigh-tandem is the easiest thing in the world, when you are used to it. I was a member of the "Tandem Club," and reckoned a crack hand, of course. I exulted in my skill now, as I bore my rosy companion flying through the air, and the whip went "crak—crack!" like a double barrel going off, and the sweet bells sang and chimed—"Oh! sweet echoes of the distant wedding-bells," I thought—and the crisp snow was split and shattered into diamond dust under the grinding of the hoofs and the attrition of the "runners;" and with an exhilaration I could not repress I gave a vigorous "hurrah!" which conveyed itself to Lota, wrapped up in moose and bear skins, and warm as toast. A sweet, girlish laugh echoed my exulting shout.

"You appear to enjoy this, Mr. Harding," she said.

"If I don't——," "Crick—crack; filled up the hiatus. What a pair of beauties! Phœbus Apollo never drove their like down the steeps of heaven! The wily Ithacan never "cribbed" such cattle when he cleaned the stables of Rhesus of his horses! "Crick crack!" and the horses neigh and toss their arching necks, and the bells are chiming and tinkling, and the mad, exulting rush uplifts one like wine.

I remark, to myself, that the sky has deepened into an intense, still darkening blue—darkening with a strange, unearthly, tenebrious intimess, betokening a coming snow storm.

No matter—Windygap is right ahead, and the welcome lights will blaze out of the casement soon, for the afternoon is wearing.

On we go—but I do not see them yet, and yet—but no it's all right.

"Are you warm—quite snug, dear Lota?" said I, half turning to look at the rosy, exquisite face peeping forth with so much furtive coquetry from its encuirement of white, cosy furs.

"Oh! so comfortable,' she answered with a nestling movement and a smile which made my heart leap joyously upward.

But my attention was called away to the creeping, crepuscular inkiness of the sky. It was light, yet not daylight, but blue light—to coin a word; that wintry hue of livid darkening steel always the precursor to a fierce change in the weather. This only made the long, level plains of snow gleam with a lustre the more dazzling and intense. I remarked this, but with a momentarily divided and wavering sense.

I had never (familiar as we had grown, and I was "honest as the skin between your brow—" as she was, in fact)—I had never said "dear Lota" before, and the words were yet in mine ears, like a sweet old burthen. I loved her with all my heart and soul, but I had never told it. I yearned to tell her so now; but I thought it hardly fair—not up to the mark of my manhood—to take what seemed an unfair advantage of the protection I was supposed to extend over her. I magnanimously resolved to wait—choking down the words—but not for long.

Meantime, Crick crack! went the long—long whip, and still velang—clang" went the chiming bells, and the horses held on with unabated pace and splendid vigor, but—where had Windygap gone to all this time, for time was up and we should be there by this?

"Goodness!" exclaimed Lota, all at once, "how strange the sky looks; we shall have more snow—a heavy fall, too."

"I fear so," I replied; "but we'll soon be out of it."

"We are very long, I fancy, she continued, reflectively; "you have driven there quicker than this before. Oh, heaven, she cried, with the sadness of a revelation, 'can we have lost the track?'"

The blank question harped with a horrible stir on my most vivid fears. Now or never was the time to be quite cool.

"No, I think not," I replied with assumed carelessness; we shall come to our landing presently."

"A clump of firs—an old mill further on; yes," she added. "I recollect; but we should have passed them long ere this. Oh, I fear we are lost!"

A cold chill seized me as I tacitly admitted that she was in the right. I could not account for my error, if such was the case. I looked round the horizon, but beheld no friendly sign; it was only a cloud gathering closer and growing darker the while.

Suddenly my brave deerhound lifted up his head and uttered a low growl. The horses gave a startled sneeze just as suddenly.

A strange, lugubrious but appalling sound came all at once from windward, wailing like a death-cry—a prolonged, awful, groaning discordance—over the white gleaming snow; and then it died away.

The horses halted trembling; only the shivering tingle of the bells broke the death silence that fell, like an eclipse, over all.

"What is that?" asked Lota, in a shuddering whisper, as she clutched my arm.

I listened.

"It is the wind sighing and dying away in the pine forest," I answered.

"And we do not go near the forest," she said. "Hark! there it is again. Oh, what—what can it be?"

And the indescribably hideous and lugubrious sound broke forth; clearer—nearer. It increased; it multiplied; the horrible crescendo howling, shrieking and ravening was not that of the wind this time.

"Merciful God!" gasped Lota; "the wolves!"

I never understood, till that moment, what the concentrated essence of literal, deadly horror might mean. I never experienced the shock before or since; and I have in my hunting excursions faced my danger, and played the game manfully. To have lost the way was terrible enough; but the wolves! and Lota! An instant I was numb and dumb.

It is true, however. The severity of the weather, the migration or scarcity of the animals on whom these unclean creatures preyed, had made their hunger a raging, devouring madness. They were encroaching on civilized territory and losing their usual characteristic and craven cowardice—were approaching the habitations of men, haunting village and settlement. Woe to those in their path! As the infernal howl rose lingeringly again the horses darted away with a shrill neigh of fear, and I guided them—beginning to recover myself—in an opposite direction, while "Terror," my noble hound, stood up with every long bared, and every hair erect, waiting for the enemy he had scented.

If my good horses had gone on so admirably at first, they sped off now like arrows from the bow, for the madness of fear added wings to their speed, as that hunger did to our pan ing pursuers. I was growing cool Lota was pale but calm. I felt proud of her, though it was certain that if we escaped not speedily the brutes would run us down; and then, horror of horros, what a fate for her!

I had two rifles, a revolver, ammunition, a spear, and a wood hatchet in the sleigh. I conveyed my intention to Lota.

"Can you load these weapons with those cartridges?" I asked.

"Yes," was the answer, and she loaded a Fuller and a Manton with a true hunter's skill.

I took one rifle—looked back—the pack was increasing. I fired, and Lota loaded; and one after another fell, to be devoured by their ravenous comrades, and still the horses sped on.

The accursed things were, for all this, gaining ground. Doubts, fears, hopes, tremblings were at my heart as I turned to the sweet girl whose life or death were all in all to me, and said:—

"Lota! if we die together, remember that I loved you—none but you! I tell you now if I may never again."

"Kill me first," she whispered; "I hear your words; I echo them. You have my heart, Richard——."

"Oh, Lota! best beloved! what a moment to confess; and I know not if I feel pain or gladness the most."

"There are now no secrets between us," said Lota, smiling; "take this rifle; give me—the pistol; one kiss—ah! they come—Save me from them at any cost."

I thought my ears would have split at their dreadful yells, for they were now upon us, opening out to surround us, and though the horses held bravely on, I dreaded, every instant, that sheer terror would paralyze them. It is scarcely possible to conceive the unutterable horror that was circling around us both; young lovers with beating hearts, forever, from that hour, interchanged with each other.

With lolling tongues, eyes of flame, hoarse deep growls, they had ceased to bay and howl; they were closing in upon us. I remarked one huge monster in advance of the rest; his object evidently being to leap into the sleigh from behind. I fired—and missed him. The next moment his huge bulk came scrambling over the back; his paws were on me; his fiery breath on my cheeks and I expected, as I murmured a short prayer, to feel the fangs of the abhorrent brute in my flesh. A flash!—a crash!—a gush of blood and the creature tumbled backward, shot through the throat, to the spine, by my brave Lota! Then I plied hatchet, and split skull after skull, while the sleigh tore on; but I was giving up all hope, and turning round—oh, heaven—to spare my darling a more hideous fate, when shots and shouts rang round, and troops of dogs and hunters came swiftly to our aid, and—and we were saved.

Providence had directed the sleigh to "Windygap;" our firing reached the hearing of our friends, and brought them out in hot haste to aid us. We were saved, and as I bore her fainting form into the hospitable hall, and clasped her tenderly to my breast, you may guess how sincere was the gratitude I breathed in silence to heaven.

It was the prelude to a wedding, which occurred soon afterwards, and you may be sure I never forgot my fight with the wolves, how fearfully my little Lota looked then, or the somewhat original but apropos words in which "I told my love."

A Gentle Hint to Newspaper Readers.

(From the Brantford Courier.)

Of all the trades and professions, we know of none so poorly paid as the publisher of newspapers. Many of our patrons, otherwise worthy, practical men, think it not unrighteous to let us wait month after month for our dues, and at last, if compelled to pay, do so with a very poor grace. Very expostulation, "Mr. Typo must have his money!" the reply not unfrequently is "well, if he must he must. (Not one cent, and do your best, stop the paper!—I have patronized your establishment six years—there is no such thing as gratitude in the world." Another will tell us he never subscribed for the paper; "the boy has left it every morning as it was, and as it was left I read it occasionally—but I never ordered it." There is another class of patrons who never subscribe at all; but are great friends of the paper, and always read it—in fact this is the class who may be termed "your constant readers." "Here, Sam, go over the way, with my compliments to Mr. Jones, and ask him for the loan of his paper; and, Sam, tell him, as he never reads it before breakfast, I'll thank him to let John bring it over here every morning—it is an excellent paper—that editor really knows 'what's what'—I begin to think of patronizing him myself."

There yet remains to be mentioned one more class of patrons—supporters we should say—for they are the support and stay of publishers. The class is composed of those condescending beings whose invariable cry is, "Here, Mr. Clerk, has so good as to place my name on your subscription list, and write opposite to it, PAID IN ADVANCE." In looking over a list of some thousands yesterday, our eye happened to fall on one or two hundred of these backward performers, and were our printing establishment supplied with any auriferous types, their much revered names should literally be emblazoned in characters of gold. We have now on our books several outstanding accounts which we would gladly see liquidated, and trust we have said sufficient to induce every delinquent subscriber to "pony up" immediately.

LANGUAGE OF INSECTS.—A most singular discovery, the credit of which appertains, we believe, to Mr. Jesse, is that of the antennal language of insects. Bees and other insects are provided, as everybody knows, with feelers or antennæ. These are, in fact, most delicate organs of touch, warning of dangers, and serving the animals to hold a sort of conversation with each other, and to communicate their desires and wants. A strong hive of bees will contain thirty-six thousand workers. Each of these, in order to be assured of the presence of their queen, touches her every day with its antennæ. Mr. Jesse has also shown that this antennal power of communication is not confined to bees. Wasps and ants, and probably other insects, exercise it. If a caterpillar is placed near an ant's nest, a curious scene will often arise. A solitary ant will perhaps discover it, and eagerly attempt to draw it away. Not being able to accomplish this, it will go up to another ant, and by means of the antennal language, brings it to the caterpillar. Still, these two, perhaps, are unable to perform the task of moving it. They will separate and bring up reinforcements of the community by the same means, till a sufficient number are collected to enable them to drag the caterpillar to their nest.—Ex. Paper.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT.—M. Noel, a French agriculturist, speaking of the introduction of the potato into France, says: This vegetable was viewed by the people with extreme dislike when first introduced, and many expedients were adopted to induce them to use it, but without success. In vain did Louis XVI, wear its flower in its button-hole, and in vain were samples of the tuber distributed among the farmers; they gave them to their pigs, but would not use them themselves. At last Parmentier, the chemist, who well knew the nutritive properties of the potato, and was most anxious to see it in general use, hit upon the following ingenious plan: He planted a good breadth of potatoes at Sablons, close to Paris, and paid great attention to their cultivation. When the roots were nearly ripe, he put notices around the field that all persons who stole away any of the potatoes would be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law. No sooner were the new roots thus forbidden, as it were, by authority, than all persons seemed eager to eat them, and in a fortnight the whole crop was stolen, and without a doubt, eaten. The new vegetable having been found to be excellent food, was soon after cultivated in every part of the kingdom.

ALARMING OCCURRENCE AT A MENAGERIE.—On Saturday evening, between eight and nine o'clock, an accident took place at Edmond's (late Wombwell's) menagerie, now exhibiting at Kingland Green, which caused the greatest consternation to those who were present. During the performances of the elephants, who were taking their accustomed walk up the middle of the booth, which is a very large one, loud shrieks were heard from that part of the show where the lion cages are, and the audiences were horror-stricken to see that the lioness had a girl about thirteen years old in its claws, and was dragging her up to the bars of the cage. In an instant the lion-tamer, an Indian, who exhibits the collection, went to the front of the cage and with the greatest coolness and courage beat the beast about the feet, and forced it to relinquish its hold, but not until the girl had been very much lacerated about the arms and left side of the body. She was taken to the German Hospital, her name was Sophia Moorfield. She had gone to the menagerie with her friends. It appeared that she had accidentally got within the ropes in front of the lion and tiger cages, and that the lioness forced her paws out flatways, and caught hold of her bonnet. The girl putting up her hand to protect herself was seized by the other paw of the lioness.—Eng. Paper.

"MONEY TO LEND!"

"MONEY!" "MONEY!"

"CANADA PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY!"

These are the headings of advertisements in all our newspapers. They mean that the advertiser is prepared to lend money to the farmer on the security of their farms. Alas that there are so many borrowers! It is a lamentable fact that about one half of the best farms of the country are under mortgage, paying from 6 to 20 per cent. During the last few years there has been in England and Scotland a vast amount of unemployed capital, much of it found its way to Canada, seeking investment. Better it had never come! While crops were good and the prices high, the farmers went a little mad, and many of them purchased more land than they could well pay for, even if prices had kept up and the crops kept good. But times changed, prices went down, and to make matters worse, the crops failed. The farmers got trampled. The extravagance of previous years left them in debt, and worse still, left them in bad debts. People, who in Ireland lived on potatoes and salt, in this country pay more for their tea and sugar than would support them in Ireland. Not that they are dearer here, but they indulge here whereas, there they did not. We mention this as one item of expense only. Many having instalments to pay on their land, being unable to meet their payments, rather than lose the land and the money paid on it, borrowed on their homesteads at heavy interest, while many to pay other debts are compelled to raise money by like means. In both cases they only put off the evil day, while, if purchasers they are enabled to keep hold of their land, they enjoy it only as tenants, being under a heavy rent for interest.

A farmer has a farm valued at $3000 as farms are valued. He says "I can easily wipe off a $1000 Mortgage." Let us see if he can. His farm cost him $300. To raise his family he has worked, cleared and raised crops. He increased crops, paying for the improvements, yet in most cases the soil is not so fertile as it was fifteen years ago. Raising wheat, selling or burning the straw and general bad farming has reduced it. Still the country having advanced his farm which only cost him $300 is now worth $3000. Though he is worth that $3000 he never made it. If the land had not increased in value would he be worth 3000 pence. In many places the land would be worth more if well timbered than it is. So in reality the farmer has not made that $2,700. He has as little cash to day as when he commenced —Nay he has good $1000 to the bad—proof: the mortgage on his farm.

How then is he to pay off the mortgage and ten per cent for interest, he never will. To raise more money of his farm than he ought he sows crop after crop of wheat until his farm can no longer yield, then being unable to meet his payments he is foreclosed or sold on a few weeks notice, his farm is sacrificed at a forced cash sale, when only greedy speculators are able to buy. This sort of thing may be seen every day. I do not say it is a universal case, but we are sorry to say it is but too general.

The whole country is getting under mortgage. The result is poverty—deterioration of soil, decay of fences, barns, houses in fair rain.

If money was not so freely held out fewer people would borrow. Instead of economising the farmer runs and borrows—and that too, at fearful rates of interest. Let us illustrate, and take our example from a fact. A. borrows from the "Canada Permanent Building Society," a Society which offers money at 7 per cent., payable in instalments spread over a number of years—perhaps ten —so that the borrower gradually pays principal and interest and does not feel it—so they say. Let us see if their inducement is true. To a borrower of $1000 is given a schedule showing his payments. That schedule says, that in order to pay interest and wipe off $1,000 in ten years, you must pay $170 per annum for ten years—that is: $70 for interest and $100 to reduce the principal. Let us compute the interest paid by the borrower. The table below sets out the whole story :—

Year.	County Rec.	Borrower has.	Borrower pays for interest of year.	Paid for pa. ni end of year.	Rate of interest.
1		1000	70	100	7 pr. ct.
2	100	900	70	200	7¾ "
3	200	800	70	300	8⅓ "
4	300	700	70	400	10 "
5	400	600	70	500	11⅔ "
6	500	500	70	600	14 "
7	600	400	70	700	17½ "
8	700	300	70	800	26 "
9	800	200	70	900	35 "
10	900	100	70	1000	70 "

Every year you pay $70 for interest, or 7 per cent. on a $1,000; and every year you reduce the principal in your hands $100. Your interest keeps the same while the money you handle grows beautifully less. The principal slips from your fingers into the Company's. While you pay the interest meanwhile with your money, the money you are paying interest on, they have got their clutches on some other man's farm. You commence with paying 7 per cent. and you end with 70! Is this not robbery? During the ninth year you only have $200 in your hands, and you pay $70 for its use—this is 35 per cent.; and on the last year you pay $70 for the use of $100—or 70 per cent.

Farmers, can you stand this? Have you toiled until you are old and can work no more, in order to let your substance be taken away by a specific Building Society? If you must borrow, borrow where you will be honestly told what you have to pay; not by societies who, pretending to lend at 7 per cent., take 70. No wonder this Company sells almost everybody's land they get hold of. Is it necessary for us to tell you to shun it. We never knew a man borrow from it but rued the day. Why it has been supported, and that, too, by men of high standing, we are at a loss to understand. The deception practised by the agents in representing to the honest but innocent farmers that the interest was but 7 per cent., is, to us, the most unpardonable part of their scheme. We say nothing of the Company's peculiar fines and penalties, which all borrowers in arrears know too much of. Closing, we would say to the farmer who is in debt: work harder, farm better, live more economically, borrow as little as possible, and if possible don't borrow at all.

The Opposition are jubilant over the defeat of the Solicitor-General in South Leeds. Their hopes are raised. They are sure now that the Ministry is "snuffed out," as the classical Leader has it. They look forward with anxious waiting and much stabbing of palms to an early day of again holding the Government reins and controlling and distributing the public patronage. But there is many a slip between the "cup and the lip," and our Corruptionist friends may find this to their cost, with regard to their present rejoicings. It is true, that the defeat of Mr. RICHARDS is a thing to be deplored as a public misfortune by the friends of progress and reform. But when it is considered what influences were brought against him, the result is not altogether an unexpected one. Immense sums of money were raised and spent by the Opposition to carry the election of Mr. JONES. The passions and prejudices of the lower classes were aroused, and influences misrepresentations of the grossest kind were used. Indeed, all the machinery that money or the ingenuity of unscrupulous politicians could devise or command was in motion to defeat the Solicitor-General, and embarrass, if not defeat the Government. But the end of the matter is not yet. Investigation when gone into may place things in a different light from what they now seem, and show that wholesale bribery and corruption are not to be tolerated, to the subversion of those fundamental principles which underlie true freedom and national morality—the preservation of which are essential to a people's honor, independence and prosperity.

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The first meeting of the Board of the Grammar and Union School Trustees was held last Tuesday evening in the Board Room, in the Union School.

The Clerk having called the board to order. Dr. Burnham was unanimously elected chairman.

Messrs. Charles Cameron and Wm. Eastland were appointed auditors.

Messrs. Wm. Helm and Wm. Cluxton were absent.

Col. Haultain and J. R. Walton signed the declaration and took their seats,

Mr. O'Beirne was re-elected Secretary and Treasurer, with a salary of $80.

The Secretary presented his yearly statement, which along with other accounts were referred to the auditors.

The board thanked Mr. J. S. Douglas the Local Superintendant, for his past services, and re-elected him again for the present year.

The Local Superintendent presented a report from Mr. King the new Principal, in reference to certain changes he proposed in the school, and requesting a committee of the Board to confer with him in reference to School matters.

The Chairman, Col. Haultain and the Rev. Mr. Roger were appointed to confer with the principal.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the members of this Society was held at the Huffman House on Wednesday evening, January 20th. Col. Strickland, in the absence of the President, took the chair; after which J. A. Wrighton, Secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and the report of the last year which were confirmed, the particulars of the report we have been unable to obtain. The following gentlemen were elected to fill the office of the Society for the ensuing year :—

Col. Strickland	President.
J. M. Burns	1st Vice do.
Ed. Poole	2nd do. do.
Rev. V. Clementi	Chaplain.
J. H. Roper	Treasurer.
W. J. Fowler	Secretary.

COMMITTEE.

Jno. Watterson,	Geo. Mitchell, Sr.
Jno. Brown,	J. A. Wrighton.
E. Chamberlen.

The following gentlemen were elected members of the Society :—Messrs. Geo. Webber, Thos. Martin, Jno. Babb, W. Aldridge, Jno. Pinch, Lazarus Curtis and Col. Haultain.

We understand it is the intention of the Society to celebrate the Tercentenary of Shakespeare in a manner that will do credit to the name of England's poet, and likewise creditable to the Sons of St. George.

A "SELL"—As the train was leaving here for Port Hope last evening, a "cabby" perpetrated a good "sell" on an economical pedestrian. While the train was switching up comes Mr. passenger running in great haste, shouting — "Hold on! hold on!" "Cabby" on the hind part of the passenger car shouted—"Hurry up! hurry up!" and, pretending to apply the brakes. Judge of the "pheelinks" of Mr. passenger when the train backed up to take the mails and passengers aboard, to find that he had afforded a good hearty laugh to all his fellow passengers—and yet had time to spare.

A COMMUNICATION signed "C." and several other important articles are crowded out, but will appear next week.

THE GOOD TIMES HAVE COME AT LAST.—And so has that which has hitherto been looked for in vain, namely, a medicine that could be relied upon for curing rheumatism, colds, coughs, neuralgia, tic douloureux, burns and frost bites, bowel complaints &c. It is called the "Candian Pain Destroyer," and every one should really possess a bottle of it without delay. It gives relief the moment you apply it, and will effectually cure your disease; in fact it is the most wonderful medicine ever brought before the public. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The County Council met in first Session for 1864, on Tuesday last, all the Reeves being present, viz:—

P. M. Grover, Reeve, Asphodel.
R. Birdsall, Deputy do.
Peter Pearce, Reeve, Belmont.
Robert Harrison, Reeve, Dummer.
John Carnegie, Reeve, Douro.
Evans Ingram, Reeve, Otonabee.
John Blizard, Deputy do.
John Gilmour, Reeve, Monaghan.
Martin Corkery, Reeve, Ennismore.
R. D. Rogers, Reeve, Ashburnham.
John Walton, Reeve, Smith.
George Fitzgerald, Deputy do.
William Gainer, Reeve, Minden.
S. S. Peck, Reeve, Snowden.
Thos. Magahy, Reeve, Galway.

The Council having been called to order by the Clerk, Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Morrison, moved that Peter Pearce, Esq., be Warden.

R. D. Rogers moved, seconded by J. Carnegie, that John W. Gilmour, Esq., be Warden.

The amendment was lost, and the original motion was carried by a majority of one.

James Foley and J. J. Hall, Esquires, were appointed Auditors for the current year.

The Auditors were ordered to prepare a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures under their appropriate heads, 200 copies thereof to be printed in sheet form.

The usual Committee for the appointment of Standing Committees were appointed, after which the Council adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, 27th Jan., 1864.

The Council met, all the members being present.

Mr. Clemesti was heard before the Council on the subject of the re-survey of Harvey and on motion of Mr. Rogers, the Warden was authorized to agree with him as to the re-survey paying for the whole area of land and water at the rate of five cents an acre, lakes and water to be laid down on the plans with their acres.

The Standing Committees for the year were then appointed.

Some discussion arose on the By-law to raise the necessary amount for the erection of the new jail, upon the credit of the non-resident land fund. It was finally recommitted, amended and ordered to be published for three months, to be then taken into consideration on the 23rd of June next.

A By-law for extending the time for collecting the taxes to the 1st April, was introduced, and passed through Committee of the Whole.

Some matters were referred to the Committees, after which the Council adjourned.

THURSDAY, 28th Jan., 1864.

The Council and all the members were present.

The Warden read a telegram from the Warden of the County of Victoria, enquiring what action had the Council taken or intended to take regarding the settlement between the two Counties.

A committee was appointed to meet a Committee from Victoria to effect a final settlement.

W. S. Conger, Esq., was heard before the Council on the subject of opening up and settlement of the back country.

FRIDAY, 29th Jan., 1864.

All the members of the Council were present.

On motion of Mr. Grover, the jailor was authorised to procure a nurse for Thomas Kelly, and that Dr. McNabb be requested to attend to his requirements.

The sum of $800 was granted to aid in the construction of a road to connect with the Bobcaygeon Road, direct from the Town of Peterborough, provided that the Town of Peterborough grant the like sum, and also an application to Government to grant a sum equal to both, for the purpose of making said road.

The Committee on Printing recommended that the whole of the County Printing for the present year be given to Messrs. Dunn & Graham, their tender being the lowest.

The Clerk was authorized to forward to W. S. Conger, Esq., M. P. P., and to the Mayor of the Town of Peterborough, the resolution passed by the Council relative to the road from the Town of Peterborough to connect with the Bobcaygeon Road.

The following persons were appointed local Superintendents of Schools in the following Townships :—

Asphodel	Rev. M. A. Farrar.
Belmont	W. W. Armstrong.
Smith and Monaghan	Rev. E. R. Roberts.
Dummer and Burleigh	John Rose.
Otonabee	Rev. Mr. Andrews.
Galway, Snowden, Minden and Stanhope	Rev. W. Thorp.
Douro	Mich. Walsh.
Enniamore	Dan. Donohue.

The following are the Sub-treasurers appointed :—

Asphodel	Jas. Foley.
Belmont	W. E. Roxburg.
Dummer	John Rose.
Otonabee	Geo. Read.
Douro, Smith, Monaghan, and Harvey	W. Sheridan.
Enniamore	T. Molony.
Galway	Wm. Leason.
Snowdon	W. B. Brower.
Minden and Stanhope	W. McKelvey.

Mr. Wm. Sargent, of Norwood, was appointed Inspector of Weights and Measures.

T. F. Nichol, Esq., was appointed County Engineer.

Jas Stevenson and Jno. M. Roger were appointed Trustees of the Peterborough Grammar School.

Dr. T. W. Poole and Rev. Mr. Briden were appointed Trustees of the Norwood Grammar School.

The Warden was authorized to use such means as he thought best to secure for Thos. Kelly, now in jail, a ward in the Hospital, Toronto.

SATURDAY, 24th Jan., 1864.

A By-law authorising the payment of certain accounts and claims was passed.

On motion of Mr. Gainer, the Treasurer was authorized to allow the County Tax levied since 1859 on unpatented lands for which no tax has been collected or can be collected in the Municipalities of Galway, Snowden and Minden.

A Committee was appointed to co-operate with a Committee appointed by the Town, to provide suitable buildings for the holding of County Agricultural Shows, meetings, and to answer as a Drill Shed; and the Council also pledged itself to pay $500 towards the erection of such building, provided the Town of Peterborough gave the same amount, and the Government as much as both.

The Council then adjourned.

TOWN COUNCIL.

MONDAY, January 25th, 1864.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Whyte, Hamilton, Moffat, Eastland, McNaughton, Leady, Burnham, Lawson, Tooley and Eastland.

The minutes of former meeting were read and approved.

Accounts amounting to $194 80 were referred to the Finance Committee.

Applications from Wm. Cumming for Chief Constable, Wm. Bell for Clerk, Robt. Stenson for License Inspector and David Carlisle and Edward Fry for Assessors, were referred to the committee on applications and petitions.

A By-law for the appointment of Auditors was passed and ordered to be signed.

A By-law authorising the issue of Debentures under the Consolidation Act was read a first time.

His Worship the Mayor was instructed to write to Montreal and ascertain the cost of a bell with the necessary gearing.

On motion of Mr. Toole, the Fire Committee were instructed to remove the old fire bell and frame.

The Council adjourned until next Monday night at 7 P. M.

Monday, February 1st, 1863.

Present — His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Lawson, McNaughton, Stevenson, Toole, Leonard, Leady, Burnham, Hamilton, Moffat, Eastland and Whyte.

The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

Applications from Mr. John Kennedy as Assessor, and Mr. Wm. Larkin as Inspector of Buildings, were referred to the Committee on Appointments to Office.

The Finance Committee recommended a number of accounts to be paid, amounting to $150.95.

Mr. John Kincade was appointed Inspector of Buildings for the year 1864.

Mr. Wm. Cumming applied for the Office of Chief Constable, offering to discharge the duties of Town Constable and Collector, for sixty-two pounds ten shillings? But the Council very wisely appointed Mr. William Arnott, with a salary of £100.

Mr. John Kennedy, (the would be Mayor) after throwing up such a paltry Office as Assessor, was glad to beg for the Office again, and by some illegal chicselling of a few Councillors he was appointed; but it is hoped he will be ousted at the next meeting of the Council.

The Treasurer was instructed to refund fifty cents to Mr. H. T. Evans, the amount charged on the Assessment Roll for a Dog, he not having had any. (Perhaps it was a Bitch he was assessed for.)

The Council then adjourned for 2 weeks.

AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST.

The February number, for example, contains about one hundred and eighty different articles, not counting the fifty or more suggestive paragraphs in the Calandar of Work for the Month, and over thirty engravings. None of the articles are thrown in to "fill up," but all are carefully prepared in manuscript, mostly re-written and condensed so as to crowd as many hints and suggestions as possible into the pages. Perhaps the most interesting topics are the Notes from the Fruit Governors' meetings, Procuring Farm Laborers among Immigrants, and Producing Animals of either Sex (p. 35); Convention of Cheese Dairymen, New Canadian Seed Postage, Sundry Humbugs, and Largest Hog, (p. 26); "Wine Plant" Humbug (p. 39); Pa. Agr. College, etc. (p. 38); Several Important Tables on Live Stock and Breadstuffs (p. 40); Description of various breeds of Hogs (p. 41); Raising Calves, Cost of Fattening Beef, and Important Experiments in Breeding (p. 42); Improved Horse Stables, and Potatoes versus Tobacco (p. 44); Notes on Grapes, and Use of Seaweed (p. 45); Looking out for Farm Help (p. 47); Fine Sheep Engraving, and What is inside of a Plant (p. 48); Easy method of propagating plants, and Raising Quince Stocks for Pears (p. 49); Apples for the West (p. 50); Raising Forest trees from Seed (p. 51;) Talk About Onions (p. 52; How to Make a good Cup of Coffee, and Sundry other Household Suggestions (pages 53-4-5); with the Children's Department, containg a talk about the Snow, A Talk on Farming, and many interesting pictures for the Young. We only indicate some of the articles that are of general interest. The Basket (pages 36 to 40) contains nearly a hundred condensed items on various topics, many of which will interest the general reader.—We think that nowhere else can be found, at the same low price, so much to interest and instruct in all pertaining to the Farm, Garden, and Household—not forgetting the little folks.

STREET RAILWAY WAR IN BUFFALO.—There is a great depth of snow in the streets of Buffalo, and the Main Street business men object to its removal from the railway track to be thrown in piles at the sides. The railway men turn out with their scrapers and clear the track, and the business men on the street follow with shovels and throw the snow back upon the track. Shovels were ahead at last reports. The business men on Main Street say that the company should use sleighs, as their charter provides, when the snow is so deep and the sleighing good.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES. — The first of a course of twelve lectures, which arrangements have been made by the Sons of Temperance, will take place this evening in the Victoria Hall, on George Street, to be delivered by the Rev. Mr. Mackenzie, of Baltimore; subject—"Running to Extremes."

CANADIAN TOBACCO.—The culture of tobacco in the States of Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri has been so seriously injured, in consequence of the desolating civil war, that the attention of the manufactures has been turned to the capability of Canada for its production. Little has hitherto been done in this matter by our farmers. A few here and there have raised small quantities, but so far as we are aware no serious effort has been made to ascertain whether or not it is a paying crop. Mr. Frederic Snider, of Ancaster, has been on one expedition. This year he planted about a third of an acre, and on Saturday he brought in his crop, weighing about 3000 lbs, which he disposed of to Quimby & Tuckett, at ten cents per lb; and as any crop that realizes over $100 an acre must be very profitable. The manufactures here say that it is the finest specimen they have seen of Canada grown tobacco. The leaves are large and well developed, and they emit a very delicate fragrance. We have no doubt that, with due attention to its culture, tobacco of superior quality can be raised in Canada, and we trust that other farmers in this neighborhood will turn their attention to it. A specimen of Mr. Snider's can be seen at this office.—Hamilton Spectator.

....The metal called Vanadium, discovered in English pig iron, has been detected in varieties of iron ochre. Its most practical use is in the preparation of writing ink. To a solution of nutgalls is added a minute portion of vanadic acid, and the ink thus obtained is intensely black and indelible by the ordinary agents which destroy the color of the iron ink in common use. It also resists a high temperature. The inference is that its use will prevent alteration or forgeries in writings of special importance.

SEASONABLE FESTIVITIES.—Whether attending in solemn duty, to religious service, at the lecture, the concert, or at any social gathering, we find at this season that coughs and colds are very prevalent: unpleasant alike to those who suffer as well as to those who have aural demonstration of the fact. Many an impressive discourse, many a choice selection of music, has been marred by a din of coughing that seems at times contagious. To remedy this our readers should use and recommend Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, one of the best medicines in the world for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all the throat and chest affections.—Montreal Transcript.

THE SEASON AND ITS CHANGES.—Winter still lingers in the lap of spring, and the cold east wind is almost always with us. Yesterday, we had rain, and a cold east wind; today, we shall have the same, probably, and to-morrow, a fine sunny day. These great changes make sad havoc with the healths of our citizens, particularly those having weak lungs. For all diseases of this kind, use Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers. 25 cents a box, at all Druggists.

LATE NEWS FROM INDIA.—The Indian mail, with dates from Bombay to December 14, and Calcutta Dec. 5, has been received. It is asserted that the disaffection on the Punjaub frontier has been greatly exaggerated, and that the affair in a mere repetition of a trifling frontier war such as has been fought twenty times since the annexation of the Punjaub. There is no latter news of military operations in India.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S CARES.—No man in this agony, says Mrs. Stowe in the Boston Watchman has suffered more and deeper albeit with a dry, weary, patient pain, that seemed to some like insensibility. "Whichever way it ends," he said to the writer, "I have the impression that I shan't last long after it is over." After the dreadful repulse of Fredericksburg, he is reported to have said, "If there is a man out of hell that suffers more than I do, I pity him."—In those dark days his eyes and worn and weary air told how our reverses wore upon him, and yet there was a never failing fund of quiet at bottom, that sometimes rose to the surface in some droll, quaint saying or story, that forced a laugh even from himself.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—As an inhabitant of the Town of Peterborough and interested in its welfare, I desire to be allowed to say a few words in reference to the proposed new Town Hall. In doing so I will endeavor to confine myself to such facts and to such arguments as are properly applicable to the subject, feeling that it is better to appeal to the good sense of my fellow townsmen than to their prejudice or self interest. I trust that we are all alike anxious to see our Town improve and to do what we can to increase its growth and prosperity, and I do venture to express a hope that in the discussion of this question we will for once lay aside personal and local feeling and interest, and confine ourselves to the merits of the subject in hand. And I would here just observe that I regret to see an opposite spirit to this manifested by a correspondent in your last week's paper over the signature of "B.," who ought to know that abuse is no argument, and who pays a poor compliment to the intelligence of his readers by the contents of that communication. With his own personal matters the public has nothing to do, and if he has buildings to rent and fears that the erection of the new Town Hall will have the effect of increasing his difficulties in this respect, he ought to have discretion enough to keep these things out of sight. And if, as he appears to dread, one of the effects of the proposed new Town Hall will be to cheapen rents, the business men of the Town, at all events, will not complain. I take a better view of the subject: I look to the general convenience and interest of the people. I do not believe that a stone wall is going to be built around the blocks lying between Hunter and Simcoe Streets, and that all improvement outside of these limits is to be depricated and prevented simply to benefit "B." at the expense of the whole Town. I am in favor of improvement everywhere, without reference to persons or localities, and whenever I find a work projected which I think will add to the growth and prosperity of the Town, I would like to see it carried out, knowing that what will benefit my townsmen generally will benefit me. Your correspondent "B.," however, does not appear to share in this opinion, but appears to think that what is for other people's interest is to his injury. He must be a selfish man, indeed, who imagines that he is going to make the public interest subservient to his own private gain; and he must be a very narrow-minded man who would wish to do so. This, however, may be his motto, and may have been his practice heretofore; but the Town is now too large and the people too enterprising and too intelligent to suffer him to continue this practice with success any longer. "B." will have to mix in the throng of business and share with others the right to do well. No one envies him his success; but people are determined that his success shall not (no longer, I was going to say,) depend upon their poverty. All have a common privilege to succeed in this world if they can, and the truth of this is nowhere more apparent than in the case of "B." himself. But he, like the man who ascended the ladder and then kicked it down best others should ascend also, wants to deny to them the opportunity to do as he has done. I hope, therefore, that "B." will act upon the principle of fair play and of justice to all. That he will not pursuade himself that he is better than other men, and not flatter himself—as he does—that his power or influence is to rule this Town and people. He may affect now to despise poverty—he may affect to look down in supercilious contempt upon the hard working laborer or mechanic and sneer at their condition, as he did in the communication referred to; but if he knew anything, he would know that it is to these men that the Town of Peterborough principally owes its present growth and prosperity, and that if these be increased it will be by means of the industry, and patience, and self-denying perseverance of this most worthy and valuable class of our citizens. All honor, then, to honest labor; and all honor to independence of nature, and to honesty and intelligence, whether in the hard working laborer or mechanic, or in "B." himself.

There is a general feeling throughout the Town in favor of the erection, this year, of the new Town Hall, and there are many reasons why it should be built. The wants of the public require such a building; and, independent of these considerations, any one who takes a pride in the appearance of the Town must admit that we cannot longer go on with the present miserable accommodation. As respects a public building suited to the growing prosperity of the Town, we are really behind the age. And strangers have often expressed their wonder that a people so enterprising should longer suffer this want to disgrace their Town. Let the subject, then, be dealt with as it deserves; and let us, for once, unite in doing an act from which all will benefit, and all will derive pleasure and comfort. There need be no holding back on financial grounds because the direct and indirect profits and advantages will show a large gain.

When the question of the erection of the present old Market House was under discussion, there were then persons who discouraged the project, and predicted loss and injury to the Town—just as "B." opposes the new Town Hall. A few figures, however, will show who was right. The cost of that building was within £800. The annual interest upon this sum is £48. The yearly receipts from and through the building are as follows: From Market Stalls, £114 10s.; rent of the Hall, £14 5s.; market fees, £80; Total, £208 15s. Besides the value of the use of the Hall and offices to the Town, and which is certainly equal to the interest of the whole sum invested. So much, then, as to the opponents of the old Market House. And may not this be taken as a fair criterion by which to judge of the benefits to arise from the erection of the new Town Hall. When the old Market House was erected, Peterborough was a small place, and it was then, perhaps equal to its requirements. Now it is a rapidly rising Town with its fine brick buildings—its thousands of inhabitants, and daily increasing—and to expect to make the old Market House serve our present and future purposes is like expecting that the boy's clothes are to be worn by the man. And so when the leasing of the Market Block was under consideration there not wanting persons, "B." among the number, who opposed it also; urging about as sensible reasons for their opposition then as they do now against the new Town Hall. But the people in public meeting demanded that the Market Block should not be kept a common to benefit "B." and his friends; and what is the result? why, that the Town revenue is increased by some £235 10s. from this source—which sum would be more than doubled in the event of the erection of the new Town Hall by the leasing and building upon the remainder of the land fronting on George Street alone. The rents and taxes derived from the present tenants are as follows: Ground rents £98.; taxes upon the rental value of the buildings £87 10s.; taxes upon stocks, &c., £30; total estimate profit to the town £235 10s.

Now let us calculate the cost and the profit of the new Town Hall. Cost of the building—say the whole of the debentures set apart for that purpose—$4,250; the interest upon which is £255; credit by rents of the building £250; by rent of the remainder of the Market Block on George Street—150 ft. at 10s. per ft.—£75; by taxes upon the the rental value of the buildings £15; by taxes upon stocks, &c., £50; by rent of the new Engine House and Lock-up—which would not then be required—£75; by rents from the present Council Chamber—converted into a market for fowl, vegetables, fruit, eggs, &c., &c.,—£30; by two new stalls—which would then be made in the East end of the Market House—£30; making a total of £885. These figures prove that the erection of the new Town Hall would be a source of profit, as it would be a source of pleasure and comfort to the people. And it will be observed that the above calculation does not take into account the value of the use of building to the Town itself, and which would alone equal the cost of its construction. And, moreover, the money would be all spent in the Town, and the people would derive all the good of it. And another very important consideration is that the building will be upon the property of the Town, the value of which will thereby be largely increased. So that look at the undertaking in any light it cannot fail to be a benefit.

A RATEPAYER.

Peterborough, Feb. 2nd, 1864.

Married.

At the residence of the bride's father, Smith, on the 27th ultimo, by the Rev. G. Colwell, ROBERT ELLIOTT, Esq., of Asphodel, to SARAH, youngest daughter of William Finley, Esq.

By the same, at the residence of Mr. Thomas Lamble, on the 27th ult., Mr. WM. MCCULLOUGH, to Miss FANNY LAMBLE, all of the Town of Peterborough.

DIED,

In Washington, D. C., Dec. 27th, of Small Pox, ALBERT E. MACOMBER, Clerk in the Sanitary Commission Pension Agency, aged 20 years.

Mr. Buscom, his employer and teacher, thus writes of him:—"In the daily intercourse of the office, I had learned deeply to respect his integrity, his efficiency and fidelity to all trusts committed to him. He was a young man of more than ordinary character, clear and decided in his views of truth and duty, and standing firmly up to his convictions without ostentation; and never being misled, at all, by the loose morality which so abundantly prevails here in Washington. In scholarship he made excellent proficiency, prosecuting his studies with an ardor, which I had often to check, for the sake of his health, and never had any occasion to stimulate. He had endeared himself to me in business relations as a pupil, and as a young man of large promise from whom I hoped and expected much."

Of his burial, he thus writes:—

"To-day about 4 o'clock, P. M., we committed his body to the earth, in the Congregational Burial Ground, Mr. Morgan, Mr. McNair, my friend Mr. Seaton, and myself, standing near by, saw the coffin with its precious freight lowered into its narrow spot of earth, and heard the sprinkling of cold earth echoed from the coffin lid. And there in a beautiful cemetry with monuments and shade trees all around, he lies buried under the shadows of the branches of a cedar; and there is he to remain, taking the sunshine and the rain—God's own sunshine and rain —while the sorrowing earth, with motherly care, shall continue to gather into her bosom the dust of her suffering children."—Com.

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AS BEFORE SOLD.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes wrong by the play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two rooms out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

CROSBY & NICHOLS

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE THAT THE

North American Review

WHICH has for the last ten years been so ably conducted by Dr. Peabody, passes now into the editorial charge of Prof. James Russell Lowell and Charles Elliot Norton, Esq., gentlemen who, for sound elegant scholarship, have achieved an enviable reputation, both in this country and in Europe; and whose taste, education and experience eminently qualify them for the position they have assumed.

Of the former, it may be said that his essays in the periodical which, under his editorialship, reached the summit of its fame, surpassed in vigor and force those of any contributor.

Of the latter, that he has "added new honor to the name he bears by the extent and variety of his knowledge, and by the force and elegance which he has exhibited, both as a writer and a speaker."

And of both, that their thorough loyalty to the liberal institutions of our country, and their sympathy with the progressive element of the times, render them peculiarly fitted to conduct the Review, which has by competent authority been pronounced the leading literary organ of the country, and of which it has been said that it has not its equal in America, nor its superior in the world.

The North American Review will maintain in the hands of its new editors its established reputation for independent criticism, and for well-considered opinions in politics and literature.

In discussing political and social questions, the spirit of the Review will be thoroughly national and loyal. It will defend and illustrate the distinctive principles on which the institutions of America are founded.

In literature, it will avail itself of the best material of thought and scholarship which the country can supply.

Bound by strong associations to the past, and sympathy with the present, hopeful for the future, the Review will do its part in the intellectual movement of the times.

☞ The North American Review is published Quarterly, on the first day of January, April, July and October, in numbers of about three hundred pages each, containing matter equal to an ordinary octavo volume.

TERMS.—Five dollars a year, or one dollar and twenty-five cents per number.

☞ A new volume of the Review will commence with the January number, and the publishers trust that the increased expenditure consequent upon the changes proposed in the future conduct of the work, will be met by a generous increase in the patronage of the public.

CROSBY & NICHOLS, Publishers.
No. 117 Washington, Boston.

☞ Newspapers copying the above the usual number of times shall receive the work for one year. 4

Improved Lands For Sale.

CONSISTING of Lot No. 14, in the 9th Concession of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, 200 acres, with about 130 acres cleared, with a good frame house and large wood shed attached to it, beside the door of which is an excellent well, pump, &c. Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 16 feet posts, and all under-horsed with stalls to stable 20 head of Cattle and 8 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors; close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

ALSO.—The East half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

PROSPECTUS OF THE

Canada Farmer

A NEW

FORTNIGHTLY JOURNAL,

OF

Agriculture, Horticulture

AND

RURAL AFFAIRS.

THE Subscriber has determined to make the experiment whether a first-class Agricultural Journal can be sustained in Canada. He proposes to issue early in January, 1864, the first number of The Canada Farmer, and to continue the publication on the 1st and 15th days of each month. Each number will contain sixteen pages quarto of closely printed matter. It will be printed on fine paper, from an entirely new font of type. The services of an able agricultural writer as Editor-in-Chief have been secured, and he will be assisted by an efficient staff of writers, reporters and correspondents. First-class artists and engravers have also been retained to prepare illustrations for the paper. No exertion or expenditure will be spared to render the new Journal a worthy representative and advocate of the Agricultural interests of Canada.

In the conduct of The Canada Farmer, the following ends will be zealously labored for:—

1.—To arouse public attention, by frank and temperate discussion, in all questions scientific, commercial, legislative or otherwise, specially affecting the farming interest.

3.—To bring under the attention of our Farmers all improvements at home or abroad, worthy of adopting, affecting the management of Field Crops—the Barn-yard—the Stable—the Dairy—the Orchard—the Poultry Yard—the Apiary—the Kitchen Garden—and the Flower Garden; and to excite an interest in the progress of Rural Architecture and Landscape Gardening, and in all that concerns the Domestic Economy of the Farmhouse.

4.—To mark and report all improvements in Agricultural Machinery—foster new inventions—and promote the adoption of all labour-saving machines in the work of the farm and garden.

5.—To keep prominently under attention all that specially concerns the Dairy-farmer and the Grazier; the best breeds of cattle—the best systems of feeding—the most approved processes of cheese and butter making—the best mode of packing—and the best markets to sell in.

6.—To keep prominently in view whatever is specially interesting to the Sheep-raiser and Wool-grower—the breeds best adapted to our climate—the best systems of winter and summer management—and the varying prospects of the wool market.

7.—To afford the Farmers of Canada an ever-open medium for addressing their brother Agriculturists throughout the Province, suggesting matters of common interest and advantage, and eliciting information or advice on practical questions of difficulty or doubt.

8.—To report concisely the Proceedings at Agricultural Shows, Fairs and Sales through out the Province—note the condition and progress of the Herds and Flocks of prominent Stock-breeders; record the importation of Thorough-bred stock from abroad, and publish Engravings of First Class Prize Animals.

9.—To watch and report carefully and promptly the actual state and probable prospects of the Produce Markets at home and abroad; and specially promote all movements designed to secure the best prices in the best markets for Canadian Farm Produce.

10.—To afford the Farmers of Canada a common medium where all who have for sale Live Stock, or Seed Grain, or Land, or who may wish to buy such, can make his desires known directly to the whole farming population of Canada.

☞ The Canada Farmer will be published for ONE DOLLAR per annum, POSTAGE FREE payable strictly in advance.

CLUBS

Will be furnished at the following rates:—

TWELVE COPIES for.....TEN DOLLARS.
TWENTY COPIES for.....FIFTEEN DOLLARS.
FIFTY COPIES for.....THIRTY-FIVE DOLS.
ONE HUNDRED for.....SIXTY DOLLARS.

Communications on Agricultural subjects are invited, addressed to "The Editor of the Canada Farmer," and all orders for the paper will be sent to

GEORGE BROWN,
Proprietor and Publisher.

☞ As FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES of the first number will be printed and circulated, an unequalled opportunity for Advertisers will be presented. The charge will be twenty cents per line.

Toronto, Dec. 7, 1863. 53

MECHANICS! INVENTORS!!

MANUFACTURERS,

Engineers, Agriculturists, Chemists,

AND

ALL CLASSES OF READERS,

Ought, by all means, to take the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

The most Valuable Journal of its class now published.

Volume X., New Series,

Commences on the 1st January next; therefore NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

MECHANICS will find in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN valuable information concerning their various trades, and details of all the latest and best improvements in Machinery, Tools, and Progress; together with such useful knowledge as will tend to dignify their occupations and lighten their labors.

Inventors will find in the Scientific American all necessary instruction how to secure Letters-Patent for their inventions; also excellent illustrations and descriptions of all the principal inventions recently made in this country and Europe; likewise an official list of the claims of all Patents granted weekly at Washington, with numerous explanatory notes; also, discussions of questions concerning the Patent Laws of the United States, reports of trials in court, with legal opinions, etc.

Manufacturers will find in the Scientific American illustrated articles descriptive of the most recently invented machines used in various manufacturing operations, the different process being lucidly described; also practical recipes of much value to manufacturers, with hints upon the economical management of factories.

Engineers will find in the Scientific American valuable descriptions of all the best inventions connected with Steam, Railroad, Marine, and Mechanical; together with a faithful record of the progress science in all these departments, both at home and abroad.

Chemists will find in the Scientific American details of recent discoveries made in Chemistry and articles on the application of that science to all the useful arts.

Agriculturists will find in the Scientific American engravings and descriptions of all the best and most improved Farm implements; also, original or well-selected articles on matters relating to general Agriculture; great care being taken to furnish Farmers, regularly, with such information as will be valuable in the Field as well as in the Household.

All Classes of Readers will find in the Scientific American a popular resume of all the best scientific information of the day; and it is the aim of the publishers to present it always in an attractive form, avoiding as much as possible abstruse terms. To every intelligent mind, this journal affords a constant supply of instructive reading.

Subscribers should remit so as to have their subscriptions begin on the first of January, with the new volume. Those who preserve their numbers for binding have, at the end of the year, two handsome volumes of 416 pages each—832—with several hundred engravings.

Terms of Subscription.—$3 for 1 year; $1.50 for six months; 20 copies in a Club can be had for $40. Subscribers in Canada should remit 25 Cents extra to pay postage. Specimens copies sent free; also, grade, a pamphlet of "Advice to Inventors."

Only $1 Per Year in Advance.

What family should be without Godey's Lady's Book? It costs $3.00 a year. We will, however, furnish both the EXAMINER and LADY'S BOOK for $3.75; that is, both for 25 cents less than what you pay for the LADY'S BOOK alone. Or, to every subscriber paying in advance we will, for an extra 75 cents, furnish Madame Demorest's Mirror of Fashions, and Quarterly Journal de Grande Mode, each number of which contains large and magnificent Fashion Plates, splendid illustrations of all the fashionable and Paris novelties, for Ladies' and Children's Dress, useful information, and the four life-size Patterns, cut ready for use, etc., etc. It should be remembered that each yearly subscriber to Mme. Demorest's Mirror of Fashions is entitled to the selection of 50 cents' worth of extra patterns, or a copy of Mme. Demorest's System for cutting Children's Dresses, or for 50 cents more, the Ladies' System. That is, for 75 cents, we will give to every subscriber of the EXAMINER paying in advance, $1.50 worth. More than this, we will likewise pay the American postage, which is no small item. Those who have paid in advance are entitled to the same privilege. Or, if farmers prefer they can, instead of the above journal, for the extra 75 cents, have Judd's celebrated American Agriculturist, which ought to be in the hands of every farmer. Name should be sent in at once.

To any one sending us 6 subscribers we will give Kinglake's Crimean War; 10 subscribers, Abbott's Tycoon Capital; 20 subscribers, Webster's Dictionary; 30 subscribers, Worcester's Largest Dictionary.

The party sending subscribers, if he chooses, select any other work of a similar value. The cash must in every instance accompany the order.

A Special Premium will be given to the party sending in the largest number of subscribers by the 1st of March. Names can be sent in at any time, and will be credited as received.

Poetry.

THE HAWTHORN TREE.

Thrice dear to recollection yet,
Is th' aged Hawthorn Tree,
That once wav'd o'er the pastures green,
With nodding majesty!
And heralded the coming Spring
With early budding spray,
From which the small birds long were wont,
To chant their vernal lay.

When Phœbus yok'd his fiery steeds,
He spread an Eastern blaze
Of light upon the beauteous tree,
And gilt it with his rays:
There speckled breasted mavis oft
His sweetest notes supplied;
There thrush and blackbird oftentimes,
In melody have vied.

To those gay songsters of the grove,
As well yes as to me,
This tall umbrageous Hawthorn,
Has been a favorite tree;
The sweet toned linnet warbled there,
The wren there built her nest;
And there reposed the redbreast,
As the sun sank in the West.

The woodpecker from the fowler's snare,
For safety to 't took flight;
The sparrow it protected too,
From the rapacious kite;
Upon its very topmost branch,
The wished-for bird in view.
First perch'd and cheer'd the husbandman,
With loud or shrill "Cuckoo!"

How fair it shone in Summer time,
In blossoms of snow-white;
Bestowing grateful perfumes to
The flowing breezes light:
Its liquid sweets are hourly sipped
By butterfly and bee—
The haunt of youthful innocence
Was round this Hawthorn Tree.

The neighing steed it shielded from
Thick hail and drenching rain;
The woolly breed it shelter'd oft,
When tempest blew amain;
Aloft in air its pliant arms
The white rock'd to and fro;
As Boreas ice-bound lakes and streams,
And clad the fields with snow.

The stately tree hath long withstood
The angry brumal blast,
Supplying blackbird, thrush and jay
With many a rich repast.
When other trees upon the ground,
Their mellow product fling,
Its blood-red fruit in clusters ripe
Still from its branches hung.

At length one scowling hurricane,
More fatal than the rest,
That darkne'd heav'n, and rent the air,
Blew fiercely from the West,
And boisterous as it swept along
From the Atlantic Sea,
Uprooted in its wild career,
This aged Hawthorn Tree.

The farmer sadden'd at the sight,
And as the fowls blew o'er
Its tempest-stricken trunk they seem'd
Its downfall to deplore;
The blackbird, linnet, redbreast, thrush,
Were touched with deepest woe,
To see their benefactor kind
And friend sincere laid low.

Thus do we mourn this man of worth,
Whose virtuous acts have ceased,
When pale Death from "his mortal coil"
His spirit has releas'd:
But tho' no more he breathe, his name
As time rolls on shall be
More dear to recollection, like
This aged Hawthorn Tree.

JACK'S LETTER.

An English writer says: One day when I came home from visiting, my old landlady told me that some one had been down begging me to go to old Will's house as soon as ever I could—he was in great trouble. I started off at once, and found him and his old woman both in tears. I asked them what was the matter.

"Oh, sir we've such a letter from our Jack in Africa.

Now, our Jack was a soldier, and had, by good conduct, risen to the rank of Sergeant Major.

His letter was in a high-flown strain. He had been evidently reading Moore and other poets: and he had written when the news of the threatened Chartist riot on the famous 10th of April had just reached the camp. I cannot remember all his letter but this passage occurs to me:

"BELOVED PARENTS.—I have heard of the terrible dangers that threaten my native land. Perhaps ere now it has been devastated by lawless bands of unprincipled miscreants; perhaps the humble cot in which I first drew nurture has been committed to the ruthless flames. Would I were with you, to protect my ancestral hearth! I cannot be with you! but my beloved parents, my soul hovers over you, as the fabled Houri of the Mahomedan; and I do all I can, by wish and supplication, to cast an ægis around you."

Of course I burst out laughing at this high-flown letter and their grief. They started at my laugh.

"What, sir, is all right? We thought summut terrible bad sure'y happened; We never heard such words afore."

I assured them all was right, and translated the letter to them, to their amazing comfort; but I can assure you that letter was shown to every neighbor as "what Jack could do," and doubly treasured because they could not comprehend it.

JACK AND HIS HARD LUMP.—"Halloo, Jack! Halloo! Won't you have a glass this cold morning?" cried a tavern keeper to a jolly Jack Tar who was smartly stepping along the road.

Jack had formerly been a hard drinker, and had spent many a bright sovereign in the tavern he was now passing; but a year ago he had signed the temperance pledge.

"No, landlord, no! I can't drink; I've got a hard lump at my side." As the witty sailor said these words, he pressed his hand against his side, adding, "Oh, this hard lump!"

"It's all through leaving off grog," replied the landlord; "some good drink will take your lump away. If you are fool enough to keep on teetotal, your lump will get bigger, and very likely you'll be having a hard lump at your other side."

"True, true, old boy!" with a hearty laugh, responded the merry tar, as he briskly drew out a bag of gold from his side-pocket, and held it up to the publican's gaze: "This is my hard lump. You are right in saying that if I drink my lump will go away and if I stick to teetotal I shall have a bigger lump. Good bye to you, landlord. By god's help I'll keep out of your net, and try to get a hard lump on both sides!"

A man being asked by a young lady what phonography was, took out his pencil and wrote the following, telling her that was phonography: "U. R. A. B.T.L.N!" (You are a beauty, Ellen).

"I am astonished, my dear young lady, at your sentiments. You make me start." "Well, sir, I have been waiting to a all the last hour."

TWENTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY OF THE STAR PAPER OF AMERICA!

January 1, 1864.

The New York Mercury FOR THE

COMING YEAR.

AFTER more than a quarter of a century of uninterrupted success, The New York Mercury—standing first on the master-roll of the Literature Press in this country—points proudly to its past career as a guarantee of new triumphs in the future.

Heretofore, it has eclipsed all rivalry; but it proposes to make the coming year memorable by eclipsing its own past history, and 'coming up before the world as the most marvellous specimen of a fascinating, brilliant amusing, and comprehensive Literary Newspaper that has ever been published in either hemisphere.

THE GENIUS OF EUROPE

will be laid under contribution to give brilliancy to its columns, and side by side with original productions of the most popular romancists of the Old Word, will be placed the chef d'œuvres of the most eminent story-writers of the New.

MISS M. E. BRADDON,

Authoress of "Aurora Floyd," "Lady Audley's Secret," "John Marchmont's Legacy," etc., etc., who has suddenly risen, like

in the literary horizon of Great Britain, has been specially engaged to supply The New York Mercury from time to time with the wonderful creations of her genius, at a cost which no other weekly in America could venture to incur.

☞ Among the multitude of distinguished writers and artists who have become familiar to the masses through the vast circulation of the STAR WEEKLY OF AMERICA, may be mentioned the following, all of whom are still upon its staff:

Dr. J. H. Robinson, Cousin May Carelton,
Margaret Blount, W. O. Eaton,
Ned Buntline, George Martial,
Arthur M. Grainger, Julia D. Ingraham,
Grace Gardner, Edward Willett,
Felix O. C. Darley, Mary Chief,
Miss M. E Braddon, George Albany.

Scores of other distinguished literati, under various noms de plume, contribute to its columns, while its pictorial illustrations are from the inimitable pencil of Felix O. C. Darley, Esq., the best draughtsman of the age.

The War, which has given the coup de grace to so many pretensious publications, and half destroyed those that still survive, had added thousands to the circulation of The New York Mercury.

Its heart-stirring short stori s, its military histoiettes, its matchless serial romances, its racy burl-sques, its general wit and humor, its delicious gossip, its fairy tales for little folks, its rare poetry, its fresh and vigorous editorials the infinite variety of its contents, and the large amount of reading matter that it comprises, render it welcome everywhere, and to classes of society.

of closely-printed matter, it may safely be pronounced the cheapest, as well as the best Literary Newspaper extant.

Three favorite writers, Doctor J. H. Robinson Cousin May Carleton, and Ned Buntline, are now preparing three stories for The New York Mercury. One of these productions will be commenced in the Opening Number of the New Year. The authors being aware of this fact, are engaged in an emulative contest for precedence, and the result will unquestionably be that the most effective story ever penned by any of the three, will commence in the

of the great REPRESENTATIVE WEEKLY of the Western World.

The New York Weekly is sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. To subscribers, it is regularly mailed every Saturday morning, for $2 a year; three copies for $5; six copies for $9; eight copies for $12, with an extra copy, free, to the getter-up of the club. Six months' subscriptions received Always write plainly the name of your Post office County and State. We take the notes of all current banks at par. Payment must invariably be made in advance.

☞ Specimen copies sent to all applicants. Address all letters and remittances, post paid, to

MANHOOD AND THE

VIGOR OF YOUTH RESTORED

IN FOUR WEEKS,

By Dr. Sicotte's Essence of Life.

DR. SICOTTE, (OF PARIS) after years of earnest solicitation, has at length acceded to the urgent request of the American public, and appointed an agent in Toronto for the sale of his valued and highly prized Essence of Life. This wonderful agent will restore Manhood to the most shattered constitutions, whether arising from excesses, the effects of climate, or natural causes. The time required to cure the most inveterate case is four weeks; and if used according to printed instructions, which are very simple, failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as its effects are permanent. It is acknowledged by the medical press to be the greatest discovery ever made. Its developing powers are miraculous. Success in every case is as certain as that science overthrows ignorance.

Dr. Sicotte's Essence of Life is sold in cases, with full instructions for use, at $3, or four quantities in one for $9, and will be sent to any part, carefully packed, on receipt of remittance to his accredit agent.

MONEY EASILY MADE,

By either Gentlemen or Ladies.

I AM in possession of a beautiful French Art, which has been introduced in this Country only to a limited extent, and that in New York City It is something which every person stands in great need of, consequently will be extensively patronized. Persons can make money with it at home or abroad Thousands in France have made small fortunes at it, and are still doing so. I would state what it is, but persons purchasing the knowledge of it do not desire it made public. One Dollar sent to the undersigned will ensure the immediate return of a circular giving full information in the Art, and the requisite instructions to pursue it. This stictly genuine, and the best and only thing ever introduced which every person can make money at. NO LETTERS NOTICED, except those containing. he required amount for instructions.

SOLDIERS in the ARMY!

AND OUR PEOPLE AT HOME,

Are now offered an opportunity by which they can obtain a

GOOD AND DURABLE TIME-PIECE,

At a very Low Figure.

OUR WATCHES are warranted to keep time one year, and the buyer is allowed the privilege of examination before the payment is required.

Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions.

A first-class Hunting Time-Piece of silver material, over which is electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, most durably wrought, making the imitation so faultless that it cannot be detected from the solid material by the most experienced Judges; acids will not affect it. London made movement Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions has sweep seconds, and is not to be excelled in general appearance. This decidedly the one of the best articles ever offered for traders and speculators. Engineers, emigrants and persons travelling will find them superior to any other; alteration of climate will not affect their accuracy. Price, packed in good shape and good running order, only $35, or case of 5 for $200.

Silver Double Time Hunting Levers,

Best quality silver cases, over which electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, similar to our Improved Duplex, and superior adjusted movements with "stop," to be used in timing horses, &c.: has four ludexes for Washington and Greenwich time, sweep second, and all the improvements. All in all, taking its beautiful and faultless appearance and its superior movement into consideration, we regard it as decidedly the cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price, in good running order, $35, or case of 6 for $200.

☞ We ask no pay in advance, but will forward either of them to responsible parties, to any part of the loyal States, with bill payable to the express-man when the Good are delivered, giving the buyer the privilege of examination, and, if not satisfactory, the watch can be returned at our expense.

The express companies refuse making collections on soldiers, and other parties in the disloyal States, consequently all such orders must be accompanied by the cash to insure attention We make a deduction on either Watch when the payment is forwarded in advance.

Money may be sent by express at our expense

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK,

For 1864.

GREAT LITERARY & PICTORIAL YEAR.

THE PUBLISHER of Godey's Lady's Book, thankful to that public which has enabled him to publish a Magazine for the last thirty-four years of a larger circulation than any in America, has made an arrangement with the most popular authoress in this country—

MARION HARLAND,

Authoress of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Miriam," "Moss Side," and "Nemesis,"

Who will furnish Stories for the Lady's Book for 1864. This alone will place the Lady's Book in a literary point of view fare ahead of any other Magazine. Our other favourite writers will all continue to furnish articles throughout the year.

The best Lady's Magazine in the world and the Cheapest.

THE LITERATURE

Is of that kind that can be read aloud in the family circle, and the clergy in immense numbers are subscribers for the Book.

THE MUSIC

Is all original, and would cost 25 cents, (the price of the Book) in the music stores; but most of it is copyrighted, and cannot be obtained except in Godey.

OUR STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

All efforts to rival us in this have ceased, and we now stand alone in this department, giving as we do many more and infinitely better engravings than are published in any other work. Godey's immense double sheet Fashion-Plates, containing from five to seven full length colored Fashions on each plate—other Magazines give only two—are far ahead of any Fashions in Europe or America. The publication of these Plates cost $10,000 more than the Fashion Plates of the old style, and nothing but our wonderfully large circulation enables us to give them. Other Magazines cannot afford it. We never spare money when the public can be benefited.

These Fashions may be ridiculous. Dresses may be made after them, and the wearer will not subject herself to ridicule, as she would be if she visited the large cities dressed after the style of the plates in some of our so-called Fashion Magazines.

OUR WOOD ENGRAVINGS,

Of which we give twice or three times as many as any other Magazine, are often mistaken for steel; they are so far superior to any others

IMITATIONS.

Beware of them. Remember that the Lady's Book is the original publication and the cheapest. If you take Godey, you want no other Magazine. Everything that is useful or ornamental in a house will be found in Godey.

DRAWING LESSONS.

No other Magazine gives them, and we have given enough to fill several large volumes.

OUR RECEIPTS

Are such as can be found nowhere else. Cooking in all its varieties—Confectionary—the Nursery—the Toilet—the Laundry—the Kitchen Receipts upon all subjects are to be found in the pages of the Lady's Book. We originally started this department, and have peculiar facilities for making it most perfect. This department a one is worth the price of the book.

LADIES' WORK TABLE.

This department comprises engravings and descriptions of every article that a lady wears.

MODEL COTTAGES.

No other Magazine has this department.

Terms to Subscribers in the British Provinces:

One copy one year, $3; two copies one year, $5; three copies one year, $7.

Five copies one year, and an extra copy to the person sending the club, making six copies for $11.50.

Special Clubbing with other Magazines.

Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Magazine, one year, $4.

Godey and Harper, one year, $5.

Godey, Harper, and Arthur, one year, $7.

At these prices subscribers in the Provinces will have only the British postage to pay.

Treasury notes and notes of all solvent banks taken at par.

Be careful and pay the postage on your letter.

THIS remarkable American remedy is carrying the world before it. Over five million boxes are sold annually. Composed entirely of Flowers, Roots, Balsams, and Extracts, which act on the human system in a pleasant, satisfactory, and successful manner. Acting directly on the blood, glands, solids and fluids of the body, their use is attended with the happiest effects in sudden attacks of diseases, one or two doses almost always cures. In old standing cases of sickness, small doses repeated frequently—be cleanse the system that good health is the result. Purchase of druggist or dial is necessary. They never cause sore mouths, swelled joints, aching limbs, etc., as do many other kinds. They are warranted to give satisfaction, or the money will be refunded. They are considered cheaper, safer, prettier, and in all respects superior to any purgative pill in the world

☞ The discovery of coating a pill with sugar emanated with Dr. Herrick. All others are counterfeits and if used, will do harm, and disappoint the sick. Herrick's pills are expertly put up, 30 in a box, with a large sheet of directions, and sell for 25 cents a box, 5 boxes for $1.

UNDER THE SNOW.

Under the snow our baby lies,
The fringed lids drooped o'er her eyes;
The tiny hands upon her breast,
Like twin-born lilies taking rest;
While o'er her grave the rough winds blow;
Under the snow—under the snow.

Under the snow our baby lies,
While we sit at home and list for her cries;
And her mother asks, (she is very lone),
"Why has my little baby gone?"
Ah! happy, she teeteth not our woe;
Under the snow—under the snow.

Under the snow our baby lies,
As pure as the clouds far up the skies—
Those delicate banners of vapor, furled
Beyond the breath of this noisome world.
'Tis the blood of Christ hath made her so;
Under the snow—under the snow.

Above the snow our baby dwells,
Where never the solemn death bell knells;
Where Sin and Death are never known;
Nor dark-browed pain, with her voice of moan
Where the angels move on wings that glow;
Above the snow—above the snow.

Above the snow our baby dwells,
And we dry our tears when we think she dwells
The song of the angels and just men there,
With a voice so sweet and a face so fair.
And we're glad we've sent them a voice from below;

THE HARD SCHOOL.

In the autumn of 1825, I received a visit from one of the Superintending School Committee of the town of G——, in the State of New Hampshire. He introduced himself as Mr. Brown, and at once proceeded with his business. He wished to employ a teacher for one of the schools in his town. He ran his eye over my frame, and I saw the result was satisfactory, for he immediately expressed a desire to secure my services. I asked him what sort of a school it was.

"Wal," he said, with a peculiar nasal twang and a pronunciation not set down by any of our lexicographers, "it's a pooty tarnation hard school now I tell ye. But you've got the bone and muscle, an' I reckon as how you might dew it."

He again ran his eye over my large, sinewy frame, and rubbed his hands with evident satisfaction.

"Have scholars been in the habit of gaining control of the school?" I asked.

"Lord bless ye, yes. Why no master can stand it a week. Ye see, 'Squire, there's some pooty allfired stout boys in that ere school. Ye see they work in swamps an' they're kind o' rough in their ways. We learn tell o' you, an' I was privileged to offer ye forty dollars a month, if ye'd only come and keep it. That's more than twice as much as we ever paid afore."

"How large is the school?"

"Wal—that's nigh unto sixty scholars, all told when they come—some boys an' some gals."

I had heard of the school before, and had been acquainted with an excellent teacher who had been thrown out from the school-house and rolled in the snow bank by the large boys; yet I resolved to go and try it. Of personal danger I had no fear for I happened to possess a large frame, and proportionate amount of nerve and muscle. I had exercised freely in our gymnasium, and there was not another man in the place who could at all hold his strength by the side of mine. Nature had been lavish in her favors, and evil habits had not impaired the faculties God had given me.

I told Mr. Brown I would keep the school. It was to commence on the first day of December, and I continue three months. But I told him that I must have my own way; that in all things pertaining to the school I must be master; that my will must be absolute, even to the casting out of half my scholars. He said I should have my own way, and pledged his word that the committee should not interfere in any way, or under any circumstances.

At the appointed time I packed up my wardrobe and school-books, and started for G——. When I reached the village I learned that my school was in a distant part of the town, in a rugged region known as Rawbone Hollow. On the following morning, Mr. Brown took me over in his sleigh. I found my school-house upon the edge of quite a settlement, which was located in a wide valley, with high bleak mountains on all sides. I was taken at once to the place where I was to board, and in this latter respect I was fortunate.

My host's name was Elias Bonney. He was a well-to-do farmer, about forty-five years of age—a fine, intelligent man, and one of the select men of the town. He had five children that were to attend the school—the eldest being a girl of nineteen, named Lydia, and the youngest a boy of seven.

Mr. Brown remained to dinner and then took his leave; and as I was alone with Mr. Bonney, I began to inquire particularly about the school. My host shook his head with a dubious expression.

"You know what boys are," he said, "especially if they've had their way for a long time. For six winters we've had no school. There was quite a large number of stout boys, and they generally contrive to get out the master at the end of a week. But I think they'll find it hard work to put you out."

"I don't know," I replied; but I really should'nt want them to try it, for I'm not apt to be very considerate when acting on the defensive against mere brute force."

Bonney said he should think 'twould be dangerous for the scholars to make the attempt. "But," he added, with another dubious shake of his head, "the boys are not only stout and hearty, but you must remember there is a number of them. Once get 'em started and they don't fear anything. They have had some pretty stout masters to deal with."

"But how many are there in the shool," I asked, who are really bad—who are ready to go ahead in all evil pranks?"

Bonney pondered a few moments, and then replied:

"Why, there's only two of them that are really ugly; and even they ain't bad neighbors. They're kind and considerate in case of need, but they seem determined to resist the school-master."

We kept up the conversation at intervals until bed time, and when I retired for the night, I had about made up my mind, as to the nature of the work I had to do. I had learned enough to assure me of several important facts. In the first place, each succeeding teacher had gone into the school house with the firm belief that he had to fight his way through. This very feeling had served to excite his combativeness, so that the first position of the scholars was an antagonistic one. The result had been inevitable.

At fighting, the large boys were hands; they had prepared for it and expected it, and consequently were easily led to an exhibition of pugnacious qualities.

On the next morning I found the building nearly new, and looking clean and neat. I liked that. I went in and arranged my books on the desk. Mr. Bonney had given me the key to this desk, informing me at the same time that there were some implements there I might need. I found a heavy rock-maple ferule, some two feet long by two inches wide and three-quarters of an inch thick.

It was a perfect club, and moreover, enough to excite the ire of an descent person who might see it burnished about in the hands of a superior. It was not alone. It had a companion in the shape of a long, stout heavy rawhide, or "greenhide," as they are sometimes called. I let them remain in the desk.

At nine o'clock I rang the hand bell with which my host had supplied me, and the scholars took their seats. The school was full, and as I gazed carefully around, I was pleased with the appearance of most of the scholars. There was a comely, intelligent set for such a place. But among the larger boys were some faces I wished to study. John Putney and Stephen Oliver had been so thoroughly described that I recognized them the moment I put my eyes upon them. They were too hard-looking customers, especially the former. Putney was tall and stout, with head and shoulders not unlike those of a bull. He wore a scowl on his face, and seemed to lean back in his seat like one who held sway o'er all around. When I first came to him in my sweeping glance I caught his eye. He tried hard to keep up his game, but in a very few seconds his lids trembled and his eyes sunk. I knew I could conquer him in some way. Stephen Oliver was not so tall as John Putney although some said, stronger. But he was a better man. His face was more intelligent and he seemed to have more pride.

As soon as all was still I made a few remarks. I opened my desk and drew forth the ponderous rawhide.

"Do these belong to any one in the school?" I asked, holding them up.

No one answered. I then asked Lydia Bonney if she knew to whom they belonged. She said she believed their last teacher bought them. I then stepped down and put them in the stove.

After this I told the scholars that I had come there to teach them—to help them to an education which should fit them for the various paths in life they might pursue. I pictured to them the educated man and woman in contrast with the ignorant and urged them to weigh well the consideration I gave them. I called up all my powers of imagination and simplification, in portraying the happy results of an education.

"And more," said I, "I have come to help to give you this education, if you will only receive it. And in order to gain it properly—in order to have a profitable school, we must have a peaceable school, we must have order and regularity. We must all behave properly. Now I am sure you do not know as much of arithmetic, geography, history, grammer and other branches of common school education as I do—consequently I feel it my duty to impart to you all the information upon these subjects that I can. But I believe of that other qualification of a scholar you know as much as I do. You certainly know how to behave properly—how to be quiet, studious and peaceable. If there is a scholar present who does not know how to do this will he or she arise? I am in earnest. If no one rises I have the assurance from each and every one of you that you know how to behave properly in school.

I waited some moments but no one arose. But I could see that Mr. John Putney was uneasy. He seemed to be fearing that I was compromising him in advance of his will. However, I appeared not to notice him.

"Very well," said I. "I thank you for the assurance. And now I am going to place the government of the school at your disposal. You are all voters, and I want you to exercise the privelege. Shall we have during the coming three months an orderly model school? All in favor of that, will hold up their right hand."

The girls commenced first.

"Come," I urged, "I want you all to vote one way or the other. I shall think all who do not vote on the side, mean to vote on the other. All up?"

By this time every hand was up save Putney's and Oliver's. The latter had got his half up, when I saw Putney catch him by the arm and pull it down again.

"Down!" I said. "Now, are there any of the opposite mind?"

John Putney hesitated, but I saw that he was anxious to raise his hand.

"If there is any who do not wish an orderly school, I should be pleased to know it," I resumed, "for I am determined not to have scholars who need to be forced into obedience. I am not fond of governing."

Putney's hand came up with a jerk, and I saw him try to push Oliver's up; but I had caught the latter's eye, and he gave up to the influence of an imploring glance.

"What is your name?" I asked.

"My name is John Putney, the world over!" he replied, in a coarse impudent tone; but yet there was an effort in it.

"And you do not desire a good, orderly school?" I resumed.

"Wal, I don't care much, one way or the other," he replied, in the same tone, and I could see, too, that he was trembling his strength away fast.

"Very well," I said in a firm yet kind tone, "if such is your opinion then your presence here will not only be useless to yourself but of great detriment to the rest of the school. So you can retire before we proceed any further. But should you at any time make up your mind to come in, with a determination to be orderly and gentlemanly, you can return."

As I spoke I stepped down and opened the door.

"S'posin I'd rather stay here!" he returned turning pale.

"But you can't stay here!" I replied, in a tone and with a look that made him start.

"We cannot have you here. For the good of the school, and for the good of the school alone, you must leave, I can wait but a moment longer." The fellow was determined to try my strength but he might as well have thought of facing a thunderbolt. I was nerved up to my most powerful mood. I felt in my hands and arms that were I then where Sampson once was, I could have pulled down the pillars of the temple.

I walked up to the man's seat (for he was a man in age and size, coming one and twenty within a month) and placed my hand upon his collar, while he grasped the edge of the low desk before him and held on. With one mighty effort—an effort that surprised myself—I tore the fellow from his seat and raised him above my head. I strode on to the outer entry, and when I reached the door-stone, I cast him upon the snow. He scrambled to his feet, and, with an oath, rushed towards me. I struck him between the two eyes and knocked him down. I went and lifted him up, and then told him to go home. He cast one glance into my face from his already swelling eyes, and then, with mutterings of vengeance, he walked away."

I returned to the schoolroom and of course found the scholars at the windows, or rather rushing back to their seats.

"Now," said I with a friendly smile, "suppose that we try that vote again, for really, I feel a deep, earnest desire to have the whole school with me. All who are desirous of having an orderly, model school, and who are resolved to labor to that end, will raise the right hand."

Every hand went up in a moment.

And so I commenced the school. I went to Stephen Oliver, and asked him how far he had gone with his studies. He told me, and I then informed him that any evening when he wished for assistance, which I might not be able to render during school hours, I should be happy to grant it, if he would call upon me at my room. He was as grateful as ever I saw a person.

I had made the scholars understand that I should have no whipping going on. If any one would not behave he must leave the school. I had come to teach the various branches of a common English eduction, and those who had not yet learned to behave properly were not far enough advanced to be admitted to that school where the scholars themselves had determined to have good order.

I never had a better school. I have at times found it necessary to punish children; but I know that the school had had quite too much of it, and I resolved at the outset not to strike a blow, save in self-defence, and to turn from the school every child that would not obey. Direct was of great assistance to me. When I wished to leave the room for a short time, I felt perfectly confident of order in leaving him in charge. He studied hard, and ere long he became athirst for knowledge. He spent many evenings with me, and they were profitable to both.

I kept the school three weeks. On the Sabbath following the third Saturday, as I sat with Mr. Bonney and family, some one knocked at the door. One of the children answered the summons, and returned, followed by John Putney. He said that he wanted to speak to me. I led the way to my room, where a good fire was burning.

I bid the young man good evening, and told him he had taken a stormy season for a walk.

"Yes, sir," he returned in a half-choking tone. "It does storm hard, very hard. But sir, I don't mind that, I'm used to it. I wanted to see you, sir, I—I—"

He stopped and gazed on the floor.

"Don't be afraid to speak plainly, John," I said, "for I assure you that you are speaking to one who will be your friend under all circumstances."

"I want to come to school, sir," burst from his lips spasmodically.

"I thank you John—I thank you," I cried extending my hand, which he took at once. "Since I came to this place nothing has occurred to afford me more pleasure than this; come to-morrow morning, and you will find one of the best scholls in the country. We won't think of the past—we'll only try for improvement in the future."

The stout youth cried like a child. Mr. Bonney said, "it beats all."

"Why," said he, "here's a school that's been going to rack and ruin for years, because they could not find a master strong enough to conquer the big boys, and now they are conquered without even so much as a blow. And yet," he added, after reflecting a while "'tain't the nature of a man to be very good under blows, and I s'pose children have all the feelings of men. The lash may keep 'em under while it's over them; but it don't produce any effect that you can depend upon."

"That's it," I replied. "The obedience produced by the lash is only obedience to the lash. It can never beget one spark of respect for the one who applies it. I am not prepared to say that the lash is never under any circumstances necessary; society is in a terrible warped and unchristian state, and there is evidently a great deal of it. I will never keep another school that I cannot govern without the rod. If there chances to be a boy who will not behave, then send him back to those whose duty it is to teach him the first rudiments of behavior."

People were astonished at the result of my efforts. The committee were forced to report the school kept in the district known as "Rawbone Hollow," to be the best in their town.

So much for the "Hard School."

PEPPER'S GHOST IN CHICAGO.

Professor Pepper's ghost has been eclipsed in Chicago. An individual in the rural districts stepped into a store on Lake Street, a few days ago, and while making some purchases cast his eyes down along the long line of shelving and counters, remarking to a clerk—

"Mighty long store this is, from one end to t'other."

The clerk nodded assent, and the eye of the countryman fell upon his own reflection in a large mirror at the further end of the store.

"There's my brother out there in that are alley, sure's you live, and I hain't been him afore in three years. How cin I get back there?"

The clerk told him he would have to go out on Lake street, around the corner and into the alley. It should be remarked that the clerk did not see the joke, rashly supposing that the countryman had seen his brother through a rear window. Rural went out, and after an hour's search, returned and announced that his brother had "gin him the slip." Looking down the store again, he exclaimed, "I'll be darned if brother John ain't there again," and down he paddled toward the mirror. As he neared it, he smiled; his reflection cordially returned it, and advanced to meet him. Rural extended his hand, and the reflection extended its hand. Just at that instant Rural's hand came in contact with the cold glass; he started back, rubbed his eyes, took a second look, and saw it. He rushed from the store, swearing that he had his brother John were twice, and couldn't tell one another apart, and the darned lookin' glass had sucked him in.

THE SPRING CAMPAIGN.

The journals of the Northern States seem to be unanimous in opinion that the most stupendous efforts will be made by the South next spring to drive back the barbaric hordes now invading her soil, and they anticipate a series of struggles of giant magnitude and severity between the contending armies. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times speaks thus of what Spring will bring forth:—

"The North and West lie under the danger of thinking that the rebellion is caving in on all four sides, from weakness. The soldiers here think that through the opening of the coming spring, the armies of LEE, LONGSTREET, and MAGRUDER will strike at us with vast forces, get from the comprehensive and arbitrary conscription, and will so far roll back the advantages we gained in the fall of 1863 as to prolong the war for another year, and add eight hundred millions to the national debt."

THE REBEL CONSCRIPTION.—It is growing every day more evident that the people of the Rebellious States do not mean to submit to the wholesale conscription which Mr. Jefferson Davis is now trying to legalize by an act of his Richmond Congress, and which he had doubtless resolved to enforce at all hazards. Hardly a voice is in its favor among the Rebel Journals; against it there is a chorus from all quarters. The bold though not unanimous opposition of The Richmond Whig has emboldened other papers. The Mobile Register denounces the measure as impracticable. The Atlanta Intelligencer admits the necessity of recruiting the Rebel armies, but will not assent to conscription. The Chattanooga Rebel, also printed, notes it has once more returned, at Atlanta, and hitherto an unscrupulous supporter of the extremest measures, hails at the conscription, and believes that other means will equally produce the desired reinforcement. The North Carolina papers were never so outspoken.—Am. Paper.

AGRICULTURE IN ENGLAND.—During the last ten years the agricultural population of England has fallen off as follows:—The number of farmers and graziers has decreased from 306,767, to 249,275 or about twenty per cent.; of farmer's wives, from 201,725 to 163,725; of them sons and daughters, from 275,170 to 176,161; of landholders, from 34,627 to 30,766; of indoor male farm laborers, from 235,943 to 158,401; of ditto females, from 128,238 to 46,561; of outdoor laborers, 1,027,877 to 976,270. This decline of agricultural labor is attributable to several causes; first, the increased emigration of this class of the community and the absorption of them in other pursuits, and also by the introduction everywhere of improved labor-saving machinery. While, however, the falling off in paid labor is thus great, the increase in the productions of the soils is also observable.—Ex. Paper.

THE GOOD QUEEN.—Queen Victoria had the children of the workmen on the Osborne estate assembled on Christmas eve, where a Christmas tree loaded with presents was arranged. Assisted by members of the Royal family, the Queen spent the afternoon in distributing the presents to the children, consisting of wearing apparel, books, toys &c.; also words also gave coals, blankets, &c. to the laboring men and women. A few days before, the Queen dispensed liberally to the blind and paralytic in and around London. The English people are accustomed to the bestowment of charity during the Christmas holidays, and their amiable Queen is giving strength and beauty to the fashion by her bright example. Her kind heart finds comfort in the relief of distress and poverty.

J. R. WALTON.

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11TH, 1864.

As the time approaches for the opening of Parliament, the Opposition papers are growing more and more loudly. They pretend not to have the slightest doubt about the ousting of the present Ministry, and the setting up, in its stead, one of their stripe and color. They present the most singular and other the most absurd theories upon the subject. They pretend to scout at the idea of anything like a coalition being formed between those now in power and some of those out of power. They assume all kind of possibilities and contingencies that may affect the Ministry's destiny. They sum up all their wild and fanciful abstractions with the inevitable Q. E. D.—the Ministry must be defeated. The thought, no doubt, owes its paternity to the wish. But when Parliament meets, it will, perhaps, be found that the Ministry, in spite of all the sinister machinations at work and the vast sums of money spent, will be stronger than at the close of the last Session. There are some, we are convinced, who voted with the Opposition last Session who will give the Ministry their support during the coming Session. They may not be able to go with the Ministry in every thing, or to agree with it in every respect; but they have seen enough of the unscrupulous conduct of the Opposition to show them that the country would not be benefited by a change of rulers. Names have been mentioned, but we will not repeat them, as the truth or falsity of the statement will soon make itself manifest. No wonder that so many good men and true are so anxious to maintain the present Government in power. At no period, for many long years, has Canada been in so flourishing and satisfactory a condition as she is to-day. Under the Coalition Government her revenue fell far short of her expenditure. Every year there was a large deficiency—growing larger and larger all the time. So much so, indeed, that a general cry of discontent was excited throughout the country, which led to the overthrow of those who, in opposition to all known principles of political economy, were pursuing a policy that must have eventuated in general bankruptcy—if not in ruin. This is a fact too patent to be denied. The short rule of those now in power has been attended with quite different results. Already the Province, to use a figure of speech, breathes more freely; a mighty incubus has been taken away, which was cramping her energies. Her income meets her expenditure; and the credit of the Government is vastly improved. Even the foes of the Ministry cannot deny this—and this, surely, is no small thing in a new and rising country. Retrenchment has long been demanded; and the action of the Government in this particular, at least, has fully justified the highest expectations. It has applied the pruning knife with an unsparing hand; and the result is the present satisfactory condition that we are in. But not only in retrenchment has the Government entitled itself to the consideration and support of the county, but in many other respects. The several important Acts it has passed, and the various important and salutary reforms it has introduced in departmental working, are more than amply sufficient to demonstrate the fact of its anxiety to do what is right, most agreeably to the general wishes, and most conducive to the general interests. These considerations should be pondered over. They should have their weight. When the Ministry is blamed for not doing more, the peculiar and embarrassing position in which it has hitherto been placed should be remembered. What it has done—however good or commendable in itself—must only be looked upon as an evidence of what it would have done had it been placed in more favorable circumstances. It cannot be denied that this is an important era in the Reform history. Much depends on the friends of Reform, and what they do. If they had done their duty in days past, there would not now have been the remotest danger to the cause of progress and reform. It cannot be denied that there is danger, which if yet somewhat remote, may, nevertheless, be of a serious character. This should arouse reformers to action. Lethargy is fatal; inaction, even, is injurious. Suppose, as a possible contingency, that the present Ministry, by unexpected circumstances, is defeated; into whose hands must the reins of power fall? Is a problem—the practical solution of which affects all—especially Upper Canadians—more than many imagine, and more than most are willing to anticipate.

ST. ANDREW'S SABBATH SCHOOL.

The public opening of St. Andrew's Sabbath School took place as intimated on Wednesday, 27th ultimo, in the afternoon with a tea, which was excellently managed—everything being in abundance, thanks to the liberality of the ladies, who took an interest in the pupils—and the side tables being found so convenient for eating from as writing on, and the service was thus conducted without any confusion. About sixty children partook of the feast, and some fifty adults. A few hymns were sung by young people, and about twenty pieces recited, which were very creditably performed. In the evening, Col. HAULTAIN occupied the chair.

We have pleasure in announcing that Mr. GEORGE EDMISON was "made" an Attorney on Monday last, after having passed a most creditable examination, both written and oral. Mr. EDMISON, we understand, intends hanging out his "shingle" in Peterborough, when, we have no doubt, he will receive his share of public patronage

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

There has not been a meeting of the above association for some time. This has been caused, in some degree by the unfavorable circumstances as teachers' meetings; and those who did not, generally have had holiday visits or extra engagements. As we trust all have got settled and in working order, we would call their attention to the intentions and advantages of the association. We feel convinced that the teachers of this County are not enough alive to the advancement of Education. The subject is left in the hands of a few; these few control the entire management of its concerns. Perhaps they are engaged in the work (as guardians of its interest should) with zeal and intelligent earnestness. But some of them might not be, nay, we feel assured from our knowledge of some of them, that their time is too much taken up with other business, (and impartiality so, we know,) to be able to devote either much time or consideration to the subject at all. And even if they were wholly given to the work of Education, it is right that others should take an interest in it also.—teachers, above all others, should take a lively interest in the advancement of Education, and in properly carrying out the intention of the Law in relation thereto. He is very much affected by the action of Boards or Superintendents, and even by other teachers, in an educational as well as a pecuniary point of view. As guardians therefore of their own interests, they should be watchmen standing on the walls to defend their interest and that of the public, also, from any untoward act or attack of selfish or designing ones who care for nought so much as popularity, or, perhaps, the gratification of some selfish whim.

In no way can teachers do more for the advancement of education, or for securing the adoption of the most improved system of instruction than by uniting themselves in associations. But union and name are mere captions unless there is action—and momentary action produces no permanent result. Associations, to be effective for good, must be active, and continuous in action—no two or three meetings will ever produce any effect. If teachers wish to be felt, they must work, and then they will shew they have a right to speak; and if they speak out as they ought, they will be heard.

We, therefore, recommend the resuscitation of the Association. If anything has been found wrong in the past, let it be rescinded. If any addition to its constitution or by-laws is needed, let it be done at once. If any half-heartedness has been in the work let such be removed. Then all obstacles being out of the way what is to hinder the Association to prosper. Other county associations have proved successful; true, some have fell through. Those that have been successful, we feel assured, were in the hands of energetic men, who would not allow the word failure to be in their vocabulary. Let the teachers of Peterborough county shew that there is ability, pride, and energy enough among them to equal, if not excel, those of other counties. In expectation of a large and influential attendance of teachers, we are advised to name the last Saturday of February instant for another meeting of the Association. Let none be absent that day.

ORANGE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the County Lodge of the Loyal Orange Association of the County of Peterboro, was held in the Orange Hall, in the Village of Ashburnham, on Tuesday the 2nd inst., when the following brethren were elected office bearers for the present year:—

Bro. D. McDonald, Sen., County Master.
" C. Stephenson, Deputy County Master.
" Alexander Graham, County Secretary.
" John Armstrong, County Treasurer.
" G. Colwell, County Chaplain.
" John Graham, County Proxy.
" Robert Weir, County Director of Ceremonies.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

Ashburnham, Feb. 1st, 1864.

The Council of the village of Ashburnham met this evening pursuant to adjournment. Present, R. D. Rogers, Reeve, and Messrs Bennett, Calcutt, and McGreggor.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

On motion of Mr. Calcutt, D. McDonald was appointed Inspector of Licenses, and Mr. Philip Sargent was re-appointed Assessor.

The balance of R. White's account was ordered to be paid.

The Collector was directed to allow N. Waters the sum of $3, said sum to be allowed out of his taxes.

The Auditors' report was received and adopted, and the Clerk was directed to have it published, according to Law.

The Council then adjourned till the 1st Monday of March at 7 o'clock p. m.

ANNIVERSARY SOIREE.

The first anniversary of the Presbyterian Church, was held at Lakefield, on Thursday last. Refreshments were served about half past two, to a very large audience; in the evening addresses were delivered by the Rev. Messrs Roger Blain and Ewing.

Mr. Robert Graham, of Peterboro, was present with his Choir, who sang some excellent pieces.

FIRE.—A fire broke out in the furniture ware rooms of Mr. George Tanner, on Hunter Street, on Saturday night last, a large portion of the building was entirely consumed before the engine could be got in working order; most of the furniture &c. was saved. The loss is covered by insurance.

SMITH COUNCIL.

Smith, 4th Feb., 1864.

The Council met. All the members present.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Sam'l McKibbon was appointed Assessor—salary $140.

Mr. Jas. Hall, Collector—Salary $90.

Mr. Matt. Warnan, Inspector—salary $20.

103 Overseers of Highways, 13 Poundkeepers, and 12 Fence Viewers were appointed by motion, to be confirmed by By-Law at the next session of the Council.

A new Road Division was established in the Township of Harvey, commencing at the south west corner of the Lot owned by Mr. Buchanan, thence on the present travelled Road to the 11th Lot in the 13th concession.

The Inspector was allowed the sum of $3 for extra services in prosecuting parties for selling liquors without a lawful license.

Mr. Lewis Davies made application to be allowed to perform his statute labour on Road Division No. 59. Application granted.

A By-Law was passed to repeal By-Law No. 20 of this Council, passed on the 10th day of Sept 1859, and intitled, "A By-Law to establish a certain Road in the Township of Smith," and also By-Law No. 29, intitled, "A By-Law to establish a line of Road on the west side of the Communication Line in the Township of Smith."

The Council then adjourned till Monday the 22nd instant.

THE WAR.

Affairs are once more getting exciting in the Republic. Gen. Meade on Saturday and Sunday last made a reconnoissance along his entire front, crossing the Rapidan in several places. There appears to have been some sharp skirmishing. Having accomplished the object of the reconnoissance, the army went back to its winter camping ground. Sherman, with a gradually increasing force, is moving southward—all appear to think, to Mobile. The constant collisions in Tennessee forbode an early collision between Longstreet and Gen. Grant.

LECTURE ON GREEK TESTAMENT.

The free lecture in St. Andrew's Sabbath School on the "Simplest way of studying the Greek Testament," was delivered to a very sparse audience, in consequence, no doubt, of the sloppiness of the evening. But should not a subject of such great and universal interest call forth the sympathy of the christian youth, and, special, the Protestant youth of Peterborough. The Rev. Mr. CARROLL occupied the chair, and strongly recommended this attempt to elevate the minds of the youth.

ITEMS.

THE BRITISH MINISTER AT THE FRENCH COURT.—There is (says the Globe's Paris correspondent) "a diversity of opinion here as to the proper interpretation to be placed on the French Emperor's demeanor towards the British Ambassador on New Year's day. You are aware that by right of seniority our Minister stood in the diplomatic circle next to the foreman of that body, but when Nunzia Chigi and Napoleon III. had interchanged the formal speeches already known, it was found that, though in succession Prince Metternich got a word, De Budberg was briefly spoken to, Von Goltz was felicitated on the Prussian King's convalescence, Yankee Dayton heard peace bespoken for the current twelve-month, not a syllable was wasted on Lord Cowley, whose treatment in this instance was that experienced in the Elysian fields when pious Æneas was so indignantly ignored by the ghost of Queen Dido. According to version, the British Cabinet or Foreign Office must be considered joint recipients of this tacit rebuke, while others suggest that the individual functionary fully shares in the displeasure vented on those from whom he is accredited."

The pursuit of hostile Indians into the Hudson Bay Territory.

A message from the President was transmitted to the Senate on Monday, enclosing the correspondence relative to the request that permission be given the Federal military authorities to pursue the Sioux Indians in the Hudson Bay territory. In the note to Lord Lyons, dated the 21st ult, Secretary Seward says that those Indians should either be restrained from making hostile incursions into United States territory, or United States troops should be allowed to pursue, subdue and disperse them. A report from Gen. Pope to the War Department is included in the papers, which shows that the English government has no force in the Red river region to control these Indians, and that the Hudson Bay Company will give large quantities of provisions for their subsistence if they will return to the United States. Lord Lyons, in a note of January 22, says he has referred the matter to his government, by which, he says, it will not fail to be immediately taken into consideration.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

I observing in the Examiner of the 28th of January last a communication from the originator of "B" in reference to the proposed new Town Hall, in which the writer shows his usual shallowness. In the communication above referred to "B" offers some disinterested advice to the ratepayers; and as a proof of his sincerity and of his claim upon their confidence, he points to the part which he took in the management of our Railway Mortgage debt, and claims credit for having lost to the Town a sum of about £18,000. I propose now to take "B" at his word, and examine how far his conduct upon that occasion justifies the people in trusting to his advice now.

As every one already knows, the Town held a Mortgage for £30,000 upon the Railway between Millbrook and Peterborough, the interest upon which was £1800 a year. The principal and interest, at the time of the arrangement referred to by "B," was about £38,000. By the assistance of "B" and his friends this sum has been reduced to £30,000. Who got the benefit of the remainder? I would not like to guess; but, as a general rule, it is usual to think that the parties most deeply concerned, and who manifested such an extraordinary amount of anxiety in the matter, did not lose very heavily. The ratepayers, however, have, in consequence of that nice little arrangement, to pay a tax of upwards of 1s in the £, for all time to come. So much for the service which "B" rendered the Town, and for which he now asks the confidence and support of the people in his opposition to the new Town Hall. He certainly offers a strange kind of argument and pays a high compliment to their intelligence. But let us go a little further.—

It will be in the recollection of my readers that during the summer of 1861 an attempt was made to give up our mortgage security altogether, and take therefor £30,000 of the bonds of the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company—bonds which were not worth the paper they were written on. And so said afterwards one of the most active partizans of that proposition. That scheme was voted down by the people, after no less than three several attempts to carry it out.

Then came another plan. These gentlemen, finding they could do nothing out of doors, contrived some of them to work their way into the Council, and the next thing we hear of is an "Application to Parliament." This application ostensibly was for the purpose of legalizing the lease and mortgage, but really to effect the object of "B" and his friends in another way. Accordingly, during the session of 1862, a bill was introduced and received one or two readings, but fell through in consequence of the prorogation of the Legislature. However, in the spring of the following year, another bill was introduced, and it also shared the fate of its predecessor. Yet were these gentlemen not discouraged. Imitating the example of the great Scottish Chieftain—though in a less worthy cause—they resolved to try again; and this time they succeeded. They will probably now be satisfied to rest awhile in their labors; but the ratepayers need not be surprised if, by and by, another effort is made to take away the remainder. It will not be done immediately; these parties will wait until the recollection of their past conduct has died away. But, by and by, when the right time comes, these men will again work themselves into the Council, and again will they set about the same undertaking—expecting to succeed as they did before by worrying the people in acquiescence.

But the loss of the £18,000 is not the only injury they have done the Town. It is known that some time ago an action was brought for the purpose of compelling the Town to pay a second time its £30,000 stock in the railway. When the consent of the people was asked to the legislation above referred to, one of the principal reasons given for that mode of proceeding was in order to get rid of this and all other litigation. And, in the first Bill introduced into Parliament, provision was made for that object. But, in the Bill which "B" takes so much credit for getting passed into law, I find these words; "Nothing in this Act contained shall interfere with any suit or suits now pending against the said Town of Peterborough, in respect of the subscription of Stock by the said Town, in the said Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company, nor with any rights of any creditors of the said Railway Company against the said Town of Peterborough, in respect of the said Stock, or against the said Mortgage in the hands of the said Trustees, in respect of the said Stock or subscription of the said Town of Peterborough to the said Railway Company."

My readers can now judge for themselves how far the legislation brought about by 'B' and his party is likely to benefit to the Town, and how far "B" has a claim upon their confidence and support. They will not fail to see that special exception has been made in the Act in favor of all existing and all future litigation, and that the quasi sanction of Parliament has been given to its encouragement. As I said before, when the proper time arrives, there will not be wanting litigation enough, to enable "B" to advise the people, "better give up the mortgage altogether and save costs." Then, when he has accomplished this, I presume he will be satisfied. Of course, "B" has not and never had any selfish purpose to serve in the part which he has already taken or which he may hereafter take in reference to this matter. He is too disinterested, too patriotic and too liberal to soil his hand with any such matter as this.

The sole effect of the Act of Parliament above referred to, is simply to reduce our mortgage debt from £38,000 to £20,000, and to encourage parties to sue the Town. This is a great service for which "B" claims so much credit, and I willingly leave the matter to the ratepayer's decision. If they give their verdict in "B's" favor, then the sooner he takes away the remainder of the mortgage debt the greater will be thereby entile himself to their gratitude and support. If, however, on the other hand,—as I suspect—the people think differently, then let them urge on the Market and pay for the privilege of selling their commodities there only. If "Ratepayer" had said that the whole of the Market Square and Town Hall, including their interest and privileges, had cost £4000 you would, in words loudly expressed, have condemned the extravagance of those who had been the cause of such folly. But they have, since, should have purchased at least £4000 per an. It was argued last night in Monkland, that the appointment of butcher's stalls had the effect of increasing the cost of butcher's meat to the customer 5d per cent. in that city, and fabulous prices had been offered to butcher's for Stalls and their interest in the business. If the butchers were allowed to open Stalls in other parts of the Town, and if there should not be a single Stall in the Market, they would pay as much or more for license. I do not object to the present system; indeed, I think it is the best; but I object to "Ratepayer's" reasoning. If he can show how a new monopoly can be established in the new Town Hall, his argument will have force, but not otherwise.

Now let us turn to the scheme in contest out for leasing the Market Block—over which he exults so much. He says:—"B." among others opposed it, also." I was not opposed to leasing this land, but I certainly was opposed to throwing it away. I did then what I now say: that the Town has been robbed of this valuable property, and it was partitioned off among a few persons who have formed themselves into a petit governament, with "Ratepayer" as Premier—and have ruled everything to enhance the value of property, which they have already got for next to nothing. This is the power that both town and country have had to contend against. These are the gentlemen who urge the tax-payers to raise money, by forcing off—for the benefit of usurers and themselves—our valuable debentures at a discount of from 15 to 20 per cent. to erect a magnificent building to ornament the Town. The land on the Market Square was leased at from 6s. 3d. to 7s. 6d. per foot, frontage on George Street—the buildings to be paid for at the termination of the leases. About the same time Mr. Heathcote also leased part of his lot to Mr. Gilmour, on the same conditions as the Market Block property, but far from the same price. He obtained £2 per foot for land, fronting on the same street; or, in other words, Mr. H—— received £46 per an'm for the ground rent for ONE shop—23 feet;—while the Town only receives £98 for the whole of the ground rent for EIGHT buildings, each having a greater frontage than Mr. H's. But it may be said that one is more valuable than the other. Let us see. We find a cellar in the Market Block rented for $500; another small one $80; and a shop, only a few feet deep, comparatively speaking, $300 per annum. Mr. H—— could not beat this; but these cellars and this shop are private properties, and are, consequently, managed prudently.

"Ratepayer" concludes by giving the cost and profit of the new building. He says:—"The building will cost $17,000, the interest "on which is $1,060, then 'credit the rent, "$1,000.'" But by what means he has arrived at this most desirable entry he leaves his reader to guess—as no items are given. Probably it is based on his calculations for the rent of the present Town Hall.

"Ratepayer" is very sensitive as to what strangers say about Peterborough; and he is "in favor of improvements everywhere;" but he refused to vote for the expenditure of a few paltry dollars to improve the wretched and disgraceful state of George Street, "between Simcoe and Hunter," where, to the surprise and disgust of strangers and everyone else, pigs could be seen wallowing up to their backs in mud.

I feel, Mr. Editor, that I cannot spare time to continue this controversy, especially as I know a more powerful pen than "Ratepayer's" will shortly be brought to his assistance. I will, however, before the ratepayers are asked to vote on the By-law, endeavor to lay before them such information as will, at least, enable them to see both sides of the question.

Yours truly,

B.

Peterborough, Feb. 10, 1864.

Another—a disinterested (?) "Ratepayer"—eager to get under the burden of increased taxation, and smarting under the shame which so often mantles his cheek when strangers, after visiting with wondering eyes the Town of Peterborough, ask, "Where is your Town Hall?" tries a little soft soap on the Town Councillors; (how did he know their little weaknesses—who innocently and hope of them just to give their constituents a chance to vote, on the subject—more indeed he knows they will—for to refuse this he says, "there is not one such man in the present Council." What a bad one the last was! To live a few months in Cobourg and to hear the live yankees, after straining their optics to take in all the beauties of the Town Hall, then turn in wonder and ask, "And what in creation is your Town?" would be a sure cure for this one.

Now, Sir, if we knew the motives that actuated "A." "Mechanic," "Ratepayer" and "Visitor," in writing on this subject, I think we would find them all like honest "Mechanic"—acting for the good of the Town in general, but of themselves in particular—with this difference: that one has the honesty to disclose his object, while the other tries to conceal it.

But, Mr. Editor, it becomes us to view this matter impartially. If building a Town Hall gives "Mechanic" plenty of work and enhances the value of property of other writers—while to say the least, it would make the Councillors feel a little more important, especially the Chairman of the Committee—this in itself is no argument against it. Let us see if there are any; and if so, greater arguments for than against the building of a Town Hall. First, then, it will be conceded that for the credit and convenience of this Town it would be well if we had a respectable Town Hall. Apart from all interested motives, all will yield this point. The question is, would we pay too dear for our whistle? The present so-called "Town Hall" is a disgrace. It affords no accommodation. We want a Council Chamber, and an office for the Town Clerk; we want a large public room for concerts, public meetings, &c.; the Counties Council want a Council Chamber, and adjoining it a County Treasurer's office.

Now for about £4000 a very handsome building could be erected, affording better accommodation than the Cobourg Hall—which cost about $90,000. "B." of last week's Examiner, looking behind the screen and seeing a "silly gentleman" pulling the wires, condemns the whole scheme. But "B." knows rightly that most all undertakings, however beneficial to the public, are started by interested parties. Who knows where "B."'s property lies? Perhaps a Town Hall being built would injure its value—who knows? But he appears to know a good deal about Town affairs, and withall, since he goes into figures, he appears candid—since figures do not lie. But taking him at his figures, what then? Why his figures are an argument in favor of a Town Hall!

We do not want a Cobourg Town Hall, costing $90,000; nor a Port Hope shambles costing $30,000. We want a plain and elegant building, without shops or shambles. Beauty in architecture consists in elegance of proportion, rather than in costliness of material; and the sum fixed by Statute would give us such a building, as would answer all useful purposes and prove an ornament to the Town.

"B" says a building costing $16,000 would cost us $1707 per annum, or eleven per cent. in the outlay. Let it be so, could we not get the worth of our money?—thus:

Rent of Concert Room at $7 per night, say 40 nights		$280
Rent of County Council Chamber		200
" County Treasurer's Office		80
" A Bank, say Bank of Toronto		300
" Deputy Clerk of Crown & Pleas		80
" Clerk of the Peace		80
" Lawyers and other offices, say six at $80		480
" Lodge Room in upper story		80
" Town Council Chamber, Town Clerk's office and Lockup		200
		$1780

These are reasonable figures, and yet they show something to spare—that is: we would get more than the worth of our money.

But this is saying nothing about the increased value and profits of the Town property, which would certainly be very great.

Many may think that rooms in the building would not rent readily. I believe they would. The County Council has got to such a stage that they can no longer do without a Council Chamber. Would they not be too glad to rent? Then again, being well built and well supplied with brick vaults, would always be a desirable place for offices, for lawyers, saving and other banks.

While I would condemn any effort to impose on us such a building as the Cobourg Town Hall to be a mill stone on the public neck, I would by all means hold up my hand in favor of a moderate outlay for a building, the which it is almost impossible, and is certainly disgraceful longer to do without.

Thus lending my feeble effort (I assure you disinterested) in ventilating this important subject.

I am, Sir,

Truly yours,

C.

Peterborough, Feb. 8th, 1864.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I take it for granted that the communications of "A." "Visitor," "Mechanic" and "Ratepayer," which have lately appeared in the Examiner and Review, in reference to the proposed new Town Hall, have all emanated from the same pen; and were written by a gentleman who has gone into the Council for the sole purpose of carrying out this undertaking during the present year. This writer, settling down to his old and favorite prefix, "Ratepayer," has done me the favor to notice my letter addressed to you on this subject; but, strange to say, in the whole of his lengthy communication he has not attempted to confute a single argument set forth; but by a tirade of personalities and appeals to the passions, endeavors to draw off the minds of the people from a fair discussion of the question at issue. But the people are beginning to be acquainted with his manœuvres, and they will take time to consider before they adopt any more of his recommendations. We have all only barely escaped from the dangerous trap which he so artfully set, in connection with our Railway difficulties; and now, before we have time to gather ourselves up and look around, he endeavors to get us again into bondage—the bondage of debt, which is worse than slavery.

"Ratepayer" complains of my language, but he forgets that he first threw down the gauntlet and selected the weapons; and if he has been wounded in the encounter it is his own fault. When writing as "A." he said: "There are some persons so selfish "and narrow minded as to wish to retard "the growth and prosperity of the Town, "because they cannot have everything done "around their own corners." He says "I "may affect to look down in supercilious "contempt upon the hard working laborer "and mechanic, and sneer at their condition." This is worthy of the pen of "Ratepayer," and must give force to his other statements. This is the man who "wishes "to appeal to the good sense of his fellow townsmen."

Now, let us turn for a moment and look into his figures, and see what is in them. By some new rule he wishes to make out that as the income "from and through" the present Market building, which cost £800, is so large that it may be taken as a fair criterion by which to judge of the benefits that may be expected from the new Town Hall, which will cost between £4,000 to £5,000. He gives the yearly receipts as follows:—Market Stalls, £114 16s.; Rent of Hall, £14 5s.; Market Fees, £30; total, £208 15s. If I have a clear perception of these figures, I see that the actual income from the present Town Hall is £14 5s., without taking into account expenses of insurance and repairs. It is absurd to say that the building produces the £208. The money is raised by the power the corporation possesses of creating monopolies and selling privileges, to which no person objects; such as confining the selling of butcher's meat to the Market Stalls, the weighing of hay on the Town Scales, and compelling farmers to

THE RIBBON SOCIETY.

From the Dublin University Magazine.

The first step towards inducing young and foolish men to join the Ribbon Society is generally taken in some low tap-room of some ob-cure tavern, at fairs, patterns, &c., where the village demagogue, who, nine times out of ten, is a Ribbon "Delegate," or "Parish Master," reads aloud from some "Liberal" dialogal newspaper, and descants upon the injustice of the Saxon laws, and inveighs against the tyranny of landlords, selecting some common case of ejectment for nonpayment of rent as his theme; accompanying it, of his own invention, with a horrifying description of a dying mother, and six or eight helpless children, turned out upon the high road to starve; and, if it be winter he is sure to cover the ground with deep snow.

Having thus, as it were, secured the sympathy of the young men present in the tap-room, the "Delegate" hands them over to the surveillance of the "Parish Masters" living nearest to their several localities, who take every opportunity of instilling fresh poison into their minds; and at the next monthly meeting for the transaction of business, perhaps some five or six new candidates, burning with high resolves for the immediate redress of the country's imaginary wrongs and the amelioration of their class and creed present themselves for admission, with the recommendation of the Parish Masters, as fit and "proper persons" to be admitted into the "glorious design."

They are directed to withdraw from the room—all save one—for the oath is invariably administered singly. A handkerchief is then tied over his eyes, as an emblem of the blind obedience which he must render to the system he is about to engage in, and, putting his crossed hands on a prayer-book, or bible, or at all events he believes it to be such, he repeats after the delegate the following Oath, in a loud voice, the rest of the members present joining their hands in a circle round him:—

"In the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; Amen. I, A—— B——, do swear in the presence of these my brotherly members, and on the contents of this holy book the cross of Christ, and the blessed Virgin Mary, and by our holy father the Pope, that I will, by every means in my power, aid and assist the French, or any other (Roman) Catholic Power that is endeavoring to free us from the bond of tyrannical slavery and the oppression of unjust laws. That I will be ready at a moment's warning, sickness or death alone preventing me, to take up the cause of an oppressed brother, knowing or believing him to be such, and that I will obey, without mourning all orders received from a County Delegate, Parish or Body Master; and that I will silently abide by any decision of the jurymen of my parish, either in a dispute with a brother or, if it be necessary, in the destruction of his or property, or other punishment of transgressors against honor, law and justice. That I will allow neither father, mother, sister or brother to come between me and the carrying out of our glorious Ribbon System into final and immediate execution. That I will spare neither person nor property of the bloody heretics, but more especially those who feed on a tenth part of our labor. I further swear that I will never appear before judge or jury to prosecute a brother, knowing him to be such; and that neither torture, death or execution, shall ever make me divulge the slightest atom of the plans and secrets entrusted to me to any magistrate or other person not within the pale of this our glorious Institution, though I were hung in chains and dried in the sun; and that I will [illegible] or [illegible] any longer or [illegible] or [illegible] any thing, any word, longer [illegible] which the Parish Masters [illegible] I will [illegible] any [illegible] into this grand desideratum—(Cheers). Consider, or seem thirsty Protestant, who is well known to stick to us, and who regularly subscribes to the committee,] further swear that I will myself subscribe ten pence per quarter, if not more according to my circumstances, to the committee or others towards the support of this our immortal institution. I further swear that I will keep a close eye upon all [illegible] (Roman) Catholic employers, and should he, my County Delegate, Parish or Body Master think conduct at [illegible] business or elsewhere, as many cases within my knowledge. And I take this oath in all its parts without any mental reservation whatever, and with a full and unwavering determination to keep the same. So help me God."

The handkerchief is then removed from his eyes, and the "chief master" is welcomed and chaired by the [illegible] of his brethren in succession. Another candidate is then called in, and the same routine gone through.

When all the Clubbists have been sworn in, the grand-master and other chief officers are read over to them by the Delegate, and they are referred to their respective Parish or Body Masters for further "instruction" therein, until they be perfect; but no written copy of the oath or passwords is ever given to general members.

BRYAN'S

PULMONIC WAFERS.

The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered as for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing and a sure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and Public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

VEGETABLE BALSAMIC

ELIXIR:

A CERTIFICATE worth a Million.

An Old Physician's Testimony.

READ:

Waterbury, Vt., Nov. 24th, 1860.

Although I do not like the practice of Physicians recommending, indiscriminately, the patent medicines of the day; yet after a trial of ten years, I am free to admit that there is one medicine before the public that any Physician can use in his practice, and recommend to the people with perfect confidence; that medicine is Rev. N. H. Down's Vegetable Balsamic Elixir.

I have used it myself with the very best success, and now, wherever I am troubled with a Cough or Cold, I invariably use it. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from a Cold or a Cough, for the Croup, Whooping Cough, and all diseases tending to consumption, and to the Profession as a reliable article.

I am satisfied of its excellence beyond a doubt, having conversed personally with the Rev. N. H. Downs about it. He informed me of the principal ingredients of which the Elixir is composed, all of which are purely Vegetable and perfectly safe.

CERTIFICATES.

MONTREAL,
April 8th, 1860.

Messrs. Henry & Co.

Your Vermont Liniment has cured me of a Rheumatism which had settled in my limbs, and for which blessing you may well suppose I fell grateful.

T. QUESNEL.

South Granby, C.W.

Mr. Henry R. Gray, Chemist, Montreal.

Sir,—I am most happy to state that my wife used Henry's Vermont Liniment, having accidentally got a needle run under her finger nail. The pain was most intense; but by using the Liniment, the pain was gone in a few minutes.

Yours very respectfully,
W. GIBSON.

Montreal,
Dec. 12th, 1860.

Messrs. Henry & Co.

Having on various occasions used your Liniment, I am happy to say that I have always found it beneficial. I have frequently used it for Bowel Complaints, and I have never known it to fail in effecting a cure. I think it the best medicine I ever used for Diarhœ summer complaint, and disorders of a similar character I have also found it a never failing specific for Colds, and for affections of the head. I always recommend it to my friends, and would not be without it in the house for any consideration.

W. BALDWIN.

HENRY'S VERMONT LINIMENT.

This old, tried, standard remedy still maintains its popularity. When all others have proved inefficient, the Elixir alone continues to give satisfaction.—Use it for

COUGHS, COLDS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, CROUP,

Incipient Consumptive and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs.

Thirty years ago the Elixir first made its appearance; and even then, in its primitive and imperfect state, produced such extraordinary results that it became, at once, a general favourite. Many have made it, what it really is, a Family Medicine.

For as more than half the diseases to which flesh is heir," originate from colds, so this may be considered a general preventive of all diseases, by removing the primeval cause.

ADULTS

Should always keep this Family Physician at hand; and by its timely use save hundreds of dollars that would otherwise be swallowed up in discharging doctor's fees.

This popular medicine is no longer an experiment. Thousands of people who have used it, bear witness to its superior excellence as a Liniment and a Pain-killer. Full directions accompanying each bottle. It may be used externally for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Tooth-ache, Headache, Burns, Scalds, Bruises & Swellings Sore Throat, Lumbago, &c., &c.

and may be used internally for

Cholic and Colds. Cholera Morbus, Bowel Complaints, Diarrhœ, Wind Cholic, &c., &c.

Much might be said of its remedial properties and magical effects, but the limited space of this Advertisement will only admit of a general summary.

It is prepared with care: great pains being taken to allot an exact proportion of each of its ingredients, in such a manner that the combination shall be, in every respect at once more rapid in its operation, and more effectual than any other similar medicine.

☞ A single Teaspoonful taken in warm water or otherwise as the taste may dictate, checks, DIARRHŒA,—CHOLIC, and all BOWEL COMPLAINTS,—within a most incredible short space of time.

☞ Sold in every Drug and Country Store throughout Canada.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to authorize the Warden to issue Debentures on the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

WHEREAS, it is necessary to raise funds for the erection of a new Jail and it is deemed advisable to raise the same by the issue of Debentures upon the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

The corporation of the County of Peterboro' hereby enacts:—That the Warden of this County be and he is hereby authorized to issue Fifteen Debentures, for the sum of One Thousand Dollars each; two of which shall be made payable on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one; and one on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two; the said Debentures to bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, to be paid half-yearly on the first day of July and the first day of January in each and every year.

And be it enacted, that the aforesaid Debentures, and interest on such Debenture as aforesaid, shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the County of Peterborough.

County Council Chamber,
Peterborough, 27th January, 1864.

The above is a true copy of the proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at the Council Chamber, in the Town of Peterborough, on THURSDAY, the 23rd day of JUNE, 1864, at the hour of twelve o'clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

GREAT SALE!

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 347 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS,—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

ALSO,—The East Half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

☞ Title unexceptionable.

PEOPLE'S PAPER!

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE

"PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER,"

Only $1 Per Year in Advance.

What family should be without Godey's Lady's Book! It costs $3.00 a year. We will, however, furnish both the EXAMINER and LADY'S BOOK for $2.75! that is: both for 25 cents less than what you pay for the LADY'S BOOK alone. Or, to every subscriber paying in advance we will, for an extra 75 cents, furnish Madame Demorest's Mirror of Fashions, and Quarterly Journal de Grande Mode, each number of which contains large and magnificent Fashion Plates, splendid illustrations of all the fashionable and Paris novelties, for Ladies' and Children's Dress, useful information, and the four life-size Patterns, cut ready for use, etc., etc. It should be remembered that each yearly subscriber to Mme. Demorest's Mirror of Fashions is entitled to the selection of 50 cents' worth of extra patterns, or a copy of Mme. Demorest's System for cutting Children's Dresses, or for 50 cents more, the Ladies' System. That is, for 75 cents, we will give to every subscriber of the EXAMINER paying in advance, $1.50 worth. More than this, we will likewise pay the American postage, which is no small sum. Those who have paid in advance are entitled to the same privilege. Or, if Messrs. prefer, they can, instead of the above journal, for the extra 75 cents, have Judd's celebrated American Agriculturist, which ought to be in the hands of every farmer. Names should be sent in at once.

To any one sending us 6 subscribers we will give Kinglake's Crimean War; 10 subscribers, Alcock's Tycoon Capital; 20 subscribers, Webster's Dictionary; 30 subscribers, Worcester's Largest Dictionary.

The party sending a club can, if he choose, select any other work of a similar value. The cash must in every instance accompany the orders.

A Special Premium will be given to the party sending in the largest number of subscribers by the 1st of March. Names can be sent in at any time, and will be credited as received.

Poetry.

[illegible]

I'm weary of a single life,
And I'm resolved I'll try
To get a cozy little wife
Or in the effort die.
For [illegible]
A [illegible]
Yet [illegible]
By marrying—I can.

When old dames vow I am a "crotch,"
Their daughters look quite shy,
And so I'm nothing but a hook,
And costly game to fly,
Though many games have o'er me rolled.
I [illegible]
"Veni Vidi Vici won," to I'll be bold,
And victory—I can.

Why I am shunned is very strange;
I'm sure I cannot tell,
Why one who stands so high "on change."
Is spurned by every belle.
I have it happen my little friends
(I sang it still again) my plan),
Shows when you see me on the street,
"There goes that nice old man."

Twas only last week that I saw
A young and charming maid;
I fell in love with her bright eyes,
And she with mine—she said.
I boldly told her of my love,
When in came little Ann,
And, laughing shouted in my ears
"You are a nice old man."

Now, whether, little Ann's remark
Had anything to do
In showing water on the "spark,"
I leave it, friends, to you.
But this I know, I called next day,
To carry out my plan;
The house was closed—she "eloped" away,
And left the nice old man,

'Tis said that fish are in the sea
"As good as ere were caught";
Sweet consolation this to me,
I'm happy in the thought.
To marry I've made up my mind,
Prevent me if you can;
I'll find some Miss who'll "go it blind,"
And love her "nice old man."

Varieties.

What fish would a captain name if he ordered one of his men to lift a lady aboard?—Oyster.

"I really can't express my thanks," as the boy said to the schoolmaster when he gave him a thrashing.

A very sharp chap thinks that Columbus is not entitled to such credit for discovering America as the country is so large he could not well have missed it.

An editor in the far West recently bought a race-horse, and on being asked what an editor could possibly want with such an animal, he replied that it was to be used in catching runaway subscribers.'

A person of the name of Frost having by mistake left on the counter of a banking house a sum of money he had just drawn, the head clerk called to one of his subordinates, 'Hall Mr. Frost; he's mist his due.'

At a Christening, while the minister was making the certificate, he forgot the date and happened to say. "Let me see, this is the 30th." "The thirteenth" exclaimed the indignant mother; "indeed it is only the eleventh."

A gentleman in this city, whose wife is away on a visit protracted long beyond the promised return, writes as follows; "'Tis said that absence conquers love, but the longer you stay away the better I like you.' He expects her on the next train.

A Scotch Widow.—The clerk of a large parish not five miles from Bridgenorth, Scotland, noticing a female crossing a churchyard in a widow's garb, with a watering can and bundle, had the curiosity to follow her, and he discovered her to be Mrs. Smith, whose husband had not long been interred. The following conversation took place: "Ah, Mrs. Smith, what are you doing with watering can?" "Why, Mr. Prince, I have begged a few hay-seeds, which I have in a bundle, and am going to sow them upon my poor husband's grave, and I've brought a little water with me to make them spring." "You have no occasion to do that, as the grass will soon grow upon it," replied the clerk. "Ah, Mr. Prince, that may be; but do you not know my husband, who now lies here, made me promise him, on his death-bed, I would never marry again till the grass had grown over his grave; and having a good offer made me, I deem with to break my word, or be kept as I am."

How Sal Disgraced the Family.

A traveller in the State of Illinois, some years ago came to a long log hut on the prairie near Cairo, and there halted. He went into the house. It was a wretched affair—as empty packing box for a table, while two or three chairs and disagreeable stools graced the reception room, the dark walls of which were ornamented by a display of flowers and a broken shelf article or two. The woman was crying in one corner, and the man with tears in his eyes and a pipe in his mouth sat on a stool, with his sorrowful looking head supported by the palms of his hands. Not a word greeted the interloper.

"Well," he said, "you seem to be in awful trouble here. What's up?"

"Ah, we are almost crazed, neighbor," said the woman; "and we aint got no patience to see folks now."

"That's all right," said the stranger, not much taken aback by the polite rebuff: "but can I be of any service to you in all this trouble?"

"Well we've lost our gal; our Sal's gone off and left us," said the old man in despair.

"Ah, do you know what induced her to leave you?" remarked the new arrival.

"Well, we can't say as how she's so far lost as to be seduced, but she's gone and disgraced us," remarked the afflicted father.

"Yes, stranger, and—not as I should say it as her mother—but that warn't a poorer gal in all the West than our Sal. She's gone and brought ruin on her own head now," followed the stricken mother.

"Who has she gone off with?" inquired the visitor.

"Well there's the trouble. The gal could have done well and have married Martin Kerbec, a capital shoemaker, who though he has but one eye, plays the flute in a lively manner, and earns a good living. Then look what a life she has deserted; she was surrounded by all the luxury in the country," said the father.

"Yes, who knows what poor Sal will have to eat, drink, and wear," groaned the old woman.

"And who is the fellow who has taken her into misery?"

"Why, she's gone off and got married to a cursed cobbler with leather, as lives in the village, and it's hard to tell how he's to earn a living."

SOLDIERS in the ARMY!

AND OUR PEOPLE AT HOME,

Are now offered an opportunity by which they can obtain a

GOOD AND DURABLE TIME-PIECE,

At a very Low Figure.

OUR WATCHES are warranted to keep time one year, and the buyer is allowed the privilege of examination before the payment is required.

Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions.

A first-class Hunting Time-Piece of silver material, over which is electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, most durably wrought, making the imitation so faultless that it cannot be detected from the solid material by the most experienced Judges; acids will not affect it. London made movement. Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions has sweep seconds, and is not to be excelled in general appearance. This decidedly the one of the best articles ever offered for traders and speculators, emigrants and persons travelling will find them superior to any other; alteration of climate will not affect their accuracy. Price, packed in good shape and good running order, only $35, or case of 5 for $200.

Silver Double Time Hunting Levers,

Best quality silver cases, over which electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, similar to our improved Duplex, and superior adjusted movements with "stop," to be used in timing horses, ect.; has four ludexes for Washington and Greenwich time, sweep second, and all the improvements. All in all, taking its beautiful and faultless appearance and its superior movement into consideration, we regard it as decidedly the cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price, in good running order, $35, or case of 6 for $200.

☞ We ask no pay in advance, but will forward either of them to responsible parties, to any part of the loyal States, with bill payable to the express-man when the Good are delivered, giving the buyer the privilege of examination, and, if not satisfactory, the watch can be returned at our expense.

The express companies refuse making collections on soldiers, and other parties in the disloyal States, consequently all such orders must be accompanied by the cash to insure attention. We make a deduction of either Watch when the payment is forwarded in advance.

Money may be sent by express at our expense

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK,

For 1864.

GREAT LITERARY & PICTORIAL YEAR.

THE PUBLISHER of Godey's Lady's Book, thankful for that public which has sustained him to publish a Magazine for the last thirty-four years of a larger circulation than any in America, has made an arrangement with the most popular authoress in this country—

MARION HARLAND,

Author of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Moss Side," and "Nemesis,"

Who will furnish Stories for the Lady's Book for 1864. This alone will place the Lady's Book in a literary point of view fare ahead of any other Magazine. Our other favourite writers will all continue to furnish articles throughout the year.

The best Lady's Magazine in the world and the Cheapest.

THE LITERATURE

Is of that kind that can be read aloud in the family circle, and the clergy in immense numbers are subscribers for the Book.

THE MUSIC

Is all original, and would cost 25 cents, (the price of the Book) in the music stores; but most of it is copyrighted, and cannot be obtained except in Godey.

OUR STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

All efforts to rival us in this have ceased, and we now stand alone in this department, giving as we do many more and infinitely better engravings than are published in any other work. Godey's immense double sheet Fashion-Plates, containing from five to seven full length colored Fashions on each plate—other Magazines give only two—are far ahead of any Fashions in Europe or America. The publication of these Plates cost $10,000 more than the Fashion Plates of the old style, and nothing but our wonderfully large circulation enables us to give them. Other Magazines cannot afford it. We never spare money when the public can be benefited.

These Fashions may be relied on. Dresses may be made after them, and the wearer will not subject herself to ridicule, as she would be if she visited the large cities dressed after the style of the plates in some of our so-called Fashion Magazines.

OUR WOOD ENGRAVINGS,

Of which we give twice or three times as many as any other Magazine, are often mistaken for steel; they are so far superior to any others

IMITATIONS.

Beware of them. Remember that the Lady's Book is the original publication and the cheapest. If you take Godey, you want no other Magazine. Everything that is useful or ornamental in a house will be found in Godey.

DRAWING LESSONS.

No other Magazine gives them, and we have given enough to fill several large volumes.

OUR RECEIPTS

Are such as can be found nowhere else. Cooking in all its varieties—Confectionery—the Nursery—the Toilet—the Laundry—the Kitchen Receipts upon all subjects are to be found in the pages of the Lady's Book. We originally started this department, and have peculiar facilities for making it most perfect. This department alone is worth the price of the book.

LADIES' WORK TABLE.

This department comprises engravings and descriptions of every article that a lady wears.

MODEL COTTAGES

No other Magazine has this department.

Terms to Subscribers in the British Provinces:

One copy one year, $3; two copies one year, $5; three copies one year, $7.

Five copies one year, and an extra copy to the person sending the club, making six copies for $11.50.

Special Clubbing with other Magazines.

Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Magazine, one year, $4.

Godey and Harper, one year, $5.

Godey, Harper, and Arthur, one year, $7.

At these prices subscribers in the Provinces will have only the British postage to pay.

Treasury notes and notes of all solvent banks taken at par.

Be careful and pay the postage on your letter.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

CROSBY & NICHOLS

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE THAT THE

North American Review

WHICH has for the last ten years been so ably conducted by Dr. Peabody, passes now into the editorial charge of Prof. James Russell Lowell and Charles Eliot Norton, Esq., gentlemen who, for sound elegant scholarship, have achieved an enviable reputation, both in this country and in Europe; and whose taste, education and experience eminently qualify them for the position they have assumed.

Of the former, it may be said that his essays in the periodical which, under his editorship, reached the summit of its fame, surpassed in vigor and force those of any contributor.

Of the latter, that he has added new honor to the name he bears by the extent and variety of his knowledge, and by the force and elegance which he has exhibited, both as a writer and a speaker.

And of both that their thorough loyalty to the liberal institutions of our country, and their sympathy with the progressive element of the times, render them peculiarly fitted to conduct the Review, which has by competent authority been pronounced the leading literary organ of the country, and of which it has been said that it has not its equal in America, nor its superior in the world.

The North American Review will maintain in the hands of its new editors its established reputation for independent criticism, and for well-considered opinions in politics and literature.

In discussing political and social questions, the spirit of the Review will be thoroughly national and loyal. It will defend and illustrate the distinctive principles on which the institutions of America are founded.

In literature, it will avail itself of the best material of thought and scholarship which the country can supply.

Bound by strong associations to the past, and sympathy with the present, hopeful for the future, the Review will do its part in the intellectual movement of the times.

☞ The North American Review is published Quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, in numbers of about three hundred pages each, containing matter equal to an ordinary octavo volume.

TERMS—Five dollars a year, or one dollar and twenty-five cents per number.

☞ A new volume of the Review will commence with the January number, and the publishers trust that the increased expenditure consequent upon the changes proposed in the future conduct of the work, will be met by a generous increase in the patronage of the public.

CROSBY & NICHOLS, Publishers.
No. 117 Washington, Boston.

☞ Newspapers copying the above the usual number of times shall receive the work for one year. 4

PROSPECTUS OF THE

Canada Farmer

A NEW

FORTNIGHTLY JOURNAL,

for

Agriculture, Horticulture AND RURAL AFFAIRS.

THE Subscriber has determined to make the experiment whether a first-class Agricultural Journal can be sustained in Canada. He proposes to issue early in January, 1864, the first number of The Canada Farmer, and to continue the publication on the 1st and 15th days of each month. Each number will contain sixteen square quarto of closely printed matter. It will be printed on fine paper, from an entirely new font of type. The services of an able agricultural writer as Editor-in-Chief have been secured, and he will be assisted by an efficient staff of writers, reporters and correspondents. First-class artists and engravers have also been retained to prepare illustrations for the paper. No exertion or expenditure will be spared to render the new Journal a worthy representative and advocate of the Agricultural interests of Canada.

In the conduct of The Canada Farmer, the following ends will be zealously labored for:—

1.—To arouse public attention, by frank and temperate discussion, to all questions scientific, commercial, legislative or otherwise, specially affecting the farming interest.

2.—To stimulate the Agriculturists of our country to adopt an improved system of husbandry, by blending the best forms of modern science with the practical experience of the Canadian Farmer.

3.—To bring under the attention of our Farmers all improvements at home or abroad, worthy of adoption, affecting the management of Field Crops—the Barn-yard—the Stable—the Dairy—the Orchard—the Poultry Yard—the Apiary—the Kitchen Garden—and the Flower Garden; and to excite an interest in the progress of Rural Architecture and Landscape Gardening, and in all that concerns the Domestic Economy of the Farmhouse.

4.—To mark and report all improvements in Agricultural Machinery—foster new inventions—and promote the adoption of all labour-saving machines in the work of the farm and garden.

5.—To keep prominently under attention all that specially concerns the Dairy-farmer and the Grazier; the best breeds of cattle—the best systems of feeding—the most approved processes of cheese and butter making—the best mode of packing—and the best markets to sell in.

6.—To keep prominently in view whatever is specially interesting to the Sheep-raiser and Wool-grower—the breeds best adapted to our climate—the best systems of winter and summer management—and the varying prospects of the wool market.

7.—To afford the Farmers of Canada an ever-open medium for addressing their brother Agriculturists throughout the Province, suggesting matters of common interest and advantage, and eliciting information or advice on practical questions of difficulty or doubt.

8.—To report concisely the Proceedings at Agricultural Shows, Fairs and Sales through out the Province—note the condition and progress of the Herds and Flocks of prominent Stock-breeders; record the importation of Thoroughbred Stock from abroad, and publish Engravings of First Class Prize Animals.

9.—To watch and report carefully and promptly the actual state and probable prospects of the Produce Markets at home and abroad; and specially promote all movements designed to secure the best prices in the best markets for Canadian Farm Produce.

10.—To afford the Farmers of Canada a common medium where all who have for sale Live Stock, or Seed Grain, or Land, or who may wish to buy such, can make his desires known directly to the whole farming population of Canada.

☞ The Canada Farmer will be published for ONE DOLLAR per annum, POSTAGE FREE payable strictly in advance.

CLUBS

Will be furnished at the following rates:—

TWELVE COPIES for.....TEN DOLLARS.
TWENTY COPIES for.....FIFTEEN DOLLARS.
FIFTY COPIES for.....THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS.
ONE HUNDRED for.....SIXTY DOLLARS.

Communications on Agricultural subjects are invited, addressed to "The Editor of the Canada Farmer," and all orders for the paper will be sent to

GEORGE BROWN,
Proprietor and Publisher.

☞ As FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES of the first number will be printed and circulated, an unequalled opportunity for Advertisers will be presented. The charge will be twenty cents per line.

BURNS'S ANNIVERSARY,
JANUARY 25, 1864.

TUNE—"The Black Watch."

The Sangs o' Burns, the Sangs o' Burns,
Oh! wha but lo'es those strains, nane,
That reck and fire the soul by turns
And send the heart and veins, man.
A magic skill that rules the will,
Pervades their ilka line, man;
A sterdless charm that nerves the arm,
Or thrills at "Auld-lang-syne," man.
Then tak your stan' wi' glass in han'
To pay the tribute due, man;
A thrailing cheer for ane sae dear
As Burns, the Ayrshire Ploughman.

Tho' churlish louts his country scouts,
Their lee'er its barefoot lasses,
E'en let them split their cankert wit
They prove themselves but asses.
The witching wiles, and sunny smiles,
And roguish een ase blue, man,
That cheer the bames o' Scotland's dames
Exrapt our manly Ploughman.
Then tak your stan', &c.

What streams of fire flow from his lyre
When Wallace wight's his theme, man,
Or Bannock's banks, where Bruce's ranks
Seal'd dear auld Scotland's fame, man.
There Saxon loons got cracket crouns,
Whilk serv'd them lang to claw at,
While Scotland sang till echo rang,
"A man's a man for a' that."
Sae tak your stan', &c.

The ling'ring star' that shines afar
In yonder vault sae blue, man,
Shall record bear through ilka year
Of ane whose heart was true, man,
A rapt'rous flame pervades the frame,
And sparkles in the eye, man,
When e'er he strings his harp, and sings
Of Mary, or his Jean, man.
Sae tak your stan', &c.

The sordid sumph may growl and glump,
We carena that a flee, man,
We're kin'ly met, and firmly set
To ettle Robin's glee, man.
Let Willie brew the mountain drew,
Let Rab and Allan pree, man,
For ere we gae ilk chiel maun hae
A drappie in his ee, man.

Sae tak' your stan' wi' glass in han'
To pay the tribute due, man;
A rousin cheer for ane sae dear
As Burns, the Ayrshire Ploughman.

WILLIAM MURDOCK.
St. John, N. B., January 25, 1864.

ADDRESS TO R. KELTIE, ESQ.

My dear Mister Keltie,
I've mounted my sheltie,
To scour the Parnassian green,
To take the fresh air man,
And seek rhyming ware man,
For ane I may truly ca' frien.

How's a' wi' ye Robin?
Lang may ye keep bobbin,
Your prow to some auld fashion'd tune.
Lang tot out and in man,
The pride of your kin man
And credit of this our guid toun.

Does Miss still keep canty?
And douce honest Aunty?
And a' things about your fireside?
For naught mair could cheer man,
This heart, than to hear man,
Ye're a' snug and tight ilka hide.

My luge up I prickit,
On getting you ticket,
For which I now gi'e you my thanks;
And still shall I min' man,
A night sae dirone man,
While able to shuffle my shanks.

The dinner was fine man
And sae was the wine man,
The tody stiff, reekin' and warm
The waiters, ilk chiel man
Has mair play'd me weel man,
Ye'd thocht it was done by a charm.

Our worthy auld Chairman,
I hereby declare man,
Is, has been, and ever will be,
A pride to all Scotsmen,
And pattern to pots-men
On yon and this side of the sea.

And you canty Billie,
That cam' frae auld Killie,
Wha sat at the foot of the table
Made things gae ase screiving,
That raptures maist deaving,
The house shook frae gable to gable.

And yon ither caddie,
The lang legget laddie;
Wha shuk' of the patriot langsyne;
He gabbit ase glibman
Ye'd thocht he was nib man,
To Peel or some else in his line.

The sangs how they stream'd man,
The wit how it gleam'd man,
Frae the Mayor and Alderman doon
To the Merchant and Souter,
Wha rang of the mouter,
To please Robin Tamson the loon.

The Sherra guid bless him
And a' that weel wis' him;
He acted his part like a man.
Aye willing and ready
He kept his course steady,
His gaol being harmony's van.

But noo-to-conclude, sir,
Permit me my good sir
To pay you the tribute that's due man.
The thanks of a hardie
For workin' sae hardie
In honor of Robin the Ploughman.

Let wha will complain sir,
I firmly maintain sir,
To you does the credit belang,
Of starting our "Burns Club,"
And if ony mean grub
Denies it, I tell him he's a wrang.

Sae noo Robin Keltie,
As my poor wee sheltie
Is sweating, and sair out o' wis,
Thou hone-t and leal man,
I bid thee farewee man,
And drap whip and spurs to the grun'.

THERE are six miles of wooden pavements in New York, which, after six years constant wear, are nearly as perfect as when first laid down. They are made thus: "Lay down flooring of one inch boards on a bed of sand; coat the floor with asphaltum; stand on end blocks of wood six inches high by three inches thick, and nine inches in length, in rows about one inch apart, divided by strips of boards. Fill in these open narrow spaces with asphaltum."

CHATTERING.

There are customers who insist upon chattering with the 'boss.' Such a one has dropped in on a morning in which you happen to be deeply engaged. He wishes to take a look at a horse he has seen advertised for sale. The stable is free to his observation, and the attentive Pat is at hand; but the customer wants a talk with the Squire.

It is a staunch Canadian horse, for which you have no further use. You paid for him six months gone, a hundred and fifty dollars; and you now mean a hundred dollars at his price. I never yet met a man who sold a horse for so much as he gave—unless he were a jockey; I never expect to.

'Mornin', Squire.'

'Good Morning.'

'Bin a lookin' at y'er boss.'

'Ah!'

'Mi'dlin' lamp of a boss."

'Yes, a nice horse.'

'D'n know as you know it, but such hosses ain't so saleable as they was a spell back.'

'Ah!'

'They're gettin' a fancy for bigger boners.'

Silence.

'Put that pooney to a heavy cart, and he wouldn't do nothen'.'

'You are mistaken; he's a capital cart-horse.'

'Well, I don't say but what he'd be handy with a lightish load. Don't call him spavined, do ye?'

'No, perfectly sound.'

'That look's kinder like a spavin'—rubbin' off his hind leg.

'A'n't much of a boss doctor, be ye?'

'Not much.'

'Don't kick, does he?'

'No.'

'Them little Kanucks is apt to kick.'

Silence, and an impatient movement, which I work off by pulling out my watch.

'What time o'day's it got to be?'

'Eleven.'

'Really! I must be goin.' Should like to trade, Squire, but I guess we can't agree I s'pose you'd be askin' as much as —sixty —or—seventy dollars for that are hoss—wouldn't ye?'

'A hundred dollars is the price—and I gave fifty more.'

'Do'nt say! Gave a thundering sight too much, Squire.'

'Pat, you may put up the horse; I don't think the gentleman wants him.'

'Look o' here, Squire; if you was to say—something—like — seventy, or—seventy-five dollars, now—there might be some use in talkin'.'

'Not one bit of use'—impatiently turning on my heel.

'——Say, Squire—ever had him to a plow?'

'Yes.'

'Work well?'

'Perfectly well.'

'Fractious any? Those Kanucks is contrary critters when they're a mind to be.'

'He is quite gentle.'

'That's a good p'int; but them that's worked till they get quiet, kinder gets the spirit lost out on 'em—a'n't so brisk when you put 'em in a waggin. Don't you find it so, Squire?'

'Not at all.'

"How old, Squire did you say he was?' looking in his mouth again.

'Seven.'

"Well—I guess he is; a good many figgers higher that than he is to-day, any way.'

'Patrick, you had better put this horse up.'

'Hold on, Squire;' and, taking out his purse, he counts out—'seventy—eighty—and a five—and two—and a fifty—there Squire, 'ta'n't worth talkin' about; I'll split the difference with ye, and take the boss."

'Patrick put him up.'

At which the customer is puzzled, hesitates, and the horse is entering the stable again, when he breaks out explosively.

"——Well, Squire, here is your money. But you're the most onesay man for dickering that I ever traded with—I'll say that for ye?'

And the horse is transferred to his keeping.

'S'pose you throw in the halter and blanket, Squire, don't ye?

'Give him the halter and blanket, Patrick.'

'And, Patrick, you a'n't got nary old curry-comb you don't use, you could let me have?'

'Give him a curry-comb, Pat.'

'Squire you're a clever man. Got most through y'r layin'?'

'Nearly.'

'Well, I'm glad on't. Had kinder ketchin' weather o's, our way.'

And with this return to general and polite conversation, the bargaining is over. It may be amusing, but it is not imparting or elevating. Yet very much of the country trade is full of this miserable chaffering.—Exchange Paper.

Providing Against the Evil Day.

It is well to find the more serious class of thinkers here withdrawing themselves momentarily from the tumult and noise, and frenzied excitement of the hour, to reflect upon the financial gulf towards which the nation is being hurried. It is painful enough to see the unthinking crowd persistently shutting their eyes to the fact that such a gulf yawns but a short distance ahead. But it is more painful still to see this blindness or indifference elevated by such leaders of public opinion as Great Britain as the Brights, and Cobdens, and Fosters, into a well-founded confidence in the stability of the country and a sure faith in its exhaustless resources. To these well-meaning oracles of Federal opinion in England, it will be exceedingly instructive to read a letter from the venerable Thurlow Weed which has just been given to the public through the press here. Mr. Weed, so far from laying the flattering unction to his soul that the war is practically over, that the neck of the rebellion is broken, and that peace may be secured without more material sacrifices, comes forward boldly to announce—It not in so many words—that the biggest share of the work has yet to be done; that the public debt, now claimed to be under $2,000,000,000, will unquestionably mount, before the subjects of the war are accomplished, not less than $3,000,000,000, or nearly an accumulation of indebtedness within little more than a single Lustrum, as great as was considered by Great Britain as a country and a half, the first put in that light in one of the most startling that could be brought before the thinking portion of the American people: If in five years a debt as great as that of Great Britain "rises up," where is it to be the end of it? With all the best and most effective appliances of taxation at work, and with a population—in spite of the outgoing stream of emigrants—which is at least one-third greater than the Northern States, including Missouri and Tennessee—the British Ministers find it to be the gravest problem they have to solve; how to keep the wheels of Government in motion, and at the same time (which is hardly less important) keep faith with the public creditor. Years of experience will be required—even with the most honest endeavor—to create and perfect such machinery for raising the same amount of taxes here, without producing a counter-revolution. And Mr. Weed and all who think soberly and seriously, as he does, on the coming day of reckoning, do well to turn their minds steadily and earnestly to the great financial problem which must be solved before the nation contemplate the sustenance of large standing armies, the construction and maintenance of a commensurate naval force, or the provision of a permanent national police to keep the subjugated Province in order.

In turning to Mr. Weed's suggestions for Congressional deliberation, we have less reason to congratulate his sagacity than we find to commend his foresight in pressing the subject on the public mind. He comes to the point at once by telling us that in the earlier stages of the Republic the public lands, then entirely subject to Federal control and tributary to the Federal exchequer, gave promise of producing such a revenue would lead (in those economic days) to the accumulation of a dangerous money-power in the hands of the Central authorities; and that a growing conviction of the probability of such a result led to the apportionment of the lands among the different States. More recently, the Homestead Law, giving every actual settler a free grant of 160 acres, was put on the statute book; and this law Mr. Weed, looking at the financial exigency of the hour, now should be repealed, and that the lands not yet apportioned to the States or Territories may be made a source of public revenue. We shall not dispute with Mr. Weed the calculations he makes of the positive results financially viewed of this land fund; but taking these results at the very highest figure that could reasonably be given them, we see nothing in the conclusion to justify the repeal of the Homestead Law. The repeal of that law is, first of all, a premium upon land-speculation, one of the greatest curses which ever befel any country. But apart from this: What is it that is the first and great inducement to the vast hordes of agricultural laborers from Germany, from Scotland, from Norway, from Ireland and from England, to scrape together sufficient means to push and plod, and huddle together in crowded ships, determined at whatever risk to find a Western home? It is not the report of flourishing cities on the Atlantic seaboard, or crowded wharves, fabulous bounties for enlistment, or even of bread at half their accustomed market price. It is the cheap homestead—this very 160-acre free-hold, where each clod-hopper may hew out a home for himself—a home which he can call his own forever. That is the inducement. Does Mr. Weed really desire to take it away? The prime want of the country—of the Northern cities at this hour—is labor, either skilled or unskilled. To this end Congress is now eager to offer a premium for emigrants. The vacuum of a million and a half men, stout, healthy men called to the unproductive business of war, is a vacuum not easily filled, the fearful taxation which is coming upon us must press with terrible severity upon the producer who remains at home to till, and sow, and reap, and spin and do the trading exchange of the country. Weighed in the balance with a million and a half of men, what are the hundred and sixty millions of acres Mr. Weed would appropriate to the national revenue? A fig—a feather—nothing more; and we are sorry to find so sagacious a counsellor giving such unwholesome advice.—Scottish American Journal.

MEN AND WOMEN.

How delicious is the blunt, honest frankness of men towards each other, in their every day intercourse, in contrast with the polite little subterfuges, which form the basis of women friendships! When one man goes to make a mere call on another, he talks when he pleases, and don't talk when he don't please. He is free to take a nap, or take a book; and his host is as free, when he has had enough of him, or has any call away, to put on his hat and go out and attend to it: nor does the caller find himself aggrieved.—Now a woman's nose, under similar circumstances, would be in the air for a month, with the "slight" her female friend had put upon her. The mere a woman don't want a friend to stay, the more she is bound to urge her to do it; and to ask her why she hadn't called before; and to wish that she might never go away, and all that sort o' thing. What she remarks to her husband in private about it afterwards is a thing you and I have nothing to do with.

When two men meet after a long absence, ten to one the first salutation is, "Old boy, how ugly you're grown?" In the female department we reverse this. "I never saw you look prettier," being the greatest to the quiz—(what a bright idea has [illegible]!) Then—("bless be the tie that binds")—each one must smack another in the street—perhaps to light his cigar at that which is reposing near an—awkward hovering the important fact, whether he lives in a "mansion" or not. How ineffective the face-and-cap-and-ambrotype system in which other the ceremony, they go their universal way to their tenements; without a spoken word! See them in the streets, my citizen, exchanging, passing remarks on any subject of momentary street-interest, looking over one another's shoulders at each other's "extras," all the same as if the whole Litter had capped their champagne, or as if they had been introduced in an orthodox Divinity fashion!

—See them again quite lushly up to a looking-glass, in a show window, and, beaucoup-manner their multitudinous moustaches; whereas, you woman pretend to be examining something else when you are beat on a like errand, intent on smoothing your ruffled feathers.

The other day in an omnibus, a gentleman "nudged" another gentleman to hand down his fare. Now the nudged creature was out of sorts—wanted his dinner or something—and so sat like an image, without responding; another nudge—with no better success—not a muscle of the nudged man's face moved.—At last, with a heightened colour, the gentleman handed it to the conductor himself, to the inconvenience of several ladies; but he didn't talk to his next elbow-neighbor about "some people being so disagreeable," or call him a "nasty thing;" or try to look him into eternal annihilation for what was really an ungracious action. He only rubbed his left ear a little, and put his mind on something else, and he looked very well, too, while he was doing it.

If one woman is visiting another at her house, and the latter goes up stairs for any thing, her female guest trots right after her, like a little hunting dog. If she goes to the closet to get her boots, the shadow follows her; she must be present when they are laced on; and discusses ribbons and laces, and hosiery, &c. When her hostess goes to the glass to arrange her hair, or put on her bonnet, the shadow follows, leaning both hands on the toilet table to witness the operation. Without this handmaid-freemason confidence, you see at once that female friendship could not be that sacred intermingling of congenial a tares that it is. Your friend would weep, sirs, and ask you "what she had done to be treated so?"

A mouse and a woman! I know one of the latter, who always gets up on a table if she sees either coming. Lady Mary Wortley Montague said a very witty thing once. I am afraid that not even her discovery of inoculation will cancel the sin of it. It was this: "The only comfort I have had in being a woman is, that I can never marry one."

The moral of all this is, that women are reforming in their intercourse with one another. There would be less kissing and more sincerity; less "palaver" and more politeness. But if you think am going to tell them this in person, you must needs suppose that I have already arranged my obituary affairs in case of accident. This not being the case, I decline the office, except so far as I can fill it at a safe distance on paper.—Fanny Fern.

FRIGHTFUL CASE OF STABBING.

A frightful stabbing case, which will probably result fatally, occurred on the Davenport Road, the particulars of which are as follows:—On Tuesday night, two men named David Potter and John Anderson, went into Cherry's tavern, near Yorkville, between seven and eight o'clock.—They were both considerable the worse liquor, and after they had been in the bar a short time, they commenced sparring, "knocking off caps," for liquor. The continued this amusement for some time during which they had one drink each, as being refused more they left the house, and started along the road, going westward.—While walking quietly onward one of the made a proposition to walk a match with his companion, from where they were to tavern situated two miles further on; the arrangement being that whoever should arrive last at the tavern should treat. The challenge was accepted, and the race commenced. Anderson, in order to facilitate his walking, took off his coat and threw it over his arm; he then strode on at a rapid pace, and soon left Potter far behind.—On reaching McQuade's Hill, near where George Innocent was killed, Anderson sat down to rest himself and wait for his competitor. He was sitting by the roadside when Potter came along, so he stepped out into the road and joined him. He had just reached his side when Potter struck him a heavy blow, knocking him down. Potter then sprang wildly upon his prostrate and helpless companion, and drawing a knife he drove it furiously into him, stabbing and cutting like a madman, and inflicting some thirty gashes on the body of his victim. He then ran off, leaving poor Anderson on the road all put dead, and bleeding profusely from his numerous wounds. Seeing a light in Mr. Bartle's house near by, he crawled thither, and told what had occurred. He was at once taken back to Cherry's tavern where he was in a short time under the care of Dr. Phillbrick, who dressed his wounds, and took a statement of the affair. A constable was at once sent in search of Potter, who was brought before two of His Majesty's of the Peace, who, on hearing the evidence, committed the prisoner for trial. Anderson presented a fearful sight he was covered with blood from head to foot, his clothes were cut and torn in [illegible] places, and his hair was matted together with clots of his own blood. It was really wonderful that he was not killed on the spot, as he received stabs in the neck, back, side, breast, and legs; fortunately, however, none of these were in vital parts. They may not prove fatal, yet the doctor thinks it very likely he will not recover.

An Arabian suffering from the application of the thumb, said:—"Keep your eye and [illegible] to make a lodging. I never bother to any one yet, such a plague licking as I've had, and he'll find out that you red makes [illegible]."

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18TH, 1864.

THE FORTUNE COMMISSION.

The Fortune commission is over. It finished its labors on Tuesday evening last—notwithstanding the obstructions of the over sessions, but not wise, friends of the Sheriff. Mr. Mosley, the able and energetic commissioner, deserves much credit for the impartial manner in which he conducted the investigation. We believe his anxiety and one great aim have been to do what is right. Nor is he, we apprehend, a man to be intimidated by threats from the course he thinks proper to pursue. The grossest lies were fabricated and circulated during the very time when common sense and common prudence required that nothing should be said. The different letters which appeared in the Leader, were altogether unworthy of credence. While purporting to give a truthful account of matters, they abounded in the grossest misstatements. Facts were distorted and perverted, and a style of pettyfogging special pleading adopted throughout, to enlist popular sympathy on the behalf of the Sheriff, and to prejudice the popular mind against the commissioner and the Government. Is such conduct right?—is it consistent with those principles of honor and fair play which Britons so proudly boast of? We don't think so. Neither did the Governor General think so, as he pretty plainly made appear when officious delegates visited him lately. Even the Governor, now, is in bad odour with our opponents—those (in their own opinion) hyper friends of loyalty. We propose in our next issue to take up the commission matter, in extenso. In the meantime we may just say we have every reason to believe that the Sheriff will receive fair play and every consideration at the hands of the commissioner, who, while compelled to discharge his duties, deeply sympathised with Mr. Fortune in the illness under which, we are sorry to say, he is laboring.

MR. FOLEY.

The position of this gentleman is a peculiar one. Neither his friends nor his foes can make it out. We are inclined to think that he is himself about as ignorant in this respect as either friends or foes. We think that though he has, in many respects, been wanting in that candor and straight forwardness which should characterise one in his standing, he has been somewhat harshly dealt with by the press. We can hardly believe that he contemplates apostatising from those great principles which in past years he has zealously advocated and nobly battled for. He, no doubt, feels hurt. He imagines that he has been harshly dealt with by those who were formerly his colleagues, and much lauded by him. His mind rankles with the insult which he conceives he was subjected to, in having his services dispensed with as a minister of the crown. And whatever his faults, we think that he might have been more gently let down to the ground than he was. But we don't wish for a moment to entertain the unpleasant idea that he will be so lost to every principle of honor, and forgetful of his own professions, and so regardless of those important interests he has hitherto watched to advance, as to intentionally do anything which would directly or mediately be calculated to restore to power those who are now in opposition, and whom he made it a point a year or two ago throughout the country denouncing and holding up as monsters guilty of every kind of wickedness and wrong doing. No man, surely, can be so inconsistent. We can easily believe that he would like to see his own party overthrown and defeated, we would fain not believe. We think, therefore, if he finds that the success of the Reform party is contingent upon the continuance of the present Premier in office, his course in the next Session will disappoint many who, now judging from newspaper reports, imagine that he will, at the opening of the coming Session, publicly and at once sever all former political ties and cut old friends and principles at the same time. A little personal sacrifice will do Mr. Foley no harm—politically or otherwise.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

The first anniversary of the First Presbyterian Church, of Smith, was held in Lakefield, on Sunday the 7th inst. The Rev. Mr. Ewing, of Mount Pleasant, preached at 11 o'clock, a. m., and at 2½ p. m., and the Rev. Mr. Cassoll, of Peterborough, at 6½ p. m. Collections were taken up at the close of each service, amounting to $24.60. On Monday there was a fleince held in the afternoon, the proceeds of which amounted to $72.94. After the company had partaken of the good things which the Ladies had so bountifully provided, the chair was taken by Col. Strickland, and addresses were delivered by the Rev. J. M. Rogers, Rev. Wm. Blair, and Rev. Mr. Ewing. After the addresses a subscription list was opened, and the liberal sum of $432.59 was subscribed. On Tuesday the children of the congregation were invited to Tea, to help to clear off the piles of bread and cakes which remained. The proceeds amounted to $15.60. The congregation by these united efforts have realized the handsome sum of $453 towards reducing the debt on the Church. Colonel Strickland, and his son Benj. Strickland, presented the Trustees of the congregation with the handsome gift of $100 due them on a Town lot adjoining the Church, and purchased last year from them for the purpose of building a church thereon. Their liberality on this occasion is worthy the commendation of all who wish the good of their fellowmen, and desire the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom. We mean not only to mention the liberality of the parties named in the above donation, but also to direct the attention of others to the example they have set, in the hope that it may induce many others to imitate it.

A COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

In our last issue, we drew the attention of teachers to the necessity for securing the County Superintendent's services, by our advice, appointed a day for another meeting. We trust that all those who wish to give a hearty support to introducing the most improved system of education, as far as practicable in the circumstances already in being, will strain a point to be present at that meeting. Hitherto, the meetings have not been as well attended as one would desire, yet we think there is no reason to be discouraged. The division of the County into two Grammar School Wards in some degree militates against a very large attendance. Each Grammar School forms a kind of centre toward which the Teachers will be more or less attracted, and more especially so because of the two independent Boards subsequent upon such division, which has the effect of more completely isolating the Eastern part of the County from the West—at least, as far as attendance at the Association is concerned. But there are teachers enough in this section, if they would attend regularly, to render the meetings both attractive and instructive. It is too much to expect that these will all attend, judging from past meetings, and from our knowledge of men and the causes that operate upon them. All whom we have a right to expect to be friendly to the Association are not, and this has operated strongly against it heretofore; nor do we expect that all will, in future; but because of the little opposition of a few, will the rest give up? We trow not. Some are friendly to nothing, unless what they themselves do solely project, or can have after their own will—considering all else foolishness! Others plead want of time, while they spend many hours weekly in idleness or worse than idleness, which profit neither themselves nor any one else. And some have been, and, perhaps, are, opposed to the Association from fear, as it would appear, of losing their influence over those who might attend its meetings—dreading least with increased intelligence would come increased independence. Those enemies of progress will have to be contended against, as has had to be done—but there is little fear of the result. The greatest drawback to the Association is the absence of a central influence over teachers, and so long as the present method of a multiplicity of Local Superintendents exists, this will remain and be felt. Each Superintendent influences, more or less, the teachers under his superintendence. And as in "many men there are many minds," while there remains a number of directors there will not be unity of action. By the appointment of a County Superintendent this would be removed. And not only this, but many other obstacles that now impede the cause of Education—and thus a more uniform plan would be brought about, and greater earnestness in the work would very soon follow. As it is, not one of the many Township or Town Superintendents is so remunerated as to permit his spending his time or energy in the work, unless at a very great pecuniary disadvantage; they all confess this. And if they were ever so liberally paid, in proportion to the work each has to do, each one's share of both work and pay is so small it will not allow him to devote the time even his small cure requires—for other things must be attended to in due proportion—thus dividing his time and attracting his thoughts so, that he is unfitted for properly discharging any one of his duties. Another thing that militates against the plan of Township Superintendents is the fact that the portion of each is so small that not one of them troubles himself whether he has the office or not. Now, an office neither sought nor desired will likely be poorly attended to, even by the best of men. For this cause: On such office they reckon nothing, and, of course, will have other duties on which they do depend; and as this one which is neither sought for nor proportionately paid for, comes in at the heels of the rest, it is certain to be the last attended to,—for Superintendents would be more than men if they did not attend best to that that pays best. Hence we find that School visits and School business are made subservient to all other duties; we speak that we do know. Now, we say, appoint one, and look after him—for we presume the remuneration of the many would pay one reasonably well,—and then there could be none of those hindrances which evidently do obtain.

It is admitted by all—even by Teachers—that the present unsatisfactory system of Examination of School Teachers is not calculated to ensure progress either among themselves or in their localities. Hence the general indifference that prevails among them concerning these things. And while there remains two Boards without a common member who could control the workings of both, and who would introduce a more complete method of examination that would force Teachers into self-culture, as well as the culture of others, this indifference will remain; and the present almost stand-still system will remain to keep this indifference company. But if one had all the work, then As would have all the responsibility, and being more engaged in the work would necessarily do it better; self-interest would insure this if nothing else would, for his position would be affected in a greater degree by the progress or decline of the schools under his care than the present incumbents'.—Under the present system each Superintendent is most concerned to have the best teachers under his superintendence; and, as a matter of course, troubles himself little about the rest of the County. Under the superintendence of one there would be a like concern for every division of the County, as he would be acting for the whole, not for a part. Indeed, we feel assured that in no way could the County Council consult the benefit of their municipalities more than by appointing a County Superintendent. For by appointing a good practical man—not a mere theorist—they would ensure a higher standard, a more uniform method, greater earnestness among teachers, and more zeal among pupils; drones would be forced out of the hive, and his and vigor would be seen in every section. In those Counties where one superior has been appointed these things have taken place. In no instance, but one, have we heard of any regret, and that was because of the physical inability of the man appointed, rather than any other cause. Another argument in favor of a County Superintendent is: the effort made by the Chief Superintendent of Schools for Upper Canada to have it compulsory to appoint County Superintendents in every County in Upper Canada. It must be admitted that no other man in this Province has studied the advantages to disadvantages of such a project more than he, and despite obstacles in the way of any scheme that he supported. The present time, we think, has arrived a great deal less in its magnitude, and necessity at most compels the introduction of a better, if it can be obtained, which we think no difficult task. Some may say we are premature. We say let it be agitated—it is needed—and may come sooner from suggesting than many may imagine. [illegible] agitation be raised, and all endeavor to bring the matter before the public as may cost.

THE SEVERN CASE.

We suppose all our readers have heard of the "Severn" case which has lately been before the Court of Chancery in Toronto. It has been the talk of the city. It is certainly a rich dish for those loving scandal. It is, however, a sad commentary on human nature—its weaknesses and frailties. The features revealed are of a most painful description. It is, assuredly, a great pity that leading papers will pander to popular taste by giving publicity to, so loathsome theft they ought to exclude the papers containing them from every respectable home. It takes, however, with some; for, apparently, the more disgusting and minute the details, the more spicy and readable is the paper considered, and the more easily vended. Here are two parties—man and wife—making a public exhibition of themselves. The plaintiff, Mr. Severn, who is a large stout man of about sixty (but does not look above forty-five) and who carries on a large brewery business in Yorkville, and who, moreover, is reported to be immensely rich, is doing his utmost to blast his wife's character, and break the bonds that "bind them." The parties, it seems, were married some twenty years ago. The defendant is his third wife; his first—if rumor be true—having been left behind by him in England. For the first few years after marriage, all, apparently, went on smoothly—the parties seemed on the best terms. But after a while, whispers of recriminations and quarrels got afloat; jealousy—how true we know not—is hinted at as being the cause. Mutual disputes soon led to blows, and separation. The conduct of the plaintiff does not, at this period, in our opinion, appear in a very favorable light. He excused himself for his harshness towards her on the ground that she was addicted to drinking, and of a violent temper; but seemed to forget that it was himself that had no doubt by his own habits, initiated his wife into those practices, into which, it cannot be denied, she has since fallen to a greater or less degree, if not before. It seems he allowed her (or was compelled to do so) a small sum for maintenance—altogether inadequate. He then took away, by force, the three children who, previously, had been allowed to remain with the mother. The latter, then, had recourse to law, and Mr. Severn was forced to restore her the children, and, moreover, pay her an allimony of £200 a year. This was some five or six years ago. During this time defendant has been keeping a boarding house for students in Yorkville—a rather hard place, if all stories be true. It appears that the passion for drink, on the part of the defendant, still continued to exert at times its debasing influence over her; though it must be confessed that the evidence brought to bear to prove her an habitual drunkard, was not of a very substantial nature. So things jogged on until about a couple of months ago, when the plaintiff brought the matter again before the Court of Chancery by charging his wife with infidelity; his object being, according to his own statement, to get the children under his own charge for the purpose of educating and bringing them up properly. Whether this seeming anxiety for the children's education and moral culture was his only motive in bringing the action, is extremely problematical, to say the least of it. To substantiate and establish his charge the plaintiff brought forward three witnesses who swear that they caught the defendant in two several acts of adultery. But as these witnesses were shown to sustain not only a very doubtful, but a very bad character where they reside, the whole thing seems to hinge upon the fact: whether or not these witnesses are to be believed. It certainly does seem not a little remarkable that all the witnesses on the part of the plaintiff (at least those who have proved anything) should be parties whose past history and acts were anything but reputable, or calculated to inspire confidence. Indeed, some of them completely criminated themselves, and were made to tell things they would, no doubt, fain have kept hid. On the other hand, the children and neighbors of the defendant seemed, in their evidence deeply to sympathise with her in her "troubles," and not disposed to give credence to the charges preferred against her. Messrs. Gwynne and Read were the counsel for the plaintiff; the defendant being ably sustained by Messrs. Blake and Blevins, the former of whom exhibited much skill and ingenuity in his cross-examinations, and in his argument before the Chancellor. The case is yet pending the Chancellor's decision.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.

February 15th 1864.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Reeve and Messrs Blizard, Carlow and Mather.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A By-Law was passed, appointing Mr. James Gallon Collector, and James Sinclair Inspector of Houses of Public entertainment.

In consequence of one of the Auditors having removed to Cobourg, Mr. Alex Poe was appointed in his place.

A motion was passed, authorising the printing of one thousand copies of the following notice, a number of them to be posted up in the most public places in the Township, and the balance reserved for a future occasion:

Notice.—To all whom it may concern. Any person or persons taking Timber, Stone, Gravel or Sand, of any of the highways or allowances for roads, or in any other way obstructing said roads in the Township of Otonabee without first obtaining permission from the Council to do so, will be prosecuted as the law directs. By order of Council.

G. Read,
Township Clerk.

Council Chamber,
Otonabee, Feb. 15, 1864.

Two dollars worth of provisions was ordered for the relief of Widow Broderick and her children.

The Council adjourned till the third Monday in March.

The Canada Farmer.—Some time ago we gave notice that the Hon. Thomas Brown, of Toronto, was about to publish a semi-monthly Agricultural Journal. We have now received the two first numbers, which, for our opinion, are equal to any journal of the kind published in America. The terms are very low; Mr. M. Sangster, of Perth, is getting up a club, and we would recommend every farmer around in his name immediately to him for the Canada Farmer.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Upper Canada Auxiliary to the British and Foreign Bible Society was held on Monday evening last in the Victoria Hall.

The President, Robt. Dennistoun, Esq., being unavoidably absent, the chair was taken by Col. Haultain, first Vice-President.

Mr. Johnston, agent for the Society, the Rev'a. Messrs. Gilmour, Clementi, Douglass, Roger and Roberts occupied seats on the platform, and took part in the business of the meeting.

After singing and prayer, the chairman gave an excellent opening address, and called upon Mr. Fairbairn to read the Society's Report.

Rev. V. Clementi moved the adoption of the reports, and in doing so, made a very earnest and able appeal on behalf of the Society.

Rev. J. S. Douglass seconded the adoption of the reports in a few very appropriate remarks, and gave place to the agent, Mr. Johnston, who then moved that the following be the officers elected for the ensuing year, viz.:—

President, Robt. Dennistoun.

Vice-Presidents.—Rev. Vent. Clementi, Col. Haultain, Wm. Clenton, Jas. Hall, Js. Edwards.

Treasurer and Depositary, Wm. Hall.

Secretary,—Thos. M. Fairbairn.

Committee.—Michael Sanderson, William Coulter, W. Sheridan, Thos. McBurney, R. Kingan, J. W. Gilmour, Thos. Hutchinson, Wm. Johnston, John Walton, Wm. Wand, Henry Collins, James Stevenson.

The agent's appeal in advocacy of the claims of the British and Foreign Bible Society was one of the best we have had the pleasure of hearing for a number of years, and they who were absent missed a rich treat.

The Rev. J. Gilmour seconded the motion in his usual happy and telling manner.

The Rev. J. M. Roger supported the motion, which was unanimously carried.

A Collection was then taken up in aid of the funds of the Society, the exact amount of which we have not heard.

The meeting was closed by singing the doxology, the Rev. Mr. Gilmour pronouncing the benediction.

It was really a good meeting, and the only thing that we can grumble at is that more of the people of Peterborough did not come out and countenance by their presence at least one of the best, if not the best, Society in the wide world.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, February 15th, 1864.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Burnham, McNaughton, Hamilton, Moffat, Eastland, Leonard, Stevenson, Lawson, Toole and Whyte.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from Messrs. Clementi and Nicholls was received, acquainting the Council that they contemplate making a new survey of the Town, and soliciting assistance from the Council.

Also, a communication from Mr. Sheridan County Clerk, in reference to the construction of a road to connect with the Bobcaygeon Road; also, of an appropriation for the proposed Drill Shed, and an appropriation for the improvement of the Court House grounds, asking the concurrence of the Town Council, was read and received.

Mr. R. Shaw's application for Inspector of Weights & Measures, was read and received.

A report from the Committe on Fire, recommending the purchase of a fire bell, was read and received.

Mr. John Kennedy was appointed Assessor and Mr. John Kincade Inspector of Buildings

On motion of Mr. McNaughton, Mr. Jas. Edwards was re-appointed Clerk and Treasurer; salary, as usual—$500.

A By-law was passed amending a portion of the Tavern and Shop License By-law; for a Tavern $50, in lieu of $60; for a Shop License $60, in lieu of $61; and for a Victualling House $5, in lieu of $10.

Messrs. Eastland, Moffat and McNaughton were appointed a special committee to receive applications for Tavern Licenses, and to decide to whom certificates should be given.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE.

The Annual Meeting of the Loyal Orange Association of Central Canada, commenced its session in the Town of Lindsay on Tuesday last. A large number of Delegates were present, but not so many from this County as we would like to have seen. The following are the Grand Officers elect for the ensuing year:

Bro. McKenzie Bowell, ...G. M.
" Darcy E. Bolton, ...D. G. M.
" Thomas Stephenson..A. D. G. M.
" N. J. Boulton.....G. T.
" Wm. Shannon.....G. S.
" John G. Moore.....D. G. S.
" Davids Marshall.....G. C.
" A. C. Davis.....G. L.

The next meeting of the Grand Lodge will be held in the Town of Perth.

Several communications on hand. They will receive attention next week. Correspondents will please to make their communications as short as possible, so that all may have a chance.

Parliament will meet for business on Friday next, the 19th inst. Then for "the tug of war."

Presentation to Mr. Robt. Macfarlane late Editor of the Scientific American.—Mr. Macfarlane, who, for the last seventeen years, has been the chief editor of the Scientific American, last week vacated that responsible post and entered on another sphere of usefulness in Albany, N. Y. On the eve of his departure from this city, Mr. Macfarlane was made the recipient of various presentations from his numerous friends as tributes to his worth as a Christian gentleman and his acquirements as a scientific scholar. The attendees of the Scientific American presented him with a beautiful inkstand of black marble and cut glass, together with a pearl penholder, paper-cutter, and other adjuncts of a complete writing equipage, the whole accompanied by a farewell address, which was appropriately and feelingly subscribed to a valedictory letter from Mr. Macfarlane. The Milton Literary Club, of Brooklyn, E. D., presented him with a handsome photographic album; and a splendid gold watch was also presented to him by the members of the Ainslie street Presbyterian Church, Williamsburg. We are happy to be able to state that Mr. Macfarlane will still occasionally attribute to the pages of New York, including the Scottish Reader, to the columns of which he has often hitherto lent an interesting and instructive contributor.—Scottish American Journal.

....The Lady Mayoress of Dublin having given birth to a child during her husband's year of office as Mayor, has been presented with a silver "cradle." The gift is really a vase, but on such occasions it is termed a "cradle," just as the plate in a horse race is termed a "cup."

....Her Majesty and Princess of Wales have just become patronesses of a society in Dublin for the training and employment of educated women. Its name for the future will be the "Queen's Institute." Her Majesty has subscribed £50, and the Princess £10, to its funds.

Unnatural Crime.—In the Superior court of Buffalo, on the 3rd inst., Wm. Lewis, a former resident of Hamilton, was arraigned for rape and incest. The prisoner was charged with the commission of this crime upon the person of his daughter, a child about 11 years of age. Proof was given of the commission of the same offence upon another. The jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was sentenced to Auburn State Prison for the term of his natural life.

....The Buffalo Brokers are running against each other to secure Canadian money which is now quoted at one per cent premium, but the run is nothing compared with that after the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which the people have found out to be the very best thing for the cure of colds, rheumatism, sore throat, bowel complaints, &c., Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

....Do They Do it?—We read a good deal about milkmen watering their milk, putting chalk and stuff in it; but we doubt any man's being such a pretty rascal as that. It is always best, however, to deal with persons and things above such suspicions. In Bryans Pulmonic Wafers, you have a glorious article for the cure of coughs colds and sore throat. They operate quick, pleasantly, and efficiently. Twenty-five cents a box; at all Druggists.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—A short time ago you stated an intention to take an early opportunity to express your views upon the question of building the new Town Hall. As I attach a good deal of to any opinion of yours, I would be glad to have you redeem your promise. The matter has now been considerably discussed by correspondents, but as yet neither you nor the editor of the Review has given us your opinions upon the subject. You will bear in mind that the Market Block is the property of the Town, and that any improvement made thereon increases its profits and value to the Town. That a new Town Hall is much needed. That it would not not only pay the interest upon the outlay, but that, directly and indirectly, it would produce a handsome revenue to the Town. That the erection of this building would insure the leasing and the improvement of all the remaining part of the Block south to Charlotte Street; and that the rents from this source and the taxes upon the rentals of the new building thereon would be quite an item to be added to the Town revenue. And last, but not least, do not forget the comfort and convenience of the new Town Hall to the people; and that the funds are set apart by Parliament for this very building, which, if not used in this way, may be squandered in some other way—and then good bye to the new Town Hall, forever. Indeed, an attempt has been made in this direction already, and came very near being successful. Let this year pass over without doing any thing, and ten to one but next year there will be men in the Council who will take good care to put these funds where the Town Hall will never see them. The time has now come for this building to be put up. The present generation have earned a right to its enjoyment. They have built up the Town by their perseverance and industry; they have, at their own expense, provided comfortable houses, railroads, telegraph lines, macadamized roads, and all the other appliances of civilized life for the rising generation, and, surely, they may and will say that they will for the rest of their days have the advantages and comforts of the new Town Hall, and leave the payment to those who are coming up after, and who will also enjoy it, and for whom so much has been done.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.
Peterborough, Feb. 16th, 1864.

Incompetent Local Superintendents.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—Permit me through your excellent journal to call attention to the fact, that in many townships the office of Local Superintendent, instead of being an important auxiliary to our noble national School system, is, by reason of ignorant and incompetent members, beginning to excite disgust in the minds of intelligent men, and to create a desire in the community for the total abolition of that office. We are all aware that it was the intention of the School Act that the local Superintendent should, in all cases, receive his appointment solely on account of personal character and qualification; but it is certain that appointments are often made to inefficient that they reflect dishonor upon the Council which made them, and, also, inflict a positive injury upon our Common Schools. The appointment in the Township of Dummer at present of is this description. The old gentleman who has received this appointment knows, and every person who is acquainted with him knows full well, that he is not qualified to obtain a Third Class Certificate from any respectable Board of Examiners; and yet this man is the appointed guardian of our National Education, and pockets the public money for doing that which he knows he cannot do. "We reasonably expect that every workier in wood, brass, iron, stone or brick, should be a master of his work, should be capable of doing that which he takes money for doing; otherwise he is an imposter." And what will the people think of the honesty of that man who accepts the office of Local Superintendent, and takes public money for the discharge of duties which he does not even profess to understand? In this communication we forbear to mention names, for it pains us to think that the gentleman referred to who, on his farm, might be esteemed and respected, should allow himself to be placed in a false position before the people, and compel even his friends, out of pity for same, to protest against his appointment. For, preeminently, above all other things, let us guard with jealous care the integrity of our national School system. It is on the Common Schools and their kindred institutions, that the minds of the rising generation shall be moulded; the franchise of a free people shall be entrusted to our children, and it shall rest in part with them whether this great country shall still be only a dependency, or shall rise proudly to take her place on the roll of nations.

Viewing, therefore, our Common School system to be of so much importance, we would propose that every man who accepts the office of Local Superintendents or Schools should either have graduated in some University, or should, at the very least be fully qualified to obtain a First Class Certificate from a County Board of Examiners. If such a law were in force, the number of skedaddlers from that office would be both amusing and beneficial to the public. In order to obtain such a law, we intend to appeal to the Chief Superintendent of Education, to the Board of Public Instruction for Upper Canada, and to the Provincial Parliament; and surely the appeal is so reasonable that we may look for the support of every friend of Education in the country.

Yours, &c.,
REFORMER.

Dummer, Feb. 12th, 1864.

THE DANO-GERMAN QUESTION.

WARLIKE RUMOURS.

The London Post of Jan. 23 contains the following:—

"When Russia marched upon Constantinople, the nations of the West flew to arms in defence of vast interests visibly imperilled. When the French poured over the Alps to struggle with the Austrians, the cause of liberty and the life of a nation were the stakes. On either occasion men understood and appreciated the nature of the conflict. But about the singular tumult which now agitates so very small a basin, it seems marvellous to find Britannia sharpening her trident and seriously preparing to interfere. Yet thus it is. The channel fleet is called home to await sailing orders. The Horse Guards are busy. Artillery is detailed for service, and naval and military authorities are occupied with the preparation of iron-clads and Armstrong guns. A Crimean officer of fair reputation is spoken as commander of a possible expedition, for which various regiments are to hold themselves in readiness. When we look at the map we find Denmark not far from us. Transport is easy, and Heligoland is a most commanding and useful basis of operations. The Germans will soon find that we are in earnest, while, on our part, we still have much difficulty in believing that they are sincere."

The following is from the Daily News:—

"It is understood that, in order to give effect to its remonstrances against the wanton and unjust invasion of Denmark, and for the purpose of fulfilling its engagements in the event of the failure of its utmost exertions to preserve peace, the British Government has found desirable to place under a war footing a military force of between 20,000 to 30,000 men, so as to be ready to give effect to its policy by land as well as by sea. The channel squadron, recalled some days since to these waters, is understood to be now due at Spithead. It is to hoped that the present precautions against every contingency may tend rather to diminish than to promote the danger existing in the present situation of Europe."

DEPARTURE OF THE AUSTRO-PRUSSIAN COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

Berlin, Jan. 26.

On Sunday night Marshal Wrangel left Berlin, with his staff, and went to Hamburg, on his way to take command of the Austro-Prussian army in Holstein. I believe there is no doubt that he has the ultimatissimum in his pocket, and that this document informs the Danes that he is about to enter Schleswig and request them to move out. The term allowed to comply with this request is 24 hours: that time expired, the Marshal crosses the Fider. On the 28th this final and preceptory summons is to be sent—according to present decisions. Should no change take place in these, or in the mood of the Danes, we shall have war before the end of the month. The general expectation is Berlin is that few days will elapse before the outbreak of hostilities.

WHAT THE POWERS DEMAND OF DENMARK.

(From the Daily News.)

The demand now made by the German powers denies to Denmark the right of uniting the truly Danish portions of the monarchy in a central representative assembly for legislation in common affairs, and if successful would inevitably destroy all possibility of united action, or indeed of any legislative action at all, on behalf of common national objects. Now it scarcely need be said that the liberty of securing such united action is for Denmark not only a fundamental right, but a paramount political necessity, absolutely essential to her existence as an independent state. These are a number of questions such as the administration of the finances, the army and navy, the tariffs of the country, the foreign office, which are of necessity common to the Danish portions of the monarchy, and which in a constitutional country can only, therefore, be properly decided by common legislative assembly. The persistent intervention of the Diet in question affecting the German Duchies has paralyzed all effective constitutional action in the purely Danish portions of the monarchy for nearly seven years past. Measures of financial reform, including tariff changes designed to stimulate the commerce and develope the resources of the country, have long since been prepared, and only await the settlement of the disputes with the Diet to be submitted to the common assembly and adopted as law. At length the time for the revived political action of the Danish State appeared to have arrived. The German Duchies being virtually abandoned to the Confederation, it was possible to resume political and legislative action for the Danish portions of the monarchy. At this point the German powers step in, and demand that the political and legislative paralysis of the last few years shall be made the chronic and permanent condition of the Danish State. Stripped of all disguise this demand amounts to a claim on the part of the German powers to break up the Danish monarchy; and it is hardly surprising, therefore, that the Danes should resolve on resistance, and be prepared to entertain very extreme alternatives before quietly surrendering their territorial integrity and political independence.

An orchin suffering from the application of the birch, said:—"Forty rods are said to make a furlong. I know better; let any one get such a plague licking as I've had, and he'll find out that one rod makes an acher."

NORTHERN EXPLORATION.

In May, Mr. Henry White, P. L. S., accompanied by three men and dogs, left this city to explore the country between the new townships of Victoria and Peterborough and Lake Nipissing. His principle object, we believe, was to determine as closely as the season he had at his disposal would permit, the mineral wealth of that portion of the Province hitherto neglected. He has just returned and brings with him numerous mineral specimens, which have not been examined by our best mineralogists and chemists; but it is Mr. White's intention to submit them to the investigation of scientific men at an early day. Among the specimens are several particles of gold. It is not at all probable, however, that this mineral is to be found to pay workable extent in that region. At least is the opinion of the geological staff—an opinion which is entitled to some weight, and will be generally so accepted. Mr. White also brings with him some pieces of graphite, specular iron, mica, lead sulphate of iron, plumbago, arsenic, and pulverized iron, which is to be found in large quantities. It is yet to be seen whether these minerals can be found under such circumstances as will render them of any commercial value.

The land almost the entire distance is said to be of the best description for farming purposes; it is now covered with primeval pineries. Mr. White regards this tract of country of such great value that he considers the Government very remiss in not making an effort to open it up to settlement. Mr. McDougall, in his last report, ventured the assertion that nearly all the good land in the Upper Province had already been taken up. Here are thousands of acres in which the sound of the woodman's axe has not yet been heard.

Mr. White says he never saw finer corn in a field some distance from the new townships cultivated by an old Indian. The lakes, which are numerous and pretty, abound in the finest fish, and game is exceedingly plentiful.

The summer season was pleasant, snow was met with on the height of land between the settled townships and Lake Nipissing on the 18th of Sept., but it is not to be inferred from that, that the winter season commences early. The explorer and his party lived bountifully during a great part of their trip on partridge, beavers and muskrats.—Ottawa Gazette.

There are six miles of wooden pavements in New York, which, after six years constant wear, are nearly as perfect as when first laid down. They are made thus: "Lay down flooring of one inch boards on a bed of sand; coat the floor with asphaltum; stand on end blocks of wood six inches high by three inches thick, and nine inches in length, in rows about one inch apart, divided by strips of boards. Fill in these open narrow spaces with asphaltum."

Preparing Glue for Ready Use.—To any quantity of glue, use common whiskey instead of water. Put both together in a bottle, cork it tight, and set it by for three or four days, when it will be fit for use without the application of heat. Glue thus prepared will keep for years, and is at all times fit for use, except in very cold weather, when it should be set in warm water before using. To obviate the difficulty of the stopper getting tight by the glue drying in the mouth of the vessel, use a tin vessel, with the cover fitting tight on the outside to prevent the escape of the spirit by evaporation. A strong solution of isinglass, made in the same manner, is an excellent cement for leather.

GREAT SALE!

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very saleable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

Terms.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 16 feet posts, and all under-hoarded with stalls to the up 36 head of Cattle and 3 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors; close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

ALSO,—The East Half of Lot No. 12, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

☞ Title unexceptionable.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

CROSBY & NICHOLS

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE THAT THE

North American Review

WHICH has for the last ten years been so ably conducted by Dr. Peabody, passes now into the editorial charge of Prof. James Russell Lowell and Charles Eliot Norton, Esq., gentlemen who, for sound elegant scholarship, have achieved an enviable reputation, both in this country and in Europe; and whose taste, judgment and experience eminently qualify them for the position they have assumed.

Of the former, it may be said that his essays in the periodical which, under his editorialship, reached the summit of its fame, surpassed in vigor and force those of any contributor.

Of the latter, that he has "added new honor to the name he bears by the extent and variety of his knowledge, and by the force and elegance which he has exhibited, both as a writer and a [illegible]."

And of both that their thorough loyalty to the liberal institutions of our country, and their sympathy with the progressive element of the times, render them peculiarly fitted to conduct the Review, which has by competent authority been pronounced the leading literary organ of the country, and of which it has been said that it has not its equal in America nor its superior in the world.

The North American Review will maintain in the hands of its new editors its established reputation for independent criticism, and for well-considered opinions in politics and literature.

In discussing political and social questions, the spirit of the Review will be thoroughly national and loyal. It will defend and illustrate the distinctive principles on which the institutions of America are founded.

In literature, it will avail itself of the best material of thought and scholarship which the country can supply.

Bound by strong associations to the past, and sympathy with the present, hopeful for the future, the Review will do its part in the intellectual movement of the times.

☞ The North American Review is published Quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, in numbers of about three hundred pages each, containing matter equal to an ordinary octavo volume.

TERMS—Five dollars a year, or one dollar and twenty-five cents per number.

☞ A new volume of the Review will commence with the January number, and the publishers trust that the increased expenditure consequent upon the changes proposed in the future conduct of the work, will be met by a generous increase in the patronage of the public.

CROSBY & NICHOLS, Publishers.
No. 117 Washington, Boston.

☞ Newspapers copying the above the usual number of times shall receive the work for one year. 4

SOLDIERS in the ARMY!

AND OUR PEOPLE AT HOME,

Are now offered an opportunity by which they can obtain a

GOOD AND DURABLE TIME-PIECE,

At a very Low Figure.

OUR WATCHES are warranted to keep time one year, and the buyer is allowed the privilege of examination before the payment is required.

Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions.

A first-class Hunting Time-Piece of silver material, over which is electro-find plated 18 k. gold, most durably wrought, making the imitation so faultless that it cannot be detected from the solid material by the most experienced Judges; acids will not affect it. Ladies make mention of. Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions has sweep seconds, and is not to be excelled in accuracy of performance. This decidedly the one of the best articles ever offered for traders and speculators. Engineers, emigrants and persons travelling will find them superior to any other; alteration of climate will not affect their accuracy. Price, packed in good shape, and a good running order, only $15, or case of 3 for $40.

Silver Double Time Hunting Levers,

Best quality silver cases, over which electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, similar to our improved Duplex, and superior adjusted movements with "stop," to be used in timing horses, &c.; has four pendants for [illegible] and [illegible] time, sweep second, and all the [illegible] movements. All in all, taking its beautiful and faultless appearance and its superior movement into consideration, is regarded as the best and cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price, in good running order, $20, or case of 6 for $100.

☞ We ask no pay in advance, but will forward either of them to responsible parties, to any part of the Dominion, [illegible] to be accompanied by the cash to insure attention. We make a deduction on either Watch when the payment is forwarded in advance.

Money may be sent to us at our risk by [illegible] Express Co., or by Bank Draft, payable to our order.

A TEMPERANCE ADDRESS.

From Graham's Handbook of Physiography

[illegible]

Would banish our nation;
Who deserves hanging,
Who all in distraction,
[illegible]
Of which first expression,
Offers temptation,
Who sees the ruinings,
Distress and desolation,
The sure [illegible]
[illegible]
Or any regulation,
For common consolation,
[illegible]
The frequent desecration,
Of Sabbath ordination;
The crime of depredation,
Defying legislation;
The awful profanation
Of common conversation;
The moral starvation,
The dire [illegible]
[illegible]
To the value [illegible]
Behold this devastation,
And utter condemnation
Of all investigation,
Will sanction its duration,
Or show disapprobation
Of any combination,
For its extermination?
We deem a deliberation
This office, no temptation
By any palliation
Of this abomination,
The only sure foundation,
And under this persuasion,
Make no communication
With noxious emanation
Of brewer's fermentation,
Or poisonous preparation
Of spirits distillation,
Nor any vain libation
Producing stimulation.
To this determination
We call consideration,
And without hesitation,
Invite co-operation,
Not doubting, invitation
Will rather your estimation
And by continuation
Afford you consolation;
For in participation
With this association
You may by meditation
Insure the preservation
Of a future generation
From all contamination.
And may each invocation
Of such regeneration
Be the theme of exultation
In every place and nation
Till its final consultation.

THE NEW BABY.

(From Punch.)

"That's done it!" said Mr. Punch. The fact is, that he was breakfasting in his elegant and luxurious apartment in the shadow of the Church of Saint Bride, the sandstone spire, bee one, in London. And he does not read the papers until after breakfast, for he gets so indignant with bad English, brutal reviewing officers, base husbands, and puffing advertisements, that it is not giving fair play to his cook to mix such things up with an artistic breakfast. So he takes them with his subsequent cigar, and near those reach Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy.

The bells of St. Bride suddenly dashed out into a wild chorus of private publication.

"Hello!" said Mr. Punch, recalling his fine mind from Burton's celestial deeds to terrestrial topics. "Have I been publishing another new volume, that the world is in ecstasies?" His Secretary entered. This young nobleman, who is the heir-apparent to a duke's coronet, and is qualifying himself, under Mr Punch's training to be a Prime Minister when Pam resigns in 1884, had divided his chief's punishment, and at once said, with the most high-bred composure, and as if continuing a conversation—

"The Prince of Wales presented a son with a Prince about nine o'clock last night."

"The telegram must have been sent to my private residence," said Mr. Punch. "How is the dear young lady going on?"

"Hooray! And a Prince?" said Mr Punch. "A Prince" said the young nobleman. "That'd done it," said Mr. Punch.

"I see what you mean," said the young nobleman. "I should be sorry, my dear Sir, if you did not. Explain what I mean."

"You would say that this most opportune event has elected the n.k. That we previously felt it a duty to prevent King Christian to be robbed by the Savages, but that now it is also a pleasure to aid him. That the darling Princess having given the Queen a grandson, the Prince a son, and the nation a pet, we are not going to let Schleswig be taken from her father."

"Very well said, Marquis, but call it Sandwick for the future. That is the good old title, and we won't have the Duchy germanized, ever in name. Send beer to have papers. I must write a nursery song for the baby."

The Secretary withdrew, and in ten minutes had made a beautiful copy, on pink paper, of the following ditty, and was hurrying away with it to Frogmore:

CONGRATULATORY NEW BABY.

O slumber, my darling, thy sire is a Prince
Whom Mamma beheld skating not quite five hours since
And Grandpapa Christian is off to the fray
With Germans, who'd steal his nice duchy away.

But slumber, my darling, the English are true,
And they'll help him for love of Mamma and of you,
And the Channel fleet's coming with powder and shot,
And the Germans must run, or they'll scratch it all hot.

We have only to add that the infant Prince will be christened Edward Christian Francis Alexander John Bull Sleswick.

HELP YOUR MOTHER!

We have seen about six great hearty Boys sitting by the kitchen stove, to stir their feet, and cracking nuts or jokes, while the mother [illegible] the wood-pile for wood to the well for water, or to the meat-house to cut frozen cake for dinner. This is not as it should be. There is much work about a household for a group. Henry Lilly had [illegible] which she let them do themselves. Boys, don't let your mother do it all, especially if she is a feeble woman. Dull, heavy [illegible] work is long work too. It being impossible to tell what it is out [illegible] that she does not do again. There is more of it than one is apt to think. Wish some busy mind, a home-worker, [illegible] to the [illegible] Boys, [illegible] to [illegible] and down the stairs and [illegible] how many times from the stove to the battery.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.
For 1864.

GREAT LITERARY & PICTORAL YEAR.

THE Publisher of Godey's Lady's Book, takes pleasure in announcing to the public that he has enabled him to publish a Magazine for the last thirty-four years of a larger circulation than any in America, has made an arrangement with the most popular authoress in this country—

MARION HARLAND,

Authoress of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Miriam," "Moss Side," and "Nemesis,"

Who will furnish Stories for the Lady's Book for 1864. This alone will place the Lady's Book in a literary point of view fare ahead of any other Magazine. Our other favourite writers will all continue to furnish articles throughout the year.

The best Lady's Magazine in the world and the Cheapest.

THE LITERATURE

Is of that kind that can be read aloud in the family circle, as the clergy in immense numbers are subscribers for the Book.

THE MUSIC

Is all original, and would cost 25 cents, (the price of the Book) in the music stores; but must be purchased [illegible] obtained except in Godey.

OUR STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

All of us to rival us in this have ceased, and we now stand alone in this department, giving as we do many more and infinitely better engravings than are published in any other work. Godey's immense double sheet Fashion-Plates, containing from five to seven full length colored Fashions on each plate—other Magazines give only two—are far ahead of any Fashions in Europe or America. The publication of these Plates costs $10,000 more than the Fashion Plates of all the [illegible] and enables [illegible] confidently large circulation enables us to give them. Other Magazines cannot afford it. We never spare money when the public can be benefited.

These Fashions may be relied on. Dresses may be made after them, and the wearer will not subject herself to ridicule, as she would be if she visited the large cities dressed after the style of the plates in some of our so-called Fashion Magazines.

OUR WOOD ENGRAVINGS,

Of which we give twice or three times as many as any other Magazine, are taken from life or from drawings made expressly for this work, they are not [illegible] as others

IMITATIONS.

Beware of them. Remember that the Lady's Book is the original publication and the cheapest. If you take Godey, you want no other Magazine. Everything that is useful or ornamental in a home will be found in Godey.

DRAWING LESSONS.

No other Magazine gives them, and we have given enough to fill several large volumes.

OUR RECEIPTS

Are such as can be found now here else. Cookand articles on the application of that science [illegible]

OUR PATTERNS

Of Lamps, and Tools—of Kitchen Receipts upon all subjects are to be found in the pages of the Lady's Book. We originally started this department and have peculiar facilities for making it most perfect. This department alone is worth the price of the book.

LADIES' WORK TABLE.

This department comprises engravings and descriptions of every article that a lady wears.

MODEL COTTAGES.

No other Magazine has this department.

Terms of Subscription in the British Provinces:

One copy one year, $3; two copies one year, $5; three copies one year, $7.

Five copies one year, and an extra copy to the person sending the club, making six copies for $11.50.

Special Clubbing with other Magazines.

Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Magazine, one year, $4.

Godey and Harper, one year, $5.

Godey, Harper, and Arthur, one year, $7.

At these prices subscribers in the Provinces will have only the [illegible] postage to pay.

Treasury notes [illegible] of all solvent banks taken at par.

Be careful and pay postage on your letter.

PROPRIETOR
OF THE Canada Farmer
A NEW FORTNIGHTLY JOURNAL,
OF
Agriculture, Horticulture
AND
RURAL AFFAIRS.

THE Subscriber has determined to make the experiment whether a first-class Agricultural Journal can be sustained in Canada. He proposes to issue early in January, 1864, the first number of The Canada Farmer, and to continue the publication on the 1st and 15th days of each month. Each number will contain sixteen pages quarto of closely printed matter. It will be printed on fine paper, from an entirely new font of type. The services of an able agricultural writer as Editor-in-Chief have been secured, and he will be assisted by an efficient staff of writers, to screen and correspondents. First-class artists and engravers have also been retained to prepare illustrations for the paper. No exertion or expenditure will be spared to render the new Journal a worthy representative and advocate of the Agricultural interests of Canada.

In the conduct of The Canada Farmer, the following ends will be zealously labored for:—

1.—To arouse public attention, by frank and temperate discussion, to all questions scientific, commercial, legislative or otherwise, specially affecting the farming interest.

2.—To stimulate the Agriculturist of our country to adopt an improved system of husbandry, by blending the lessons of modern science with the practical experience of the Canadian Farmer.

3.—To bring under the attention of our Farmers all improvements at home or abroad, worthy of adoption, affecting the management of Field Crops—the Barn-yard—the Stable—the Dairy—the Orchard—the Poultry Yard—the Apiary—the Kitchen Garden—and the Flower Garden; and to excite an interest in the progress of Rural Architecture and Landscape Gardening, and in all that concerns the Domestic Economy of the Farmhouse.

4.—To mark and report all improvements in Agricultural Machinery—foster new inventions—and promote the adoption of all labour-saving machines in the work of the farm and garden.

5.—To keep prominently under attention all that specially concerns the Dairy-farmer and the Grazier; the best breeds of cattle—the best systems of feeding—the most approved processes of cheese and butter making—the best mode of packing—and the best markets to sell in.

6.—To keep prominently in view whatever is specially interesting to the Sheep-raiser and Wool-grower—the Breeds best adapted to our climate—the best systems of winter and summer management—and the varying prospects of the wool market.

7.—To afford the Farmers of Canada anever-open medium for advertising their brother Agriculturists throughout the Province, suggesting matters of common interest and advantage, and eliciting information or advice on practical questions of difficulty or doubt.

8.—To report concisely the Proceedings at Agricultural Shows, Fairs and sales through-out the Province—note the condition and progress of the Herds and Flocks of pure-bred Stock-breeders; record the importation of Thorough-bred stock from abroad, and publish Engravings of First Class Prize Animals.

9.—To watch and report carefully and promptly the actual state and probable prospects of the Produce Markets at home and abroad; and specially promote all movements designed to secure the best prices in the best markets for Canadian Farm Produce.

10.—To afford the Farmers of Canada a common medium where all who have for sale Live Stock or Seed Grain or Land, or who may wish to buy such, can make his desires known directly to the whole farming population of Canada.

☞ The Canada Farmer will be published for ONE DOLLAR per annum, POSTAGE FREE payable strictly in advance.

CLUBS

will be furnished at the following rates:—

TWELVE COPIES for..... TEN DOLLARS.
TWENTY COPIES for..... FIFTEEN DOLLARS.
FIFTY COPIES for..... THIRTY-FIVE DOLS.
ONE HUNDRED for..... SIXTY DOLLARS.

Communications on Agricultural subjects are invited, addressed to "The Editor of the Canada Farmer," and all orders for the paper will be sent to

GEORGE BROWN,
Proprietor and Publisher.

☞ As FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES of the first number will be printed and circulated, an unequalled opportunity for Advertisers will be presented. The charge will be twenty cents per line.

MECHANICS! INVENTORS!!

MANUFACTURERS,

Engineers, Agriculturists, Chemists,

AND

ALL CLASSES OF READERS,

[illegible] by all means, to take the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

The most Valuable Journal of its class now published.

Volume X., New Series,

Commences on the 1st January next; therefore NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

MECHANICS will find in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN valuable information concerning their various trades, and details of all the latest and best improvements in Machinery, Tools, and Progress, together with such useful knowledge as will tend to dignify their occupations and lighten their labors.

Inventors will find in the Scientific American all necessary instruction how to secure Letters-Patent for their inventions; also excellent illustrations and descriptions of all the principal inventions recently made in this country and Europe; likewise an official list of the claims of all Patents granted weekly at Washington, with numerous explanatory notes; also, decisions of questions concerning the Patent Laws of the United States, reports of trials in court, with legal opinions, etc.

Manufacturers will find in the Scientific American illustrated articles describing those of the most recently invented machines used in various manufacturing operations, the different process being lucidly described; also practical recipes of much value to manufacturers, with hints upon the economical management of factories.

Engineers will find in the Scientific American valuable descriptions of all the best inventions connected with Steam, Railroad, Marine, and Mechanical; together with a faithful record of the progress science in all these departments both at home and abroad.

Chemists will find in the Scientific American details of recent discoveries made in Chemistry and articles on the application of that science to all the useful arts.

Agriculturists will find in the Scientific American engravings and descriptions of all the best and most improved Farm Implements, also, original or well-selected articles on matters relating to general Agriculture; great care being taken to furnish Farmers, regularly, with such information as will be valuable on the Fields and in the Household.

An Illustrated Record of the Inventions in the Scientific American a popular resume of all the most scientific information of the day; and it is the aim of the publishers to present it always in an attractive form, avoiding as much as possible abstruse terms. To every intelligent mind, this journal affords a constant supply of instructive reading.

Subscribers should remit so as to have their subscriptions begin on the first of January, with the next [illegible]. Those who preserve their numbers for binding have, at the end of the year, two handsome volumes of 416 pages each —832— with several hundred engravings.

Terms of Subscription, $1.60 a year. $1.60 for six months; 20 copies for a Club can be had for $40. Subscribers in Canada should remit 25 Cents extra to pay postage, prepayment at U. S. office, gratis, a pamphlet of "Advice to Inventors."

Select Poetry.

Of old sat Freedom on the heights.

Of old sat Freedom on the heights
The thunders breaking at her feet;
Above her shook the starry lights;
She heard the torrents meet.

There in her place she did rejoice,
Self-gathered in her prophet-mind,
But fragments of her mighty voice
Came rolling on the wind.

Then stept she down thro' town and field,
To mingle with the human race;
And part by part to men revealed
The fullness of her face.

Grave mother of majestic works,
From her isle-altar gazing down,
Who, God-like, grasps the triple forks,
And, king-like, wears the crown.

Her open eyes desire the truth—
The wisdom of a thousand years
Is in them. May perpetual youth
Keep dry their light from tears.

That her fair form may stand and shine,
Make bright our days and light our dreams,
Turning to scorn with lips divine
The falsehood of extremes.

TENNYSON.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MASONIC HALL,
Toronto, Feb. 9th, 1864.

SIR,—In a recent number of your able and widely circulated paper, there appears an uncalled for attack upon an Institution with which I have the honor to be connected, and being of opinion that it has appeared through a misapprehension on your part, of the business and objects of the Society, based on information derived from interested and unfriendly sources. I request to be allowed, through the same channel, to correct some of the fallacies and misstatements, doubtless unintentional, with which the article referred to abounds. From the high character and local influence of the Peterboro Examiner, as well as from the fact that it is read by many persons connected with the Institution, who might justly feel surprised and indignant that its character should have thus been assailed, it is right that a reputation of the charges made, should appear through the same medium.

Generally commences with nearly unobjectionable commonplaces respecting the evil results of borrowing, which may be very good in their way, but are evidently not its main objects, and if they were, would, it is to be feared, be of little effect, for people have borrowed from time immemorial all the world over, and doubtless will, long after your time and mine, for the simple reason that they find it to their interests to do so.

It then proceeds to depreciate the introduction into Canada, of English and Scotch capital. It may be some satisfaction to you and your readers to know that this Institution is supported almost entirely by Upper Canadian capital, the interest or profits on which remain in the Country, and in this respect it differs from most of the Banks and other financial institutions.

In order, probably, to make the intended attack more effective, some calculations are then gone into, to show, if possible, if they show anything, that the gradual improvement of the country has been a source of poverty rather than wealth, as is generally supposed, that in fact a farmer with land and improvements now worth $3,000 on which he has lived for years and brought up a family but on which he owes $1,000, (put forth as an average case) is worse off to the extent of that $1,000, than when he only owned a bush lot worth $300. Yet it is admitted that the country has improved. Why has it? By the people in it generally getting poorer? Can an aggregate of failures be success? Can the general result differ from the average individual experience? How strange that Canadian farmers, who, until the last two unfortunate harvests—aye, and as a class are yet, as prosperous and independent a body of men as there are on the face of the earth, have never understood their position, and still more strange that as the result of this depletion, we see the log house giving place to Brick or Stone Structures, the small log barn to extensive ranges of frame outbuildings, villages springing up everywhere, and that such prosperous towns as Peterboro, Lindsay, Port Hope, Guelph and many others, should have arisen. If the theory advanced be correct, the country would have been equally or more prosperous, were a great portion of the bread producing and populated country still part of the primeval forest.

Having thus paved the way, the grand attack commences on what the writer is pleased to term "the rascally Building Society"—And here allow me to ask, why was the Canada Permanent Building and Savings Society singled out from all other loaning institutions, local or foreign, as the object of such severe reprobation. Is it not a fact that its rates of interest are lower, its penalties for default lighter than that of any other institution supported by Canadian capital, whose business is to lend money on Real Estate?

It is said "the Society offers money at 7 per cent." This I distinctly deny, both on the part of the Society and as far as I am aware of any of its borrowers. It is said its Agents practice deception. As a body of highly respectable gentlemen, I assert that the Society's surveyors, for it has no general agents, are incapable of doing so, and they cannot do so without violating the letter and spirit of their instructions. It is said the annual payment required to redeem a loan of $1,000 in 10 years is $770. The correct amount is $165 60. There is then inserted a Table—correct enough except as to the rate of interest, followed by observations, which, perhaps unintentionally, would lead your bucolic readers to suppose that the actual rate of interest is somewhere near a mean between 7 and 70 per cent, or about 38 per cent. per annum, which is proclaimed to be robbery! Would it not have been more candid had it been pointed out, that the average shown by the table was in time 5 years, in amount $600, and in interest 11½ per cent. Had the correct figures as to interest been inserted, the table would have shown an average interest of something less than 11 per cent. But even this table is itself calculated wrong, inasmuch as it entirely overlooks the fact that the lower rates at which the great bulk of the money stands, are paid at the beginning of the term, and that no compensation is made to the lender for the nonpayment of what he is deficient of the average rate, till the latter end of the term.

Now comes the astounding announcement, that "this Company sells almost every man's land they get hold of" which unlike some of its predecessors, is charmingly free from ambiguity or liability to misconstruction. This statement, I am happy to say, is far from being true, and must have been made in entire ignorance of the general business of the Society. It is a fact that in common with Banks and other loaning institutions, and almost every Merchant in the country, this Society has had reason to deplore that persons will sometimes undertake monetary engagements, which they fail to fulfil, and in a new country where money is scarce, whose wealth consists chiefly of immovable property, which during the past nine years has passed through a period of great inflation, followed by a commercial depression of unprecedented severity and duration, and several short harvests, it is not, perhaps, to be wondered at, that such cases should occur.

During this period, this Society has lent more than one and a half millions of dollars, of which, about one third, together with interest, has been repaid, and where have all the sales referred to, taken place? I assert that out of more than £300 loans made not more than five per cent of the properties mortgaged have been or are likely to be sold by it. Will the experience of other Institutions or individuals loaning money on Real Estate, in the same time, compare favorably with this? I believe not. As your information may not be supposed to extend to the whole Province take your own section of it—say the Counties of Victoria, Peterboro, and Durham. The aggregate loans on these will be from somewhere between 300 and 400 probably nearly the latter number. How many sales have there been? Five only. How many more cases are there where a sale will probably be necessary? Not more than ten! Do you know more? if so, you will do us a favor by pointing them out. Even had sales unfortunately been much more numerous than they have been, the Society would not have been blameable therefor, unless it were shown that it was the ultimate or proximate cause of them. And no case can be pointed out where the sale would not have been made by some one. And the Society never existed, or where any reasonable concessions by the Society would have provided it.

I have noticed some of the most prominent misstatements of the article, and as I doubt not your object is to elicit the truth for the benefit of your numerous readers, I hope you will permit me to occupy a further space for the purpose of stating what this Society's terms really are. The Society charges 6½ per cent on the sum advanced and decides the whole principle and interest into a fixed number of instalments payable annually or otherwise at the choice of the borrower, up to ten years. Thus if for 10 years 16½ per cent per annum is required, if for 8 years 19 per cent per annum is required—these annual payments wiping out both principal and interest of the debt in the time agreed upon. It is also understood that the Society will receive any sum, however, large or small, at any time, and apply it on account, and that if any money be paid back before it becomes due, interest at not less than six per cent will be allowed for it. You will observe that both principal and interest being paid off by an annual instalment of 16½ per cent, it is evident, to begin with, that the interest alone would be considerably less than 16½ per cent. In fact all that the borrower loses and all that the Society gains above the 6½ per cent, actually paid, is the interest on the sinking fund, he is accumulating in the hands of the Society, for the redemption of his debt, and the question he has to consider, is, what would be the value to him of these small instalments, supposing he retained them to the end of the term. Assuming that he is one of the average class of farmers, we believe that an estimate of six per cent per annum, would be rather above than below what could be considered the value of the annual instalments to him, supposing, of course, that they are placed out so as to be attended with no risk, either as to safety or punctuality of repayment, which he secures by applying the money on his own debt. Let us see how the case, then, stands. Take loan of $1000, for say, one year. There will be repaid of the principle at the end of

1st month	$000	10	"	"	$ 165 60
2nd "	00	10	"	"	2 50
3rd "	00	9	"	"	2 25
4th "	00	8	"	"	2 00

12th "	00
	$000
Add interest annually paid to the Society					$38 00
					$203 50

Or about 20 per cent. on $000.

I take one year for convenience—if a longer time be taken the result will not materially differ. Now compare the position of a farmer who borrows at 10 per cent, on the old system (and it would be easy to show that the average of loans made in your county are at higher rates than this, besides commissions,) with that of one who borrows from this Society; in the former case to repay a loan of $1000 for 5 years he pays $1500—to the Society he pays $1326. On $1000 for 10 years, in the former case he pays $2000 in the latter $1656—is not the difference $344 more than a sufficient compensation to him for the loss of the use of the sinking fund? And I submit that a person who borrows at 10 per cent, and undertakes to pay the principal in one sum, in reality pays a great deal more for the money to actually use; and in estimating the exact cost of the loan to him, he should calculate the interest on the funds from time to time, accumulating in his own hands, to meet the expected payment. For we all know, that few if any could keep the whole sum borrowed, profitably employed during the whole period of the loan, and when this is the case, it is immaterial to the borrower, whether the money while accumulating is placed in a strong box or an old stocking, or in the keeping of the Society, except that by stipulating that he will periodically pay it to the Society, he is enabled to obtain the loan at a reasonably lower rate than in the present position of the country he otherwise could.

But taking it for granted that an intending borrower really needs the money, the great practical question for him to consider is this: How can I get the funds I require with the best chance of repaying it and in the shortest time getting quit of the debt. Does any one believe that with the average farmer there is a greater probability of his doing so, by paying interest at 9 or 10 per cent, and then, at the end of the term paying the principal in one sum; than by paying 16½ per cent to the Society, thereby every year reducing his liability and eventually wiping out the debt? Is it more likely that he will be able in the fifth or sixth year as the case may be, to raise the whole sum, than to raise a certain proportion of it each year? All experience goes to show the contrary, and the fact is, that very few indeed, of those loans made at a fixed rate, without provision for a gradual redemption, are paid off by the borrower at maturity. Farmers cannot, as a rule, get together large sums such as mortgages are generally made for, say from $500 to $1,500. They can generally pay the interest out of their annual receipts, and perhaps something more if it is required by the terms of the loan; in fact, with the knowledge that they are gradually improving their position, they will make temporary sacrifices to do so; but if not obliged to provide for the principal, any surplus is consumed in little domestic or other indulgences which could have been dispensed with; and thus, not only is there no interest made on the sinking fund, but that fund itself, by carefully husbanding which only, can the farmers hope to pay off his debt at maturity, gets frittered away, and is not forthcoming when wanted.

You mentioned the fines charged for default. These are announced beforehand, and form part of the understood condition of the loan. They are placed at two per cent. per month on the amount in arrear, and are purposely put at a rate sufficiently high to make it the interest of borrowers to be punctual in meeting their re-payments. It would be much to the advantage of the Institution if every one paid promptly and no fines at all were charged. They have been reduced once, they are now lower than those charged by other similar Societies in Canada, and are just two-fifths of what are charged by similar Societies in Great Britain, and it may be fairly a question for consideration whether their object could not be gained by a still lower rate. In this respect, as in others, the terms of this Society will continue from time to time to be so adjusted as to ensure an ample demand for its funds on the best security the country affords, and so that borrowers who have such securities to offer will find it to their interest to do business with it, even as old money generally become cheaper, which I sincerely hope it may.

Having endeavored to remove some of the misapprehensions the article in your paper was calculated to create, I leave the matter to the consideration and decision of each individual borrower, and will only add the sentence with which the article concludes, and with which I cordially agree: "Closing we would say to the farmer who is in debt: work harder, farm better, live economically, borrow as little possible, and, if possible, don't borrow at all." And let me add, when you do borrow, do so where you have the best chance of repaying, and then keep up to your engagements. Advice which applies to merchants and others equally as well as to farmers.

Had the whole of the article been equally sensible and truthful, you would not have been troubled with this communication from

Your obedient servant,
J. H. MASON,
SECRETARY,
Canada Permanent Building and Savings Society.

ELOPMENT CASE.

The wife of Mr. George Kneeland, residing near the Sixth Ward School House, eloped with a married man named Wilkins, the guilty pair taking the morning train for Burlington, on the Peoria and Oquahaz Railroad. Wilkins has a family living near the city, and we are informed has been hanging about Kneeland's house for several weeks, during which time the arrangements were probably made for the elopement. Latterly she has been unusually affectionate in her behaviour to her husband, thus disarming him of suspicion, if he had any, and on Sunday evening so won upon his love, she succeeded in obtaining $27 from him, all the money he had. Yesterday morning during his absence, she hastily packed the bedding and other goods into three boxes, and had them conveyed to the depot, to be forwarded to Burlington by the freight train, herself and affinity taking the passenger train. Previous to leaving, she took all Mr. Kneeland's clothing and presented it to Wilkins, who dressed himself in a portion of it, and carpet-bagged the rest.—After discovering the flight of his wife and the robbery of the goods, Mr. Kneeland, with the aid of Officer Crouse, succeeded in stopping the boxes at the depot, and obtaining possession of the same by writ of replevin. What course he will take regarding the runaways is not known. This is the second elopment case in Peoria within the past two weeks which has been reported in our columns.

ROMANTIC INCIDENT.

Some sixteen years since a young gentleman in New York city courted and won to pay his addresses to [illegible] DONNELLY of the daughter of an obstinate Pearl Street merchant, who was opposed to the young man's visiting his daughter. He persisted in his endeavors to see the lady, and at last he was forbidden to enter the old man's house.

Still, the lovers contrived to meet, occasionally, afterwards—and at the expiration of six months, matters having been previously so arranged, the girl consented to marry the youth. He did not ask the fortune, for he was in employment, at a handsome salary, as principal book-keeper in an extensive jobbing house, and his pecuniary prospects were magnificent. But the parents were obdurate, and he was driven from the house.

At the end of a year and a half they agreed to be married, and all the requisite arrangements were made, the evening was fixed upon, even the chaise was engaged—but on the morning of the day proposed secretly for the nuptials, the whole plan was discovered, and the match broke off peremptorily by the absolute authority of the parents.

Time passed on; the daughter was sent on a distant part of the country for a while. The young man was disappointed and disheartened, and left New York for the West, where he remained two years. Meantime a person to suit the views of the parents turned up—a man of considerable means, but old enough to be the girl's father—and a match was arranged, after a long persuasion, between Donnelly and this man, and she wedded him at last.

Three years subsequently the young man found himself in New England, where he settled and took a wife also, and some dozen years passed away, with their thousand and one changes of place, of circumstance and of fortune. From the time of their separation the original lovers had never met.

The young man became the father of three little ones, and then lost two of them which bereavement was soon after followed by the death of his wife. Time flew by—he had been fortunate in business, and resided a few miles out of Boston, in a cottage surrounded by the comforts of life, and in the enjoyment of the society of his dear little daughter.

One day he was returning home in the afternoon, and upon entering the cars found them to be full. He sought a seat, and found one occupied by a lady about thirty years of age, beside whom he sat down, and the cars moved out of the depot. As they entered into the light he suddenly turned to the lady and exclaimed,—"Madame Emma! Is this you?"

He didn't know exactly what he said, but it was a fact that he was on the seat with the girl whom he had really loved, and whom he had never seen since the cruel separation.

A mutual explanation quickly succeeded. Our widowed friend ascertained that his former intended was now on her way to the North, upon a visit. That she had been married nearly eleven years, had but one child living, and her husband had been dead over two years.

He pointed out his pretty cottage, as the cars went on—but did not leave the tram. He proceeded forward, renewed his acquaintance, found the lady her own mistress, proposed to her again—and we need the fact with no ordinary degree of pleasure, that within three weeks the lovers were actually united in marriage in the city of Boston.

ECONOMY IN A FAMILY.

There is nothing which goes so far towards placing young people beyond the reach of poverty as economy in the management of house-hold affairs. It matters not whether a man furnishes little or much for his family, if there is a continual leakage in his kitchen or parlor; it runs away, he knows not how, and that demon, Waste cries More! like the horse-leech's daughter, until he that provides has no more to give. It is the husband's duty to bring into the house; and it is the duty of the wife to see that none goes wrongfully out of it. A man gets a wife to look after his affairs, and to assist him in his journey through life; he educates and prepares their children, for a proper situation in life, and not to dissipate his property. The husband's interest should be the wife's care, and her greatest ambition to carry her no further than his welfare or happiness, together with that of her children! This should be her sole aim, and the theatre of her exploits for the benefit of her family, where she may do as much towards making a fortune as he can in the counting-room or the workshop.

It is not the money earned that makes a man wealthy—it is what he saves from his earnings. Self gratification in dress, or indulgence in expensive [illegible] company than his purse can well contain, are equally pernicious. The first adds vanity to extravagance; the second, fastens a doctor's bill to a long butchers account; and the latter brings intemperance—the worst of all evils—in its train.

In Ancient Egypt a custom is said to have prevailed, which certainly appears to us rather a singular one, that the husband, on his marriage vowed honor and obedience to his wife, instead of, as with us, the wife to the husband. It was in reference to the custom, by the way, that the remark was made by a wit, that he had often heard of Egyptian bondage but never knew what it was before.

A man's wealth depends more on his wife than his income. Some women will cause their husbands to become rich on five hundred a year—others can scarcely keep out of jail on five thousand. Saving has made more fortunes than getting.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S SPEECH.

On Friday last the assembled wisdom of the land met at the ancient capital. At 3 p. m. precisely, His Excellency the Governor proceeded, in state, to the Parliamentary buildings, where, after he had commanded the attendance of the members of both Houses, he delivered his Speech. The Speech is couched in simple and unpretending terms, but expresses much. The policy it foreshadows is one that must command itself to the estimation and approval of the well thinking and impartial. It opens with an expression of confidence that the public welfare of the Province will be cared for by the honorable gentlemen. The Governor states that he had taken proper steps for carrying into effect the Acts passed last Session for the organization of the Militia force of the Province, and he declares his purpose of continuing his efforts for the attainment of so laudable an object.

The Reciprocity Treaty next comes in for a share of attention. This Treaty was signed in 1854, and was to continue in force for ten years. The Americans, or, at least, some of them, appear to wish for its abrogation; but as the Treaty is of great importance to the commercial interests of Canada, the Government has taken such steps as will likely secure its continuance. This, however, depends, in a great measure, upon certain influences at work on the other side—the precise force of which it is at present impossible to gauge. One thing, however, we may depend upon, and that is: that the Government will do the best that can be done for the Province under the circumstances.

A number of very important measures are mentioned as likely to engage the attention of Parliament. Among these are a Bankruptcy Bill; a Bill for the Registration of Titles, a Bill amending the Election Laws, a Bill amending the Patent Laws, &c.

Parliament will be called upon to consider the propriety of making certain improvements upon the Canals constructed to obviate the natural impediments in the way of navigation in the Ottawa River, thus accelerating the development of the vast country that it drains.

Arrangements have been made to resume the survey of the route of the proposed Intercolonial Railway, which, from circumstances, has been suspended for a time.

The great North-West country, in whose future we are so deeply interested, has not been neglected. A correspondence has been opened with the Imperial Government with a view to arrive at a precise definition of the geographical boundaries in that direction. We sincerely hope that such action will be taken by our Legislature in the matter as will place it upon a more satisfactory footing than it is at present. When the vast resources of that country become developed, an immense trade will be carried on—which Canadians by judicious management can almost exclusively secure for themselves.

The Governor intimates the speedy removal of the seat of Government from Quebec to Ottawa, in pursuance of Her Majesty's decision. The buildings are now being prepared for use, and if the Government is only able to carry out its intentions, the coming fall will see Ottawa the Capital of the Canadas.

A gratifying feature in the speech is the fact that the income of the past year exceeded the estimates, while the expenditure fell short of what was expected. However, in consequence of the reckless extravagance of the Coalition, there is still large excess of expenditure over income. The present sources of income being inadequate to meet the demands upon the public treasury, such measures will be submitted, as it is confidently expected, will put our finances in a better condition—equalise the outgoing with the income—the only way in which a country can truly be prosperous. The ministers, we think, certainly are entitled to the gratitude and support of the country in this respect, if in no other. Their conduct and efforts in this direction contrast most favorably with the Cartier-Macdonald government, whose one aim and effort it seemed to be to recklessly squander the public money and plunge the country into debt—a debt, alas! under which the Province is now groaning, and the evil effects of which we have long since begun to experience.

We hope that the members will give the Ministry an opportunity to develop the policy which has thus been indicated. If they do, we feel convinced that the present Session of Parliament will be, in its results, one of the most important and most satisfactory to the people ever held in Canada.

PARLIAMENTARY.

Parliament assembled on the 19th instant. Most of the members were present. The Ministry are confident of a respectable working majority. The Opposition—though some of them are as blatant as ever—are rather discouraged. Some extraordinary rumors were afloat at Quebec. It was even hinted that our member—coming to his senses at last—was about to give the ministry a "fair trial." But we are inclined to think that this rumor is not correct; we are afraid that he will remain "joined to his idols." His attachment to them, we fear, is stronger than his attachment to his county or country. We may be wrong in this, and we sincerely hope we are. And if we are, the moment we find it out, we will willingly, readily and candidly confess our "sins," and make the "amende honorable." It is said that Foley is bound to oust the Ministry,—the attempt may end in the ousting of himself. As Parliament proceeds with its business, we will give our readers a synopsis thereof, and thus save them the trouble of reading long columns of dreary debate.

TOWN HALL.

"Town Hall or no new Town!" is the cry of the day; "Which do you go for?" is very hard to please the one's asked, is it not? So we think. For a number of weeks past some cleverly written letters have appeared in our columns, both for and against a new Town Hall. The pros and cons ably set forth the advantages of their respective sides. The pros want a new Town Hall as soon as they can get one; and bring forward figures and calculations to show that the Town would be a gainer in a pecuniary point of view—to say nothing of the host of benefits in other respects. Well, their figures look very well upon paper; but along come the cons., disputing the facts and conclusions of the pros., and while admitting the desirability of a new Town Hall, strongly contend that the financial condition of the Town will not, in any way, warrant such a building at present, or for some time to come. They are not wanting in arguments to prove they are right. Each party, it seems to us, appear rather inclined to hint that the other are selfish in their advocacy. This, however, should not, for a moment, be allowed to have any weight. The merits of the question are not affected by the selfishness or unselfishness of its advocates. Indeed selfishness in this respect is a virtue rather than otherwise, as it stimulates men to take part in commendable objects, which would otherwise receive not the slightest attention from them. That a thing must necessarily be bad because it is supported by an individual who is selfish in his advocacy, is an unwarrantable presumption. We merely make this remark, as we wish the rate-payers of the Town to study the subject in all its bearings and judge of it by its intrinsic merits. The writers on both sides of the questions are, no doubt, sincere in their conclusions,—but these conclusions are totally different. One party look upon a new Town Hall as something absolutely essential to further the interests and increase the prosperity of the Town; the other hold that it would involve the Town into debt, from which it would take long to recover, and which, in the meantime, would lie like an incubus upon its energies. Both cannot be right; neither may be absolutely so. We think it will be conceded by all that a new Town Hall would greatly improve the appearance of Peterborough, and, moreover, be of great convenience and benefit in many respects. But it is to be considered whether the advantages of having one would predominate over the disadvantages of not having one—in view of the large sum of money that would necessarily have to be spent in the construction of such a building as would give satisfaction. For it cannot be denied that the undertaking involves considerable expenditure. It is for the ratepayers of the Town to say whether or not they are willing to tax themselves at present for such an object—or wait for a more convenient season. We say at present; for we look upon it as a fixed fact that the Hall must be erected sometime. The plan is already prepared, and we have been given to understand that it was upon the faith of its speedy erection that the Town Lessees built those fine stores now known as the Market Block.

We believe that a majority of the present Council are in favor of the Hall; but the matter does not absolutely lie in their hands. Even if a By-law to erect such a building were to pass in the Council, it would have to be submitted to the people to be approved of by them before it could take effect. This, we think, a wise provision. It gives the people a check upon those who profess to be the people's servants, but who sometimes are apt to prove themselves rather unsatisfactory and headstrong ones. The people, therefore, should prepare for action so that it may not take them unawares.

It will do no harm to investigate the matter more fully than they have done. They should talk it over with one another, and with those in whose honesty of purpose and superior judgment and knowledge they have confidence. We wish to offer no opinion as to what course they should pursue. No principle is involved; it is a mere matter of £ s. d. Each man must read, think, and come to his own conclusions. In view of this a re-perusal of the several letters already referred to, will do no harm. Let both sides be read and compared.

EUROPE.

The troubles that have been for some time gathering in Europe seem to be now about coming to a head. Blood has been shed. It seems that the Germans determined to abrogate the Treaty of 1852, by which the Duchies—now the cause of dissension—were guaranteed to Denmark, crossed the Eider and attacked the Danes at Missunde. At first the Germans appear to have been successful in the outset; but the Danes rallying, and fired with the spirit of a brave patriotic people, finally drove the invaders with some loss. On the next day the Austrians made another attack, but without any decisive result.

It is impossible to tell what complications or results this may lead to. It looks as if it would involve the whole of Europe in one great war, and make the plains of Europe one vast battle field. England is in honor bound to take the side of Denmark. The English Cabinet, indeed—with, perhaps, the exception of Lord Russell and Mr. Gladstone—are for giving aid at once. The Queen's speech—which, no doubt, was inspired by Lord Palmerston—looks warlike. And we think we have no reason to fear that while he is at the head of affairs but that England will do its duty.

Sweden and Norway are arming on behalf of their neighbor. The large number of vessels that United Scandinavia will thus have at command, will be able to inflict immense injury upon the German commercial interests, both in the capture and destruction of shipping and the blockade of seaport towns. Nor will, it is hardly likely, France and Russia remain idle. They are in honor bound, as well as England, to see the conditions of the Treaty they guaranteed, observed. Napoleon, perhaps, would not be sorry to get a chance of carrying out his dreams of conquest on the Rhine. These provinces he looks upon as part and parcel of France, and he would hardly consider it robbery to take and hold them. Neither has Austria a pleasant future before it. Hungary will, no doubt, take the opportunity of gaining that independance which would have been hers but for the treachery of the traitor Goergey. Emanuel and Garibaldi may perhaps seize the chance of wresting from her Venetia, and making a united Italy a fixed fact.

AMERICAN NEWS.

Affairs seem, on the whole, to be very quiet on the other side just now. It is reported that the Confederates are building an ironclad agency at Macon, Ga. General Sherman's troops have destroyed the bridges on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, thus severing connection between Cairo and Mobile. Federals papers report an engagement at Enterprise, Miss. The Confederates seem to have no hope of repelling Gen. Sherman's advance. Gen. Sherman passed through Jackson, Miss., in two columns, each over fourteen miles long, and drove the enemy with such precipitancy as to compel him to to leave his pontoon bridge on which he crossed to the other side of Pearl river. Refugees report that great fear is entertained for the safety of Mobile, where there is a garrison of fifteen thousand men. The Confederate General Price has returned to Mexico on a continuous furlough, which would indicate that he has abandoned the confederate cause. The Confederate Colonel Ferguson's command was surprised in the County of Wayne, W. V., and sixty prisoners taken, four of whom were commissioned officers. Ferguson is the same person who recently captured Gen. Sexamon on the Ohio river. The report states that 500 Federal prisoners were released by the soldiers.

LAKEFIELD BIBLE SOCIETY.

On Tuesday evening, February 16th, according to public notice a meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church Lakefield, on behalf of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The meeting was addressed by the Reverend Messrs Roger, Gilmour, Koyle and Mr. Johnston, the agent of the Bible Society in Upper Canada. All the addresses were excellent, but on account of the severe weather there were few in attendance. At the close of the meeting the Agent formed the North of Douro and the North of Smith into a Branch Society, denominated the Lakefield Bible Society. The following gentlemen were elected office bearers for the ensuing year;

Lieutenant Colonel Strickland, President; Revs. Vincent Clementi and E. L. Koyle, Vice Presidents; Mr. John Sherin, Treasurer; Mr. C. Nicholls, Secretary. Committee: Messrs. Robert Knox, Thos. Casement, Edward Beatty, Hugh Davidson, Samuel McGibbon, Isaac Garbutt, Samuel Sherin, Alexander Preston.—Com.

LECTURE.

The Rev. Mr. Beck will lecture this evening in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance—his subject being, "The Early History of the Natives of the Continent of North and South America." This is the fourth lecture of the course, and we certainly hope that it will be better attended than its predecessors. It does not speak much for the Town to see so small audiences on such occasions. Any "darkey" show has a crowded house; but a lecturer, however, able and competent — has generally to speak to beggarly house of empty benches. Let there be a turn out to-night.

Loss of the "Bohemian."

Another Canadian Steamer has been lost! The Bohemian, it seems, struck on a rock just outside the harbor about 8½ o'clock on Monday evening last. She soon sank, in about [illegible] of water, while the Captain was making for the shore. 298 persons were safely landed, leaving 19 yet to be accounted for. Full particulars have not arrived. Most of the mails will, we believe, be saved.

GREENWOOD.

The notorious criminal Greenwood, who was to have been executed on Tuesday last, cheated justice of its due, by hanging himself in his cell, on the Monday evening previous. He may crtainly be looked upon as one of the most hardened criminals, that this country has ever seen.

THE SEVERN CASE.

Judgment has been given in the Severn case, some of the particulars of which we gave in our last. It was against Mrs. Severn. The Chancellor considered the charge preferred against her as proved.

We call the attention of teachers to the advertisement in another column, with regard to the meeting on Saturday next. We think they will study their own interests to attend. Our reasons for thinking so, we have again and again stated—so we will not repeat them. Apart from any other consideration—the principle of "self preservation" ought to impel them to take some interest in meetings and associations, that materially effect themselves. It is a fact, that the status and salaries of teachers generally, are on the retrograde, rather than the advance.—This, we fear can, in a great measure, be traced to the apathy of teachers themselves—the non interest they take in one another—and the consequent disunion that prevails among the members of the profession. A little more worldly wisdom, as a general thing, would not hurt our teachers. We speak disinterestedly—and for the good of a laborious, and as a rule—poorly paid profession.

Mr. Mason's Letter.—On the first page is a leter from W. Mason, Esq., the Secretary of the Permanent Canada Building Society, in answer to some stricture of ours, which appeared in a late issue. As we believe in fair play, and wish our readers to hear both sides of a question, to judge for themselves, we invite a careful perusal of Mr. Masons letter. They will find it not uninteresting, even if they do not agree with all the conclusions arrived at.

Fifty Cent Loaves of Bread.—The Richmond Dispatch publishes the following: Loaf bread is becoming small and beautifully less, if we are to judge of their size by the one which a blacksmith named John Dean purchased for fifty cents, and, on a small wager, ate at two mouthfuls. This feat occured at a smith's shop at the Navy Department, and is vouched for by several eyewitness.

Mr. Alex McKenzie, the much respected member for Lambton, has recently been suffering from a severe attack of illness, which, at one time, assumed a threatening aspect. But it is gratifying to announce that Mr. Mackenzie is now in a fair way to be restored to health again, and the county which he represents in Parliament will thereby be permitted to enjoy the services of their very able and faithful representative.

There are some of our friends from whom we have not yet heard; "nuff ced."

Among other feats which he performed was that of leaping over three obstacles nearly two feet high, placed twenty feet from each other.

....The depreciation of the U. S. National Bank notes has been much commented on in financial circles. It is attributed to the fact that these notes do not express on their face that the United States promises to pay, and also to the apprehension, generally entertained, that as they increase in quantity they will, on account of their inferiority, take the place of the Treasury notes.

....The trial of Bishop Colenso has been concluded at Cape Town, Africa. The metropolitan pronounced judgment depriving the Bishop of his See, unless he makes a full retraction of his errors on or before the 4th of March next. A report of the trial has been published, which fills over 400 pages, 8vo. Dr. Bleek, a socinian, appeared for Bishop Colenso, and at the close of the proceedings, handed in a protest, and gave notice of appeal. On the latter point the metropolitan stated that he could recognise no appeal except to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

General Lee on the War.—A gentleman who has just arrived in Columbia, says the South Carolinian, from Richmond, brings the intelligence that General Lee, in conversation with a bevy of friends recently, made the remark that, with twenty thousand additional men in his army, and forty thousand additional troops in the army of General Johnston, we could whip all the Yankee tribes that may be brought against us. He further observed that, if the contest was prolonged until September next, and we should meet with no grave disasters (which General Lee did not anticipate) the greatest crisis of the war would be successfully passed.

Alleged Warlike Preparations.—The Army and Navy Gazette, in allusion to the startling announcement of preparations for war which appeared in two of its daily contemporaries, says that, up to the present moment, the principal work of the War Office has been to work up its ordinary estimates for Parliament, with an especial view to combine economy with efficiency, while the Horse Guards is its usual placed condition.

Spring Assizes.—The following are the appointments for the Midland District.—Chief Justice Richards will preside.

Belleville	Monday	14th March.
Whitby	Wednesday	23rd March.
Cobourg	Tuesday	29th March.
Peterboro	Tuesday	12th April.
Lindsay	Tuesday	19th April.
Picton	Wednesday	4th May.

Queen's College, Kingston.—An indignation Meeting was held last night by the graduates and students of Queen's College, on account of the recent dismissal of Prof. Weir from the Chair. Dr. R. W. Dodwell was in the chair, and Mr. Samuel Hays acted as secretary. A committee of five gentlemen was appointed to draft a memorial to the Provincial Government, praying their influence with the Presbyterian Body, expressing their dissatisfaction with the act in question and harsh treatment. A vote was also passed to the same effect. The meeting was to have been held in the College, but admittance could not be had; so it took place in Mr. Moffatt's schoolroom.

Then and Now.—The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. "Commercial" (Rep.) indulges in the following comparisons: "It is estimated that the cost per man of the army is nearly if not quite $1,200 per annum. In 1809, 1810, and 1811, the annual expense per man was $383 60; and in 1820, $336 56 per man. In 1860, the total expense of the army was $2,566,000; in 1810, it was $2,294,000; in 1830 it was $2,630,000; in 1836 it was $4,767,000; in 1840 it was $7,695,000; in 1850 it was $9,687,000; and in 1861 it will be very near if not quite $1,000,000,000."

Guelph and Owen Sound Railway.—The following resolution was unanimously passed at a recent meeting of the Grey County Council:—"Moved by Mr. Ryan, seconded by Mr. Edge, that a special committee be appointed to draft a memorial to both branches of the Legislature in favor of passing an Act, granting a charter for the construction of a line of railroad from Guelph to Fergus, to be continued to Arthur, Mount Forest, Durham and Owen Sound."—Carried.

Found Dead.—A man named James Shea, a cooper by trade, was found dead in his bed yesterday morning. He lived in the western part of the town, and we understand that he had been drinking freely, and it is supposed that he died from the effects of liquor and exposure to cold. An inquest is now being held on the body by coroner Dr. Mahahon.—Dundas Banner.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune declares that he is enable to state, upon the very highest authority, that Gen. Grant has within a few days formally, peremptorily, and in the most decisive terms rejected Democratic politicians to secure his nomination for the Presidency by their National Convention.

A Cheap and Pretty Experiment.—Take a piece of silver, say a 25 cent piece, go to any Patent Medicine Dealer, get a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, and cure your cough, hoarseness, sore throat, and cold in one day.

Mr. Sandford Fleming commences his survey of the Intercolonial Railway forthwith, over the snow, which, it is said, will be a help and not a hindrance in some parts of the work.

Ottawa City has been separated from the County for registration purpose. Edward Sherwood remains City Registrar; Alexander Burrit is appointed County Registrar.

Those wishing "Godey's Lady's Book" at our terms, must send in their names at once. We will not undertake to continue the same terms after the present month.

The Niagara Ship Canal Bill.—The action of the Assembly on the Niagara Ship Canal Bill, day before yesterday, was short and simple. It is reported in the proceedings as follows:

Mr. Healy called up his motion to strike out the enacting clause of the above bill.

Mr. H. W. Leonard resumed the floor, and moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed until the first of May next. [Carried.]

Mr. Gleason moved a reconsideration and that that motion lie on the table. [Lost,] and the motion to reconsider we also lost. The bill therefore goes over the session.

Blanketing Horses.—Most persons who have the care of horses in winter, make a serious mistake in throwing a blanket on the animal as soon as he is stopped after becoming heated by hard labor or long traveling. The vapor that steams up from the sides of the horse condenses and wets the blanket, and as he continues to cool, the cold and wet covering chills, instead of warming him. The better plan is to allow the horse to stand uncovered until cooled down to about the ordinary temperature, which, of course, will depend on and must be regulated by circumstances, and then throw on a dry blanket.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to see that you are interesting yourself in the resuscitation of the "Teachers' Association" in this county. You deserve the teachers' thanks for your manifest desire to elevate their position in this section of the Province. I ardently hope that your remarks may have the effect desired, viz.: a good attendance of the entire County.

These associations are well attended and sustained by the teachers in other counties, and, also, well received by the communities where they are held. Why not here? Shall it be said that the teachers in the County of Peterborough are not as much interested in the work in which they are engaged, as the teachers of other counties? Surely not.

These gatherings are calculated to do good in many respects. They enlarge the circle of the teachers' acquaintance—affording opportunity for a more general interchange of opinion, mutually advantageous—establishing concert of action—and giving new impulse to improvement. Greater uniformity in the discipline, classification and general management of schools, is thereby secured. Increased zeal and unity of purpose, coupled with a better direct and more vigorous intellectual action, is the result. The benefit flows out, as well to those who are thoroughly imbued with the spirit of their profession, as to those who have but an imperfect appreciation of its responsibilities; and it is to be regretted that there are too many who do not appreciate the responsibilities devolving upon them in connection with the profession which they have chosen.

It has been observed that all the labor at these meetings has fallen upon some half dozen of the most prominent teachers. This is wrong. It is not just; it is not best. Every teacher should feel that he may contribute something to the general interest. No teacher worthy of the name can be so barren of experience as not to be able to state some advantages gained, or some difficulty overcome, and the means by which it was accomplished; and this is what every teacher has a right to know; no one should be so indifferent, or so illiberal, as to withhold it. All those engaged in teaching should feel the obligation resting upon them individually, to contribute something out of their own mind or experience for the common benefit.

In conclusion, I hope that Saturday, the 27th inst., will witness the gathering of at least a majority of the teachers of the county—say 40. But why not all be there? Let us see.

Yours respectfully,
W. J. S.

Lakefield, Feb. 16th, 1864.

A Good Deed.—All men should be proud of noble deeds and noble natures, and it is with pride we this day call the attention of [illegible] readers to the receipt of a man who has done much to alleviate the sufferings of his fellow men. That man is the Rev. R. H. Downs, the originator of "Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir." This Elixir, which is composed of the vegetable extracts and Balsams, is a sure cure for coughs and colds.

To cure Toothache.—Use Henry's Vermont Liniment. Saturate a bit of cotton and put it in the cavity of the decayed tooth: If the cotton will not remain, take a teaspoonful of the Liniment in a little hot water, as warm as you can bear it in your mouth and hold it against the tooth as long as possible. Two or three drops, dropped in the tooth, will give relief. The first application may not always stop the pain, but repeated trials will certainly bring about the desired end. See advertisement in another column.

Reported Murder of Dr. Livingstone.

The South African Mail says:—From the interior of Africa we have startling news, the most important item of which, however, we trust, is untrue. Her Majesty's steamer Ariel, which arrived this week from the Mozambique coast, announces a fatal [illegible] the Governor of Senna to the Governor of Quillimane, stating that Dr. Livingstone had been murdered by the natives on Lake Nyassa. A subsequent report prevailed, however, to the effect that he had not been killed but badly wounded. It is certain that, accompanied with only five Makololo, he had gone up from the Murchison-falls to Lake Nyassa; but, judging from the previous mis-statements from the same quarter, we are not disposed to give any credit to the tragic news now communicated. By the same vessel an interesting letter has been received by Sir Thomas Maclear from the Doctor, written in July last, immediately after receiving tidings of the recall of his expedition. He wrote then, though somewhat disappointed, in his usual hopeful and courageous tone. "Our recall," he says, "did not take me any way by surprise, for the Portugese slave-ministers of Tete and Quillimane had so completely aided a drought of one season that the population of this Shiresvalley, among whom we had good prospects of success, is almost destroyed. They finished the people and our work together; and had I believed that the scourge had been half so sweeping as I now find it to be, I should not have come up. I am, of course, sorry to see the failure of my hopes, though through no fault of my own, and I deeply regret ever giving the slightest credence to the protestations of desire on the part of Portugese statesmen for the civilisation of Africa. The most bitter point of all is to see this line of coast from Cape Delgado to Delagoa Bay left to those who were the first to begin the slave trade, and are determined to be the last to abandon it. It is, however, very pleasant to see a new bishop and his band of labourers coming in as we retire." The prospects of the mission, we are happy to say, seem more favorable than they had been for some months before. The bishop was about to organize it in Morumbala, an elevated and healthy site at the confluence of the Shire; and though two of the old hands, Mr. Proctor and Mr. Rowley, have been compelled from ill health to retire the newly-arrived missionaries are as energetic and confident of success as ever. Mr. Proctor is to enter upon mission work at Natal, in Panda's country, and Mr. Rowley returns to England. By this vessel we are also glad to [illegible] home book at the Cape Dr. Meller, of Her Majesty's steamer Pioneer, who was reported from the Mozambique to have been dead nearly a year ago.

A Picture of Charleston Under Fire.

A correspondent of the Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist, writing from Charleston, gives the following picture of that city under the bombardment:

The limited destruction of property by the protracted rain of shells is as wonderful as the small loss of life. I walked through the streets where the effect of the shells is most apparent. Here a cornice is knocked off, there is a small round hole through the side of a building, and at remote intervals the earth is torn up where a shell exploded, and looks like the work of a porker in search of some hidden treasure. Vendors of the staples of the market sit serenely by their little stores, unmindful of the pyrotechnic salutations of their Yankee deliverers. I bought delicious apples at one fourth the price charged two hundred miles away in the interior.

In reply to a question if she were not afraid one of those old women replied: "Lor Mass, we no feered now—we's used to 'em. Dey make big noise, and fro trash all about—dat's all—de good Lord protects us." Thus is the reliant trust of these people exemplified even in the spirit of the simple African. I confess that I could not feel thus indifferent to those missiles of destruction, and as they came screeching across the bay, I felt an instinctive inclination to change my base of observation. Extending my ramble to other portions of the city, the track of shells were here and there discernable, but they have not affected a tithe of the injury sustained by the great fire of two years ago, whose blackened outline stretches across what was once the heart of the city. In only two or three instances have fires been occasioned by them, and then the loss was trifling. In localities most exposed to the shells the old business is suspended.

Here and there a pedestrain moves hurriedly along, and the rattle of a cart or dray is heard for a whole square. The blinds are now closed, vases of rare exotics droop and wither on the lonely window still, because there is no tender hand to nourish them. The walk glistens with fragments of glass, rattled rather by the concussion of exploding shells, and little tufts of bright green grass are springing up along the pave, once vocal with the myriad tongues of busy trade. If this be food for exultation to the malevolent foe, he is welcome to the tender morsel. I do not mean to say that any part of the city is abandoned. Here and there stores are opened, mechanic-shops are active, and labour incident to the public defence is pushed forward vigorously, even in the most exposed districts. Still many branches of ordinary business, and most of the residences are removed, because it would be foolhardy for those not impelled by social duty to remain.

The Mills House and Charleston Hotel, those princely abodes of comfort and good cheer, are closed; the Pavilion still invites the sojourner to its hospital roof; most of the habitues of Hayne and parts of Meeting and King Streets are abandoned, the merchants desk for the camp, or transferred their wares to points secure from Yankee guns. That part of the city to which the cowardly vengeance of the foe has not penetrated is a "map of busy life." The newspapers, post-office, banks, and many business houses are in successful operation, and the streets present a scene of animation not at all suggestive of a state of seige.

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

Returning thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, beg to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS
OF ALL SIZES,

GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

DRY AND GREEN LAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,
Brass Castings of all kinds,
WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,
ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,
For Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies, of various designs.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimension, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forge in Glasgow, at better prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 2 to 5 feet in diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, when a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages presented by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

They invite particular attention to the

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on the well-known No. 5 Scotch Canadian; the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Birtle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Ploughs yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Scarifiers and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Hackling Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15 or 16 feet long, will be taken on account.

THE SELF-EMPTYING
WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!
AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

GREAT SALE!

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,
Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 347 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Improved Lands For Sale.

CONSISTING of Lot No. 14, in the 9th Concession of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, 200 acres, with about 130 acres cleared, with a good frame house and large wood shed attached to it, beside the door of which is an excellent well, pump, &c. Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 16 feet posts, and all under-housed with stalls to tie up 36 head of Cattle and 3 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors; close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

ALSO.—The East half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 40 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

☞ Title unexceptionable.

THE SUPERFLUOUS MAN.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

It has been ascertained by inspection of the registers of many countries, that the uniform proportion of male to female births is 21 to 20; accordingly, in respect to marriage, every twenty-first man is rationally superfluous.]

I long have been patched to guess,
And so I have frequently said,
What the reason could really be
That I never have happened to wed.
But now, by the Fates, I know
I am doubly superfluous;
Therefore unanimously resigned—
And I'm a superfluous man!

These clever statistical chaps
Deduct from the original sum
Of women and men in the world,
In Twenty to Twenty and One;
And hence in the pairing, you see,
Since pairing and wedding began,
For every existential score
They've got a superfluous man!

By equation and treation they go,
Add, multiply, rub to their list,
For sum of the number, of course,
One full of a conjugal mate;
But while they are yielding in scores
To nature's indurable plan,
There's never a woman for me—
For I'm a superfluous man!

It isn't that I am a churl
To solitude ever inclined;
It isn't that I'm void of flesh
In search of treasures or mind;
Then what is the reason, you ask,
I am still with the bachelor—clan,
I merely was numbered design—
And am a superfluous man!

It isn't that I am in want
Of personal charms or grace,
For many a man with a wife
Is uglier far in the face;
Indeed among elegant men
I fancy myself in the van;
But what is the value of that,
When I am a superfluous man?

Although I am fond of the girls,
For aught I could ever discern
The tender emotion I feel
Is one that they never return.
'Tis idle to quarrel with fate,
For sovereign as hard as I can,
They've mated already, you know
And I'm a superfluous man!

No wonder I grumble at times,
With women so pretty and plenty,
To know that I never was born
To figure as one of the twenty;
But yet, when the average lot
With critical vision I scan,
I think it may be for the best
That I'm a superfluous man!

VALUE OF LANDS IN ENGLAND.

Large estates have changed hands of late, we are told, at prices which will yield an street of not more than two per cent, while money was four or five per cent, at call. Land is, in fact, a luxury—a fancy article. The buyer purchases not land alone, but social position. He does not buy for profit. He takes his place among the gentry, drives into petty session every market day, is impannelled on the grand jury at the assizes, takes his wife and daughters to the country balls and the archery fetes, dines with the Duke who nominates the county member, and sends the largest pine-apples and the best green-house plants to the county horticultural show. The country gentry at first look askance. But if the new owner of Norman's Nest or Fairshaw House is rich and hospitable, if he subscribes liberally to the hunt, and sends his son to Eton and Christchurch, the county families open way; and the second and third generation, at least, have little reason to complain.—There is nothing in the "Arabian Nights" more surprising than the value of the land in the great centres of commerce. The little table area at the south-east corner of St. Paul's, which gives the foreigner the best coup d'œil of our architectural master-piece is worth £60,000. The value of land around the Bank and the Royal Exchange is still greater. When new Oxford street was made the land cost £37,000 an acre. In the improvement of the Charlotte street the land was purchased at £67,000 an acre. When the new throughfare was driven through Coventry street and Long Acre, the land cost £119,000 an acre. Mr. Cowper the First Commissioner of Works, has carried an act for the construction of a new street from Blackfriars' to the Mansion House. Having brought in a bill which gave the street a width of 70 feet he proposed to increase it to 80 feet. The street is a very short one, but it was found that the additional 10 feet would add £100,000 to the expense, so the right hon. gentleman gave up the proposed extension. In some of the great provincial towns prices are still higher. In Manchester, land has been sold by the square yard and as high as £200,000 an acre has been given for some in the best part of the town. At Liverpool, land has been sold at £30 per square yard, or nearly at the rate of £150,000 per acre. In some situations more than this has been given; in other parts of the town the price is £100,000 per acre. In Birmingham, the land held by the London and North-Western Railway was sold at about £60,000 an acre. In Belfast, Glasgow, Sheffield, Leeds, etc., the same causes in operation. The natural increase of wealth and population tends to increase the value of land, especially in towns. The great London hospitals and schools enjoy princely revenue, not because their founders left a few hundred pounds in money, but because they bequeathed land then of little value but now covered with house property.

WHISPERING and WHISPERERS.

Whispering is a coward's weapon; it is a safe method of assassination; it is a safe way of killing a friend or foe without taking the risk of responsibility. It is like the fabulous air-gun that carries a deadly bullet without report or noise. Whisperers are the worst kind of poisoners. They poison not the body, but the soul and heart. They scatter their words like impalpable dust of deadly poison, and all who inhale it are filled with its mischief and malignancy.

Give us an open-faced enemy! We can bear; like the most wounding blows are not so provoking as the sly stabs of mean natures. You may parry the strokes of an honorable antagonist, or interpose some shield. But who can defend himself against a look, a wink, a shrug, a stealthy smile, a soft word, a whisper? They elude you! They dance like motes in the air, or fill it with invisible influences. The husband finds himself suspected of his wife—the wife of her husband. The dark suspicions that seem to overshadow her soul as if an evil spirit was there, her penitent down a malignant shadow. The brother and sister find a strict confidence sinking away, nay know exactly why or how it fails. Cheating friends and years long companionship fall from mutual faith, grow watchful, interspersed with mistrustfulness. All love, through all its life and members, feels the heat of the subtle poison with strange pain and immeasurable hugeness. God confound nimble-tongued whisperers.

MARION HARLAND,

Authoress of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Miriam," "Moss Side," and "Nemesis,"

Who will furnish Stories for the Lady's Book for 1864. This alone will place the Lady's Book in a literary point of view fare ahead of any other Magazine. Our other favourite writers will all continue to furnish articles throughout the year.

The best Lady's Magazine in the world and the Cheapest.

THE LITERATURE

Is of that kind that can be read aloud in the family circle, and the clergy in immense numbers are subscribers for the Book.

THE MUSIC

Is all original, and would cost 25 cents, (the price of the Book) in the music stores; but most of it is copyrighted, and cannot be obtained except in Godey.

OUR STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

All efforts to rival us in this have ceased, and we now stand alone in this department, giving as we do many more and infinitely better engravings than are published in any other work. Godey's immense double sheet Fashion-Plates, containing from five to seven full length colored Fashions on each plate—other Magazines give only two—are far ahead of any Fashions in Europe or America. The publication of these Plates cost $10,000 more than the Fashion Plates of the old style, and nothing but our wonderfully large circulation enables us to give them. Other Magazines cannot afford it. We never spare money when the public can be benefited.

These Fashions may be relied on. Dresses may be made after them, and the wearer will not subject herself to ridicule, as she would be if she visited the large cities dressed after the style of the plates in some of our so-called Fashion Magazines.

OUR WOOD ENGRAVINGS,

Of which we give twice or three times as many as any other Magazine, are often mistaken for steel; they are so far superior to any others.

IMITATIONS.

Beware of them. Remember that the Lady's Book is the original publication and the cheapest. If you take Godey, you want no other Magazine. Everything that is useful or ornamental in a house will be found in Godey.

DRAWING LESSONS.

No other Magazine gives them, and we have given enough to fill several large volumes.

OUR RECEIPTS

Are such as can be found nowhere else. Cooking in all its varieties—Confectionary—the Nursery—the Toilet—the Laundry—the Kitchen Receipts upon all subjects are to be found in the pages of the Lady's book. We originally started this department, and have peculiar facilities for making it most perfect. This department alone is worth the price of the book.

LADIES' WORK TABLE.

This department comprises engravings and descriptions of every article that a lady wears.

MODEL COTTAGES.

No other Magazine has this department.

Terms to Subscribers in the British Provinces:

One copy one year, $3; two copies one year, $5; three copies one year, $7.

Five copies one year, and an extra copy to the person sending the club, making six copies for $15.50.

Special Clubbing with other Magazines.

Godey's Lady's Book and Arthur's Magazine, one year, $4.

Godey and Harper, one year, $5.

Godey, Harper, and Arthur, one year, $7.

At these prices subscribers in the Provinces will have only the British postage to pay.

Treasury notes and notes of all solvent banks taken at par.

Be careful and pay the postage on your letter.

PROSPECTUS
OF THE Canada Farmer
A NEW FORTNIGHTLY JOURNAL,
OF
Agriculture, Horticulture
AND
RURAL AFFAIRS.

THE Subscriber has determined to make the experiment whether a first-class Agricultural Journal can be sustained in Canada. He proposes to issue early in January, 1864, the first number of The Canada Farmer, and to continue the publication on the 1st and 15th days of each month. Each number will contain sixteen pages quarto of closely printed matter. It will be printed on fine paper, from an entirely new font of type. The services of an able agricultural writer as Editor-in-Chief have been secured, and he will be assisted by an efficient staff of writers, reporters and correspondents. First-class artists and engravers have also been retained to prepare illustrations for the paper. No exertion or expenditure will be spared to render the new Journal a worthy representative and advocate of the Agricultural interests of Canada.

In the conduct of The Canada Farmer, the following ends will be zealously labored for:—

1.—To arouse public attention, by frank and temperate discussion, to all questions scientific, commercial, legislative or otherwise, specially affecting the farming interest.

2.—To stimulate the Agriculturists of our country to adopt an improved system of husbandry, by blending the lessons of modern science with the practical experience of the Canadian Farmer.

3.—To bring under the attention of our Farmers all improvements at home or abroad, worthy of adoption, affecting the management of Field Crops—the Barn-yard—the Stables—the Dairy—the Orchard—the Poultry Yard—the Apiary—the Kitchen Garden—and the Flower Garden; and to excite an interest in the progress of Rural Architecture and Landscape Gardening, and in all that concerns the Domestic Economy of the Farm-house.

4.—To mark and report all improvements in Agricultural Machinery—foster new inventions—and promote the adoption of all labour-saving machines in the work of the farm and garden.

5.—To keep prominently under attention all that specially concerns the Dairy-farmer and the Grazier; the best breeds of cattle—the best systems of feeding—the most approved processes of cheese and butter making—the best mode of packing—and the best markets to sell in.

6.—To keep prominently in view whatever is specially interesting to the Sheep-raiser and Wool-grower—the breeds best adapted to our climate—the best systems of winter and summer management—and the varying prospects of the wool market.

7.—To afford the Farmers of Canada an ever-open medium for addressing their brother Agriculturists throughout the Province, suggesting matters of common interest and advantage, and eliciting information or advice on practical questions of difficulty or doubt.

8.—To report concisely the Proceedings at Agricultural Shows, Fairs and Sales through out the Province—note the condition and progress of the Herds and Flocks of prominent Stock-breeders; record the Importation of Thoroughbred Stock from abroad, and publish Engravings of First Class Prize Animals.

9.—To watch and report carefully and promptly the actual state and probable prospects of the Produce Markets at home and abroad; and specially promote all movements designed to secure the best prices in the best markets for Canadian Farm Produce.

10.—To afford the Farmers of Canada a common medium where all who have for sale Live Stock, or Seed Grain, or Land, or who may wish to buy such, can make his desires known directly to the whole farming population of Canada.

☞ The Canada Farmer will be published for ONE DOLLAR per annum, POSTAGE FREE payable strictly in advance.

CLUBS

Will be furnished at the following rates:—

TEN COPIES for.....TEN DOLLARS.
FIFTY COPIES for.....THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS.
ONE HUNDRED for.....SIXTY DOLLARS.

Communications on Agricultural subjects are invited, addressed to "The Editor of the Canada Farmer," and all orders for the paper will be sent to

GEORGE BROWN,
Proprietor and Publisher.

☞ As FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES of the first number will be printed and circulated, an unequalled opportunity for Advertisers will be presented. The charge will be twenty cents per line.

MECHANICS! INVENTORS!!

MANUFACTURERS,
Engineers, Agriculturists, Chemists,
AND
ALL CLASSES OF READERS,
Ought, by all means, to take the
SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,
The most Valuable Journal of its class now published.

Volume X., New Series,

Commences on the 1st January next; therefore NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

MECHANICS will find in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN valuable information concerning their various trades, and details of all the latest and best improvements in Machinery, Tools, and Progress; together with such useful knowledge as will tend to dignify their occupations and lighten their labors.

Inventors will find in the Scientific American all necessary instruction how to secure Letters-Patent for their inventions; also excellent illustrations and descriptions of all the principal inventions recently made in this country and Europe; likewise an official list of the claims of all Patents granted weekly at Washington, with numerous explanatory notes; also, discussions of questions concerning the Patent Laws of the United States, reports of trials in court, with legal opinions, etc.

Manufacturers will find in the Scientific American valuable descriptions of all the best inventions connected with Steam, Railroad, Marine, and Mechanical; together with a faithful record of the progress science in all these departments, both at home and abroad.

Chemists will find in the Scientific American data is of recent discoveries made in Chemistry and articles on the application of that science to all the useful arts.

Agriculturists will find in the Scientific American engravings and descriptions of all the best and most improved Farm Implements; also, original or well-selected articles on matters relating to general Agriculture; great care being taken to furnish Farmers, regularly, with such information as will be valuable in the Field as well as in the Household.

All Classes of Readers will find in the Scientific American a popular resume of all the best scientific information of the day; and it is the aim of the publishers to present it always in an attractive form, avoiding as much as possible abstruse terms. To every intelligent reader, this journal affords a constant supply of instructive reading.

Subscribers should remit so as to have their subscriptions begin on the first of January, with the new volume. Those who preserve their numbers for binding have, at the end of the year, two handsome volumes of 416 pages each—832—with several hundred engravings.

Terms of Subscription.—$3 for 1 year; $1.50 for six months; 20 copies in a Club can be had for $40. Subscribers in Canada should remit 25 Cents extra to pay postage, specimens copies sent free; also, gratis, a pamphlet of "Advice to Inventors."

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!
Change of Publication
North American Review

WHICH has been published in Boston for the past thirty-eight years, will hereafter appear in the city of New York. The Editorial charge of Prof. James Russell Lowell and Charles Eliot Norton, Esq., gentlemen who, for several successive years, have achieved an enviable reputation, both in this country and in Europe; and whose taste, education, and extensive personal acquaintance with the literature of the day, eminently qualify them for the position.

Of the former, it may be said that his essays in the periodical which, under his editorship, reached the zenith of its fame, possessed in vigor and forcefulness of style peculiar charm.

Of the latter, that his well-earned reputation as the author of the "Biglow Papers," "The Fable for Critics," and other productions, both in prose and verse, gives promise of a career worthy of his talents, and of the high standard of excellence which has been established by his predecessor.

And of both, that their thorough loyalty to the liberal institutions of our country, and their sympathy with the progressive element of the times, together peculiarly fitted to confront the distress, which has by subsequent stability been pronounced the leading literary organ of the country, and of which it has been said that it has not its equal in America, nor its superior in the world.

The North American Review will maintain in the hands of its new editors its established reputation for independent criticism, and the well-considered opinions in politics and then more.

In discussing political and social questions, the spirit of the Review will be thoroughly national and loyal. It will defend and illustrate the distinctive principles on which the institutions of America are founded.

In literature, it will avail itself of the best material of thought and scholarship which the country can supply.

Bound by strong associations to the past, and sympathy with the present, hopeful for the future, the Review will do its part in the intellectual movement of the times.

☞ The North American Review is published Quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, in numbers of about three hundred pages each, containing matter equal to an ordinary octavo volume.

TERMS—Five dollars a year, or one dollar and twenty-five cents per number.

☞ A new volume of the Review will commence with the January number, and the publishers trust that the increased expenditure consequent upon the changes proposed in the future conduct of the work, will be met by a generous increase in the patronage of the public.

CROSBY & NICHOLS, Publishers.
No. 117 Washington, Boston.

☞ Newspapers copying the above the usual number of times shall receive the work for one year. 4

SOLDIERS in the ARMY!
AND CIVILIANS AT HOME,

Are now offered an opportunity by which they can obtain a

GOOD AND ELEGANT TIME-PIECE,
At a very Low Figure.

OUR WATCHES are warranted to keep time one year, and the buyer is allowed the privilege of examination before the payment is required.

Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions.

A first-class Hunting Time-Piece of silver material, over which is electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, most durably wrought, making the imitation so faultless that it cannot be detected from the solid material by the most experienced Judges; acids will not affect it. London made movement. Improved Duplex in full Ruby Actions has sweep seconds, and is not to be excelled in general appearance. This decidedly the one of the best articles ever offered for traders and speculators. Engineers, emigrants and persons travelling will find them superior to any other; alteration of climate will not effect their accuracy. Price, packed in good shape and good running order, only $35, or case of 5 for $200.

Silver Double Time Hunting Levers,

Best quality silver cases, over which electro-fine plated 18 k. gold, similar to our improved Duplex, and superior adjusted movements with "stop," to be used in timing horses, ect.; has four ludexes for Washington and Greenwich time, sweep second, and all the improvements. All in all, taking its beautiful and faultless appearance, with the superior movements and decoration, we regard it as decidedly the cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price, in good running order, $35, or case of 6 for $200.

☞ We ask no pay in advance, but will forward either of them to responsible parties, to any part of the loyal States, with the privilege to the express-man when the Good are delivered, giving the buyer the privilege of examination, and, if not satisfactory, the watch can be returned at our expense.

The express companies refuse making collections on soldiers, and other parties in the disloyal States, consequently all such orders must be accompanied by the cash to insure attention. We make a deduction on either Watch when the payment is forwarded in advance.

Money may be sent by express at our expense.

SCOTLAND AND FREEDOM

Hail, sacred Goddess! whom our fathers praised
When on the field the victor shout they raised;
Rous'd their dread standard 'neight their native heath;
Their foes they died, or strew'd the wilds in death;
Taught them to fear the strength that nerved their arm,
And Old Scots soul that joy'd mid spear and alarm—
As eagle's native hills interpt and vast
And rising blithly to the northern blast—
Storm nature's there, with war eternal rage,
As if they ruled the land presage;
Clouds round their snow-crown'd mountains wildly soar;
While frighty seated 'gold the ocean roar,—
From their wild rocky coasts they frown afar
Threat'ning destruction to the hosts of war
That dares to brave her terrors in her dome,
And to wrench freedom from her native throne;
Uprising high she views her feeble foe,
And thwarts her vengeance on their might below.
So were our countrie's warriors of yore
The bulwark then of Caledonia's shore.

When Romes proud standard fiercely gleam'd afar,
Menacing ruin with its blade of war,
Poured forth her hireling legions on thy strand,
And vowed to crush thy freedom, native land!
They raged a while, but from thy mountain home
Thou reared the daring flight of haughty Rome—
Thou raised a barrier in thy mountains high
Which rise abrupt and taper to the sky—
Their giant power thy fortress might not scale,
For death and ruin lay beyond its pale—
Oft did thy sons, illustrious land, oppose
The oppressive power, and dared the invading foes,
When the proud Southren vow'd to make thee kneel
Before his power, his tyrant strength to feel—
Oppression's fury brooded o'er thy plains—
Yet thy fierce spirit still disowned his chains:
A Wallace still was found to claim thy right,
Support thy cause in many an arduous fight;
For thee braved death and danger, fury's fire
And vengeful Edward's treachery did tire—
Taught thy oppressed sons to own thy cause,
Expel the tyrant and condemn his laws;
Nor did they sheath their swords, nor stay'd their arm
Till the rough signal sounds the last alarm—
Till Scotia's king appeared himself in state
And Bannockburn did seal the haughty Southren's fate.

O! sacred goddess! bless my country still,
Protect it every hour from every ill;
Shine on tranative wild with heavenly beam;
Illume each mountain and gild o'er each
Though bare its rocks, land of my father's Elicit,
As in the days of old thou warm'dst the heart
Of patriot fathers; aye, thy fire impart—
Still teach their sons to guard their country's laws,
And fire their breasts to freedoms holy cause.

C. S. D. Otonabee, Dec. 25th, 1863.

Miscellaneous.

THE SECOND SIGHT.

I am not superstitious; understand that before I begin. When a man's life, inner and outer, has been choked down for thirty-five years into the dog-eared leaves of a law book, you will find few grains of credulity or fancy about his nature. Besides, I don't think there ever were any in mine. Only the highest and lowest orders of intellect dare confess a belief in truths that underlie a science of common sense, and I belong to the massed middle mind of the world, to whom common sense is the highest natural good. Yet I have observed that almost every man, if you catch him in the right humor, has some old experience to relate which trenches on the super-natural. He sneers at it, as he tells you, yet secretly believes it. You bring up a parallel case, and he flouts it with an easy explanation. "Stuff! pish! Do you think he credits such old women's tales? That little matter he spoke of was a mere nothing, of course; yet it was curious, eh?" More, I do doubt as that among the civil suits and crimi al cases that have made up the dull routine of my own life, there have been one or two such incidents, for which no natural hypothesis will account. I purpose to give you the facts of one of them, assuring you that they are facts. Whatever may seem to you incredible is the most true. I offer no explanation of the mystery; never explained it to myself; all that I know is that it actually occur ed just as I tell it to you. The names are accessarily altered.

In 1820, I employed about my office in Richmond, a boy named Tom Sanders; an ugly, short, Dutch built fellow, whose only recommendation to favor was a certain straight forward honesty in his face. I liked Tom; kept him as errand boy for two or three years; his steady, solid-going habit gained trust and respect insensibly; whatever he had to do, whether it was to sort the papers, or eat his dinner, was sure to be slowly and thoroughly gone through with true German phlegm. One other German trait Tom had strongly developed; a quiet pertinacity in getting on and making money. He hoarded every minute of his off hours & one week, just as he hoarded his pittance of wages; tried to study in these spare minutes to become a gymnast; cleaned his own clothes with the same dogged persistence in every way to make the most of himself. I foresaw my office boy would grow, as a majority of his nation do, into a just, honest citizen, solid in pocket and integrity. Well, I had a fancy for Tom, as I said, and then it is human nature to help the successful. So one spring morning, I took him out of the outer office, bodily, and ensconced him as one of my regular law students, finding that he had scraped into his slow brain enough of Latin and English for a beginner. He read with me for five years, learning slowly; but there were no leaks in his brain, once in, an idea stayed there. How he fired I hardly know; he would accept no help. Flint, one of his fellow students, told me he taught him the recatives, cooked for him early starvation diet, Flint averred. Yet, haggardly as the situation was, and remained so he continued in repeating and recalling, my blackletter, nursed at Mary Sanders' love and devotion. At last got ready for reception by Virginia negroes, or Virginia mastered so it happened that, with all of Sander's sterling integrity, and warm, thoughtful love, he was unpopular with his fellow students, favorite with no one but myself. Some time in September, 1825, I received a letter from a friend in Randolph county, in which he incidentally mentioned that there was a good opening for a lawyer in that region. I mused Flint out of the ante room, and presenting him that he would be admitted next term, proposed he should go out to Randolph and [illegible] the region was a growing one, and that his practice would increase with the population. Flint stood a treat.

"The Closet country (?) he ejaculated.

I stood out to smile, gleaming at his diamond shirt buttons and white hands.

"Rather Rough, the mosquiteners," I said. "You've been there?"

"Yes," he replied, dryly. "I went down, sir, with Judge Clapp as grand juror, last fall."

There was a pause. At last Flint broke out vigorously.

"Fact is, Mr. Page, I am grateful to you for the plan. Fine opening, none better, I know—slow, but sure. But I'd like to look around me a bit, and I would like to give Tom Sanders' a chance. Why not throw this in his way? The poor fellow can't afford to wait long for briefs, and those Cheat River folks will suit him better than—"

"You; and he will suit them better," I interposed. "You're quite right, Flint. I wonder I did not think of it sooner. Only a thorough man could make his way out yonder, and Tom is that in muscle and brain both. Send him in here.

Flint laughed good-humorously, too much rejoiced to escape banishment to care for reproof. He stopped on his way to the door.

"It's not altogether selfishness on my part, Mr. Page I do want Sanders to get on. He wants to marry old Jake Adams' daughter, and he will never do it until he can play brag with the old hound with more dollars than he's likewise to make here."

Tom Sanders in love! I could not comprehend it.

"She will be rich?" I asked. An only child, to she not?"

"Yes, sir. Tom'll make a good thing out of it at Adams' death; but he'll hold on these seventy years. I think Tom likes the girl for herself though. These quiet people are mostly in earnest."

"Very well. Send him in."

Sanders, I knew, had occupied a room in Adams' house, and it was there he had made the girls acquaintance, perhaps. Old Adams was one of the most disreputable men, free from the penitentiary, in Richmond: miserly, a scoffer at everything good and pure, a slave-raiser, with a suspicion of having once been a slave-driver. He lived in a dilapidated old house at Rockets, a village a mile or so out of town, owned some bank-stock and hired out some forty negroes. His daughter I had seen once, a thin, sorrowful looking girl, who would have been pretty if she had not been half-starved!

When I proposed the Randolph country plan to Sanders, he asked a week for consideration, at the end of which time he gravely accepted it after many cautious queries. In November he would be admitted, and purposed to start for the Cheat country immediately. These preliminaries settled, I ventured to allude to his marriage, hoping that my influence might remove any obstacle. I sincerely wished Tom well, and would have done much to aid him. The fellow's broad jaws grew pale as I spoke of it. It is not easy for men like him to talk of such things. Yet, I think, the ice once broken, he was glad of sympathy.

"I thank you," he said, with a grave nod. "But I've little hope of bringing it about now. Her father's against it, and she won't disobey him. She's a good girl, Jane."

"And if you marry now, you would loose all chance of the money."

He looked up hotly, seemed about to speak angrily, but checked himself. "Mr. Page," he then said, earnestly, "I like money, that's true. But a wife's a wife; and another thing, Adams' money may not with him if I had Jane. But she won't disobey him. It's not easy," he said, after a pause, "to see her going to the grave faster than he is, between starvation and ill-usage."

I offered gently to use my power of inducement with the old man.

"It would do more harm than good," he said. "He'll never consent, he can make nothing by the transaction."

"He's a hard master with his servants, I've heard?" I said.

"Yes, and a harder father. But I'll pay him back yet. I've a fancy I'll marry Jane before I go to the Cheat," he said, half to himself, the remembrance of some outrage on the old man's part making his face dark. We did not continue the subject, as I found I could not help him.

Two weeks after, I went down to Charleston, a little town on the Kanawha. Meanwhile, although Tom, I knew, was busily preparing for his examination and removal, I heard no more of the Adamses, father or daughter. I wish you to observe the statement I now make, as it is essential to the understanding of that part of my story which is mysterious, the fact that, indeed, makes it inexplicable. Charleston, the town where the court was held which I for the first time attended, could even now, with railroad communication, not be reached from Richmond in a period of less than two days; then, it was a journey of about three weeks. Telegraphs were unknown. The two points were then, so far as immediate connection is concerned, as opposite as the poles. I must close, not even attended by a body servant. No thing of explanation of what there transpired will reduce them, which rests on the idea of a cognizance of parties in Charleston of events occurring in Richmond.

I dragged remaining in Charleston three a week. As it chanced in Virginia, the terms of court was the signal for every educated man in the State. I, with Judge Hepburn, and several other members of the Western bar, were also guests at one of the planters—a cousin of mine, in fact, Col. Page. I met Hepburn (Judge of the United States Court then) for the first time. He was a Louisianan by birth, driven by some strange change into Western Virginia a few years before. The other lawyer, younger men, deprecated him a dry old chap, and grew silent over their wine when he was present. One of four met who the Wise lawyers, a brain full of forms and precedents unthawed, a small, sharp eye, a feathery face, cool, attentive to danger; dreamed blue Quaker, and so at least and an watchful as one. Rollerton Col. Page, our host, lost the best point of his best cousins when the Judge unexpectedly, and let them fall, flat, and tasteless and of the young people were carrying on a sly flirtation in the drawing-room, they grew shy and grave when he came in; his very cold gravity conveyed some how the impression of a sneer. The character of the man contributed to make the incident I relate more remarkable.

Finding that he had been tied down closely to business for several years, and that he had never visited Richmond, I persuaded him to, western with me for recreation, to which he finally consented. Some two or three days before the time appointed for our departure, Col. Page requested me to look into the details of an intricate law-suit he had kept for years on a hobby. He brought the papers to the library in the evening of a dull, rainy day. Judge Hepburn lounged in presently, and, after intering for a time, took up a newspaper, and dozed over it, rousing now and then to help himself to a glass of wine from the table. At last, tired of our monotonous voices, he leaned back in his arm chair, and fell asleep altogether, snoring accommodatingly so as to provoke a smile from Page, and a quizzical glance to the open, bony, iron bound yellow face, to which sleep certainly led no charms. We worked on at the papers for an hour, to busy to heed the uneasy breathing of the sleeper, until Page, turning, exclaimed:

"Hepburn's asleep with his eyes open! Nightmare, I believe. Here! Judge, wake up!" shaking him tolerably roughly.

The man's eyes were stretched open with the [illegible] his countenance bloodless; big drops of sweat had started out over his forehead; and when, after a fit, started shakings, he woke, it was with a violent fit of trembling and chattering of his teeth. Page glanced significantly at the empty decanter and then at Hepburn, whose whole appearance had altered as if under the influence of some terrible excitement.

"The night's foul fiend has got a grip of you, eh, Judge? Take some water."

Hepburn poured the water in his hand and wet his face. "It was horrible!" he muttered.

"Bad dreams, ney?" said Page, turning to the table again, while the judge sat down, trying to bring himself back to his customery quiet. Looking up, after awhile, and catching my eye, he got up and shook himself, as if ashamed of the agitation he could not throw off. The man was totally unlike himself.

"I tell you," he said, with a nervous laugh, "if that was a dream, God preserve me from reality! I cannot conceive myself that what I saw did not actually occur, at the instant just passed. I act like an idiot. Look, how my hand shakes!" he sneered at himself in the old way. "One would think I believed in our old nurse's tale, that the gift of second sight lay in our family, and that I had seen a vision."

We passed it off with a jest, seeing how annoyed he was that we had seen his agitation; but an hour after, Page asked, carelessly:

"What was your dream, by the way, judge?"

I thought the other was glad to tell it. He found himself, he said, on a muddy road leading by a canal, a place he had never seen before, yet which he could not but feel existed somewhere. A man going before him was the only object in view—a most diabolically faced old wretch, whom he would hang, he added, with a laugh, on no evidence but his jaws and eyes. A heavy rain began to fall. Besides this, there was a vague, unclean odour from the mud banks of the canal. The old man stopped, apparently waiting for some one, and was presently joined by a woman, whose face was hidden, but whose figure and step showed her to be lithe and young. While they talked together, a young, stout-built man came softly up from behind a heap of lumber, armed with a knife.

Page and I could not but smile at the earnestness with which the man told the story. Its reality had taken hold of him. Even yet, in his secret heart, he believed it, laugh as he might.

"He killed him," he went on, shuddering. "I saw him strike the old man here, under the fifth rib, the woman hid her face till it was done. The man touched her when the other was dead, pulled her shawl, and said, 'Now you're free.' It was horrible! The blood stained everything; her dress was spotted; some of the drops reached me." He looked involuntarily down at his coat.

"Well!" said Col. Page, biding a smile,

"They took off the old man's coat and jacket, and rolled it in a bundle, with his pocket-book, and woman's shawl, and the coat of the murderer, after trying to wash the stains out of it. The body they threw into the canal. I saw them going along the road, seeing, as I went, how soon the rain effaced all marks from the clay, carrying off the blood. About half a mile back from the canal stood an old mill, partly [illegible] down. The crusade which was about to put them and the minor States at the head of the great Confederacy, is suddenly lost in the headsight of the very Powers who have the least interest in it, and will be the most likely to bring it to an important conclusion. The House of Deputies in Berlin have felt this so keenly as to pass very strong resolutions against the action of the Prussian Government, condemning its separation from the Confederacy, and lamenting bitterly the [illegible] of their country in the great question. The House of Lords, on the other hand, has, we believe, passed a resolution of confidence in the Government. The Prussian Deputies take the ground that their question is one transferred from its place as a purely German interest to a European question, and that intervention is now [illegible] Before the German Confederacy, which had never been a party to the treaty of 1825, merely claimed that it was exercising a right of the Confederacy after the [illegible] of its own members, and that no foreign power had any more concern in the struggle than, for instance, Europe in the United States our own civil war. Now, the very [illegible] of the contingent which the treaty of London claims that Denmark has broken their conditions made to them individually, on the faith of which they resigned Schleswig to the Danish rule, and they now unite to punish her, and enforce German rights.

The other wagers of the treaty are, of course, now called upon to declare their position, and, in some shape, they must [illegible] terrene." It is not improbable that Austria and Prussia, having satisfied the popular clamor and retrieved the leadership of Germany, may, after some little appearance of hostilities with Denmark, be quite willing to accept friendly intervention. England is reported to have already called upon Denmark to revoke the obnoxious Constitution, which she has firmly refused to do. If this rumour be well founded, England will evidently not enter into war with Austria and Prussia, when she thus tacitly admits that the opposite party has not fulfilled her pledges.

The tone of the British official press is also decidedly more peaceful, so that, from all present appearances, we may fairly conclude that the two German Powers and Denmark will be left to fight out their battles alone in the Duchies.

Undoubtedly, if the existence of the Danish kingdom should seem threatened both France and Great Britain might interfere even forcibly, but until that arouses we incline to doubt any general European war. Germany, as usual, is the great arena, falls by the hands of her friends. Divided on this question, she can have but little influence either on Denmark or on Europe. Again does the unity, so long hoped for, for which the best thinkers and truest friends of liberty in Germany have so patiently labored, fail to success under the hands of the Kings, and the struggle begins for a popular cause is, perhaps, ended in a civil war.—*N. A CLASSIC TOILET.

According to the testimony, which is scarcely to be disputed, the sun could never have shone upon a less lovely object than a Roman lady, in the days of the Cæsars, when she opened her eyes in the morning—or, rather, let us say, as she appeared in the morning for before she opened her eyes a great deal had to be done. When she retired to rest, her face had been covered with plaster composed of bread and cow's milk, which had dried during the night, and, consequently, presented in the morning and appearance of crackedmuck. The purpose of the cow's milk was not only to preserve the delicacy of the skin, but to evaporate the lungs; and so strong was the belief in the efficacy of the specific, that some energetic ladies bathed themselves in it seventy times in the course of a single day. As for Poppæa, the favorite wife of Nero, she never set out on a journey without taking in her train whole herds of she-asses, that she might bathe in the milk she dreamed so to do. The plaster of Paris bust having worked in the morning in moulded condition, it was the office of a host of female slaves to restore it into perfect beauty. To clear the field for further operations, the first of these gently washed away with lukewarm asses milk the already crumbling mask, and left a smooth face, to be covered by more recondite artifice. The place, whose vocation it was to paint the cheeks, delicately laid on the red and white, having moistened the pigment with her own saliva. The appearent neatness of this operation was diminished by the consumption of a certain number of counted mouthfuls, which, if the wedgehaired to take, the cultured emperor publishment.—Dickens's All The Year Round.

THE FORTUNE COMMISSION.

The Opposition press, for the last week, have been trying to make a great deal of capital out of the Fortune commission business. The conduct of the Government in instituting the commission has been denounced as illegal and repugnant to the spirit of the British Constitution. The commissioner has been held up to us unmerciful terms as a partizan and a tyrant, in whose bosom was no pity or compassion. We should first premise that all this loud Opposition wail and virulent abuse have been founded upon some very inconsiderate and unskilful far letters which appeared in the Leader, and some very one-sided illogical articles in our contemporary, the Review. And when we say, what is now a matter of public notoriety, that the letters and the articles are the concoction of the same disinterested and impartial writer, those who know the nature, proclivities and antecedents of the gentleman, will be able, without much trouble, to attach to them their true value. Indeed, they are entitled to as much credit and value as would be the pleadings of the defendant's counsel when the said writer attended in his peregrinations from Cobourg to Port Hope—whether as a disinterested spectator or special newspaper advocate, we leave it to others to determine. In this, however, we think there will be trouble. Facts speak for themselves. We would naturally expect Mr. Fortune's counsel to entertain views favorable to his client, and to have his feelings and sympathies enlisted in his behalf. This is reasonable—nothing more than we could expect. But to go to that counsel to get an impartial, candid, fair, honest statement of how matters stood between the Government and Mr. Fortune, would, certainly, be the height of absurdity. He could not give it even if he wished to do so. His mind would not be in a proper state to do any such thing. He might give us a statement, and he might think he was giving us an impartial—a true—one; but from his relation to the accusers and the accused, it would be received with much caution, if not total disbelief. Apply this to the writer of the Leader letters and Review articles, and condemning them on account of their authorship, but on the ratios of the opinions of the defendant's counsel and friends, it will be seen at once how carefully the statements they contain should be investigated, and how little credence should be placed in them. In our opinion they look very much like reports or rehashes, as it were, of such special pleadings as might be expected from Mr. Fortune's lawyers. The same thought, we are sure must have struck others. As such the said letters and articles would be all right enough; but to consider them what they profess to be is simply all fudge—the veriest stuff. To gloss over serious charges, to suppress material facts, and to distort others, may be the province of the impartial correspondent or journalist; but if so we have yet to learn it.

But what are the facts of the Fortune case? Is he a victim of the present Ministry's implacable hatred, and for they hounding him to the death thereafter? We will see. For years past the official conduct of Mr. Fortune has caused extreme dissatisfaction in the counties of which he is Sheriff. Some eighteen months ago grave charges were preferred against him to the Government. These were made known to the Sheriff, who made certain explanations. These explanations were anything but satisfactory; but the Government, knowing him to be a strong political opponent—for reasons obvious to all but from a very mistaken policy—allowed time to slip on. Additional charges were made, and the Government, so importunately urged to take action on the matter, that it was compelled to do so. Mr. Morrey, of Toronto, was appointed commissioner to inquire into the charges preferred against Mr. Fortune. It was arranged that the inquiry should commence on the 21st of January. During the time intervening, the friends of Sheriff were not idle. The greatest pressure was brought to bear upon those who had charges against him. Nor were they altogether unsuccessful. Several were intimidated, some bought off, some secured, and others influenced by sympathy on account of the Sheriff's ill health. The commission, however, proceeded—notwithstanding several adjournments granted by Mr. Morrey in compliance with the wishes of Mr. Fortunes friends. Indeed, Mr. Morrey's conduct towards the Sheriff was kind and indulgent in the highest degree. Some very important facts were elicited in course of the examination, which conclusively proved that the Government man only doing a simple duty in the course it was pursuing. It was demonstrated upon irrefragable evidence that very irregular proceedings had taken place in the Sheriff's office, for which the Sheriff was directly responsible. A principal is not only responsible for his own acts, but for those of his subordinates. This is an axiom of law. Hence, if anything has been done wrong in the Sheriff's office, or by the Sheriff's subordinates, Mr. Fortune must bear the consequence. And a good deal has been done wrong. It was proved that monies that ought to have been paid over to parties were never paid over; that he had returned money paid to a plaintiff's attorney, when that was not the case; that he had returned goods on hand for want of buyers, when, in reality, he had been paid the money; that when from a sale he had realized some $400 he returned that he had goods on hand for $950, and sells here for the rest; that he had falsely returned goods on hand for $2100 when the money had actually been collected; that, having other things, he had collected for the Counties of Northumberland and Durham the sum of $6,000, government money, from the Town of Port Hope and Township of Hope which the Commissioners Council could not get it from him, and, consequently, had to compromise the matter with him. These are some of the things that were established before the Commissioner. We ask if they do not amply justify the action that the Government has taken? We think so. A public official should severely resolve no such insolency than individuals in a private capacity. If a clerk or servant does what is wrong, his employer quickly exposes him and brings him to a sense of his duty and wrong doing. And are not public interests to be as much respected and protected as private ones? Same people, evidently, think not! but upon what principle they found their opinion, or to what code of morality they conform it, we are too obtuse to find out. In our opinion it is absolutely essential to the welfare of a country, whether as regards its material interests, social development, and national morality, that those holding offices of public trust should, like Cæsar's wife, be above suspicion; that the higher the offices the more important that this should be the case. Evidently, for if mal-feasance is tolerated in high places, why not in those more subordinate? To use a vulgar saying, there should not be made fish of one and flesh of another. The very idea is repugnant to every sentiment of sound morality, and contrary to every dictate of public policy. To tolerate such a thing would be to unbar the flood-gates of corruption and venality—to offer a premium of wrong doing to sap and undermine the fundamental principles of virtue and religion. In this enlightened age it is what no government knowingly dare do, if it has any regard for its own reputation for existence—whatever party in power. Individual members might, from circumstances or interested motives, be willing to pass over isolated instances of peculation, &c., if no public charges were laid; but when, in their official capacity, they become cognizant thereof, they must take action—investigate—and do justice. Public sentiment will compel them. So in the present instance, we feel that public sentiment has compelled the Government to take the step which is now so strongly denounced. Had it done what it ought to have done the the investigation would have been held long since and the business disposed of. But better late than never. We feel confident that the Ministry will, whatever course public policy or the general interests may indicate it to adopt, be disposed to act as leniently towards Mr. Fortune as possible. It may be that Mr. Fortune, on account of his ill health, has got into many of his troubles through the imprudence or wrong doing of his agents, and, consequently, may not be dealt with that rigid severity which the requirements of the law, under the circumstance, seem to demand. We have no wish that otherwise should be the case. The ends of justice and the interests of public morality, however, must be subserved, at whatever cost to individuals.

We may remark, before we conclude, that this commission will exert a most salutary influence upon the whole of Canada. We are far from believing that Mr. Fortune is the only public official in the Province who has neglected the duties of his office, or done worse. We fear there are others who, if weighed in the balance, would be found wanting. This investigation will make such more careful, and, for their own safety, make them realise that "honesty is the best policy"—a principle which, if far from being commendable in itself, cannot, nevertheless, in its evolution, be otherwise than of great practical benefit to all concerned.

FINANCE COMMISSIONS.

The present government deserve the thanks of the country for the Commissions (much hated as they are by the Corruptionists) they appointed to investigate into abuses. The second report of the Financial and Departmental Commission has recently been published. It reveals a state of affairs certainly not very creditable either to the old Coalition Government, or to the morality of many who, leech-like, fattande upon—by the connivance or through the means of those in power—the life blood of the country. The Commission shows the extremely tax way in which business was conducted. Indeed, if any person would conduct his own private business in the same way he would go to ruin in a very short time. The country was fast going to ruin, and had the Cartier-Macdonald Government been able to retain the reins of power much longer in their hand, there is no telling into what (almost) inextricable confusion and bankruptcy the Province would have been plunged. All but those beneficially interested in this sad state of things, now are, perforce, compelled to confess this. Large sums were lavished by the Coalition Government upon certain favored ones of the press, to sound their praises and to support their tottering credit. Stationery, pens, &c., were purchased at fabulous rates with a similar object in view. No one unless he reads the details as set forth could believe the length to which the Cartier-Macdonald ministry went in these matters. The wonder is that the country is not more deeply encumbered with debt than it is, and it is deeply enough now, as we all, most unfortunately know to our experience.

The present Government, on the other hand, have been striving hard to rectify matters, and rescue, as it were, the Province from this overwhelming debt. It is true that these efforts have been greatly impeded by the factious opposition of their foes; but it is, nevertheless, gratifying to know that success has more than realized their expectations. If they only do as well in the future as they have done in the past, people will have no cause to complain of the change of rulers. We think they will; at least, such seems to be their anxious desire at present.

SEWING MACHINES.

One of the greatest improvements of the day is the sewing machine. The extension that it has caused in labour is wonderful. In fact it has become now an almost indispensable piece of household furniture. Those who have once used one, cannot be induced to do without it. Every large family should have one. It is true that the price was for some time, against its general introduction and use, when the machines were all brought from the other side; but since Wanzer & Co. have started an establishment in Hamilton, this cause of complaint has been done away. The Wanzer Machine is first class. It has taken the first prize at the different Provincial exhibitions. Mr. Burrows, who keeps it in this place, is a practical Machinist himself, and consequently understands thoroughly the working of such machines, so also how to teach others to work them; this is a great practical importance. If you want a good cheap machine—we are sure that Mr. Burrows will be able to accommodate you to your satisfaction. See advertisement.

CHIEF JUSTICE LAFONTAINE.

Sir Louis H. Lafontaine, Chief Justice of Lower Canada, died on Friday last, at the age of 66. His death created a deep impression. In Parliament both parties united in highly eulogizing the dead. The late Chief Justice was a remarkable man, and has left the stamp of his genius and power upon his native country. His parliamentary career was not commenced under very cheering auspices. A follower of Mr. Papineau, he was considered even more radical than his Chief. In the rebellion of 1837 he was accused of treason, but the charge from want of evidence fell to the ground. He, however left the country for a time. On his return, he became leader of the French Canadian party. He showed his independence of spirit by refusing the most tempting offers to support Lord Sydenham's government. Mr. Lafontaine was defeated in Terrebone at the ensuing election, but found a seat in Upper Canada. In 1842 Lafontaine and Baldwin were the leaders of the Government under Sir Charles Bagot, but, disagreeing with Lord Metcalf, Sir Charles' successor, the then Ministry resigned, and a Tory ministry composed of Draper, Viger and Daly ruled the country. In 1848, however, the Reformers swept the Province. The House was completely changed. A new ministry, under Lafontaine and Baldwin was formed. By this government's reign some of our most important measures were inaugurated and passed. This ministry broke up in 1851. In 1853 Mr. Lafontaine was elevated to the Chief Justiceship of the Queen's Bench in Lower Canada. In 1854 he was created a Baronet of the united kingdom. In private life the late Chief Justice was highly esteemed. His moral conduct was irreprouchable. He earned and retained the respect of all parties. In his death the country has suffered a severe loss.

MR. CONGER'S SPEECH.

In another column will be found a speech delivered by Mr. Conger at Quebec. The report is from the Quebec Morning Chronicle and is more full than that which lately appeared in the Globe. The reports differ considerably. We are inclined to believe that the Globe report is calculated to give more general satisfaction than the one now before us—at least, in this county. Mr. Conger compliments the administration upon the multiplicity and magnitude of the measures foreshadowed. We are glad to see that this meets with Mr. Conger's approval, and he, no doubt, will find himself able to give that support which he could not, or did not, last Session. If the measures are important and useful, he surely, if true to his profession, ought to lend his aid in carrying them through If he does, we are confident that he will not have cause to repent of his action. The majority—the great majority—of his constituents wish to give the ministry a fair trial, and we hope Mr. Conger will not deem it irreconcileable with his ideas of duty and statesmanship, to assist in carrying out their reasonable wishes. Mr. Conger seems to think that the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty will prove as injurious to the States as to Canada—if not more so. In his speech Mr. Conger takes the opportunity of impressing upon the Government the importance of settling the waste lands of the Province. He wishes such steps to be taken as will induce emigrants to come and settle in our midst. We cordially agree with Mr. Conger in this. It is of the utmost importance that at this time when circumstances are so favorable for immigration into the country that the Government should take energetic action in the matter. It is easily to be seen that Mr. Conger was disgusted with the conduct of the Oppositionists in retailing their after-dinner-tattles. It may open his eyes to the real character and nature of those with whom he has hitherto, to his own prejudice, too closely allied himself. We hope so.

AMERICAN NEWS.

There is not much war excitement at present, on the other side. Sherman, however, seems to be at work. His forward movement on the whole is said to have been very successful. The strength of Lees army is reported at 25,000.

Scouts, who arrived at Gen. Grant's headquarters this morning, say that Gen. Sherman has struck the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Gen Sherman has cut the Confederate army of Gen. Polk in the centre, and both wings are running away in different directions. There was a tremendous Confederate force in the rear of Gen. Sherman, but no apprehensions are felt of a Confederate disaster. General Sherman lives upon the country, which it is stated abound in stores of all kinds.

Great excitement existed at Montgomery, Ala., and the people there were much frightened at the approach of Sherman.

General Grant's scouts also reported that a heavy attack on the forts at Mobile was in full operation, but with what success could not be learned.

General Longstreet's forces are back again at their old quarters.

The Gazette's Chattanooga despatch says the advance force of General Grant's army was within three miles of Dalton, on the 24th. The Confederates were driven from Tunnel Hill and pursued till nightfall.

A heavy battle at Dalton is not improbable. Hardee and Cleirbor's divisions had been sent to reinforce Polk.

A Washington special, of the 25th, says General Lee's orderly, a deserter, has arrived. The strength of Lee's army is now 25,000. He expects the Federals to be ready for operations by the middle of March, at which time he has ordered all his men to be back. Stuart's cavalry are used up; the horses have been sent south for forage. Lee expects by March or April to have 60,000 men to check any advance of the Federal army, or drive it back on Washington and invade Pennsylvania.

General Logan's recent expedition, which left Huntsville, some fifty miles distant from Chattanooga, has developed the fact that the population in Northern Alabama are as loyal in sentiment as the East Tennesseans, and numbers had enlisted in the Federal army.

General Gilmore's military campaign in Florida is reported here to have been, so far, successful in its mission; the Federal army having marched inland without serious resistance so far as Lake City, the evacuation of which by the Federals is said to give General Gilmore virtual possession of the whole of East Florida. By this exploit another Southern State—the Federal reverse should take place in the interval—will be placed at the disposal of the Administration as partizans, at least, to its Presidential votes.

The Yeas and Nays were taken:—Yeas, Messrs. Walton, Garbutt and Galvin; Nays, Messrs. Dean and Fitzgerald. Motion carried by a majority of 1.

Moved by Mr. Dean and seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald,—That the Clerk do notify Mr. Calvert to remove his fence off the allowance for road between the 3rd and 4th concessions of the Township of Smith.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald and seconded by Mr. Garbutt,—That the Clerk do notify Mr. Jno. Braswell to cut and remove the timber growing upon the North end of Lot No. 15 in the 3rd concession of Smith. Also, Mr. Thos. E. Poll to cut and remove the timber growing upon part of the South end of Lot No. 15 in the 4th concession of said Township, in conformity with the provisions of By-law No. 190 of this Council.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Galvin and seconded by Mr. Garbutt.—That the Reeve do grant an order on the Treasurer in favor of Francis Sanderson, Andrew Brodin and Matthew Waram, for the sum of $3 each, being the remuneration allowed them for their services as arbitrators between this Council and Mr. Garbutt.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald and seconded by Mr. Garbutt.—That the Clerk do notify Mr. Snyder to remove his fence off the road between Lots 18 and 19 in the 3rd concession of Smith.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Garbutt and seconded by Mr. Galvin,—That the Clerk do notify the parties hereinafter mentioned to remove their fences from off the road in the following places in the Township of Smith, viz.: Alx. Preston, River Road in the 8th concession; Isaac Garbutt, River Road in the 9th Concession: Andrew Miller and William Duggan in the 10th concession; Jno. McGrath, River Road in the 11th concession; and Lewis Davis the allowance for road between the 7th and 8th concessions.—Carried.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

The members of "Friendship" Lodge seem to be in a very flourishing condition at present. They seem determined to enjoy themselves. They had, lately, a visit from their brothers and sisters in Lakefield. The evening was spent in the most pleasant manner, with speeches, recitations and singing. Nor were the substantials forgotten. The oldest member present, Br. John Robertson was declared by the ladies to be the youngest—so well did he acquit himself. The Monday after, a number of the members of the "Friendship" Lodge paid a visit to the Lodge at Hastings, where they were received in the most cordial manner, and entertained in the most hospitable style. Indeed, the good people of Hastings are represented to have been extremely kind and courteous to their visitors from Peterborough. They took shown the mills and every other place of interest. The visitors returned home the same night in the happiest spirits, and highly delighted with the kind reception they had met with. That is the way to do business!

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The Steamship Asia, from Liverpool, arrived yesterday morning. No additional fighting in Schleswig is reported. The allies continue to reinforce their army, and are collecting boats for a landing on the island of Alsen. The London Post repeats the statement that England, with the support of France, Russia, and Sweden had proposed an armistice. The Danish cavalry had retired into Jutland, and the Danish vessels-of-war were beginning to commit depredations on Prussian Commerce.

LECTURE.

To night, Mr. Thomas White, Jr., will deliver the 7th lecture of the course in the Town Hall. The subject announced is the "Discovery and Art of Printing,"—one t. which, we are sure, Mr. White will do justice. We hope to see a good turn out. To commence at 8 p. m.

Death of Mr. Jesse of the "Elgin Courier."—We regret to state that the able and indefatigable editor and proprietor of the Elgin Courier, Mr. Robert Jesse, died on 8th instant, at a comparatively early age, being only about fifty. He had conducted his journal since 1849, supporting Liberal principles, and also taking a warm interest in local questions. He was for some years a member of the Town Council and a Magistrate, a member of the Prison Board, &c.

Constipation of the Bowels.—How many of our citizens are suffering from this disease, and expecting to be cured by the use of violent purgatives, which debilitate the system, and cause a return of the disease with increased asperity? Is it not better to have a remedy that will cure, by giving strength and vigour to the bowels, enabling them to perform their functions in a natural manner? Such a remedy is "Hoofland's German Bitters." It will not purge you, by its great invigorating and tonic properties, will give your system a tone that will enable it to perform all its functions in a vigorous and natural manner. For sale by all Druggists and dealers in medicines.

The Best Medicine. Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. We feel secure in calling the attention of our readers to this old and most efficacious remedy. It has stood the test of time, and there is no town in the Union but can produce witnesses of its wonderfull effects in curing all lung diseases. That it is unequalled and alone is generally acknowledged by all the druggists throughout the country. It stands on the firmest basis of any of the patent medicines, and from many assurances given of its great virtues, we believe it is destined to supersede any other preparation in use. Invalids should try it. —North Adams Transcript.

We cordially confirm the above recommendation.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

I wish to have my say about about the new Town Hall. I have no personal interest in the matter beyond that which every inhabitant of the Town ought to possess. I reside on my small property which can never be benefitted, directly or indirectly, by the erection of the new Town Hall. Yet I am in favor of it. As an inhabitant of the Town I feel a pride in its prosperity and progress. I want to see it look like a Town, and to see evidences that the people are what they are—an intelligent, enterprising, lively people—a people who, like myself, take a pride in the handsome and substantial appearance of our Town. I am not afraid of the selfish and senseless cry of taxation raised by a few who meanly fancy that no one ought to live but themselves, and that the rising Town of Peterborough is to be kept within the narrow limits which their miserable self-ishness would give to it. I look forward to a very different state of things to this. I hope to live to see our Town built up and extended on every side. I hope to see George Street occupied from its Northern even to the Southern limit thereof; and to see more evidences of business and improvement in other places as well. All this will not add me one shilling to the value of what little property I possess, which is too far from the centre of business to be benefitted in this way. But the sight of prosperity and improvement would please me. What do we live for? Surely not to try how best not to do; nor to try how best to prevent improvement; not to try how best to keep the Town from growing. No! But to fulfil our part in this world of progress, and to keep pace in all things with the rapid improvement of the age we live in. We want a new Town Hall. We have outgrown the old Market House. It has served its purpose, but like everything else it has had its day. The world is moving on, and so must we. On every side we have warning of this. Let us then show that we as a people are what we desire to be, and what we wish others to consider us—a people able to keep pace with others—a people who have not yet made up our minds to fold our hands and to lie down and go to sleep. Let us shew that we—the people of the rising Town of Peterborough—are what the yankees call a go-a-head people. Let us have the new Town Hall then this year, I say.

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—For two years I have been waiting for the building of the new Town Hall. I want to rent a piece of the Market Block south of the site designed for the Hall but I cannot do so until the Hall is up. I am surprised that the people of the Town do not look more than they do to the improvement of the Market Block—the property of the Town. But it is the old story: what is everybody's business is nobody's business. If the new Town Hall was proceeded with I am convinced that every foot of the Market Block down to Charlotte Street would be built up. I would put up two buildings and I know who would put up another; and as one improvement begets another, how soon would all this land be occupied—and then see how much this would add to the Town's revenue. The people ought to consider this. They own this property. It cannot be improved upon without their consent. Let them not be like the dog in the manger who could not eat the hay and who would not let the ox eat it either; but let them set the example of improvement and thereby cause improvement to be made upon all the remainder of this land. In this way our Town would be built up and look a Town. The money for the Town Hall is ready. It is now lying useless. By and by if it is not laid out for the purpose it was intended it will be wasted, and then it will be too late to build the Town Hall. I hope to see the building proceeded with this summer. The times are hard, and this money will do people good. It will all be spent in the Town, and everybody will get a share of it. The principal this generation will not have to pay. We shall, therefore, have the good of the money spent among us, and we shall have the building too. And it will not cost us anything. We have done a great deal for the next and succeeding generations. Let them do this much for us. Surely no one will be found to oppose the building of the new Town Hall. P.

MISREPRESENTATION.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Mr. Burrows,—In your issue of last week I notice an article by "A Reformer," headed "Incompetency Loyal Superintendents." Before I begin by making comments on which the facts will not carry him out. He says:—"that in many townships the office of Local Superintendents, instead of being an important auxiliary to our noble national School system, is, by reason of ignorant and incompetent members, beginning to excite disgust in the minds of intelligent men." Now, Mr. Editor, if he had taken the trouble to look at your issue of the 4th instant, he would have seen that one-half of the gentlemen appointed are men of classical education, and that the remainder need not blush to see their names in print. It will be observed that "Reformer" thinks himself one of the intelligent men of Dummer, and therefore, qualified to judge who shall be our officers. In referring to the intention of the School Act he says, very wisely: "the appointment should rest solely on grounds of personal character and ability." But he forgot to tell you that he would have wished it had rested on interest. Then, sir, there would have been no dishonor about the appointment. "Reformer" is very kind in not wishing to give names; he knew very well that by so doing he would have defeated his object, as the name of the gentleman would in itself be a guarantee for his honor, honesty and ability; and, Sir, I doubt not but that he could obtain as creditable a certificate for these as "Reformer." "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones," and, therefore, I think "Reformer" should be the last man to talk about honor or honesty. He has yet to pass the ordeal of public service, while the gentleman he so berates has grown grey in the service of his townsmen, and can, with confidence, appeal to their judgement—and need not depend on a "Reformer" for a certificate of his character.

Now, Mr. Editor, as your love of fair play is well known, please give the above a place in your valuable journal, and thus prevent an old and respected public servant from being misrepresented before the public.

Yours,

A SUBSCRIBER.

Dummer, Feb. 23rd, 1864.

MR. CONGER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Conger said that in rising to offer the few remarks he felt it his duty to make on this occasion, he must congratulate the Administration on the multiplicity and magnitude of their measures, as foreshadowed in the Speech from the Throne. If they had reason to complain of their meagreness last year, they certainly had no cause of complaint now—when they found it to contain every thing, from the preservation of a mighty empire, to the securing of a patent invention. [Hear, hear.] It was true that no reference had been made in the Speech to the great question of Representation by Population, or to the still more important one, the encouragement of emigration, and the settlement of the waste lands of the Crown in the Province, and none for the introduction of capital and labour; all these matters, however, may have been an omission, as he trusted it had been, which would receive attention hereafter. [Cheers.] The second paragraph in the Address asks us to thank his Excellency for the steps he has taken to carry into effect the acts passed during the last session for the organization of the Militia Force of this Province. He feared that the people of this country had as yet received very little on that score to be thankful for. So far as his judgment went the Militia Force was never in a worse condition; the spirit of volunteering, he was sorry to say, had, through bad management, been almost entirely trampled out. The volunteers felt that their services were not appreciated, and unless something was done to dispel that feeling, that branch of the Force would soon cease to exist. [Hear, hear.] Referring to the third clause in the Address calling attention to the Reciprocity Treaty, the hon. gentleman went on to say that it would be remembered that in 1854 a Treaty of Reciprocity was entered into between the Governments of the then United States of America and Canada, by which certain articles the growth and product of the soil, the sea, and the forest,—of these countries were to be admitted free of duty, and as Canada at that time was considered to be more interested in the arrangement than the States, certain other advantages were thrown in as make weights, giving to our neighbors by far the best of the bargain. Be that as it may we too were gainers by the arrangement. Our position at that time requiring that our wheat and flour should find some cheaper, and more expeditious route to the English market, than by the St. Lawrence. Now however it is different, and our own shipping ports offer facilities quite equal to New York. If our wheat and flour found a better market through American channels, our neighbours had the carrying trade. By admitting our sawed lumber free of duty, the people of the East and Western States, were supplied with a better and cheaper article. It also gave them the free navigation of the great St. Lawrence, and our canals, together with the right to use our fisheries—of themselves a mine of wealth, by which they acknowledge to have derived annual revenue of $12,000,0001 This however does not appear satisfy American cupidity. (Hear, hear.) and we are threatened with some new demand. It is alleged against us, Mr. Speaker, that we show no desire to annex ourselves to the Northern States, and less to assist them in the prosecution of an unholy and purposeless war upon the people of the South to all of which I plead guilty. I am forced to admit, Sir, that Canada has been benefitted by that treaty, but at the same time that I admit this, I am prepared to show that our neighbours have secured greater advantages. Abrogate that treaty, and how would matters stand with us then? Who are likely to be the greatest sufferers by that transaction? Certainly not Canada. (Hear, hear.) It must be borne in mind, Mr. Speaker, that the Northern States are also an agricultural country, and require nothing from us except it be to take the place of their own produce sent to some foreign market open to ours. It will compel us to be more self reliant; to open a communication through our own territory to the sea-board; to encourage the trade of the West to pass through our waters, and to establish in our own towns and cities, mills and machinery for the manufacture of such employing our own people in the manufacture of such articles as the country may require, and building up amongst ourselves a home market for our agricultural products. Such, sir, are some of the results which I anticipate from the movement set on foot by our American neighbours. While he, Speaker, I refuse to hear that the financial condition of this country is such as to warrant the undertaking of new and extensive improvements, I believe, sir, that we want to add largely to the length and breadth of Canada, and greatly to increase its population and wealth before we are in a position to require either canals or railways. What we must require is the settlements of the waste lands of the Crown. Our colonization roads want improvement; our free grants must have settlers upon them. The young men of our country, who desire land, should obtain it on easy terms nearer home, instead of seeking it under a foreign flag. Emigrants desirous of settling in Canada should be informed that thousands of acres of good land are to be found at convenient distance from the frontier, and reached by good common roads. I know, sir, that the hon. the Commissioner of Crown Lands has been advised to say that there are no lands in the Province fit for settlement. That hon. gentleman, however, never made a greater mistake in his life than when he gave utterance to that statement. I am prepared to show, before a Committee of this House, that there is at this moment over four millions of acres of as fine arable land in the new country, in rear of Peterboro as can be found in the Great West It is true that there is much that is not fit for agricultural purposes, but even this is valuable because of its fine timber, water-power and mineral wealth. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) The hon. gentleman then went on to say that he hoped the allusion to the great International Railway was something more than a mere bubble and that immediate steps would be taken to secure the construction of that great work. He would also deeply regret if any cause should be found to exist for charges that had been made against the leaders of the Government. Nothing, in his mind, was more desirable than to have the Government of the country conducted on the strictest principles of integrity and honor. There should be but one object in view whatever party might be in power; and he trusted that however widely they might differ upon matters of public policy, all would be actuated by feelings of loyalty and attachment to the Crown, and an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the country. (Cheers.)

CARTIER & Co.

Mr. Cartier clings to the Lower Canada leadership with a tenacity which must drive not a few of the opposition into despair. He has on thought abandoning the struggle for place or of standing aside to make room for other people. He never volunteered to retire into the ranks, after the manner talked of by his colleague, Mr. John A. Macdonald; and he is now engaged in an endeavor to show by the sheer force of tongue, that he, and he only, is the coming man. We apprehend that, let what may happen, aspirations and purpose of Mr. Cartier are doomed to certain trial and perchance to disappointment. He wants to be Premier again, whilst a majority of the opponents of the government say he never shall.

Considering the boldness with which the Coalition leaders and supporters attack the every motive and act of the administration, the emphatic repudiation of the Coalition and its doings in which other opposition speakers indulge, is, to say the least, very significant. In both Chambers, members occupying prominent positions as antagonists of the present government, disavow sympathy with the Coalition, and declare that they will not consent to its restoration to power. Mr. McGee does this to the Assembly, and we know of many there who, whilst prepared to support a motion of nonconfidence, have intimated their determination to to oppose any combination having as its chief Mr. Cartier and the members for Kingston. In the Legislative Council, the same feeling has yet more generally prevailed amongst the opposition; member who are looked upon as available for certain alliances making no attempt to conceal their aversion to the old Coalition and their want of faith in its leaders.

It is not our business to help the lame logic which finds expression thus, over its difficulties. These are obvious, if not insurmountable; the pretensions of Mr. Cartier on the floor of the House being in reality as quiescad in by all who fight under his command, and his title to office—when he can get it—being by the same process strengthened at the very time it is denied.

But the fact that the Coalition is condemned by the opposition is nevertheless unquestionable, and the reverse of complimentary to Messrs Cartier & Co.—Mercury.

What Britain Could do for the Danes.

The Army and Navy Gazette observes that, should political events render it necessary to send an army to the assistance of the Danes, we could send out a compact and efficient force. "Our troops as a body were never in better condition to take the field, and the locality is—as Lord Grey pointed out, well suited to them, that it almost tempts one to wish for war. We have now in the United Kingdom in addition to the household brigade and depots, seventeen regiments of cavalry, fifty batteries of artillery, ten troops of horse artillery, and 38 battalions of infantry. In the aggregate, the strength of the artillery may be roughly put down as 12,000, the cavalry 9,000, and the infantry 32,000, or 53 000 altogether. One half of this force placed beside the Danes would see the Austro-Prussian army on the south side of the Dannewirke for a period far outlasting the patience of their hot competitors. The household troops at home number nearly 5,000 men, and after sending out 25,000 men of all arms, we should have a good reserve in them, in the 28,000 now to wing regiments, and in the 125 regimental depots." The United Service Gazette has the following paragraph:—"We have been informed on good authority that the Secretary of State, for War, on Monday afternoon received instruction from the Privy Council to take a supplementary war credit of at-out two millions to meet expenses in case of hostilities between this country and Germany. The following corps have received orders to prepare to embark for Copenhagen; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

SEWING MACHINE DEPOT.

Over S. White's Shoe Store and directly opposite W. Cluxton's Store,

GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH.

THE very great demand existing here for Sewing Machines has induced the undersigned to open an office in Peterboro' for the sale of Sewing Machines. He will at all times keep on hand a variety of the most improved machines by different makers, which he will supply at the very lowest rates, and will give his personal attention to instruct parties who may purchase from him in their use, and also keep the machine in good running order for one year.

The most popular Sewing Machines now before the public, and which he will keep on sale, are Wanzers Singer's Sewing Machines, for manufacturers use, sold usually at $65 now offered for $65. Wanzer's, Wheeler and Wilson's, for dressmakers and other fine work, worth $45, now offered at $40. G.W. Williams's & Co's unequalled double thread Sewing family Sewing Machine, equal to the Grover & Baker's $65 Machines, offered now at $30. Patterson's Sewing Machines, manufactured at and known as the Belleville Sewing Machine, and a favorite with many persons, now sold for $20. Waxed Thread Machines, for Harness or Shoemaker's work, at reduced prices.

The advantages offered by the establishment of this depot, are a great choice of makers, and that all Machines will be guaranteed to be kept in order for one year.

VERY LOW PRICES.

These Machines are all made in Canada, and in the event of any part becoming broken, it can be replaced at once.

No Family should be without a Sewing Machine.

Call and see the Machines and the Certificates of parties using them.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT!

Give Honor to whom Honor is due.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Dressing Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Caked Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons whose word entire reliance may be placed

(From a Minister.)

DR TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted so at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it into my eyes for a short time, my eyes began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as far off as any person.

Respectfully yours,
Rev. HENRY W. REID.

Cold Water, Mich.,
Sept. 14, 1863.

REMARKS.

If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, who is an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.

DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I was in the summer of 1863 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I most heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.

Yours very truly,
REV. CORNER VERMILYE.

Skaneateles, N. Y.,
July 21st, 1863.

DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your letter of 21st inst. is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.

Very respectfully,
Hon. EZRA COOK.

Branch County, Michigan,
October 3rd, 1863.

DR TANNER,
Dear Sir

I have used your German Ointment for sick headache and think it the best remedy I can use.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. MARIA HAIGHT.

Canaan, N. Y.,
Nov. 12th, 1863.

DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.

Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COON.

Cold Water, Mich.,
Oct. 9th, 1863.

Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few doses of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar causes many doctors to squeeze from the truth. A great many run for a doctor if they do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it in his own practice He has been called up a great many times in the night to go 5 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Whereas if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors lose 10 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to an early grave, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my Rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and in nine days the dreadful disease left me I was so bad that my limb was drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.

Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

Brass and other patterns of Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Silver Wheel, from 2 to 4 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is now superseded by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they carry a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly experienced, they defy competition in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them advantages not given by no other establishment in this County, and consider they merit a share of public patronage.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every Implement required on a FARM or Improved Farm. In addition to their large and varied assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added the new STEEL PLOUGH—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No 3 CANADIAN; the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the Country, and is put up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Subscribers Bickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Plough yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Turning and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are now due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 14 feet long, and Wheel or Rose Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

PLANTING OF THE APPLE TREE.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

Come, let us plant the apple tree!
Cleave the tough greensward with the spade;
Wide the hole and deep must be made;
There gently lay the roots, and there
Sift the dark mould with kindly care,
And press it o'er them tenderly,
As, round the sleeping infant's feet,
We softly fold the cradle sheet:
So plant we the apple tree.

What plant we in the apple tree?
Buds, which the breath of summer-days
Shall lengthen into leafy sprays;
Boughs, where the thrush with crimson breast
Shall haunt and sing and hide her nest.
We plant them the sunny lea
A shadow for the noontide hour,
A shelter from the summer shower,
When we plant the apple tree.

What plant we in the apple tree?
Sweets for a hundred flowery springs,
To load the May-wind's restless wings,
When, from the orchard-row, he pours
Its fragrance through our open doors;
A world of blossoms for the bee;
Flowers for the sick girl's silent room;
For the glad infant sprigs of bloom,
We plant with the apple tree.

What plant we in the apple tree?
Fruits that shall swell in sunny June,
And redden in the August noon,
And drop, as gentle airs come by
That fan the blue September sky;
While children, wild with noisy glee,
Shall scent the fragrance as they pass,
And search for them the tufted grass
At the foot of the apple tree.

And when above this apple tree
The winter stars are quivering bright,
And winds go howling through the night,
Shall feel its fruit by cottage-hearth,
And guests in prouder homes shall see,
Heaped with the orange and the grape,
As fair as they in tint and shape,
The fruit of the apple tree.

The fruitage of this apple-tree
Wilds and our flag of stripe and star
Shall bear to coast that lie afar,
Where men shall wonder at the view,
And ask in what fair grove they grew;
And they who roam beyond the sea
Shall look, and think of childhood's day,
And long hours passed in summer play
In the shade of the apple tree.

Each year shall give this apple tree
A broader flush of roseate bloom,
A deeper maze of verdurous gloom,
And loosen when the frost-clouds lower,
The crisp brown leaves in thicker shower;
The years shall come and pass, but we Shall hear no longer, where we lie,
The summer's songs, the autumn's sigh,
In the boughs of the apple tree.

And thus shall waste this apple tree.
Oh, when its aged branches throw
Thin shadows on the sward below
Shall fraud and force and iron will
Oppress the weak and helpless still?
What shall the task of mercy be,
Amid the toils, the strifes, the tears
Of those who live when length of year
Is wasting this apple tree?

"Who planted this old apple tree?"
The children of that distant day
Thus to some aged man shall say;
And, gazing on its mossy stem,
The gray-haired man shall answer them:
"A poet of the land was he,
Born in the rude, but good old times;
'T is said he made some quaint old rhymes;
On planting the apple tree."

Extract of a Private Letter from British Columbia.

(To the Editor of the Daily Witness.)

You remember Parson White's famous letter about the fertile lands and beautiful prairies about Westminster and vicinity; the prairies are only cranberry bogs and marshes, drowned with the Fraser in June and July. All I have seen of high and dry land near Westminster is covered with the largest timber I ever did see. fir and cedar trees with an odd scrubby bush of maple in some creeks; and the land under those bushes is the hardest looking land I have seen since I left the Highlands. I have never been far off the banks of the river, but if I can this spring, I must go and see if there is such fertile land as the Columbian papers, and the rest of the boys about the city say there is away back from the River. If there is such land the boys are very slow in taking it up. The grand attraction is the Carriboo Elephant, hard as it is. The Cascades range of mountains commences about 40 miles above Westminster, grand looking mountains to be sure, a man that has a taste for sublime mountain scenery, could get his fill of it in the Cascades. They are about 100 miles wide where the Fraser and the Wagon road cross them. After that comes a comparatively open country; hills, dales and valleys with an occasional mountain, poorly wooded, and partly prairie, more adapted for sheep and cattle raising than for agriculture.—There are a few fertile spots along the streams in some places; bunch grass in abundance, on which horses and mules employed in forwarding goods thrive well. Sheep and cattle also, gone to the mines, are getting very fat on the bunch grass; but they have to prepare hay for the stock in winter, which in addition to feeding their own stock is sold to the teams and pack-trains. They make the hay on dried up lakes and marshes. The above part of the country has a scorching, burnt lookin appearance. In all this tract of country, the water is very bad, full of alkali, it is 200 miles in width, length I suppose unknown. After it, comes the Cariboo region, and plenty of good water; fir, cedar, black spruce, and cotton-wood trees, and very little grass or vegetation of any kind.—The ground in July is full of water the same as will you in March and April. The country is mountainous, but not so fearfully grand as in the Cascades. Men in the mines look rather rough and forbidding—knees and elbows patched up with old flour sacks; honest, intelligent, noble fellows for all that of course. There are some desperate characters, but John Bull's sons are pretty strict. There have been 7 men drowned the other week, coming down the Fraser; 13 in a canoe escaped belonging to Prince of Wales Claim, mostly all Canadians. The seven drowned had about thirty thousand dollars in dust, which went down with them.—I would say to young men, don't leave Canada for British Columbia; a great many Canadians, who came here with the express purpose of settling on farms, have gone back to Canada, and some of them to New Zealand or Australia, failing to find Parson White's Agricultural Paradise. We have had two very interesting lectures on the Holy Land by the Rev. Lauchlin Taylor, of Canada, and a great lecture on the effects of spreading the Bible throughout the world. He formed a Bible Society here. We had a Presbyterian Tea last Friday night; Messrs. Jamieson, Flatt and Browne addressed us. We are to have another Presbyterian Minister, on the way from Canada to this country, a Mr. Duff, in connection with the Free Church, so Mr. Jamieson tells me after Sunday. I am working on a ranch half a mile from the city, wages $25 or $40 a month, I don't know which yet. We have very wet weather here at present, we can only work three or four days in a week.—A. McK.

GREAT SALE!

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property, about two miles

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 400 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, as may be most for purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

W. S. CONGER.

Improved Lands For Sale.

CONSISTING of Lot No. 14, in the 9th Concession of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, 200 acres, with about 130 acres cleared, with a good frame house and large wood shed attached to it, beside the door of which is an excellent well, pump, &c. Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 10 feet posts, and all under-housed with stalls to the up 30 head of Cattle and 3 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors: close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

Also,—The East half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to authorise the Warden to issue Debentures on the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

WHEREAS, it is necessary to raise funds for the erection of a new Jail and it is deemed advisable to raise the same by the issue of Debentures upon the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

The corporation of the County of Peterboro' hereby enacts:—That the Warden of this County be and he is hereby authorised to issue Fifteen Debentures, for the sum of One Thousand Dollars each; two of which shall be made payable on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one; and one on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two; the said Debentures to bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, to be paid half-yearly on the first day of July and the first day of January in each and every year.

And be it enacted, that the aforesaid Debentures, and interest on such Debenture as aforesaid, shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the County of Peterborough.

County Council Chamber,
Peterborough, 27th January, 1864. }

The above is a true copy of the proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at the Council Chamber, in the Town of Peterborough, on THURSDAY, the 23rd day of JUNE, 1864, at the hour of twelve o'clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

WALTER SHERIDAN,
5 County Clerk.

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London.

May be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years' extensive and successful practice in London.

A most Scientific Invention

An Instrument for the cure of general Debility, or Nocturnal Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. These complaints can be permanently cured in from six to ten days to two months by the use of this Instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Dr. AMOS & SON, in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of this Instrument, pledge themselves that in any instance where it may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order. Price Ten Dollars, by mail or express.

YOUNG MEN TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE

Those who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately. Self abuse is one of the most formidable enemies to health, for nothing else in the dire catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the human system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system rapidly, wastes away the energies of life, causes mental derangement, prevents the proper development of the system, disqualifies for marriage, society, business, and all earthly happiness, and leaves the sufferer wrecked in body and mind, predisposed to consumption and a train of evils more to be dreaded than death itself.

PERSONS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases.

Poetry.

"NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP."

In the quiet nursery chambers,
Snowy pillows yet unpressed,
See the forms of little children,
Kneeling white-robed for their rest,
All is quiet nursery chambers,
While the dusky shadows creep,
Here the voices of the children,—
"Now I lay me down to sleep."

In the meadow and the mountain,
Calmly shone the winter stars,
But across the glistening low lands
Slant the moonlight's silver bars,
In the silence and the darkness,
Darkness growing still more deep,
Listen to the little children,
Praying God their souls to keep.

"If we die,"—so pray the children,
And the mother's head drops low;
(One, from out her fold, is sleeping Deep beneath this winter's snow)
"Take our souls;" and past the casement
Flights a gleam of crystal light,
Like the trailing of his garments
Walking over more in white.

Little souls that stand expectant
Listening at the gates of life,
Hearing, far away, the murmur
Of the tumult and the strife;
We who fight beneath those banners,
Meeting ranks of foemen there,
Find a deeper, louder meaning
In your simple vesper prayer.

When your hands shall grasp the standard
Which, to-day, you watch from far,
When your deeds shall shape the conflict
In the universal war,
Pray to Him, the God of battles,
Whose strong eye can never sleep,
In the warring of temptation,
Firm and true your souls to keep.

When the combat ends, and slowly
Clears the smoke from out the skies,
When, far down the purple distance,
All the noise of battle dies,
When the last night's solemn shadows
Settle down on you and me,
May the love that never faileth,
Take our souls eternally.

Miscellaneous.

THE SECOND SIGHT.

(CONCLUDED)

I started. Such a mill, with its broken sign, stood on the canal road, near Richmond.

"Did you say you never were east of the Blue Ridge, Judge?" I asked.

"Never," said Page. "I am a native for-bin. Know-bin, born and bug, in Louisiana and here, three-fifty years."

I said nothing of the odd coincidence, but at fastened the Judge's dream on my mind. I leaned at my watch; it was past eleven. Afterward I remembered the time; the day was the thirtieth of October.

Three days after this Judge Hepburn started with me to Richmond, taking the journey leisurely, as it was an open month for both of us. Crossing the Ohio, we spent a week loitering, gunning and fishing, so that it was about ten days before we arrived at Wheeling and put up at the Virginia House.

"John Page, of Richmond?" said the clerk, inquiringly. "A gentleman here, sir, asking if you're arrived. Is No. 46; name of Flint. Leaves in the evening boat. Sam, see if No. 16 has gone."

I followed Sam hastily, a little excited. What could have driven Flint in search of me? Letters were carried irregularly, then, and if any sudden emergency had arisen. Flint had probably thought it surer to come than to write. I found him leaving his room.

"This is luck," he said eagerly. "I was just starting for Charleston."

"What has happened?" I asked as he shut the door. "What is wrong?"

"The matter's bad enough, Mr. Page," he said, drawing a chair for me to the fire. "Old Jake Adams is dead."

I drew a long breath—of relief—I am sorry to say.

"Is that it?"

"Not all," he said with a half smile. "No mourners for that death but Jake himself, I fear. But he was murdered," growing grave again.

The horrible truth struck me as he spoke. "Go on," I said, gulping down the fear. "Who is accused?"

"Tom Sanders," said Flint, wiping his forehead.

"Before God George Flint, he never did it!" I sprang to my feet.

"I do not believe he did," said Flint. (The boy had grown thinner since I saw him; he was a good-hearted fellow, Flint.) As I paced the floor, he entered into details. Sanders was not arrested as yet, though seemingly watched; and did not know, in fact, how heavily suspicion rested upon him. Flint, being unacquainted with the facts, had not all immediately in search of me, as Tom's friend, and being the person most likely to sift the matter thoroughly. His story was briefly as follows:

Tom Sanders and himself had passed their examination successfully, and been admitted to the bar. Sanders, as the time drew near for his departure to the West, became visibly irritable and moody. One or two quarrels had taken place between him and old Adams in consequence of the cruelty which the old man practiced on his daughter. Sanders, after one of these quarrels, had been heard to threaten that he would be revenged, that it was better the old brute should go to his own place, than live to torture the girl—words which might have been uttered in the heat of passion but to which the subsequent event gave terrible significance. Two days after the threat, Adams was missing. It was supposed that had he gone down the country unexpectedly, and no search was made. The Sunday following his body was discovered in [illegible] building, a fatal stab under the fifth rib. The police were set to work, and suspicion, as I've told, settled instantly on Sanders.

"He never did it!" I repeated, pacing the floor. "I'd risk our life on that boy's integrity. What is he doing, Flint?"

"That is another thing against him, sir. He is making arrangements for marrying the girl immediately. He says she is helpless, friendless—that he is her natural protector. True enough; yet it looks suspicious to the police. Unfortunately, too, you know, he lodged in Adams' house, so cannot prove an alibi. He says the old man went out after dark, and never returned.

A long silence followed. What drove the judge's dream into my head just then?

"Flint" I said, "where was the body found?"

"In the canal."

"Where was Adams last seen?"

"I forgot to mention that. On the canal-road, just after dark. Two men passed him. Tom's story and theirs agree in that point."

"What night was that?"

"The thirtieth of October."

I restrained an exclamation with difficulty, but I [illegible]

We started for Richmond that night, going post. Judge Hepburn was too old to the exigencies of a lawyer's life to be surprised or disturbed. It was late when we reached Richmond, on a Saturday evening. Committing my guest to my housekeeper's care, I drove immediately to the magistrate in whose hands the proofs against Sanders lay.

"I have waited for you anxiously, Mr. Page," he said, after giving the details more formally than Flint had done. "I do not see how I can longer defer giving young Sanders into custody. Fortunately he has made no attempt to escape by his account, I believe, that suspicion rests on him. The proofs are strong, Mr. Page."

"Not strong," I answered. "Take counsel what you do. You throw a stigma on the man that may ruin his life. Defer the arrest until Monday noon. I have a clue, I think."

The magistrate was curious, but I kept my clue to myself.

"By Monday morning you will have the guilty party in your power," I said, confidently; "and that party will not be Sanders."

How little confidence I felt! My dream, I was almost ashamed to acknowledge, was Judge Hepburn's dream. What a broken straw that was, one can understand who deepens all supposition as I did.

It was a wretched night. I had not known how deeply I was attached to Tom; one moment, my hopes strengthening belief, I would persuade myself that, by means of supernatural aid, the true murderers might be discovered; the next, I cursed my own folly in such hope. Again, did not the evidence of the [illegible] point against Sanders? A short, stout man, he described the murderer. I offer no apology for the appearance I attached to this dream. I believe, under the circumstances, that the same excited feelings, any man would have done the same.

I left my room early on Sunday morning, a day heavy with the fate of poor Tom. I had planned my work carefully during the night. My first care was to call Pine, my valet, and question him as to the whereabouts of the slaves owned by Adams. All, he informed me, but two employed by his daughter, were in one of the slave houses ready for hire, their term of service with the planter who hired them having expired.

"Did Adams keep any of the servants in the house?" I asked.

"Only Sue, mas'r," he said. "Her's wife to White Joe down't to Grimbey's." [White Joe was a light mulatto employed at a restaurant in town, a hardened villain, I knew.]

"Adams' people weren't fond of him, Pine, I"

He shrugged a violent dissent. "Dreadful wretch, Mas'r John! Good riddance, I guess."

"Where does white Joe, as you call him, stay now?" I asked.

"Goes out mostly to see Sue on Sundays, sah."

I dispatched Pine with a note to Sanders. He came, delighted to see me again, showing more feeling than I thought was in the fellow's nature, looking happier, more cheerful than ever before. He could not be expected to mourn Old Adams' death, and the future was bright before him. No suspicion of the dreadful deed hanging over him had dawned upon him. I kept him to breakfast and walked out with him, and did all I could to show how entirely I trusted and respected him. Trifles all, yet I could note how even Flint shrank vaguely from him doubtfully. The reputation he had for love of money told against him now.

"After all," I overheard Flint say to one of the men in the secret, "it is a good thing for Sanders; and he might have thought Adams only like vermin well out of the way—God knows!"

It was a cold, clear morning. As the time drew near for the final trial I became nervous as a woman; however, I did not hesitate in my final plan. Judge Hepburn had not yet risen, break-fasted in his room, with Lemoineux indulgence. When he mustered ploughs down, Sanders was gone to return in the evening.

"For church?" said the Judge, yawning. Life and death came before the "assembling of ourselves together" in my creed.

"What say you to a drive?" I suggested.

Hepburn's eyes brightened, and in half an hour we were bowling away into the country, the high back of the gig prevented my companion from perceiving how closely my [illegible] Flint and two detectives from the police force.

It was a pleasant, enough drive. The judge was talkative, for a wonder—and, being so, did not see how difficult it was for me to command my touch or reply at the right time. We passed down the hill and reached the canal at last, starting slow travelers quickly home. Would he recognize it? I glanced at him askance.

"A disagreeable road," he said, indifferently. "Would not the place be pleasanter?"

"Let us try a little while," I forced myself to say. There was no recognition in his face. The dense story was on our another side of the famous New Orleans Grimes suit. I never knew it mentioned without a remembrance of the strong disappointment made which I listened in that day.

At last, however, upon [illegible] glance on the stables [illegible] ing stream, and the mill road.

"What is it?" I demanded eagerly.

"Nothing," he replied, rallying, and went on—"Scarcely Grimes's I said—"

But [illegible] long he stopped again, uneasily, and [illegible] silent. I did not speak, but drove on more quickly. Long the deadly gather on his face, blank amazement, something akin to terror.

At last he caught my hand.

"In God's name what is this? This is the place of my dream. The old man was murdered there" pointing to a shelving point of the bank, which we as I have been told by the police, the place where Adams had been murdered.

I thrust the reins into my hands. "Go on—the mill! There's a life on this?"

He might have thought me mad, only his own senses were bewildered. "There the woman met him," he continued, "they stood here—the young man range from yonder pile of lumber. He dropped his hat. It fell on that pile of gypsum seeds." He pointed with his whip.

A signal brought the police to our side. One of them stopped and disengaged a rail bar from the field. The Sanders Act!

I thanked God, covering my face with my hands.

Judge Hepburn did not seem to heed the interposed arrival of the police. He sprang out of the gig and hurried up the road on foot.

"The man!" he cried. "What can this mean?"

We hurried after. Crossing the fields with a sure familiar step, he led the way, until we came in sight of the ruined mill. The sign, broken, hung creaking in the wind. Bryson Brothers on the [illegible] glanced up, growing pale as the reality became more sure, then entered and walked straight to a plank more securely fastened than the others. "Do not touch it, Judge," I [illegible] in the office of these gentlemen."

The plank was soon torn up by the help of an ax, and underneath was found the coat and jacket of the murdered man, stained with blood, a woman's shawl, a smaller coat and long bowie knife, rusted with the grave. There was a needle-case and [illegible] the like. "The policeman reading it, looked up: "White Joe, Mr. Page. He's the man."

We turned to the city. I had a heavy to test the truth of the dream yet, further; so, after a whispered word to the officers, led the way to Adams' house. Several men, black and mulattoes, were lounging on the fence corner. Judge Hepburn scanned them as he came up. "There is the murderer," he said, quietly, pointing to one who slouched out of sight.

I have but little more to tell. On Monday morning, White Joe was fully committed for trial, and the next term was tried, condemned, and executed, sufficient proof being fetched against him by the confession of an accomplice, a white man. It was their intention to escape with the money they had obtained on Adams' person, to Ohio. I doubt, however, if the deed would have been committed, but for the cruelty practised by the old man on the wife of this "White Joe," the negress Sue, who was the woman present at the murder.

Judge Hepburn, singularly enough, never alluded to the dream after that day, only evincing by his intense interest in the process of the trial how deeply the matter had touched him. Some whispers of the story leaked out, however, and buzzed through their nine days of wonder.

To this day Tom Sanders does not know of his escape. There was a wedding the next week, where an honest-hearted fellow, and a good, loving girl were made [illegible] and I, for the first time in my life gave away the bride.

Two years ago, travelling in the West, I came to a home-seat in one of the Cheat valleys, where I remembered a long-standing invitation gave me a right to call myself at home. A heavily wooded plantation, a large, but cozy house, troops of well-fed servants—every sign of content and plenty.

I hardly dared to call the portly-looking host, whose face flushed welcome. "Tom, my boy," but I did, and kissed the fair, rosy matron with a will, who came down the steps to receive me.

"Tell the gentleman your name, sir," said Tom to a young mountaineer, the oldest of a half-dozen.

"John Page," was the answer, as the boy [illegible]

I looked about me.

"And this is the end of Judge Hepburn's dream!" I said to Tom.

"What did you say, sir," said my comrade.

"Nothing, my son," I answered.

Dr. Richardson, in a late number of the Social Science Review, says:—"Men of letters, men of business who do their business through other hands and do great brain work, and men immersed in pursuits, intimate to themselves usually the following maladies:—Careless melancholy, or broken heart; dyspepsia, accompanied with great loss of phosphorus from the body; diabetes, consumption, paralysis, local and general apoplexy, insanity, premature old age. The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, MARCH 10TH, 1864.

THE Opposition are now in a terrible state. They don't seem to know what to do. Out of Parliament and in Parliament they all seem to be tarred with the same stick. The Opposition party are (in their own opinion) par excellence the aristocratic party! They assume, in their grandeur and mightiness, to look down upon those in power as of lower origin. They are (in their opinions) the patricians of Rome—the ministerialists—the plebians. Well, it is no harm to the country or their opponents, to let them entertain such foolish wishes, it is would only do them any good. But their gentlemanly practice and profession don't accord very well. Their conduct in Parliament lately has been anything but according to D'Orsay. We have always been taught to look upon it as a mark of a gentleman not to repeat conversations that may have taken place in a friend's house. But as do not appear the leaders of the Opposition to think. Hour after hour and day after day have been wasted by the Opposition late retailing after dinner tattles, and in attempts to make political capital therefrom. A more dasterdly, mean, scurvy trick one can hardly conceive of. It is gratifying, however, to know that they have signally failed in their efforts. Among other things, John A. Macdonald made use of a gentleman's name as authority for some of his statements; but the gentleman in question immediately wrote, distinctly denying that he had said what John A. Macdonald said he did, and, naturally enough, giving vent to his indignation at the imputations indirectly cast upon him by the member for Kingston, namely, of having repeated private conversations, and of having betrayed private confidence. No wonder that Mr. Kirr should do so, for what else could he do but to administer this public rebuke, if he had any regard for his honor and the amenities of social life. Just so in other instances have the attempts to injure the Premier in the same manner failed. But the country should mark the men (and their abettors and supporters, too) who squander the public money by thus vexatiously taking up the time in wild declamations against the Government in general, and bitter virulent abuse of certain members in particular. Why that little sinner of a Cartier spoke some thirteen hours a few days ago! Think of it, ye declaimers against sermons and speeches of an hour's length so unbearable. Thirteen mortal hours! And the Leader, whether speaking soberly or poking fun at the long-winded Frenchman, we know not, says it was very good, except the last hour or so. Except the last hour or two!—that is not bad. That speech ought to be preserved; it has cost this Province enough—over $1000, considerably, no doubt. But that is nothing—especially when that speech was made up in no inconsiderable measure of commonplace platitudes, reckless statements, and after dinner gossip and the inferences therefrom. If the Opposition cannot spend money directly, they mean to try to do so indirectly.

The conduct of the Ministerial party has contrasted favorably. Their reticence has been marked. One of the Oppositionists, piqued at this, wanted to know, the other day, if their party had to do all the talking. The Reform party want to work, not to talk. This is what the country wants. The message has enough for them all to do. The Oppositionists cannot find fault with them in this respect. The Ministry seems anxious to benefit the country; but from the embarrassing position in which it is placed, by the defection of several of its supporters it cannot be so successful as if it could command a large majority. We may here remark that the stories so industriously circulated by the Opposition press to the effect that the ministers had tampered Mr. Wright and endeavored to seduce him from his party, is pronounced by Mr. Wright himself to be a gross falsehood in every particular, from beginning to end—a lie without any foundation at all. What with putting statements in other people's mouths—what with going around gathering up and retailing pourpandial conversations—and what with concocting bungling lies—we think the pretensions of the Opposition party to the honor of respectability, &c., which they so loudly claim, are of a peculiar character, and open to very grave doubts as regards their legitimacy.

AMERICAN NEWS.

General Kilpatrick arrived with General Butler's lines on Thursday, having lost, in various skirmishes about one hundred and fifty men, including Col's. Dahlgren, Cross, and Litchfield. He destroyed a large portion of the Virginia Central Railroad, several mills along the James River, and penetrated to the suburbs or outer fortifications of Richmond. The usual "panacea" is repeated in that city, and the evacuation of the city was rumored in Norfolk. Generals Lee and Wise are said to have had a narrow escape from capture.

The Nashville Union is requested "by the highest authority," to announce that no more passes will be granted to the wives and families of officers to the front of any of the armies in this theatre of operations. "Northern papers will save persons much useless expense and trouble by giving publicity to this statement."

General Meade arrived in Washington recently, having been summoned before the Committee on the Conduct of the War, to answer charges preferred against him by Generals Sickles and Doubleday. It was alleged that he ordered a retreat at Gettysburg should he fail to disprove the charge he may lose the command of the Army of the Potomac. General Meade has since returned to his command.

Gen. Grant has been created Lieutenant-General. Gen. Halleck will, however, retain his present place.

Gen. Sherman is said to be at Vicksburg. It was rumored that he has been defeated; but the rumor was looked upon as a canard.

Federals still keep shelling and bombarding Charleston; the Confederates reply occasionally. The city must now be much damaged.

FINANCES.

The public accounts for 1863 have been placed before the Legislature. This is much earlier than in previous years, and shows the determination of the Ministry to do the business expeditiously and well. This improvement is the result of much labor. It is, however, of the utmost importance that the Blue Book should be in the hands of the members at an earlier period than has been usually the case. The accounts on the whole present a very satisfactory aspect, and show that vigorous efforts have been made by the administration in the direction of financial reform. The balance is much more favorable than in past years—though the deficiency, yet, is somewhat considerable. The Opposition papers, with their characteristic tendency to distort and misstate matters, are trying hard to confuse and mislead the public in regard to the financial transactions of the year gone by. In this, however, we think they will be mistaken. Facts will speak for themselves.

In 1863, the five great sources of income: the Customs, Excise, Public Works, Post Office and Territorial Revenue, produced $7,643,496 96—being an increase over 1862 of $1,104,961; other sources $2,097,825 24—being an increase of $246,210 86. The entire expenditure of the year was $10,742,807 41, against $9,760,316 34 receipts—leaving a deficiency of $982,491 07. It must, however, be remembered that this expenditure "includes an extra expenditure (due mainly to the Oppositionists) of $200,000, and also about $481,116 17 for militia purposes,"—a sum much in advance of that required in former years. Mr. Holton shows an aggregate decrease of $328,873 47.

It is, certainly, satisfactory to see the improvement made by our Finance Minister, as it holds out the very pleasant and gratifying prospect that he will shortly—if allowed to keep his position—reduce the expenditure of the Province to a level with its revenue. This is what we all want. Mr. Galt left an adverse balance of $3,847,311. This was reduced by Mr. Howland to $2,764,536—and now Mr. Holton has made it only $982,491 07. Such figures tell whether or not the present Ministry is sincere in its desire to economize, and whether it is able to do so. We think that they demonstrate both its willingness and ability. Mr. Holton is outspoken, plain and straightforward—he makes no attempt at making believe that he can, magician like, by the wave of his wand, clear the country from debt. He looks at the debt, in all its aspects, in the face and says that such a thing can only be done by steady retrenchment on the part of those in power, and by levying, for a time, additional taxes upon the people. Better anything than be in debt. We are certain that the exhibit of the past year's finances will do much to increase Mr. Holton's ability as a statesman and an able financier.

The Mercury in a late article says:—

The Charges against the Premier.

On Thursday last, the Hon. Attorney General West took the opportunity of refuting the charges brought against him of attempting to corrupt certain members, in which he was most successful. He not only denied the former charges preferred against him, but in the most clear and telling manner demonstrated the utter improbability attached to them. Some of the Opposition members must have felt, we would opine, rather "small," as their despicable conduct and untruthful statements were held up to public scorn. Various attempts were made during the course of his speech to embarrass the Premier, but he is too old a debater and too wary a speaker to allow such things in the least to ruffle his temper, or prevent him from going on with his remarks. All hearing him could not help being convinced that the decencies of life had been outraged to no purpose, except to bring disgrace and obloquy upon an assembly met to discuss and consider grave and important matters, and to tend to strip it of its dignity and that respect with which it should at all times be looked up to by the country.

MINING REGION.

It is well known that the vast region of country to the North of Lakes Huron and Superior is yet unsettled, while the South side, under the Americans, is busy with life and enterprise. This has long been an astounding reproach to our different Canadian governments. If we travel through the American territory bordering upon these lakes, we will find the most unmistakeable signs of progress and improvement. The mining resources have been developed to a most wonderful degree, and lands are held at very high rates. On our side there is a wilderness—and nothing more. Why this contrast? Is it because all the mineral wealth is on the American side, and none on ours? No such thing. The Northern side is just as rich, we believe, as the Southern. The difference is in the systems of settling these land adopted by the two governments. The American land system has fostered industry and enterprise; while ours has sacrificed the general interests of the country for the benefit of a few favored monopolists. The idea of a government selling blocks of land ten miles square to individuals who, getting them for a mere song, buy them for speculation and are able to wait till something turns up to improve their value, is absurd. Such a system is destructive of the best interests of the country. It shuts the market against those who would settle on the lands they buy, permanently, and with the intention of doing their best to improve the condition of the country around.

We are, therefore, glad to see the present Government taking steps to remedy this state of affairs. The Coalition Ministry made alike attempt, but failed to do anything. The present, we think, will be more successful. With regard to the region in question steps have already been initiated. The holders of these immense blocks of lands having failed in most instances to comply with the terms upon which they were granted, the Ministry has passed an order in Council declaring that the lands which have long been forfeited in equity, are forfeited de facto. This is one of the best and most important measures the Ministry could adopt, especially when it is contemplated hereafter to break down monopoly by letting out the public lands under such conditions and on such terms as will effectually remove those obstacles which hitherto barred progress and prevented the development of those resources which, if judiciously cared for, must greatly enhance the prosperity and increase the wealth of the Province.

THAT ADVERTISEMENT!

The Review man is certainly a queer fellow. He pretends he does not read the Examiner, (and for that every body knows we are very sorry) when the fact is he reads editorials, advertisements and all. In his last issue he finds fault with us for inserting an advertisement in which it is stated that the Orangemen will have a breakfast in Peterborough, on the 17th instant. What harm in this? Cannot Orangemen, as well as anybody else, meet and have a breakfast—or dinner either—if they want to do so? We don't see anything to prevent them. He says he hopes the wiser heads will interfere. In what? In preventing the brethern from taking breakfast? That is "cute," anyway!—Innendoes will not do, Mr. Review. If you have anything to say, out with it. We are sorry that the Review did not get the advertisement, but we cannot help it if people will not go to him, and will come to us. We have no other idea but that if the Orangemen meet to take breakfast on the 17th inst., they will behave in a quiet and orderly manner, and mind their own business—what apparently some people in this world don't know how to do.

Mutual and Stock Insurance Comp'y.

We have received the report and proceedings of the 12th annual meeting of the above Society. The report shows the Company to be in a very flourishing condition—though the business is not quite so great as that of some past years. During the year 3,575 policies were issued—covering an amount of $2,466,167. The total amount now at risk is $7,878,700 20, covered by 11,570 policies—averaging $680,70 to each policy. The claims during the past year numbered 73, amounting to $24,695 37.

The Chief Justiceship of Lower Canada.

We are pleased to learn that the vacancy on the Lower Canada Bench, caused by the death of the late Chief Justice Lafontaine, has been promptly filled by the Government, by the promotion of Judge Duval thereto. The Hon. L. T. Drummond is made Puisne Judge, to fill the place of Judge Duval. The appointments throughout, and the commendable promptitude with which they have been made, are highly creditable to the Government.

ANOTHER DISMISSAL.

The Gazette announces the appointment of Mr. John McLay, Registrar of Bruce in room of Mr. Nathaniel Hammond, removed for malfeasance of office as Returning officer of the Saugeen Division, at the last election for Legislative Councillor. Hammond, it seems, got one thousand and twenty-five dollars for his own personal services and disbursements, during the few days of the election as Returning officer, and yet most disreputably abstracted from the cash sent him by the Government to pay his deputies, twelve dollars each from three of them, and eight dollars from a fourth. Then to cap the climax, he falsely informed them that these sums were not allowed—that is, had been struck of by the Auditor. The fact was, that no such deduction was made by the Auditor; but, on the contrary, that the money was sent to Mr. Hammond to pay over and he pocketed it. We wonder if our oppositionist friends will hold up Mr. Hammond as a martyr of Governmental hatred, and partizan cruelty. Verilily, the government is a terror to evil doers! If it keeps on in this way, corruption among public officials will receive its death blow before long—or at least will not be so notoriously common as in days past. No wonder some want the present government out!

THE WAR IN DENMARK.

By the latest news, we see that the German troops have entered Jutland in considerable force. The Germans attacked the Danish outpost along the whole line on the 18th ult.: but, after several hours' engagement, they were repulsed, though they conspired all their former positions.

A Danish iron-clad monitor attempted to destroy the bridge thrown over to Egernsund, but was unsuccessful.

It is ascertained that the Danes have withdrawn behind their intrenchment at Duppel.

A Danish frigate in the English channel had overhauled numerous vessels, including an American bark.

War risks were being paid on belligerents' vessels in England.

The Frankfort Diet had resolved that an embargo should be placed on Danish shipping in all German ports, in consequence of the Danes having laid an embargo on all German shipping.

The Austro-Prussian note, to the minor German states declares that they do not recognize the necessity of a federal reserve being stationed in Holstein. Should such a want arise the great powers would place at the disposal of the Diet a sufficient reserve for execution purposes. It is expected that this note will aggravate the prevailing indignation of the minor states at the high-handed proceedings of Austria and Prussia.

The United States Whiskey Bill has met its fate. Neither the Senate nor the House could agree on the question of taxing the stock on hand, and this afternoon the House killed the bill by voting to adhere to its original decision on that question. The Ways and Means Committee are about to report a general Tax bill, which will include a tax of sixty cents per gallon on all liquors manufactured after it is passed, and also an additional tax on portoleum, tobacco, etc. The House can thus describe whether it will adopt the original bill or fasten on it the new principal of a restorative tax on each article.

A gang of juvenile thieves has been lately broken up in Toronto by the police. It consisted of five members, the eldest of whom is not yet 14 years of age. They committed some thirty robberies. They were supplied with the regular tools of the "craft," and the manner in which they did their business made the police think that some old hands were connected with them. This, however, they all strenuously denied. Precocious youths, certainly. A few years at Kingston will not hurt them any.

Gen. Fremont and the Presidency.—A movement in support of General Fremont for the presidency seems at last to have taken shape and appers to be prosecuted with no reference to the action of the Baltimore Convention. A dispatch from St. Louis states that two of the daily papers of that city have put the name of General Fremont at the head of their columns as the "people's candidate" for the presidency, and it is understood that a mass national convention is to be held at Cleveland in May, about the 10th to ratify his nomination.

Mr. Stevenson's Sale.—We would call special attention to Mr. Robert Stevenson's sale of lands on Tuesday next. As Mr. Stevenson intends leaving the country shortly, bargains may be expected. The sale will take place in the Victoria Hall and not at the Huffman House, as at first advertised. See advertisement.

We have been requested to state the next practice for the Concert to be held in the English Church, will take place on Friday Evening next, the 11th March—of which all members of the Choir will please to take notice. A full attendance is particularly requested.

The Ladies' Book of March has come to hand as replete with good things as ever.—It is a wonder—and a standing one at that—why all the ladies do not take it. No family can be complete without "Godey." That's our opinion.

EXPLOSION.

A tremendous explosion of gunpowder occurred in the laboratory in the artillery barracks near St. John's gate at Quebec, on the 11th instant, by which eleven persons were lost, and several others severely injured.

Fatal Accident.—Mr. Daniel Hays, a brakesman on the Port Hope and Lindsay Railway, was killed last week at Port Hope when in the act of coupling a car to the locomotive. Mr. Hays' relatives reside in the Township of Otonabee; his remains were brought to Peterboro on Saturday for Interment.

The Bohemian, notwithstanding the efforts made to save it, has gone to pieces and most of the goods on board lost.

Thomas Chambers, Esq., was elected a member of the Town Council, for the East Ward, on Wednesday last, in place of Mr. A. Morrow, tim.

A Swindler in Elora.—The Elora Observer contains the following:—"A man giving his name as Thompson, about seven weeks ago took up his quarters at a hotel in Elora. He said his object was to purchase land, horses, store-houses, or anything which was a "good investment." He professed to be a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. He borrowed money, bought farms, horses, buggies, and things innumerable, all of which he promised to pay for after the 1st of March. On Thursday week he borrowed a couple of horses and has not since been heard of.

Mr. McGee in Luck.—The Montreal Gazette says that the friends and constituents of Mr. McGee are about to purchase and make a present to him of a first-class new cut stone house, furnished in a style befitting its character. To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

From what I hear and see I infer that it is the intention of the opponents of the new Town Hall, if possible, to prevent a reference of that matter to the people, and the conduct of certain members at the last meeting of the Council confirms me in this impression. If these gentlemen think for one moment that they are going to rule the whole town, and that they will be allowed to dictate to the people what they shall do and what they shall not do, they are woefully mistaken—and they might just as well understand once for all that they are not going to play the petty tyrant in this free and independent Town of Peterborough, and that they will never try but once to gag their constituents. I am only a small person myself, and I only lay claim to a very moderate share of this world's goods; but, nevertheless, I am a free man in a free country, and I insist on having my rights, and I will not suffer no man—not even a Town Councillor—to deprive me of the smallest of those rights. The Statute gives to the ratepayers the whole power over the question of this new Town Hall, and it says that it is they who alone have the power to decide it. All the Council has to do is simply to prepare a By-law upon the subject and refer it to the rate-payers for their decision. And that they must do whenever any one asks for it. It is curious to observe the conduct of some men. To hear them talk about politics you would suppose them to be the purest of patriots. They demand responsible government in all its fulness; they demand that the government of the country shall be carried on in accordance with the will of the people. They claim that the people shall rule. But when it comes to a petty local matter in which they have some personal or local interest or feeling, oh, then, away with responsible government. The people are not worthy of consideration. Some half dozen individuals are to have to govern the whole community, and make the public interests subservient to their unselfish designs. Such is a specimen of the men I refer to. I advise them, however to listen to reason, and to practise a little common sense. If the project is a bad one let them show it such to the people; but whether bad or good to the people the question must go, and they alone must decide it. I do hope that some member of the Council will, without more delay, prepare a By-law and have it laid before the ratepayers, and then this matter will be settled—and settled as it should be: to have the building goes on with forthwith.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—I suppose it is unusual, and may, perhaps, be by you considered out of place (in the present instance) to take up a portion of the columns of your valuable paper by anything like an obituary on the death of a stranger to yourself and most of your readers; yet, as I don't often trespass thus, and being desirous to express in some measure, my deep emotion at the unexpected tidings of the death of an old and valued friend, as well as bear my humble testimony to his worth as a public man, it occurred to me that our local press was the best means for this purpose—more particularly as the subject was himself a worthy member of the press, and for 19 years adorned the editorial chair. I refer to the death of Robert Jeans, Esq., editor of the Elgin Courier, published in Elgin, and widely circulated through the North of Scotland, which took place at his residence on Friday the 15th of January last, in his 50th year.

I left Elgin in 1856, but I may say since then my acquaintance with deceased has been maintained by receiving the Courier weekly; my early recollections, however, go back further than '56, and you know, Mr. Editor, first impressions are often the most lasting on the mind. I can recollect well when quite a boy how (in common with many more) we used to look up to and respect Mr. Jeans in his efforts to raise himself and better his position; for, be it remembered, he was born in humble life, and had to work hard at manual labor when he ought to have been at school. However, from the humble apprentice printer boy he worked himself up to that of compositor in the office of Mr. Stevenson, printer to the University in Edinburgh and ultimately assumed the arduous duties of editor of the Elgin Courier, of which soon after became sole proprietor; and, while he was thus prospering step by step in his private business undertakings, he was, also, at the same time, steadily gaining the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens as a public man. He was 11 years a member of the Town Council in regular succession, and six years held the office of Senior Bailie—the highest public office next to the Lord Provost in the city. Was a Director of the Morayshire Literary and Scientific Association, holding also a high position in many more public institutions, which need not be here mentioned—for Bailie Jeans (as he used to be called) was among the first rank of the public men of the city—ever ready to give his aid to any institution that would improve the mental or material condition of his fellow citizens—was a good friend to all around him—always extending the helping hand to a brother in distress—the appeal of misery never was made to him in vain—one of his oft repeated sayings were: "The more I give to a good cause the more and better I prosper." In his literary pursuits Mr. Jeans was also very energetic; with the earnestness almost of a Hugh Miller after the science of geology, did Mr. Jeans thirst for literary attainments; and I cannot better describe my opinions of him on this point than in the words of a well known contemporary of the deceased:—"As a literary man our surprise has always been that Mr. Jeans could write so much and so well. Some self-educated men connected with the newspaper press, have had time for self-education—many years of diligent reading and close study—the result of which is their stock-in-trade on which they can draw as occasion requires. Mr. Jeans had at no time of his life such literary leasure, for while an apprentice compositor in Elgin, and a manager in a printing office in Edinburg, he had few hours to spare—and the past eighteen on nineteen years of his life have been occupied with a newspaper and the discharge of public duties, leaving little time, indeed, for mental culture in general literature. Notwithstanding this Mr. Jeans wrote well, always clearly and often forcibly, invariably sound in great moral principles, and showing an intimate acquaintance with the events of the day. Had he not been able to do this he never could have raised the Courier from nothing to its present position among our local journals. He aspired to something above a mere summary of the week's news, showing the public that he could both think and express his thoughts as well as act the part of a mere chronicler." All honor, then, to the memory of a man who raised himself from humble life by industry, perseverance and literary talent to such a high position. In the struggles of such a man with adverse fortune, I can sympathize and feel regret when I hear of his being struck down by the hand of death soon after the greatest difficulties have been surmounted, and a time come when noble qualities might have been more adequately rewarded. The last, but not the least important feature which I shall notice Mr. Editor, is that as a professing Christian, his life was exemplary, as testified to by his clergyman, the Sabbath after his decease; and I believe, next to his sorrowing family, none will miss him more than the congregation in which he worshipped, for he was a working member. He died at peace with all men, and ready for his great change. Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of the 2nd instant, I observe an article written by "A Subscriber" denouncing some remarks of mine published in the Examiner a few weeks ago, on the proposed Local Superintendencies. In that letter I stated what I still assert to be true, "that in many Townships the office of local superintendent, instead of being an important auxiliary to to our noble school system, is, by reason of ignorant and incompetent members, beginning to excite disgust in the minds of intelligent men, and to create a desire in the community for the total abolition of that office." In order to nullify this statement "A Subscriber" refers me to your issue of the 4th of February last, in which the appointments of local Superintendents for the County of Peterborough are given, thereby assuming that my remarks were confined to this County. But I beg to inform one misty, good natured friend that my remarks were intended to apply particularly to the Township of Dummer in this County and to other townships in different parts of the country. Speaking of the appointments referred to he says: "one half of the gentlemen appointed are men of classical education, and the remainder need not blush to see their names in print." Really, Mr. Editor, is it possible that even "A Subscriber" has no higher appreciation of the qualification necessary for the honorable, honest and able discharge of the duties pertaining to his office than that a L. S. Superintendent "need not blush to see his name in print"? If this is the only test of honesty, honesty and ability which "A Subscriber" has to offer for his relative—and he has given no other—I am quite willing to give up the discussion; but I fail to see wherein the charge of misrepresentation is sustained.

In reply to "A Subscriber's" insinuation that I have some personal interest in the appointment of L. S. Superintendent in this Township, I would merely say that if that gentleman knew who "Reformer" is, he would at once see that his insinuation has no meaning—for I have not and never can have any personal interest in that office beyond what every honest citizen should have that is: a sincere desire for the welfare of our children and the prosperity of our common Schools. In this insinuation, therefore as well as in every other part of communication, "A Subscriber" has furnished us with a practical illustration of that which is implied in his favorite heading, "Misrepresentation." And by trying to help his relative out of the mud will only have a tendancy to sink him deeper.

Now, with regard to the L. Superintendent in the Township of Dummer, I would say, as I said before, that I esteem him as a neighbor, on his farm, but when he allows himself, for the sake of a few dollars, to accept the office of L. Superintendent, and when he knows that by his utter imbecility in that office he is inflicting a positive injury and disgrace upon our Common Schools; then I feel it my duty in common with others to protest against the appointment; and if "A Subscriber" did not belong to the old gentleman's family, his opinions on this subject would coincide with that of the public; for he knows as well as others that the old gentleman is not qualified to obtain a third class certificate from any respectable Board of Examiners; indeed, I defy our present L. Superintendent to pronounce the letters of the English alphabet, without committing blunders, in a dialect so ludicrous that it would excite the mirth and the scorn of every school boy in the Township.

With regard to his honor and his honesty we will leave the public themselves to form their own opinion; we would only add that the old gentleman is weakening his own pretensions to these virtues by accepting an office in which he will take the public money for doing that which he knows he cannot do.

And now, Sir, in conclusion, should "A Subscriber" again refer to the subject, thro' the medium of your excellent journal, his twaddle about our Superintendents ability, &c., &c., and about "his growing grey in the service of his townsmen," will be more minutely described and illustrated by facts and figures; and as it is not my intention to trouble you again on this subject, unless compelled to do so, I would in the meantime advocate the total abolition of the office of L. Superintendent for Townships, and the appointment of a qualified County Superintendent; and, under any circumstance, any candidate for that office should be qualified to obtain, at least, a first class certificate from any respectable County Board.

Yours,

REFORMER.

Dummer, March 7th, 1864.

ASHAMED.

We are glad to observe that the Montreal Gazette is ashamed of Mr. Cartier's loudness for personalities. The editorial correspondent of our contemporary, writing from Quebec, expresses "regret that in "this as in many of his speeches," Mr. Cartier "took occasion to go out of his way to sneer after an offensive fashion at Attorney General "Dorion. With the majority of his hearers," the writer adds, this only produces "sympathy for the Attorney General and "against Mr. Cartier." The member for Montreal East is evidently losing ground on his own side of the House. The revolt of Le Canadien, the organ of what for convenience may still be styled the Sicotte section, was significant; and now we have the journal most devoted to his political alliances hinting that he is unmannerly, and that the spice with which he tries to season his tiresome trash does more harm than good to his party. Will Mr. Cartier adopt the hint, retire to the place prepared for him by Nature on the back seats, and be silent for the remainder of the session? He has it in his power to serve both his party and the country by taking the step suggested.—Mercury.

Living in Detroit.—The Detroit Free Press, making a comparison between now and a few years ago, says:—"No young man would be so rash as to marry now. Then rents were reasonable, and clothes and provisions did not cost their weight in money. An article of dress or furniture costs at least twice what it did then. Flour and meat from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent, more. Wood, which was then bought for three dollars per cord, now costs six to seven. Coffee could then be bought for twenty cents per pound, and it now costs forty-five. Sugars which then sold at eight to twelve cents now sell at from seventeen to twenty. Butter was ten to twelve cents per pound, now it is thirty. Potatoes could be had for twenty-five cents per bushel, they now cost that per peck. Onions, which sold at forty cents per bushel, now sell at $2 50. Eggs once sold for ten cents per dozen, now twenty is the lowest figure. Groceries of all kinds have advanced at least fifty per cent., and some articles as much as one hundred per cent., and the heaviest advance is on the most indispensable articles of daily consumption."

How do they do it?—How very rich and pompous people enjoy themselves, we know not; but if you wish to enjoy relief from a cold, cough, sore throat or shortness of the breath, try Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers. 25 cents per box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

MR. BLETCHER,

Sir,—The Combination Sewing Machine I bought of you one year ago, gives me good satisfaction. I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public, as one of the best Sewing Machines now in use.

Yours, &c.,

WILLIAM MILLAR.

Hastings, Nov. 4th, 1864.

THOMAS BLETCHER, Esq., Agent for Wanzer's Sewing Machines.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in stating we have used two of your Singer's Machines in our Woolen Mills, for the past twelve months, and have every reason to be satisfied with them

We remain, yours respectfully,

THOS. W. NEILD & Co.

These Certificates are all from persons residing in the immediate vicinity; they are not like those shown by American venders, which may or may not be genuine.

Call at the office over S. White's Boot and Shoe Store, and examine the Machines for yourselves.

GREAT SALE!

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 400 acres.

That portion of property not off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Ball, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of fine new Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to two acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

Improved Lands For Sale.

CONSISTING of Lot No. 14, in the 9th Concession of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, 200 acres, with about 120 acres cleared, with a good frame house and large wood shed attached to it, beside the door of which is an excellent well, pump, &c. Also, a frame barn, 54 feet long by 36 wide, with 10 feet posts, and all under-housed with stalls to tie up 36 head of Cattle and 3 span of Horses which can all be fed together without going out of doors; close to which is a large double log barn. There is also a never failing stream of water running across the entire lot.

ALSO.—The East half of Lot No. 13, in the 9th Concession of said Township 100 acres, with 60 acres cleared and under good cultivation, with good log House, Barn, and never failing well.

The above mentioned farms are on the main road between the thriving Villages of Norwood and Hastings, one mile from the former and five from the latter, and are well supplied with firewood, cedar and pine as may be required for buildings and fences.

A large quantity of plowing has been done on the premises during the past autumn, and possession could be given in time for spring crops.

Either one, two or three hundred acres will be sold, as required by the purchaser, and as the subscriber is determined to sell, even at a sacrifice, a person who could pay a considerable portion of the purchase money down would have ample time for the remainder.

☞Title unexceptionable.

ALL CLASSES OF READERS,

Ought, by all means, to take the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

The most Valuable Journal of its class now published.

Volume X., New Series,

Commences on the 1st January next; therefore NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

MECHANICS will find in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN valuable information concerning their various trades, and details of all the latest and best improvements in Machinery, Tools, and Progress; together with such useful knowledge as will tend to dignify their occupations and lighten their labors.

Inventors will find in the Scientific American all necessary instruction how to secure Letters-Patent for their inventions; also excellent illustrations and descriptions of all the principal inventions recently made in this country and Europe; likewise an official list of the claims of all Patents granted weekly at Washington, with numerous explanatory notes; also, discussions of questions concerning the Patent Laws of the United States, reports of trials in court, with legal opinions, etc.

Manufacturers will find in the Scientific American illustrated articles descriptive of the most recently invented machines used in various manufacturing operations, the different process being lucidly described; also practical recipes of much value to manufacturers, with hints upon the economical management of factories.

Engineers will find in the Scientific American valuable descriptions of all the best inventions connected with Steam, Railroad, Marine, and Mechanical; together with a faithful record of the progress science in all these departments, both at home and abroad.

Chemists will find in the Scientific American data is of recent discoveries made in Chemistry and articles on the application of that science to all the useful arts.

Agriculturists will find in the Scientific American engravings and descriptions of all the best and most improved Farm Implements; also, original or well-selected articles on matters relating to general Agriculture; great care being taken to furnish Farmers, regularly, with such information as will be valuable in the Field as well as in the Household.

All Classes of Readers will find in the Scientific American a popular resume of all the best scientific information of the day; and it is the aim of the publishers to present it always in an attractive form, avoiding as much as possible abstruse terms. To every intelligent mind, this journal affords a constant supply of instructive reading.

Subscribers should remit so as to have their subscriptions begin on the first of January, with the new volume. Those who preserve their numbers for binding have, at the end of the year, two handsome volumes of 416 pages each —$2.50—with several hundred engravings.

Terms of Subscription.—$2 for 1 year; $1.50 for six months; 30 copies in a Club can be had for $50. Subscribers in Canada should remit 25 Cents extra to pay postage. Specimen copies sent free; also, gratis, a pamphlet of "Advice to Inventors."

DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,

Brass Castings of all kinds,

WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,

ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,

Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forges in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Rider Wheel, from 8 to 8 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, thus forming a complete assortment of all the above patterns, they up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 3 CANADIAN; the mould-board to consist of two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Wolfer and Nichols Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Plough yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Plough Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 13 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

RIGHT NAMES.

Of old a 'spade' was called a 'spade'
By simple and by stupid,
A 'workman' did his honest 'work,'
And 'servants' carried their 'wages.'
A 'man' was title of respect,
Whenever virtue stamped it,
There was but one of higher worth,
And lovely 'woman' claim'd it.
But now we masquerade with words,
The truth a great offence is,
And desecrate our English tongue
By pride and false pretences.

We shame the language of our sires—
We talk as mild and meekly,
We've 'operatives' for working men,
And draw our 'salaries' weekly.
Our 'lady' takes the place of 'wife'—
That word so true and hearty,
And every 'man' is a 'gentleman'
Unless we call him 'party.'
The 'shopman hates the shop'
And by 'perversion later'
The man who digs a railway trench
Is called a 'navigator.'

Oh give us back our honest speech,
It had a ring of hearty,
And let us do our daily 'work,'
And think it pleasant duty;
Let's earn our wages as of yore—
The work can never harm us,
Let's love our 'sweethearts' and our 'wives'
And own that 'woman' charm us,
So shall our action like our words'
Be void of affectation;
And spade be spade and man be man
Throughout the British nation.

NEGLECTED TREASURE.

The shining gold lay scattered in the mountain streams and hid among the rocks of Pike's Peak long years ago. No man then dreamed that gold was there. A few years ago some one found it out, and then thousands left home and friends, and traveled many weary miles, and toiled early and late in heat and cold, to gather up the long-neglected treasure. In the picture you see them digging the precious gold. They hope soon to get enough to make them happy for life.

But there is another treasure, worth more than all the gold of Pikes Peak. It will make the one who gets it and loves it, far happier for this world and for the world to come. A short story will show you what this treasure is:

A traveler one day called at a cottage to ask for a drink of water. Entering, he found the parents cursing and quarreling, the children trembling, crouched in a corner, and wherever he looked, he saw only marks of degradation and poverty. Greeting the inmates, he asked them, "Dear friends, why do you make your home like hell?"

"Ah, sir," said the man, "you don't know the life and trials of a poor man, when, do what you can, everything goes wrong."

The stranger drank the water, and then said softly (as he noticed in a dark and dusty corner a Bible), "Dear friends I know what would help you, if you could find it. There is a treasure concealed in your house. Search for it." And so he left them.

At first the cottagers thought it a jest, but after a while, they began to reflect. When the woman went out, therefore, to gather sticks, the man began to search, and even to dig that he might find the treasure. When the man was away, the woman did the same. Still they found nothing; increasing poverty brought only more quarrels, discontent and strife.

One day as the woman was left alone, she was thinking upon the stranger's word, when her eye fell upon the old Bible. It had been a gift from her mother, but since her death had been long unheeded and unused.

A strange foreboding seized her mind. Could it be this the stranger meant? She took it from the shelf, opened it, and found the verse written on the title page, in her mother's hand-writing, "The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver." It cut her to the heart.

"Ah," thought she, "this is the treasure, then, we have been seeking." How her tears fell fast upon the leaves!

From that time she read the Bible every day, and prayed, and taught the children to pray; but without her husband's knowledge.

One day he came home as usual, quarreling, in a rage. Instead of meeting his angry words with angry replies, she spoke to him kindly and with gentleness. "Husband" said she, "we have sinned grievously. We have ourselves to blame for all our misery, and we must now lead a different life." He looked amazed. "What dost thou say?" was his exclamation. She brought the Bible, and sobbing, cried, there is the treasure. See, I have found it!"

The husband's heart was moved. She read to him of the Lord Jesus, and of his love. Next day she read again and again; she sat with her children around her, thoughtful and attentive. So time went on.

It was a year after that the stranger returned that way. Seeing the cottage, he remembered the circumstances of his visit, and thought he would call and see his old friends again. He did so, but one would scarcely have known the place, it was so clean, so neat, so well ordered. He opened the door, and at first thought he was mistaken, for the inmates came to meet him so kindly, with the peace of God beaming upon their faces. "How are you, my good people?" said he. Then they knew the stranger, and for some time they could not speak. "Thanks, thanks, dear sir; we have found your treasure. Now dwells the blessing of God in our house, his peace in our hearts!" He said they, and their entire condition, and the faces of their children declared the same more plainly.

IMPROVED BUCKWHEAT PANCAKES.—"F. G." writes to the American Agriculturist: The finest, tenderest pancakes can be made by adding a little unbolted wheat (or Graham) flour to the buckwheat. Less than a quarter will do. Mix with cold, sour milk, or fresh, (not sweet) buttermilk, which is best. The soda, (emptyings are dispensed with,) when put into cold batter, will not act satisfactorily. Bake at once. The heat will start with the ferment, and as the paste risen it will bake, thus preventing it from falling. Hence the culminating point of lightness is attained. The batter rises evenly and beautiful, and the pancake will swell to almost a thin dimensions, absolutely the lightest and tenderest that can be baked, without a touch of acid. More salt, however, must be added than usual, to counteract the too fresh taste which soda is used. Thus the bother of emptyings is all dispensed with. Pancakes in this way can be baked at any time and on the shortest notice. We keep our flour mixed, the Graham with the buckwheat, ready for use.

A very "fat" printer died in New York recently—Austin B. Williams weighed 420 pounds and required seventeen yards of broadcloth for an outfit.

TANNER'S
GERMAN OINTMENT!
Give Honor to whom Honor is due.
TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is a article that has long been tested in North American and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Dressing Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Caked Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons on whose word entire reliance may be placed.
(From a Minister.)
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted so at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it into my eyes for a short time, my eyes began to grow stronger and get better, I am now able to read print as far off as any person.
Respectfully yours,
Rev. HENRY W. BIBLE.
Cold Water, Mich., Sept. 14, 1863.
REMARKS.
If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, who is an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I was in the summer of 1862 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I must heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.
Yours very truly,
Rev. GEORGE VERPLANK.
Skaneateles, N. Y. July 21st, 1863.
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your letter of 21st inst., is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.
Very respectfully,
Hon. EZRA COON.
Branch County, Michigan, October 3rd, 1863.
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.
Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COON.
Cold Water, Mich., Oct. 9th, 1863.
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few dozes of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar cannot buy for the Apothecary from the truth. A great many men for a short time do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided. Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it to his own practice. He has been called on a great many times in the night to go 6 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Whereas if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors lose 15 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to an early grave, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.
VALUABLE TESTIMONY.
Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my Rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and in nine days the dreadful disease left me. I was so bad that my limb was drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.
Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

THE SELF-EMPTYING
WATER-DRAWER.
THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture this celebrated
PATENT WATER-DRAWER!
AT BLYTHE MILLS.
You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them not to freeze, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes wrong or fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to replace it: so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned.

A most Scientific Invention
An Instrument for the cure of general Debility, or Nocturnal Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. These complaints can be permanently cured in from 30 to 60 days or two months by the use of this Instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.
Drs. AMOS & SON, in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of this Instrument, pledge themselves that in any instance where it may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the Instrument in good order. Price Ten Dollars, by mail or express.
YOUNG MEN TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE
Those who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asleep, and unfit you for marriage, impossible and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately. Self abuse is one of the most formidable enemies to health, for nothing else in the dire catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the human system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system rapidly, weakens the energies of life, causes mental derangement, prevents the proper development of the system, disqualifies for marriage, society, business, and all earthly happiness, and leaves the sufferer wrecked in body and mind, predisposed to consumption and a train of evils more to be dreaded than death itself.
PERSONS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their case.

Poetry.

Dear Mother I've Come Home to Die.

Dear mother, I remember well
The parting kiss you gave to me,
When merry rang the village-bell,
My heart was full of joy and glee.
I did not dream that one short year
Would crush the hopes that soared so high;
Oh, mother dear, draw near to me,
Dear mother I've come home to die.
CHORUS—Call sister, brother, to my side,
And take your soldier's last good-by;
Oh, mother dear, draw near to me,
Dear mother, I've come home to die.

Hark, mother, 'tis the village-bell,
I can no longer with thee stay;
My country calls—"To arms! to arms!"
The foe advance in fierce array.
The vision's past—I feel that now
For country I can only sigh;
Oh, mother dear, draw near to me,
Dear mother I've come home to die.

Dear mother, sister, brother, all,
One parting kiss—to all good-by;
Weep, not, but clasp your hand in mine.
And let me like a soldier die.
I've met the foe upon the field,
Where kindred fiercely did defy;
I fought for right—God bless the flag!
Dear mother, I've come home to die.

SHOW YOUR TICKET.

On the New York Central Railroad, from Albany to Buffalo, the conductors are frequently changed, with the entrance of each new one comes the annoying command, "Show your tickets!" On a night trip a few weeks since, a testy old Yankee was one of the passengers, and having exhibited his ticket to the first conductor, he placed it in a well worn pocket book, buttoned it up in the breast pocket of his coat pulled his hat tightly over his eyes, and resigned himself to sleep. The first dream was just beginning when another conductor came in and cried in his ear, "Show your ticket."

He roused up and exclaimed:

"I recon you don't want to be seein' on it all the time, dew ye?"

"Once will do for me," said the conductor.

"I should kinder think you had seen it often enough, so you kin pass along.

But the conductor insisted and the old fellow had to unbuckle, grumbling the while like a bear with two sore heads. Presently the conductor came back again, thinking he had forgot something, as he approached the Yankee roared out,

"What, you are the biggest bother I never did see—there, take a good look at it this time and don't come again.

Once more at rest, the old man stuck his ticket into his hat-band, where it could be easily seen, and settled down into a regular snore. The motion of the cars loosened his hat, and it soon fell off, rolling away under the seats. A sleepless wag, seeing the accident, approached the old man and shouted in his ear, "Show your ticket."

"Patience! massy on us!" he exclaimed, "if here ain't one of them ticket fellers again!"

He pulled out his pocket book, and fumbled it over, and felt in all his pockets for his ticket, but all in vain, and at last broke out:

"You're gor it, I know you have, I gin it to you myself."

Here he recollected sticking it in his hat, and now he commenced a search for the missing article, which had travelled far out of sight and reach. After a busy search he spied something black under a fat old lady's seat, and pitching after it waked her ladyship out of a sound sleep.

She cried out:

"What on airth are you after, I do want to know?"

"I'm only jist reaching for my hat, mum its got under your seat."

"I tell you it tain't no such thing; that's a nice excuse to be given, fur comin, feelin round people in the dark, in this kinder way. I'll tell the agent sen if I dont.

"Why goodness gracious, old lady, dont be scered, I never dreamed touching on ye."

"Well I didn't say you "dreamed" about it; but you ain't a bit too good for it, comin, around here at the middle of the night talkin, about a hat. Why don't you get your hat and go away?"

Thus permitted, the old man reached carefully under the seat to take the hat, when it proved to be the old woman's pet dog, which snapped at him with a tee-e-ose, and caught his fingers.

"Blame the little sarpint," yelled the frightened man, 'why its a hire catamount I do declare.'

'Now I guess you're satisfied,' says the old vixen, 'that your hat ain't there.'

Just then a jolt of the cars threw the poor man into the woman's lap from which he escaped with woeful scratches, and remarking more coolly than could be expected, that 'he would rather be bit by a dog than hugged by a bear.'

The wag who had personated the conductor, thought the joke had gone far enough, and picking up the hat handed it to the old fellow, and settled him down in his corner again.

WHAT KIRSTY SAW.—An English tourist visited Arran, and being a keen disciple of Izaak Walton, was arranging to have a good days sport. Being told that the cleg or horse-fly might suit his purpose admirable for tackle, he addressed himself to Kirsty, the Highland servant girl. I say, my girl can you get me some horse-flies?" Kirsty looked stupid, and he repeated his question. Finding that she did not yet comprehend him, he exclaimed, "Why, girl did you never see a horse-fly?" Na, sir," said the simple girl, "but aw wasse saw a cco jump ower a precipice."

THE AGE OF SHODDY.

All our theatres are open and they are all crowded nightly. The kind of entertainment given seems to be of little account. Provided the prices are high and the place fashionable nothing more is required. All the hotels are as crowded as the theatres; and it is noticeable that the most costly accomodations, in both hotels and theatres, are the first and most eagerly taken. Our merchants report the same phenomenon in their stores; the richest silks, laces and jewellry are soonest sold. Not to keep a carriage, not to wear diamonds, not to be attired in a robe that cost a small fortune, is now equivalent to being a no-body. This war has entirely changed the American character. The lavish profusion in which the old Southern aristocracy used to indulge is completely eclipsed by the dash, parade and magnificence of the Northern aristocracy of this period. Ideas of cheapness and economy are thrown to the winds. The individual who makes the most money—no matter how—and spends the most money—no matter for what—is considered the greatest man. To be extravagant is to be fashionable. These facts sufficiently account for the immense and brilliant audiences at the opera and theatres; and until the final crash comes such audiences will undoubtedly continue.

The world has seen its iron age, its silver age, its golden age and its brazen age. This is the age of shoddy. The new brown palaces on fifth Avenue, the new equipages at the Park, the new diamonds which dazzle unaccustomed eyes, the new silks which rustle over loudly, as if to demand attention, the new people who live in the palaces, and ride in the carriages, and wear the diamond and silk—all are shoddy. From devil's dust they sprung and unto the devil's dust they return. They live in shoddy houses. They ride in Shoddy carriages, and driven by shoddy coachmen, who wear shoddy liveries. They lie upon shoddy beds, which have just come from the upholsterer's hand and still smell of shoddy varnish. They wear shoddy clothes purchased of shoddy merchants, who have erected mammoth stores, which appear to be marble but are really shoddy. They set or follow the shoddy fashions, and imagine themselves a la mode de Paris, when they are only a la de shoddy. Their professions and occupations are pure shoddy. They are shoddy brokers on Wall street, or shoddy contractors for shoddy articles a shoddy government. Six days in the week they are shoddy business men. On the 7th they are shoddy Christians. Nor are their politics less shoddy than their religion. They belong to the shoddy party, which is always royal to shoddy, and they vote the shoddy ticket, and support the shoddy speculators which are conducting this shoddy war, not for the obsolete restoration of the Union, but for the profit and perpetuation of a shoddy dynasty. Oh, for some shoddy Junius, with a pen as keen as shoddy steel, and words that burn like shoddy "Greek fire," to write the history of this shoddy age, and prophecy that downfall which is to come! Already skrewd Lincoln sent a storm in the Babylonish air; but still the days are golden and King Shoddy marches on triumphantly. Let us, then enjoy the present, the Park, the theatres and the opera, and leave the future to take care of itself. That is the sum of shoddy wisdom, and we shall not question such high authority.—New York Paper.

THE HIGHLANDER'S PRAYER.

A Scotch Highlander, who served in the first disastrous war with the American colonies, was brought one evening before his commanding officer, charged with the capital offence of being in communication with the enemy. The charge could not well be preferred at a more dangerous time.

Only a few weeks had elapsed since the execution of Major Andre, and the indignation of the British, exasperated almost to madness by the event, had not yet cooled down.

There was, however, no direct proof against the Highlander. He had been seen in the grey of the twilight, stealing out from a clump of underwood that bordered on one of the huge forests, which at that period covered by far the greater part of the United Provinces, and which, in the immediate neighborhood of the British, swarmed with the troops of Washington. All the rest was mere reference and conjecture. The poor man's defence was summed up in a few words. He had stolen away from his fellows, he said, to spend an hour in private prayer.

"Have you been in the habit of spending hours in private prayer?" sternly asked the officer, himself a Scotchman and a Presbyterian.

The Highlander replied in the affirmative.

"Then," said the other drawing out his watch, "never in all your life had you the more need of prayer than now; kneel down, sir, and pray aloud, that we may all hear you."

The Highlander in the expectation of instant death, knelt down. His prayer was that of one long acquainted with the appropriate language in which the christian addresses his God. It breathed of imminent peril, and earnestly implored the Divine interposition in the threatened danger—the help of him who is timus of extremity, is strong to deliver. It exhibited, in short, a man, who, thoroughly conversant with the scheme of redemption, and fully impressed with the necessity of it personal interest in the advantages which it secures, had made the business of salvation the work of many a solitary hour, and had, in consequence, acquired much fluency in expressing all his wants as they occurred, and thoughts and wishes as they arose.

"You may go, sir," said the officer, as he concluded, "you have, I dare say, not been in correspondence with the enemy to-night. His statement," he continued, addressing himself to the other officers, "is, I doubt not, perfectly correct. No one could have prayed as without a long apprenticeship; fellows who have never attended drill, always get on ill at reas."

BODILY CARRIAGE.

Instead of giving all sorts of rules about turning out the toes, and straightening up the body, and holding the shoulders back, all of which are impracticable to many, because soon forgotten, or of a feeling of awkwardness and discomfort which procures a willing exercise; all that is necessary to secure the object is to hold up the head and move on, letting the toes and shoulders take care of themselves. Walk with the chin but slightly above a horizontal line, or with your eye directed to things a little higher than your own head. In this way you will walk properly, pleasantly, and without any feelings of restraint or awkwardness.

Many one wishes to be aided to overcome the habitual carriage of body, occasions yourselves to carry your hands behind you, one hand grasping the opposite wrist. Englishmen are admired the world over for their full chests and broad shoulders, and sturdy frames, and manly bearing. This position of body is a favorite one with these, in the simple promenade, in the garden or gallery, in attending ladies along a crowded street, or in public worship.

Many persons spend most of their waking existence in the sitting position. A single rule, well attended to, in this connection would be of incalculable value to multitudes—use chairs with backs that stand straight backs, a little inclining backwards, and sit with the lower portion of the body close against the back of the chair at the seat; any one who tries it will observe it's a pleasant a grateful support to the whole spine. And we see no reason why children should be taught from the beginning to write, and sew, and knit, in a position requiring the lower portion of the body and the shoulders to touch the back of the chair all the time.

A very common position in sitting, especially among men, is with the shoulders against the chair back, with a space of seven inces between the chair and the lower portion of the spine, giving the body the shape of a half hoop; it is the instantaneous, instinctive, and almost universal position assumed by any consumptive on setting down unless counteracted by an effort of will; hence parents should regard such a position in their children with apprehension, and should ratify it at once.

HOW ARE CHANGES OUR.

Those who have approached manhood a matere age, and have seen much of the world, will attest the truthfulness of the following paragraph written by Sir E. Bulwer Lytton. It occurs in one of his essays:

"There was one period of my life when I considered every hour spent out of capitals, as time wasted—when with exhilarated spirits, I would return from my truant loiterings, under summer trees, to the smoke and din of London thoroughfares. I loved to hear the ring of my own tread on the hard pavement. The desire to complete and combat—the thirst for excitement opening one upon the other in the upward march of an opposed career—the study of man in his thickest haunts—the heart's warm share in the passions which the mind, clear from inebriety paused to analyze—these gave to me, as they give to most active men in the unreflecting energies of youth, a delight in the vista of gas-lamps and the hubbub of the great mart for the interchange of ideas. But now I love the country as I did when a little child, before I had admitted into my heart the ambition which is the first fierce lesson we learn at school. Is it, partly that those trees never remind us that we are growing old? Older than we are, their hollow stems are covered with rejoicing leaves. The birds build amid their towering branches rather than in the lighter shade of the sapling. Nature has no voice that wounds the self-love; her coldest wind nips no credulous affection. She also owns the face on our age as in our youth. The friend with whom we once took sweet counsel, we have left in the crowd, a stranger—perhaps a foe! The woman in whose eyes, some twenty years ago, a paradise seemed to open in the midst of a fallen world, we passed the other day with a frigid bow. She wore rouge false hair. But these wild flowers under the hedge-row—those sparkles in the happy waters—no friendship has gone from them! Their beauty has no simulated freshness—their smile has no fraudulent deceit."

NAPOLEON'S HEART.—When Bonaparte died at St. Helena, it is well known that his heart was extracted with the intention of being preserved. The Russian physician who had charge of that organ had deposited it in a silver basin, among water, and retired to rest, leaving two tapers burning beside it in his chamber. He confessed to his friends, while narrating the particulars, that he felt nervously anxious, as the custodian of such a deposit; and though he reclined he did not sleep. While lying thus awake, he heard, during the stillness of the night, first a rustling noise, then a plunge among the water in the basin, and then the sound of an object falling with a rebound on the floor, all occurring with the quickness of thought. Dr. A. sprang from his bed, and the cause of the intrusion on his repose was soon explained—it was an enormous rat dragging the heart of Bonaparte to its hole. A few moments more and that which before had been too vast in its ambition to be satisfied with the sovereignty of Continental Europe, would have been found in even a more degraded position than the foot of Cæsar stopping a beer barrel—it would have been devoured as the supper of a rat.

CHURCH CRITICS.—Hearing the criticisms which some make on members of the church, the thought arises, Would that those who have such decided views of the christian life were themselves members of the church, to afford us patterns of true christian excellence! Do they never reflect that the rules which they lay down, and the exactions which they make with regard to christians, will be likely to be produced on their trial at the last day? The servant that knew his Lord's will, must expect plain dealing.

ROMANTIC MOVEMENT IN CORK.

A project is now on foot in Cork in connection with the Deanery, way which possesses the most romantic surroundings. It is [illegible] than a brigade of Irish gentlemen in the service under the King of Denmark in the present war. The projector of the scheme is a gentleman well known in leading Cork circles, from his professional abilities, his social endowments, and his gentlemanly bearing, rather than his wealth, not any other than he gentleman to whom we intend now to bring the leading points of a scheme, the success of which, in the county through which the local theatre was crammed on a particular night, and a song composed and sung on the occasion to celebrate the beauty of a lady, the heroine of the little incident. The gentlemen of the Waterford [illegible] the present scheme, and have taken a lease of the [illegible] Deanery estate for forty years, during which time it is intended to [illegible] the [illegible] Dane, Canute the Great, who [illegible] 100 Irish gentlemen as [illegible] to be called the Clontarfians, Count Knuckmore, a scion of the house of Limerick, the King of Denmark's daughter. These 100 gentlemen are all to be men of station and respectability in the South of Ireland, and are all to equip and mount themselves during whatever campaign they may be called on to serve in. Their uniform will consist of the national colors, and as their chapter they will exhibit the appropriate motto "Might against Might." We have it on excellent authority that 64 gentlemen from the South of Ireland, all of independent means, have already agreed to take part in the enterprise. The project is one for which it is said that never a gentleman knew slenderly purchased leaves for the campaign, and the uniform of the "Guides" has been determined on.—Cork Examiner.

SWIFT VANTOUR.

England's Danger from Privateers.

The following is from Dodsworth's Passing Chronicle:—"The position of England is altogether altered from what it was, by the danger from privateers in case of war. There is little doubt that no sooner as the belligerents recognised, that the opportunity afforded for retaliation, would will be sought among the American shipbuilders, "Lairds" to supply "Alabamas," and "Floridas" to prey upon and destroy English commerce. The history of these two famous pirates has taught a terrible lesson. Not damage half a dozen swift steamers, let loose in the Channel, [illegible] infest on a great mercantile marine." A knowledge of this fact should the Russian Government, on the occasion of the present question about Poland, to send some fleet to America, instead of barring itself to be blockaded at home with a view, in the event of a war with England, to an order their crews to fast steamers purchased in the United States, and sally forth as cruisers against English commerce. Englishmen are little aware of the fatal precedent they have established against themselves during the last eighteen months by allowing the building and fitting out of war steamers for belligerents.

THE WARNING BROTHER.

VOLTAIRE'S HOTEL RECOLLECTIONS.

Two brothers were indulged by a fond mother to early hours habits, and she took peculiar pleasure in training them to drink handsomely a glass of wine and brandy at table. As they grew up one of them became intemperate, and at the early age of twenty-one, died of delirium tremens. His screams were heard not only throughout the house but in neighboring houses. After he was gone, his brother could never drink any more. He was urged to take his glass of wine, and a reason for refusal was demanded. He was asked if he was unwell? or if it was not good enough or did not suit him. No, he said. Well, why then don't you drink? He said, at last, whenever the glass was set before him, he seemed to hear his brother say, 'Don't drink that; and he would not take it. O that every boy would hear a voice from the ruined and lost, 'don't drink that!' don't take that sweet, don't utter that foul word. Youth's Mag.

LORD MELVILLE AND HIS PET RAM.—Lord Melville of Scotland, had a large pet ram called "Bill," which used to follow him like a dog. One day he was busily left the front door open, and Bill stepped in and passed along in the drawing-room, wherein was a very beautiful glass mirror, bought of a Spanish nobleman, for nearly a thousand dollars. No sooner did Bill see his image than he gave challenge to fight, by stamping and "getting into his position," which of course was answered by the image. Bill dashed with all force against the glass shivering it to atoms. A few years after, when the animal was slaughtered, a most handsome silver-mounted snuff-box were made of his horns, and Lord Melville gave those articles to his friend William Pitt, Prime Minister of England. Mr. Pitt, in waiting to the King, and Parliament who formerly owned the ram, presented to him the story of the ram. The Spaniard read the letter as the king, who may be much amused by the occasion, that he sent Lord Melville a splendid mirror from his own palace, in return for Bill [illegible] peopled the King with the snuff box made of Bill's horn, and we suppose it is now in the palace at Madrid.

HOW HE TOOK IT.—Prof. Johnson of Middletown University was one day reading before the students an interesting letter he had before him from a number of years of various parts of the country. [illegible] English student, the spoil, why [illegible] piece of brick among the words? The Professor was taking up the stones one after another, and replied, "This," said he, "is a piece of feldspar," [illegible] promptly he came to the brickbat. [illegible] betraying any kind of surprise, he simply changing his tone of voice, "This and by holding it up, "is a piece of sandstone."

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, MARCH 17th, 1864.

PARLIAMENTARY NEWS.

There is not likely to be any Easter recess this Session—the Government wishing to expedite business as much as possible. Mr. McDONNELL declared that Manitoulin Island would not be open for settlement for another year. The Premier stated that the Government was warranted in saying that it would remove to Ottawa this year. There has been a discussion in the House about fixing the rates of interest. No two members seemed to think alike. It will very likely end in just leaving things as they are. It seems to some sense hand; but on the whole it is no doubt better for the country to let money bring what it is worth. A large number of petitions has been presented in favor of Mr. DUNKIN'S Temperance bill, which all good men and true, when they behold the terrible evils of drinking, must pray will become law. There was, the other day, quite a discussion on the Intercolonial Railway. Mr. McGEE made a very eloquent speech, which simply amounted to nothing—instead of convicting the Ministry of inconsistency, &c., as he tried, he placed himself in no enviable light. The Government is willing and anxious for the construction of such a road, but it is unwilling to undertake it and will not do so until it sees where and how the funds are forthcoming. The joint Agricultural Committee lately appointed has been discussing measures to promote the interests of this not unfrequently much neglected department.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The sale of the Great Eastern is to be contested. The King of the Belgians will be present at the christening of the young Prince. The Times is down on Gen. Banks. Attention was drawn in the House of Lords to the Federal recruiting in Ireland. The Fenian Brotherhood has also been under parliamentary notice. In a late vote the English ministry scamped a defeat by the majority of one only. The news with regard to the Danish question is meagre. The Germans had not yet attacked Duppel. A cavalry skirmish had taken place when 30 Austrian hussars were captured. Moss had been superseded in the command of the Danish army by General Gerlach. The King of Denmark is determined upon pursuing a vigorous policy. There was a report that Victor Emmanuel had offered to furnish 40,000 men and fleet to England if she would assist the Danes. The Swedish government had granted permission to its officers to serve with the Danes. Austria, in the meantime, is busy placing her army on a war footing. The Democratic institutions of the Danes are hostile to the Germans. The visit of the Archduke Maximilian is postponed. It was rumored that a new French ministry was about to be formed.

REPRESENTATION QUESTION.

On Monday last, Mr. BROWN brought up his motion, of which he gave notice, to appoint a committee, for the purpose of considering the relations now subsisting between Upper and Lower Canada. In the course of his speech he indignantly repudiated the idea of his having given up Representation by Population. When he re-entered Parliament he found a new state of things, and had to make the best of it. The representation was imperfect, as his resolution—composed mostly of the statements of those now in opposition—plainly showed. He wished some remedy. He then went on to demonstrate the injustice of the present system of representation by the census of 1861. Upper Canada had then 284,535 more inhabitants than Lower Canada. Now, by the same ratio of increase the majority was 393,181. It was evident that Upper Canada should have more representatives than Lower Canada. He showed that Upper Canada paid ⅔ of the taxation: $578,231 of $771,164 Excise Revenue; Lower Canada the remainder. He also showed the injustice of large counties having only one member, when it was evident they should be more adequately represented. He said he was determined to listen to any proposition of settlement with candour, and hoped the other gentlemen of the committee would do the same. The matter was under discussion when last heard from. We hope it may lead giving Upper Canada the justice she has a right to.

Nowsome of much importance has yet been done in Parliament; but a beginning has been made. The ministers, by their prompt men in business, show it is no not their fault if matters are not got through with. The House has, lately, been greatly refreshed in hearing those fond brothers in misfortune and trouble—FOLEY and McGEE—trying to prove themselves right, and all the rest of their party wrong. That is the way of mankind. A crazy man always imagines all the world crazy—but himself. There is such a thing as a "being turned out of office" insanity, which when it seizes upon a person has a most wonderful influence in changing his whole thoughts and actions. Hence, no doubt, the present instinct of FOLEY and McGEE—to contrary to what it once was—as like wherein others they threatened against They will run the length of their tether some of these days.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The report of the Commissioner of Public Works shows that the government building's at Ottawa, are rapidly approaching completion. About $248,346 were spent thereon last year.

AMERICAN MATTERS.

GENERAL GRANT has been created Lieutenant-General of the American army, and consequently, in point of rank, takes precedence over all other Generals. This seems to be the highest eminence to which a military man can climb. Both President and Congress appeared to vie with each other in their anxiety to honor the "hero of the day." General GRANT does not apparently mean to be idle. Already has he been in conference with the President, General HALLECK and a number of leading military men as to the best means of bringing the rebellion to a close. GRANT emphatically expresses it as his opinion that the rebel capital must first be taken. To effect this long wished for and hitherto unattainable object, various army corps are to be brought from different points to join the army of the Potomac. This combined force, it is expected, will be commanded by GRANT in person. In connection with this, it is said that MEADE will be superceded, and his place taken by General SMITH. Whether GRANT will succeed in what McCLELLAN so disastrously failed to accomplish, remains to be seen. In LEE, GRANT will find a warier foe and more cocksureness warrior than he has hitherto met—a foeman worthy of his steel.

It seems that every day the prospects of "Old ABE," as he is familiarly called, for the next four years' hold of the Presidency, are growing brighter and brighter. CHASE has withdrawn from the contest, and will, no doubt, throw in his whole influence to secure the election of Mr. LINCOLN. It appears, however, that a certain section of the Republican party, consisting mostly of Germans and extreme Radicals, are determined to run General FREMONT, as an independent candidate, if he does get the nomination at coming regular Convention. A large, well printed, ably conducted, weekly newspaper, called New Nation, has been started in New York in the FREMONT interest. General FREMONT is certainly very popular with the masses generally, and would no doubt, under other circumstances, be a most likely candidate; but we think, as things are, that "Father ABRAHAM" will walk the course without the slightest trouble.

DANISH WAR.

The present position of the British Government with respect to the Dano-German war is anything but satisfactory. The people dont like it. It is neither one thing nor the other. It is almost impossible to tell with which of the belligerents it sympathises. It appears evident, however, that the Danes counted upon the British support—though Lord Russell distinctly stated lately there was no ground therefor, or to that effect. This vacillation on the part of the Imperial Government, no doubt, materially aided in precipitating matters. Had Britain at first put in a bold front, and taken the part of the Danes, neither Austria or Prussia would hardly have dared to go to the length it has gone. It is certainly a serious matter for a nation to go to war; but if it is justifiable or praiseworthy, it is surely, when it is to take the part of the weak against the strong and oppressive.

CELEBRATION OF SHAKESPERE.

The Leader says, at the meeting of the general committee, on Saturday last, some changes were made in the programme for the celebration on the 22th proximo. The entertainment will take place in the Music Hall, and will consist of the music of "Macbeth," an address on Shakespere and his works, and readings by Mr. Vandenhoff, (whose services, we are happy to say, have been secured). There will be no tableaux, as at first intended. A guarantee fund of $500 is required; and to secure this, 100 names at $5 each are expected to be received. An executive committee of twelve has been appointed to carry out the programme. The dinner of the St. George's Society, it will be remembered, is to take place on the 23rd, and will be Shakespherean in character.

MR. BURTON'S ELECTION BILL.

This bill of the Attorney General East is a very important one. It embodies changes which cannot fail to accomplish much good—in preventing corruption and bribery at elections, and in otherwise promoting Parliamentary reform. It proposes that elections shall take place simultaneously throughout the Province—that the election shall last but one day—that sufficient polling places shall be provided so that all the votes can be cast on one day—and that there shall be no proclamation day. These are the principal features of the bill, (there are minor ones relating to bribery, &c.) and we are sure that all thinking persons who have seen and must have deplored the evils resulting from the present system under which elections are conducted, must heartily wish that Mr. DORION'S bill will become law. An incalculable amount of bribery, trickery, drinking and quarreling, will be prevented by doing away with the second day's voting—which the law as at present allows.

THE Leader and Opposition journals, generally, charge Messrs. BLACKBURN & Co., with dipping their hands, a la FOOTE, in the public treasury. Among other things, the Leader says that Mr. BLACKBURN, having a presentiment of the near approach of the death of the present Ministry, obtained an order for a supply of stationery to the Crown Lands Department six months in advance. The last previous item of this kind was nearly $10,000. The Mercury answers by saying that the order did not amount to a quarter of $10,000—the present figures being $2,011; and that the last order is about $1,500. It is also alleged that the goods are supplied at rates much below those paid by any previous Government. The Mercury says they don't fear parliamentary investigation.

A Kingston opposition journal assails Mr. HOWLAND for having paid moneys as Receiver General, to the American Bank Note Company; remarking that the transaction is not surprising inasmuch as Mr. HOWLAND'S sympathies are all with the United States. The item on which the attack is based appears on page 43 of the Public Accounts for 1863, and reads—"Receiver General to cash him to pay the American Bank Note Company for plates and printing provincial debentures, $1435,86!" But Mr. HOWLAND had nothing whatever to do with the payment, which occured previous to his acceptance of his present office. Mr. MORRIS was Receiver General at the time, and the money was paid to Mr. MATTHEWS, of Montreal, who is a partner of the American company. So much for the fairness of opposition allegations.

....The Kingston American says that on Friday afternoon a team of the Express Line, bound for this city from Cape Vincent, broke through the ice a short distance this side of the Wolf Island canal bridge. The sleigh was loaded with boxes of oranges and lemons, and other fruit, consigned to several parties in that city; but the whole was saved and will probably be subjected to little damage if properly attended to.

....The New York Herald of the 11th says:—The large fluctuations in gold during the past two or three days have unsettled prices for both foreign and domestic merchandize, and, with a light business yesterday, most goods were merely nominal. The expected increase of duties and internal tax renders holders firmer than they would be; but the gold fluctuations, nevertheless exert a marked influence, though not nearly so great an influence as formerly.

....The Niagara Mail (Conservative) is glad to see that the present government is retrenching. In consequence of the death of Captain Purden, of Queenston, a vacancy has been caused in the Customs' Department of that place. This vacancy according to the government organs, is not to be filled. If true this is a step in the right direction. So many officers at a port like Queenston, where the collection exceeds the revenue, is an absurdity—a robbery.

....Returns recently laid before the English Parliament show that the colonial and other possession of Great Britain cover an area of 4,276,000 acres—somewhat larger than the whole continent of Europe. The population, according to the last census taken in each colony—is 144,778,749—five times greater than of Great Britain itself, and equal to that of France, Spain, Germany and Italy.

....The Greennook Advertiser is reprinting short and curious paragraphs extracted from its early dates. French Canadian Missionary Society.

We have just received the twenty-fifth annual report of the above Society—the object of which is to spread the gospel among the French Canadians. The Society has been doing a good work during the past year. The different schools under the management of the Society are in a flourishing condition, and hold out a most cheering hope for good in the future. The agents have been greatly encouraged by the measure of success attending their efforts. Several auxiliary societies have been formed, and much good has been the result. The income of the past year was $12,143; the disbursements $13,156—leaving a deficiency of $2,012.

Strength of the Confederate Army.

A special correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, in a letter to that paper, thinks that the North underrate the numerical strength of the Confederate army. He gives the following table:

Number of troops in Lee's army including Longstreet's and all the forces in East Tennessee, and Breckinridge's and all forces in Southern Virginia	90,000
Number of troops in North Carolina and Eastern Virginia, under Generals Pickett and Barclay, including those at Richmond and Petersburg, and along the line of the Virginia and North Carolina railroads	22,000
Number of troops in Joe Johnson's command, including the army of the Tennessee and other portions of his command distributed in portions of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi	62,000
Number of troops in South Carolina Savannah and Florida, under Generals Beauregard and McCown	10,000
Number of troops in the Trans-Mississippi Army, under Generals Kirby Smith, Holmes and Magruder
Number of troops at Mobile, under Generals Maury and Claiborne	8,000
Number of troops under Forrest, Chalmers, Lee and Richardson	6,000
Number of troops detailed as special guards, quartermasters' clerks, hospital assistants, &c., &c., &c.	12,000
Number of troops engaged on the banks of the Mississippi, in the guerilla uniform	2,000
Total veteran troops in the Confederate service	296,000
Number of conscripts lately added to the Confederate armies	120,000
Total number of troops in the Confederate army	344,000

Portions of these figures may seem huge to some, but you will yet find, and in a short time, that they are not out of the way.

AMERICAN NEWS.

There is nothing new of moment. It seems that the Siege of Charleston has been abandoned at least for the present. It is now positively contradicted that MEADE will leave the army of the Potomac. General HALLECK is relieved of his duties as General in Chief, and has reputal to General GRANT. Federal affairs are not apparently very prosperous in Florida. It is rumored that the President will shortly issue another call for 300,000 men. The American Secretary of State has replied to certain inquiries of the Secretary of the Treasury, saying in substance that there is no imperial or provincial enactment exempting American vessels from tonnage or other duties are laid on them under the name of "light duties," "hospital dues," and "tonnage dues for the repair of harbors," &c. Hence there exists no good reason to exempt from tonnage duties vessels belonging wholly or in part to subjects of foreign powers, including those residing in the British North American provinces, on entry in our ports on the northern, north-eastern and northwestern frontiers from the British North American provinces. In view of these facts, and in accordance with the recommendation of the Treasury Department, the House passed a bill to repeal the second section of the act to regulate the foreign coasting trade on the frontiers, thus taking from her majesty's subjects the enjoyment of the privileges which were not reciprocated to American citizens by the British Government.

The people of New Mexico are said to be in fear of a rebel raid through their country in consequence of General Herron having blockaded all the routes to Mexico or the Rio Grande.

A council of the Choctaw Indians has been called to meet in April. The Confederate General Maxey has failed, it is reported, to induce the tribe to continue their relations with the Confederate government, and the convention will propose the old terms of allegiance to the United States.

TOWN COUNCIL.

MONDAY, March 14th, 1864.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Burnham, McNaughton, Hamilton, Eastland, Leonard, Stevenson, Lawson, Toole Whyte, Lundy and Chambers.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Mayor informed the Council that Mr. Thos. Chambers had been elected to represent the East Ward, in place of Alex. Morrow, Sen., who had failed to take the necessary declarations and qualifications of office.

The Mayor informed the Council that the bell ordered by him had been shipped, the a bill amounting to $318.

Several petitions regarding side walks were referred to the committee on Streets and Bridges.

Mary Donovan presented a petition stating that her husband had left her, and asking assistance from the Council, and referred to the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee presented a report which was read, and adopted. They, also, declined recommending any reduction in the amount due by A. Morrow, Jr., for Market Tolls.

A communication from Thos. Poole, was read, informing the Council that he wished to lease some of the Market Square fronting on George Street.

A communication from I. O'Beirne, Secretary of the Commissioners, asking for five debentures of $400 each, was read and received. Also, asking the Council to take steps to have streets opened recently laid out on the reserve at the South end of the Town as soon as possible, with a view to the lots being leased.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Ryan and Fanny Dougherty be allowed the same amount of charities as granted by former Councils.

The Street and Bridge committee were instructed to make an examination of the Streets spoken of by Mr. O'Beirne, and report to this Council.

The Mayor was authorised to issue debentures to the amount of three thousand dollars, and hand them over the Commissioners of the Town Trust.

The Clerk was ordered to furnish to the Council at its next meeting, a detailed statement of all fines and other moneys due to the Police Court.

On motion the Street and Bridge committee were requested to examine Aylmer Str't, near Mrs. Hall's premises, and report to the Council.

On motion of Mr. McNaughton, the committee appointed to superintend the erection of the building on Simcoe Street, to be used as an Engine House and Lock-up; be requested to have the building finished at once in accordance with the agreement with the contractor therein; and that they also have the second story finished for the use of the firemen with all speed; also, to have arrangements made for hanging the bell which is expected shortly to arrive.

The Council then adjourned for one week.

GOLD BILL.

A bill for selling the surplus gold in the treasury, for the purpose of checking money speculation, was lately thrown out of the House of Representatives at Washington. The same bill was, after introduced in the Senate and passed. Consequently after the adjournment of the House on Friday last, there was an informal meeting of Republicans, when the question was discussed as to what action should be taken on the Gold bill which passed the Senate during the day. It was finally decided that in order to stop speculation, Secretary Chase's views on this question should be sustained by Republicans. The overwhelming vote of the Senate will, therefore, insure its passage. If the bill does become law, it will, no doubt, for the present materially affect gold, and send it down with even a greater rush than it went down some little later than this last year. What may be the ultimate results—it is impossible to tell.

MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

The Hamilton Times says that there is now in course of signature a petition to Parliament to revise the Act regarding Mutual Insurance Companys. This ought to be done. In the Act are provisions which should be revised. The slightest error on part of the ensured give the Directors an advantage, which they must take under the existent law. The Times says:—

"Two brothers, without any intention to defraud, described themself in their application for insurance as owners of the property they wished to insure, without stating that there was a barn upon it. Insurance was granted, and sometime thereafter the property insured was destroyed by fire. But the Company which granted the insurance successfully defended an action for the recovery of the amount insured, on the ground that the insurers had not explained the nature of their title. The men were ruined, altho' it was proved that the fire had been purely accidental. The Directors, however, had it not in their power to do otherwise than resist the demands for payment of the insurance. The petition asks the Legislature to grant Directors certain discretionary power; in fact to allow them to do that which Directors of other Companys repeatedly do—act as common sense and a feeling of justice dictate.

GENERAL MEADE.

It seems that the charges made against General MEADE did not succeed very well. It appears that several of the Generals of the Army of the Potomac combined against their Chief. SICKLES was the principal mover. The conduct of SICKLES at the battle of Gettysburg was animadverted upon by Gen. MEADE and Gen. HALLECK—hence his feeling against his present superior. If unable to substantiate their charges, these officers should be cashiered at once. Such conduct as theirs is subversive of all military rule and subordination. General MEADE has done as well as could be reasonably expected—and it would be a pity to see him removed. This changing of Commanders has been the curse of the "grand army" of the Potomac.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

A Temperance Reunion was held in the Good Templars' Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 8th inst., at which the Temples of Hastings, Lakefield, Mount Pleasant and Peterboro' were represented. The Hastings Temple especially deserves credit for the manner in which the members turned out, there being upwards of twenty present on the occasion, notwithstanding the distance and the unfavorable state of the roads. During the evening seven persons were initiated, and signed the temperance pledge, and eight others were proposed for membership. The Temple was then closed, and the party retired to an adjoining room, where about 70 persons partook of an excellent tea, prepared by the sisters of the Friendship Temple, Peterboro, and for which they deserve great praise. Having attended to the wants of the inner man, on returning, Bro. W. McConnell, Worthy Chief Templar of Hastings Temple, was called to the Chair, and a few hours were spent in the most sociable manner, by speaking, singing, reciting, &c.

COUNTY COURT.

The following were the cases disposed of at the late County Court:

Bradburn vs. Campbell; verdict by consent $115. Dennistoun for plaintiff, Burnham for defendant.

Payne vs. Niblock; verdict by consent $161 61. Dennistoun for plaintiff, Weller for defendant.

Sutherland vs. Mahony; verdict for plaintiff $255 70. Weller for plaintiff, Burnham for defendant.

Lundy vs. Ayres, et al'y verdict for plaintiff $103 80. G. Dunsford for plaintiff, Orde for defendant.

Holland vs. Doherty; verdict for plaintiff £86 14s. 5d. Hon. S. Smith for plaintiff, Sherlin for defendant.

McNevan vs. Hall; verdict for plaintiff $110. Scott for plaintiff, Dennistoun for defendant.

Faubert vs. Scott; verdict $117 68 plaintiff: Scott for plaintiff, Dennistoun for defendant.

Neil vs. Scott; verdict for defendant. Scott for plaintiff, Dennistoun for defendant.

The Queen vs. Donald McDonald, larceny; guilty. Sentenced to one month imprisonment in County Gaol.

The Queen vs. Catherine Fowers, larceny; not guilty. The jury found the woman to be insane.

The Queen vs. William Lockhart, larceny; not guilty.

HAMILTON DEBT BILL.

MR. BUCHANAN has succeeded in getting his Bill again through the Lower House. It will be remembered that his Bill was "burked" last Session by the Upper House adopting an amendment protecting the rights of England creditors, which did not satisfy the friends of the Bill. It is likely the same fate will meet the Bill again, if Mr. BUCHANAN has not by this time got wisdom and learned to be more reasonable.

The Rev. Mr. Allan's Lecture.

We call attention to the lecture which the Rev. Mr. Allan, of Millbrook, will deliver this evening, in the Town Hall. The subject, "Thoughts on Thinkers and Workers" is a very interesting one, and from the known ability of the lecturer, we feel sure that it will be handled in a manner that will both profit and please. We hope to see a good crowd out. Don't our better classes believe in lectures?

It is about time, we think, that those public nuisances in Town: Dutch auctions, mock auctions or whatever they call them, were abated. We think that some device—legal or otherwise—might be discovered with this desirable end in view.

QUEEN'S ABDICATION.

It is rumored in "well informed" circles that the Queen intends to abdicate almost immediately in favor of the Prince of Wales, who will ascend the throne as EDWARD VII. It is impossible to tell what truth there may be in the rumor; but from many circumstances that have recently transpired, we think that there is nothing at all improbable in it. Ever since the death of her lamented partner, now by universal agreement known as ALBERT the good, she has remained in seclusion. Neither the marriage of her first born son, nor the recent birth of the young Prince has been able to call her therefrom. It is said that for some past she has taken but little if any part in state affairs. The Queen and the Prince of Wales are said not to exactly agree with regard to the present war between the German and Danes. The Queen is naturally "German" in her feelings, while the Prince as naturally wishes to aid his father-in-law. So things stand. It hardly appears that Britain cannot long maintain her present attitude, if she wishes to retain her position as a power of the first rank. Britain must exert herself. But whether this is contingent upon the Prince of Wales ascending the Throne is problematical—especially under the present system of Government, where the Ministry of the day is the real ruling power and is responsible for what is done.

No sovereign has ever been more loved by her subjects than VICTORIA—and no one ever more deserved it. They have not only reverenced her as their ruler, but have loved and respected her for those virtuous and noble traits of character she has so nobly exemplified in her life. It would, therefore, be with the profoundest feeling of sorrow they would hear of her intention of relinquishing the throne—unless convinced that such a course, while it was not actually disadvantageous to the interests of the Empire, was absolutely essential to her health of mind and body by relieving her of those many state cares and burthens, which in her present position must press upon her.

DR. S. FORD.

We are happy to see by a recent Buffalo paper that one of the young men of our Town graduated with honors in the department of Medicine, at the recent session of the Buffalo University, —and is now DR. SAMUEL FORD. We are, also, happy to hear that Dr. F. took a high standard during the Session—and that at the close thereof, he stood No. 2 in large class. He was one of two whose theses were deemed worthy of honorable mention. We understand that Dr. F., in order to enlarge his experience, and perfect himself in his profession, is about to enter the American army. We congratulate him on his past success and hope that his future may be equally successful.

CHESAPEAKE PIRATES.

Although the captors of the Chesapeake were declared by the judge of the Admiralty Court guilty of piracy, they have been discharged by a judge of one of the Superior Courts—before whom they were brought on a writ of Habeas Corpus. The judge assigned several reasons for his decision: one was that no formal application for the rendition of the prisoners had been made by the U.S.; another, that the prisoners will not come under the Extradition Treaty, because the proceedings had been irregular and insufficient from the beginning.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE.

The Globe says that the Legislative Council decided to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the committee of the Lower House which was appointed the other evening, on motion of MR. BROWN, to enquire and report concerning measures for the encouragement of agriculture in this Province. The subjects to be brought before the joint committee are of very great importance, and we have hopes that its investigations will lead to satisfactory practical results.

THE KING OF ITALY AND THE POPE.—The Caledonian Mercury of the 25th ultimo, says:—With reference to the relations subsisting between the King of Italy and the Pope, it is interesting to notice that, replying to a clerical deputation last week, Victor Emmanuel is reported to have said:—"I am aware a report is circulated of my being on ill terms with the Holy Father, from whom I nevertheless again received, during the past year, further proofs of affection on the occasion of my daughter's marriage. His Holiness has invited me to Rome. I will add that I am in correspondence with him, and that I have good hopes that the time is not far distant when all differences will disappear."

DEATH OF BEAUREGARD'S WIFE.—General BEAUREGARD'S wife died on the 2nd, and the funeral, on the 4th, was the largest ever seen in New Orleans. Over 6,000 persons attended, and the cortege was over one mile in length. Gen. BANKS kindly extended to the family the steamer Nebraska, to convey the remains a few miles up the river, to her father's plantation. The body was followed to the levee by thousands of ladies, who wished to take a last farewell of one who was loved and esteemed by all.

WE are glad, for humanity's sake, that the exchange of prisoners has been resumed by the Federals and Confederates. The Confederates, it seems, would not treat with BUTLER. The Federal Government yielded on this point. Proper Commissioners have been appointed on both sides, so that prisoners will not have hereafter to languish in loathsome dungeons without any prospect of deliverance.

DINNER OF RECEPTION.—The Governor General gave a grand dinner party on Saturday evening, and Lady Monck a reception later in the evening. Attorney General Dorion gave a large party on the same night at the Stadacona Club Room; and the Attorney General West, the Postmaster General, and the Commissioner of Crown Lands, entertained their Parliamentary friends at their private residences.

"CANADIAN POST."—This paper has again resumed publication; C. BLACKETT ROBINSON has bought out the good will of the former proprietor. From its present appearance we have no doubt MR. ROBINSON will be able to supply Lindsay with a first class paper, which will be deserving of their support.

COBOURG "WORLD."

We have received the prospectus of a new weekly about to be established in Cobourg. The proprietor MR. HENRY HORTON, has recently purchased the then newspaper office. The World will be published in the reform interest. We extend the right hand of fellowship to our Frere, and wish him success.

We invite attention to D. FEATHERLY'S advertisement in another column. Messrs. CALLENDAR & FEATHERLY have dissolved partnership. Mr. FEATHERLY will hereafter carry on the business in his own name. The references speak for themselves.

We are indebted to W. S. CORBIN Esq., M. P. P., for a supply of Parliamentary papers.

Our readers will bear in mind that the great sale of Mr. R. STEPHENSON'S property takes place in the Victoria Hall on Tuesday next, at 1 p. m.

ALLIED INVASION OF JUTLAND.

[Berlin (Feb. 21) Cor. London Times.]

We seem now to be at the most critical point of the Danish question that has presented itself since the passage of the Eider by the Austro-Prussian forces. Suddenly, quite unexpectedly as far as Berlin is concerned, and in opposition, it is fully believed, to the wishes of Austria, the Prussians have entered Jutland. In addition to the Copenhagen dispatch received by way of London, a telegram from Hadersleben of Friday night say that the Prussian guards were then still at Kolding, and that the decision whether they should retire thence, or whether there should be a general forward movement into Jutland, was expected to come from Berlin. The official and semi-official papers are very reserved upon the subject. Last night's Gazette gave the London telegram without comment; the Cross Journal talks of a disputed frontier, and says that the South part of the town of Kolding, as well as the places south of Kolding-Au, are situate within the debatable district. The Bismark organ says—but not in any authorative or seemingly official manner, that it is natural the allies, being once at war with Denmark, should not limit their operations to Schleswig; while the Cross Journal supposes that they will not go beyond Kolding and places on the same line. On the other hand, it has been for some days understood that the Prussians desire to effect a diversion, so as to facilitate the attack on Duppel, and it is manifest that in order to do so they must enter Jutland. A Copenhagen despatch says there has been a cavalry skirmish at Gudsee, considerably to the northeast of Kolding, and a good part of the way to Fredericia; but a doubt is cast on this by a Berlin journal, which would fain make it appear that the frontier was crossed only in the heat of pursuit, and after a skirmish which occurred in Schleswig. This does not agree with the alleged presence of the Prussian Guard at Kolding. A short time, however, must clear up all these doubts. Great importance is naturally attached to the solution they may receive, and should it prove that the invasion of Jutland has really taken place, and is to be persisted in, it will here be considered that a probability of a European war have greatly increased, and indeed that there is scarcely a hope of its being avoided.

ENGLAND AND JAPAN.

The London Times of the 9th says:—Our relations with Japan are steadily passing through all the successive stages which seem to be the necessary preparation to be a free intercourse between a Western and an Eastern people. The Japanese possess industrious habits and commercial instincts, but live under the constraint of jealous and absolute masters. We have, therefore, to develope the innate love of profitable trade among the populace, and to keep in check the violence of the Princes. We must push our commerce, and we must protect our people. We must make ourselves indispensable to the multitude, and show ourselves to be unavoidable to the rulers. All this we seem to be doing with our usual success, but at the same time with the inconveniences that have at all times attended the process we adopt. The correspondence which has just been printed, and of which we published full extracts on Saturday, gives a very complete view of the progress of that revolution which is soon to absorb Japan into the great comity of intertrading nations. These papers show us that we already take annually from the Japanese two millions and a half sterling worth of silk, represented by 26,000 bales, between eight and nine thousand bales of raw cotton, and between five and six millions of pounds of tea. Our imports are also increasing in the same satisfactory manner, and the people are described as becoming fully alive to the advantages of foreign trade. Many who formerly earned a scanty living by the most menial and degrading services, are now the owners of large ships and "godowns," and are daily making fortunes. Not only the traders but many of the Daimois also are actively engaged in the newly arisen commerce, and are becoming rich and prosperous by its profits.

NAPOLEON III. has written an "affectionate" letter to the Spanish Queen, replying to that in which her Catholic Majesty announced the intended marriage of the Comte de Parie and his cousin, the daughter of the Duc de Montpensier. The Emperor can well afford to be "magnanimous" on this occasion, for if the Duke of Montpensier had not married the sister of the Queen of Spain, in the Autumn of 1846, it is very probable that Nap. never would have been Emperor. The Spanish marriage business had much to do with bringing about the fall of the house of Orleans, which opened the way to the return of the Bonapartes to France, and the re-establishment of the Empire. The Duke of Montpensier is the third son of Louis Phillippe, and hence his daughter and the Count of Paris are cousins; and the issue of their marriage may hereafter reign both in Spain, and over France. The Count is the eldest grandson of Louis Phillippe, and would be recognised even by the legitimists, should the Comete de Chambers die; and his wife failing the children of Isabella Segunda, would reign over Spain, or "the Spains." The chance that such a marriage might conflict with the purpose of the men who made the treaty of Utrecht, does not excite the alarm that the Montpensier marriage excited eighteen years ago.

ANOTHER JERSEY DIDDLER.—We learn that an individual representing himself to be a Wesleyan Methodist Minister, from the other side, called on Rev. Mr. Milliken, of Wallace, a short time since, and having been invited to tea, remained all night. In the morning, after having made a long and earnest prayer, he got into conversation with Mr. Milliken—who is an open hearted Irishman—and was not long in learning that Mr. M. wished to secure the services of a brother to fill his appointments, as he would be absent from home a week or two. The opportunity was too inviting for the would-be clerical joker, and he at once offered his gratuitous services, with the understanding that, as he was a poor pedestrain, Mr. M. would give him the use of his horse. To this Mr. M. readily assented. No sooner was the coast clear than the gentleman in black made tracks for parts unknown, taking with him the horse and cutter, of course, as he was a poor walker. We have yet to learn whether any trace of the rascal has been got.—Elora Observer.

ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune, in his letter of the 26th ult., says.

The revival of the Atlantic Telegraphic Cable question, of which you may have heard a good deal, means, I think, little or nothing, as no money is known to be subscribed to it.

But an American Company has really effected a treaty with the Russian Government, for the construction of a line across Behring's Straits, connecting with that through Siberia to the Amoor River. It has, too, just obtained a grant from the British Government, allowing it to run the wire from the Russian Settlements on the North American continent across British Columbia, for a period of 33 years.

SUGAR CULTURE IN OHIO.

The report of the Ohio Commissioner of Statistics shows that in 1862 there were made in this State no less than 8,220,000 pounds of sugar. "Of this 27,000 pounds were from Sorghum; so that the point is settled that sugar can be made from Sorghum, and if so, Ohio can make her own sugar whenever it becomes necessary or profitable to do so." The aggregate value of the agricultural products of Ohio in 1862 was $151,863,547; of this amount the sugar production was worth $672,196, and the molasses crop $1,942,854.

HEAVY DAMAGES IN A DIVORCE CASE.—In the Divorce Court, London, on Wednesday, the case of NARRACOTT v. NARRACOTT and Heath, was begun before Sir J. P. Wilde and a special jury. The petitioner is a gentleman wine merchant at TORQUAY; and the co-respondent Mr. Robert Stanford Heath, is an independant gentleman of large fortune. The petitioner prayed for dissolution of marriage on the ground of adultery, and laid the damages at £10,000. The respondent, the daughter of a solicitor at Torquay, did not appear; but the correspondent pleaded to the charge of the adultery, and cruelty on the part of the husband. The trial terminated on Thursday, when the jury returned a verdict in favour of the petitioner, with damages to the amount of £2000.

MINERAL LANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,

QUEBEC, 3rd March, 1864.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands approved by HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL in Council.

1. That the tracts shall comprise not more than four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of the tracts in unsurveyed territory be forty chains in front by one hundred chains in depth, and bounded by lines running due North and South, and East and West, or as near to these dimensions as the configuration of the locality will admit.

3. The applicant for a tract in unsurveyed territory must furnish a plan and description thereof by a Provincial Land Surveyor.

4. The price shall be one dollar an acre, payable on the sale.

5. That a tax or duty of one dollar per ton be charged on all ores extracted from the tract payable on removal from the mine.

This condition applies to all Mining lands sold since the 1st day of April, 1862, and is in lieu of the Royalty of two and a half per cent chargeable on the ores from those lands.

6. That in surveyed Township lots presenting indications of minerals, to be sold on the above conditions, but at not less than one dollar per acre in any township, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

7. That not more than one tract of four hundred acres be sold to one person.

8. The above regulations do not apply to mines of Gold and Silver.

9. All previous regulations inconsistent with the above are cancelled,

WM. McDOUGALL,
Commissioner.

☞ All Locations of Mineral Lands on the North shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, and on the adjacent islands, which, on the 16th March, 1861, were liable to forfeiture for non-performance of conditions of sale and location and which have remained liable to forfeiture to the present time, are forfeited.

The locations, and their assignees, provided the assignments were made before the date hereof, are allowed to apply the payments they may have made on any location, over and above the deposit, or first instalment, towards the purchase of the same, or any other location which shall be open for sale at the date of their application to have the same so applied; but such application shall be regarded as a new purchase subject to existing regulations and must be filed in the department of Crown Lands on or before the FIRST day of NOVEMBER, A. D., 1864.

GREAT SALE!

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 440 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 341 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

THE BUSH ABOON TRAQUAIR.

BY PROFESSOR SHARP, OF ST. ANDREWS.

Will ye gang wi' me and fare
To the bush aboon Traquair?
Gin'st the high Hinchcoosie wa'll up and awa,'
This bonny summer noon.
While the sun shines fair thereon
And the light shients saftly doon on holm and ha.'

And what would you do there,
At the bush aboon Traquair?
A'along driesh road, ye had better let it be,
Save some auld shrauns o' birk
I' the hillside mirk.
There's nocht i' the world for man to see

But the lilthe lilt o' the air,
The bush aboon Traquair,"
I need nae mair, it's enough for me:
Over my cradle it's sweet rhyme
Came oongin' frae auld time,
Sae take what may, I'll wale and see.

And what saw ye there
At the bush aboon Traquair?
Or what did ye hear that was worth your heed?
I heard the ruthless crowe
Through the gloorden afternoon,
And the Quier Burn singing doon the Vale o' Tweed.

And hide saw I three or four,
Wi' grey moon bearded over,
The last that yet left o' the birken shaw,
Wi' hour mony a simmer e'en
Fond lovers did convene.
Thae bonny bonny gloamins that are lang awa.';

Frae mony a but and ben,
By mountain, holm, and glen,
They came an hour to spen' on the greenwood sward;
But lang hae laid an' lone
Been lying 'neath the grass
The green green grass o' Traquair kirkyard.

They were blest beyond compare,
When they held their trysting there,
Among the greenest hills shawn on by the suer;
And then they was a rest,
The lowest and the best,
I. the Traquair kirkyard when a was done.

Now the birks in frost may rot,
Homes o' lovers be forgot,
Nae look or lispna there may mair converse,
But the lilthe lilt o' yon air
Keeps the bush aboon Traquair.
And the love that once was there eye fresh and green.

SELLING A THIN HORSE.

A joeose Boston auctioneer was called upon one day by a country dealer from Vermont, who wished to dispose of his horse. He was one of those distinctive characters peculiar to the section, with a countenance strangely indicative of both simplicity and shrewdness.

"I say," said he, "I want to see the auctioneer that auctions off horses here on Saturday."

"I'm the individual," said the auctioneer —"what can I do for you?"

"Well I've got a horse I wanted to sell, provided I can get enough for him, don't want more than his value, neither. He's a good one, though he's just a little thin but I reckon he ought to sell pretty smart ly."

"Very well," will you have him adver tised?

"Well, I guess I don't know about that. What do you tax you?"

"One dollar the first insertion—fifty cents for every time after."

"That's two dollars for three times—I guess you may put him in the newspaper once, and other that let him slide."

"Very good—what color is he?"

"Rather brown than otherwise."

"Is he sound?"

"Sound? Oh, sound as a dollar; shouldn't like to warrant him, though."

"All right; I'll advertise and sell him on Saturday. Have your critter at the mart by twelve o'clock."

"I just want to tell you, Mr. Auctioneer, I should like to have the animal limited at fifteen dollars but you may let him go at five."

"Exactly, and you won't take a great deal more than is offered for him, will you?"

"Well, no, I'm not disappointed to be hard mayhow, I calculate not."

Saturday came, and one dollar and a half was bid for the animal brought up by the horse dealer.

"Go on, gentlemen; I have only one dollar and a half bid for the horse; how much more do I hear? One dollar and a half!—going—going!"

"Sell him sir, he's dying!" whispered the Vermont horse dealer into the ear of the auctioneer."

"Gone!" shouted the auctioneer, and down went the old horse at a dollar and a half.

After the sale, the horse dealer was the first one up to the desk to settle.

"Well, I reckon it won't take long to settle up this little trade of mine about the horse," said he.

"Not long," said the clerk—"there's your account of sale; you have to pay us just fifty cents more than the horse brought."

"Po-litical de-struction!" exclaimed the Vermonter, with a humorous affectation of astonishment. Then, with a satisfied air, he continued. "It's cheap enough!—there's fifty cents. Cheap enough! I couldn't gin him away at no price, and it would have cost me two dollars and a half to bury him. Just half a dollar saved. Good morning, Mr. Actioneer. Cheap enough!

FACING THE FOE.

Snakes are some of the most dangerous foes that Europeans have to cope with in the tropics. A traveler of the name of Baldie one morning startled his companions by the dreadful cry of "A snake! a snake! look." They all stared at him, as he was lying in his hammock, and, to their astonishment, beheld a monstrous serpent twisted round the rope which supported his hammock, with its head at some distance, darting out its forked tongue and examining him as he lay stretched below. "Lie still," cried the fiscal; "he won't hurt you;" and, calling in two or three of the natives, he pointed it out to them. One of these men advancing towards it, caught its eye with his own; the animal now appeared to move its whole body with fear or pleasure. The native stepped backwards, without turning the sight of his eye from the fierce orbit of his enemy; and as he kept backing, the snake, with its head steadily advancing gradually uncoiled its body from the rope round which it was twined. At length its whole body, trailing on the ground, moved slowly along after this colored man—eye fixed upon eye—until a youth making a dash from behind a bush, in an instant flattened the head of this dangerous monster with one blow of his club; and, although the body still undulated like the waves of the sea, it was now perfectly harmless.

A MARRIAGE.—A been customer went into a saloon a day or two since, where a near ber of gentlemen were enjoying themthemselves, and inquired if they would like to be amused with some tricks of conjuring with cards. Of course they all said yes. The stranger having placed about a dozen cards on the table, requested each gentleman to place a quarter on a card, which each was to select for himself. This done, the perpetetic prestidigateur changed the money from one card to another, and asked each of the gentlemen if the money on his card was his. Of course they each said no, because their coin had been shifted to another card. Then, said he, "if none of the money belongs to any of you; if must be mine," and he pocketed it, remarking that it was a fair transaction, because the money belonged to nobody. That fellow can travel.

HEAD OFFICE,—Place D'Armes, Montreal.

A. DAVIDSON PARKER, Secretary for Canada.

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT!

Give Honor to whom Honor is due.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Dreading Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Cubed Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons on whose word entire reliance may be placed.

(From a Minister.)

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted so at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it into my eyes for a short time, my eyes began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as far off as any person.

Respectfully yours,
REV. HENRY W. BEDE.

Cold Water, Mich., Sept. 14, 1863.

REMARKS.

If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, who is an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I was in the summer of 1862 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I must heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.

Yours very truly,
REV. GEORGE VERPLANK.

Skaneateles, N. Y. July 21st, 1863.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your letter of 21st inst., is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.

Very respectfully,
HON. EZRA COON.

Branch County, Michigan, October 3rd, 1863.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I have used your German Ointment for sick headache and think it the best remedy I can use.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. MARIA HAIGHT.

Canaan, N. Y., Nov. 12th, 1863.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.

Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COON.

Cold Water, Mich., Oct. 9th, 1863.

Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few doses of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar causes many doctors to squeam from the truth. A great many run for a doctor if they do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided. Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it in his own practice He has been called up a great many times in the night to go 5 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Whereas if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors lose 15 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to an early grave, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my Rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and in nine days the dreadful disease left me. I was so bad that my limb was drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.

Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; as you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

Dr. Amos & Son,

48 EAST GENESSEE STREET, BUFFALO, N. Y.

ARE the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London.

May be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning, until 9 at night, in every stage and symptom of Disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of thirty years' extensive and successful practice in London.

A most Scientific Invention

An instrument for the cure of general Debility, or Nocturnal Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. Those complaints can be permanently cured in from fifteen days to two months by the use of this Instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

Dr. AMOS & SON, in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of this Instrument, pledge themselves that in any instance where it may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order. Price Ten Dollars, by mail or express.

YOUNG MEN TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE

Those who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately. Self abuse is one of the most formidable enemies to health, for nothing else in the dire catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the human system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system rapidly, wastes away the energies of life, causes mental derangement, prevents the proper development of the system, disqualifies for marriage, society, business, and all earthly happiness, and leaves the sufferer wrecked in body and mind, predisposed to consumption and a train of evils more to be dreaded than death itself.

PERSONS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases.

Poetry.

DO WHAT YOU CAN.

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rock upon the mightiest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand amongst the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay,
And can lend a hand to help them,
As they launch their boats away.

If you were to weak to journey
Up the mountain steep and high,
You can stand within the valley,
As the multitudes go by—
And can chant in happy measure,
As they slowly pass along—
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

If you cannot in the conflict,
Prove yourself a warrior true,
If when smoke and fire are thickest,
There's no work for you to do,
When the battle-field is silent,
You may go with gentle tread;
And can bear away the wounded,
Or can cover up the dead.

If you cannot in the harvest
Garner up the richest sheaves,
Many a grain, both rich and golden,
Which the careless reaper leaves.
You may glean among the briars,
Growing rank against the wall,
And it may be that the shadows
Hide the heaviest wheat of all.

Do not then stand idly waiting
For some nobler work to do,
For your Heavenly Father's Glory.
Ever earnest, ever true—
Go and toil in any vineyard,
Work in patience and in prayer—
If you want a field of labor,
You can find it anywhere.

Miscellaneous.

SALA AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Mr. Lincoln does not stand straight on his feet, but sways about with an odd sidelong motion, as though he were continually pumping something from the ground—say Truth from the bottom of her well—or hauling up some invisible anchor. My interview with him was of very brief duration, and was mainly made up of common-places. Of course he said that he was very glad to see me, that he hoped I liked my stay, that I had come at a critical period, and that the country presented a very different aspect to that which it once had. Mr. Sumner informed him that I proposed "illustrating" in public what I had seen in America. "Ah," said the President "indeed! with the pencil or the pen? There is a good deal to illustrate just now." I hinted that the pen was my vocation. Neither more nor less took place. I saw that Mr. Lincoln had no wish to tell me any stories, or to talk politics; and, after another tremendous squeeze of the hand from him, I retired from his presence.

My presentations were not, however, at an end. I was taken to the centre of the apartment, where standing in a circle of the ladies, was one, short, plump, well-favoured, and attired in a velvet dress of royal purple, profusely trimmed with pearls and lace. This was Mrs. Lincoln. I had the honor to shake her hand; but it was a little hand, and my crushed digits were spared another painful ordeal. I think I can give almost a short-hand writer's report of my conversation with Mrs. Lincoln. After the first salutation, she said:—

"Do you keep your health, sir?"

I replied that I was happy and thankful to say that I enjoyed tolerable good health.

"How long have you been in this country, sir?" she asked.

I said that I had been seven weeks on the American continent.

"How long do you conclude to remain?" she went on.

I replied that I hoped to remain about seven months longer.

The President's wife was thus good enough to ask "how I liked the country." I replied diplomatically, that it was very large and very wonderful. Now ensued a deep and, to me, embarrassing silence. I didn't know what was to come next, and I don't think Mrs. Lincoln did. At last she spoke again, and once more in the interrogatory form.

"And you keep your health sir?"

I answered this kind enquiry as best I might, when, fortunately, it occurred to me that some years ago in Russia, having to go into much better society than I am in the habit of frequenting at home, I had sought the assistance of a dancing-mistress, and at the outlay of about fifty rubles, learnt a series of bows, or "reverences," for grand occasions. I gave Mrs. Lincoln the very lowest of these reverences. It is a wonderful bow, and if you don't tumble head over heels before you arrive at the climax, a very impressive one. To effect it properly your nose must very nearly touch the lowermost hem of the garment of the lady to whom you are rendering homage. I went down, and down, till I dare say, Mrs. Lincoln wondered whether the Britisher would ever come up again; but when I rose to the surface, triumphant, and with a determination of blood to the head, I could see that she was not displeased. I hope she may preserve a favorable remembrance of my bow, if not of me.

I moved slowly away, but could hear the Presidentess asking the next gentleman who was presented to her whether he "kept his health." "Do you keep your health?" evidently serves Mrs. Lincoln in the stead that "et-till-possible ?" used to serve King George of Denmark.

One word more. I had seen Mr. Lincoln and his wife for the first time in private, and under the seal of social intercourse, I should consider any description by me of their personal appearance, or any report of their conversation, published in a newspaper, to be a disgraceful violation of decorum and good breeding. I have brakes, however, no law of etiquette—I have laid myself, I hope, open to no charge of requiting hospitality by gross ingratitude—in setting down what occurred on a public occasion. It may chance some day that I shall go to Japan and see the Tycoon, or to the Grand Lama, and I conceive that I shall be quite as much justified in narrating the manner of my reception by those or any other rulers, as in imparting to you the result of my long-expected but not so copious conversation with the President of the United States.

SWINDLING IN JEWELRY.

An outrageous system of swindling has been detected and exposed in New York, through the agency of an estimable gentleman who has pursued the matter with praiseworthy zeal and entire success. The facts are detailed in the New York Tribune.

The managers of these swindles appeal to the credulous public by sensation advertisements in substance something like this.

$600,000
WORTH OF WATCHES AND JEWELRY, to be sold for one dollar each without regard to value and not to be paid for till you know what you are to get.

A schedule of articles and prices follows, embracing gold watches at $100, silver watches from $15 to $20 each, gold bracelets and chains, cameo, mosaic, coral and emerald brooches, diamond pins, gold pins, and numerous other articles, valued at from $2.50 to $70. The advertisements say that the articles enumerated in the schedule will be sold for $1 each; that duplicates of all the articles are "placed in envelopes, sealed, mixed, and sent by mail as ordered without regard to choice;" that on receipt of the certificate "you will see what you can have, and then it is at your option to send $1 and take the article or not." Certificates 25 cents each, five for $1, &c. Agents allowed ten cents on every certificate.

The gentlemen to whom we have referred above, and who is personally known to us, sent to five different firms, money to the amount of $200, and obtained all sorts of gold and silver jewelry according to the terms of the advertisements. They proved to be the most worthless and contemptible trash, unfit for use or ornament. And to expose the thing to the end, he determined to send the gold and silver articles to the United States Assay office in this city—one of the two or three offices whose certificate or stamp on gold or silver is good the world over. They passed through that office by the usual process; were melted and assayed. The 211 articles sent, weighing 60 ounces, and all sold by these five firms for gold and silver, were worth in the aggregate, according to their representations, five hundred and ninety-nine dollars (599.) Their actual value, by the certificate of the Assay Office, was nine dollars and sixty-two cents, (9.62). That is, for a cash investment of $200 with five firms (according to their advertisement of watches and jewelry, to be sold at $1 each without regard to value, and not to be paid for till you know what you are to get), there were received 211 articles of jewelry, &c., represented to be worth $569, and actually worth in gold and silver $9.62. If, according to a familiar rule, you double the value of the gold and silver so as to include the cost of workmanship, then for $200 paid $19.24 were received.

We need not pursue the subject. The public are indebted to the worthy gentleman who has given his time and money to this matter; and we are also doing some service in warning our readers against all glowing advertisements that promise to give away gold and silver in these times.

Anecdotes of a Scotch Worthy.

The Scottish Review, noticing Professor Dyson's paper in McMillan's Magazine, gives some fresh anecdotes of the late Rev. Patrick Robertson,—

The Rev. Patrick Robertson of the Secession Church at Craigiehall, was a man that no one who ever heard him will forget. He preached in the broadest vernacular with a vigor in his best days, and was particularly noted for the uncouth accent with which he referred, and was constantly referring to the spiritual enemy of man, whom on principle he invariably called "the Deevil." On principle, we say, for a younger brother, who wished to correct the old man's habit in a marked but unobtrusive way, took occasion to repeat the word somewhat pointedly, several times in a sentence, with the ordinary accent and quantity, till Mr. R. could stand it no longer. "Divvie!" he exclaimed, "man canna ye say deevil, as dee; no that it matters muckle, but eh, man, its kindlier like."

The writer of this notice remembers walking a distance of six miles to a place called Whitekirk, in Banffshire, to hear Mr. Robertson preach. The subject of discourse led him to describe the sisters of Lazarus, whom he characterised, as we can well recollect, exactly in the following terms:—"Mary," he remarked, was a quaet (quiet) crater, and sat at the feet o' Jaasus, and listened to his ewn a discourse, an thocht she never heard anything like it. But Martha was a thrifty, fuethrin wife, that father'd 'bout the house, and ben the house, and had a' her pats an her pans gaun, an heard a word noo an a word then, and like ither thrifty women, had rather a sharp temper o' her ain; for she couldna keep her ill tongue ye observe, off o' our Lord himsel." This is a picture, it must be admitted, faithful rather to human nature than to the master of an Oriental household; but it was effective and it was remembered. At a subsequent portion of his discourse he threw the old ladies that had clustered on and around the pulpit stair into a state of perceptible emotion by a singularly direct reference to a subject on which all women are supposed to be sensitive. "Here y're sitten wi' your sul' withert faces that's bonier to me than a lass to her teens, for I ken ye hae seen sixty or seventy ilk ane o' you, and your sul' faces jist says to me, "We hae served our Master three score years and we're no tired serving him yet."

CORRECTING CHILDREN.

Not long ago an editor in the Northern part of the State of New York, told his son, about eleven years old, that he would whip him in the course of a few hours, and locked him in an upper room until he had leisure to do so. When the boy heard the father coming he became so alarmed that he jumped out of the window and broke his neck.

About a year ago a mother punished her little daughter, of eight years, by shutting her up in a dark closet; the child became so frightened that convulsions were induced, which resulted in death. In another case of a similar character, the result was still more calamitous, for the child became epileptic, and so remained for a long life afterward.

The object of parental correction should be the ultimate good of the child; and to make it effective.

1. The character of punishment should be according to the disposition and temperament of the child.

2. The punishment should be in proportion to the nature of the offence.

3. The punishment should be inflicted with the utmost self-possession; for if done in a towering passion, it takes the character of revenge; the child sees it and resists it with defiance, stubbornness, or with a feeling of being the injured or opposed party.

4. Punishment should never be threatened, for one or two results, both unfortunate, are certain; the promise will not be kept and the child loses confidence in parental assertions; or the child's mind, dwelling upon what is expected, suffers a lengthened torture, imagination always aggravating the severity of the chastisement, and the child generally leaves the whole matter in a wrong event which is at all likely to usher in the correction, and the foundation is laid for that dark future of the future which is the bane of all human happiness; and in some cases the severity of the expected suffering looms up so largely under the influence of a distempered imagination, that, as in the case of the editor's child, suicide is considered the lesser evil. It is nothing less than a savage barbarity for any parent to hold the mind of a child in a state of terrorism for a single hour, let alone for days and weeks.

5. Never correct a child by scolding admonition, or castigation in the presence of any other person whatever. It is an attack on the self-esteem which provokes resentance and passion. Let grown persons recollect how ill they bear even deserved reproof in the presence of others.

6. Never punish a child twice for any one offence; it is a great injustice, a relic of barbarism, and always either discourages or hardens. Make each punishment final in itself, and don't be forever harping on what is past.

7. Punishment should not be inflicted in any case before placing clearly before the child's mind the nature of the aggravation, and that the sole design of chastisement or reproof is his present and future welfare.

8. In all cases where punishment is decided upon, it should be prompt, or deferred, according to the degree of aggravation or palpable wrong. It is almost always better to defer, but in such cases threaten nothing, say nothing, do nothing which indicates in the slightest degree that any thing is to come. And when the time does come, do not alarm the child with any show or preparation, but gradually and affectionately bring up the whole matter; place it in its true, just, and clear light, and act accordingly; and always, as much as possible, appeal to the child's conscience, to its sense of right, to its magnanimity, to its benevolence toward men, and its gratitude toward God.

A Paris letter-writer gives the following sketch of the hideous nuisance of "New Year's gifts" in Paris. It is difficult to decide whether the folly or the vulgarity of such a state of things be more flagrant: I was surveying the collection of New Year tapers which had been lerved by Madame du P. Her fair daughter was at hand. I lifted a very pretty box, lightly and brightly put together. I remarked that the taste shown in it was exquisite. The young lady shrugged her shoulders, and answered: "That, Monsieur; I'm sure it didnt cost ten francs!" Unhappy wight is he who had given that exquisite little box of sweetmeats to Madame du H. It is true that he is only a young employe at the Ministry of the Interior, and that he has only a very few hundred francs per annum; nevertheless, he should not have done the thing. He should have put the watch his mother gave him into "Petty's fair Monet," and have lived for a month or two on haricots, and in this way, afforded to march boldly into the renewed establishment of Sirandin. These are not the days for sentimental gifts. Gifts are not held to the heart, they are appraised. There are people here who are known to stint themselves and their families for months in order to make a grand appearance as distributors of gorgeous extremes on New Year's day. I heard of one family a few weeks since, who decided to remain away from Paris during the "festive season of the year," because the extremes they were compelled to give last year cost them 20,000 francs—or eight hundred pounds! This sum may appear an aggregation to the simple reader; but it is not a startling one to the observer who has been a watchful atom in the crowds that have seen the articles in the shops of the toymakers, the chocolate manufacturers, the confectioners and jewellers of Paris.

The Wesleyans of England are making great exertions in "Church Extension." They have paid out, within a few years, nearly half a million sterling on church debts. They are building many new and elegant churches every year, and at the present time their most popular clergyman, Rev. William Morley Punchon, has volunteered to go forth on a tour of lecturing and preaching through the United Kingdom, to raise funds to build new churches.

COMMERCIAL INTERESTS.

In a case tried in the Lord Mayor's Court, a short time ago—Thrussler was the London, Chatham and Dover Railway Company—the plaintiff, who is the well-known ocean and fire manufacturer, recovered £9,306 compensation for the loss of his house and business at 42, Ludgate hill, London.

One part of plaintiff's claim was a sum of £500 put as "loss of profit and advertising."—In support of that claim the plaintiff was called and said:—

"I look upon money expended in advertising as capital invested; in my case I have expended £5,000 in advertising the business which I was the first to introduce into the older the advertisement, the more surely comes the return; it was only the other day that a gentleman from Canada presented me an advertisement which he said he had cut out of a paper seven years old. He had kept it, and found my stock by its means."

To answer this it was said for the company that an advertisement might die out for subjects, and that it was a very good opportunity for plaintiff to issue afresh an advertisement with the words "Prize medal holder" inserted.

His lordship remarked that no doubt, prevailing was of the very highest importance to business, and the plaintiff was evidently of opinion that he had derived considerable interest from following it up. It was indeed stated in the evidence that plaintiff considered he had made 10s per cent upon the per annum on the £5,000 expended. That meant that plaintiff had four £500 or five percent profit on setting out of the consequence of his advertising as true it was, as would be seen, of considerable importance to the trades generally that persons should consider well the whole mood to be adopted, for the plaintiff had evidently reduced the matter to a science.

Canadian business men might take a hint or two from the above.

SLEEP WALKING.

A case is related of an English clergyman who used to get up in the night, light his candle, write his sermons, correct them with interlineations, and retire to bed again, being all the time asleep. The Archbishop of Bordeaux mentions a similar case of a student, who got up to compose a sermon while asleep, wrote it correctly, read it over from beginning to end, or at least appeared to read it, made corrections on it, scratched out lines, and substituted others, put in its place a word that had been omitted, composed music, wrote it accurately down, and performed other things equally surprising. Dr. Gall notices a miller, who from the habit of getting up every night, and attend to his usual occupations at the mill, and return to bed: on making in the morning he remembered nothing of what had passed during the night. Martinet speaks of a saddler who was accustomed to rise in his sleep and work at his trade; and Dr. Pritchard of a farmer who got out of bed, dressed himself, saddled his horse, and rode to market, being all the while asleep. Dr. Blacklock, on one occasion, rose from bed, to which he retired at an early hour, came into the room where his family were assembled, conversed with them, and afterwards entertained them with a song, without any of them suspecting he was asleep, and without his retaining after he awoke, the least recollection of what he had done. It is a singular, yet well-authenticated fact, that in the disastrous retreat of Sir John Moore many of the soldiers fell asleep, yet continued to march with their comrades.

CIVILITY REWARDED.—I know of no incident more curious than the following, the moral of which would seem to be that we ought all to go to church early and be sure a good place. Like the wont of Waverly, "'tis sixty years since," when a young gentleman named Green, the son of a clergyman, wishing to hear a famous preacher, went one Sunday morning unusually early to church, and thereby secured a good place in a pew near the preacher. The church filled rapidly, and a venerable and rather infirm looking old man, after walking up and down the various aisles being unable to get a seat, was about to leave the church, when Green, who was a good natured young fellow, took pity on him and he looked very weak and ill, and offered him his seat; it was accepted with many thanks, whilst Green stood with his back against the wall during the service and sermon. On leaving the church the old gentleman again thanked him, and asked his name and address, which were given. A few days after Mr. Green received an invitation to dinner from the stranger, who was living in Grosvernor square. It would appear that the acquaintance, thus accidentally formed, became a fast friendship, for the old gentleman shortly afterwards died, and left the whole of his fortune, a very considerable one, to his young friend, with the condition that he should take the name of Wilkinson in addition to that of Green. I may add that the young gentleman made the most excellent use of the fortune which he owed to his good nature, and eventually became the head of a very popular and prosperous family.

IVORY.—Few persons are aware of the immense demand there is for ivory in our day. At the close of the last century England did not work more than 90,000lbs. of ivory per annum; in 1827 the demand had risen to 364,584lbs., which supposes the death of 3,040 male elephants per annum, yielding 6,080 tusks, averaging 60lb. each. At present England consumes a million of pounds per annum, or upwards three times the consumption of 1827; and, therefore, the number of Elephants killed for England alone must be 9,333 or thereabout. About 4,000 men loose their lives annually in the pursuit after ivory, that, in order to provide the world with combs, knife-handles, billiard balls, &c. . . A tusk weighing 70lb. is considered by the trade a first class one.—The hippopotamus also yields ivory, which is much harder and less elastic than that of the elephant, besides being of much smaller dimensions.

THURSDAY, MARCH 24th, 1864.

MINISTRY RESIGNED!!!

The Ministry have resigned, and only hold office until their successors are appointed. Up to the time of writing no new Ministry had been formed. Mr. Funerous Blake was called upon to do so by his Excellency the Governor, but failed. There is, as may be easily conceived, great excitement in Quebec on the subject. The Opposition are highly jubilant over the matter. The Lower Canadian party are, apparently, determined to have none but those of the Cartier stripe in power if they can prevent it.

Were the thinker and the lover of his country looks at the two sections of this Province, and the strong antagonism that, confessedly, subsists between them, he must be pained to no small degree, and must pray that the day may soon come when a different state of things will prevail. This antagonism sticks out in almost every point; not a day passes in Parliament, but we see it in all its bitter intensity. It is to be deplored: "A house divided against itself," the good book tells us, "cannot stand"; neither can a Province, divided against itself, prosper. From this antagonism result jealousy, quarrelling and weakness. Each section is, as it were, keeping watch on the other to prevent it from taking advantage of any chance or stray opportunity. Each appears anxious to build up its own interests at the expense of the other—or, at least, without regard to the wellbeing or rights of the other. We say appears, for, no doubt, each appears in this light to the other—however right the one may be, and wrong the other. Hence, we think, that Mr. Brown was doing the Province a great benefit in proposing a committee to consider the constitutional differences that keep the two sections of the Province from working harmoniously, for their mutual benefit. So long as these constitutional differences are kept up and fostered, we cannot expect anything like unity or unanimity. Let them once be settled—a quietus placed upon them—and the representatives of both sections would unite on common ground, and would have common interests to battle for and promote.

What these constitutional differences are, we all only too well know. And so long as things are constituted as they are at present we cannot see any way in which the problem of our constitutional differences is to be solved, except by mutual agreement. Upper Canada has rights in equity, which she should have in reality; but so long as she sends the number of traitors to their principles and professions to Parliament she does, she cannot and must not expect to get them. The Opposition thereto is too strong and solid. It is not a party business; sectional claims, on the part of Lower Canadians, seem to over-ride, swallow up and ignore those of party. Hence the peculiar difficulty. The Lower section is united on these points almost to a man; Upper Canada presents no such unbroken ranks or formidable aspect. The committee of Mr. Brown is not without precedent. May gives instances of Committees of Investigation having been appointed by the British Parliament, with (as nearly as possible under the circumstances) an analogous object in view. Besides a committee is much more likely to arrive at definite and satisfactory results. The smallness of the number composing it—the intelligence of its members—their natural anxiety to remedy matters—render this conclusion warrantable. Neither parties can be satisfied with the present position of affairs—no party can be in power in the future—without having the present intersectional difficulties to embarrass and annoy it. We think, with this important fact in view, that the House would be doing its duty to adopt such steps as may lead to an investigation and discovery of proper remedies, and the promulgation of them for the due and timely consideration of the people generally. We are sorry to see that several of the members of the Opposition from whose experience and statesmanship we have a right to expect better things, strongly oppose the appointment of a committee. This is more a matter of regret as those gentlemen, while they admit the necessity of some remedy, take good care to propose none of their own. Especially is this the case when it is remembered that its duties are rather suggestive than anything else. It would save very much time and a great many dollars to the Province. For bring up in the House any one of the several constitutional difficulties that now mar the harmony—of the Union, and so many views would be presented upon it—it would be turned over and looked at in so many lights—and so much biting sarcasm and bitter feeling would be exhibited—that instead of anything being accomplished, the settlement would be further off than ever. Be this as it may, a day of reckoning—of settlement—must come. The present unsatisfactory state of things cannot always be. For instance: it is quite certain that "Representation" must be, some day or other, based upon more equitable grounds—as far as the Upper Province is concerned—than it is now. How? is the question. Different schemes—some possible, and some from their nature or circumstances impossible—might be easily propounded; but, certainly, the House would be in a much better position to discuss them as well as other matters, after an important committee appointed to examine—had themselves done so—and given in their report—stating the result of their examination, and what steps they considered best to be taken.

Lecture on Burns to-night.

The Committee have requested us to say that Mr. James M. Dunn will deliver a lecture this evening in the Town Hall. The subject "Burns and his Times," is an interesting one. The charge has been reduced to season ticket-holders to 12½ cents. The Committee ought to be encouraged in their efforts to please the public.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

St. Patrick's day passed off very quietly in this place. Notwithstanding the direful prognostications of our ominous contemporary, the parties who met according to engagement to take breakfast on that day, gathered in the most orderly and quiet manner just like any other gentlemen. We say no cause of disturbance. The Globe contemporary is getting it rather "thick" on the St. Patrick's Society, (so called) when he says they gave up 'what was unquestionably their right for the sake of peace?' What right? How theirs? Is it prescriptive, or given by statute? Or how? We pause for an answer. Suppose they had a right to do something or other, in what was that right infringed upon by a number of persons taking breakfast in a large Hall by themselves? We cannot see. Perhaps our contemporary is a candidate for the St. Patrick's Society? The breakfast, by the way, was a complete success, over six hundred having partaken thereof. All seemed to enjoy themselves, and those from a distance expressed themselves highly satisfied by the manner in which the Peterborough "Boys" had treated them. After the tables were cleared, the national anthem was sung, in which the whole assembly joined. Votes of thanks were then unanimously passed to the "ladies" for their kind assistance, and also to the committee of management; After which a gentleman present delivered a speech which was heard with great applause. The meeting adjourned by giving three cheers for the Queen, and three for King William, and so surrender. In some other places the different St. Patrick's Societies turned out. In Toronto there was quite a grand procession, and a good deal of buncombe speechifying. Among the speakers was the Mr. Murphy who made himself so conspicuous on the 17th last year, in promulgating disloyal sentiments, and urging his countrymen on to rebellion and bloodshed. His speech on the late occasion was of a similar character—likely a rehashal of the last years one. We are sorry that any part of our population would listen to such an empty, addled, brain-cracked fellow. We believe our Irish population, both Catholic and Protestant—are just as loyal as any other class, and such speeches, when listened to, are very apt to be considered the reflex of the sentiments of the listeners, when in reality they are only the reflex of the speakers own jaundiced and heated imagination, are calculated to produce very erroneous impressions. We hope, therefore, a little more caution, a little more decency, and a little more loyalty will be exhibited the next time our St. Patrick friends meet on a similar occasion.

POSTAL CONTRACT.

Among the papers brought down by the Postmaster-General is a copy of a contract lately entered into by the Government with the Montreal Company, subject to its ratification by Parliament. The Hibernian is fixed upon as the minimum vessel, both in size and power. Fourteen days are allowed for the trip to Liverpool; thirteen for the homeward voyage. During the three months of December, January and February — on account of the obstructions of navigation—15 days is the average period to be occupied in a trip. Some very important regulations are made for the safety of vessels in times of fog or ice. The captain must slacken his speed, or stop his vessel altogether, as the exigency of the case may seem to require, and Government will allow for the loss of time thus incurred. The contract is to continue for five years, commencing from the 1st of April next. The subsidy to be paid is £45,000. Fines are to be inflicted if the Company are not able to make the trips in the time agreed upon; and the Government, likewise, reserves to itself the right to put an end to the contract if its terms and conditions are not properly fulfilled. After the 1st of April 1865, any differences must be referred to a tribunal, to be appointed, which will decide without being embarrassed by the technicalities of the Courts of Law. The Postmaster-General certainly deserves credit for the precautions he has hedged around the contract, as likely to promote the interests of the Province, and ensure the safety of those who from inclination or business may wish to cross the ocean.

RECIPROCITY BILL.

It will be seen by our American News that the Reciprocity Bill has been before the United States House of Representatives, and that this body have reported in favor of its abrogation. They recommend, however, the President to appoint three commissioners to consult and deliberate with three others to be appointed by the British Government, as to the arranging the terms of a new convention which may be satisfactory and acceptable to both nations. Their report is meagre, and no doubt has been induced by the out-side pressure from interested quarters that has been brought to bear upon the House. We think the plan suggested is a good one: for, while the Reciprocity Treaty has been of great value to us, it has had corresponding advantages to the other side. Indeed, we doubt much if the balance is not in favor of our neighbors. Consequently, if the whole thing is overhauled and investigated, and they find that they have the best of it, it is not unlikely they may give up the idea of abrogation. We hope, therefore, that our Government will be prompt and energetic in its action in the matter, and that such three men will be appointed as will, from their experience and practical business-like talents, be able to take care of our interests.

AMERICAN NEWS.

Americans seem at present absorbed in the doings and anticipated successes of Grant, the favourite of the day. It is said that the Confederates contemplate another invasion of Maryland. Mention is made in the American papers of a few skirmishes here and there, but of no consequence. A conspiracy was reported as having existed in Kentucky to hand over that State to the Confederates. The report, however, is not much credited. The Reciprocity Bill has been before the House of Representatives; a joint resolution was agreed to—requesting the President to give the British Government notice of their intention to abrogate the Treaty, unless a more satisfactory basis can be established. A plan had be proposed to the Confederates to seize President Lincoln and take him to "Dixey's Land." It is stated that the lower part of Charleston is completely destroyed. Gen. Banks is about making an expedition into West Louisiana. Spotted fever prevails at Long Branch, N. J. All Officers absent from the army of the Potomac must return immediately.

RICHMOND.

The American people appear bent upon capturing the rebel capital. There are important reasons existing why they should be anxious for its capture. Its positionby to Washington is anything but desirable; and it is thought its capture would up disgrace the rebel politicians that, overtures of peace or some kind of settlement might be the direct or immediate result. Be this as it may, it is quite certain that another attempt will be made to effect this object. The attempt too, will be on a grander scale than before. It is well known, now, that the new Lieutenant-General considers the taking of Richmond as of paramount importance; and from the great powers centred in him, and the vast resources at his command, if he undertakes the "job" and fails, the Federals may well deem Richmond impregnable to them. Already are large army corps being removed from different section of the country where they have been, to join the Army of the Potomac. Grant, at present, is, perhaps, the most popular leader the the soldiers could have to lead them. Hitherto his career has been of great success and triumph. His very name will do much to inspirit the troops, and rally again around his standard those "veterans" whose time is fast expiring or has already expired. But the American people should not make too much of their hero of the day. McClellan stood as high, before he led his troops against Richmond, to perish in the swamps of the Chickahominy.

Mr. McGee and the Good Templars.

Mr. McGee is day by day exhibiting that broad, liberal and elevated spirit he so much boasts about, in his speeches and writings. The other day he strenuously opposed the incorporation of Good Templars upon the ground of their being a secret society. What next? We are glad to see, however, he got but little sympathy or support from any one. Mr. Foley thought it should be one of the conditions of a person being a member of a Parliament that he was a Templar. Good idea that; it would not hurt Mr. McGee. Had Messrs. Foley and McGee been Good Templars some time ago, we opine, if report be true, they would have been good office-holders yet. Mr. McGee, at present, is very fond, apparently, of fraternising with certain leading members of a certain society he once denounced. How is that? Consistent isn't it?

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of the pupils attending the Warsaw School, taught by Mr. P. H. Edmison, was held on Wednesday the 16th inst. The day being fine, quite a number of visitors were present. The attendance of scholars was fully as large as we ever remember to have seen upon any similar occasion, the number being sixty four. The clean and neat appearance of the pupils was highly creditable, both to themselves and their parents. The various classes acquitted themselves in a very ready and official manner, especially those in Arithmetic, Grammar and Geography. At the close of the examination, rewards of merit were given to those who had made the most proficiency in their different classes; after which short addresses were given by several of the gentlemen present, expressing their approbation of the mode of Mr. Edmisson's teaching and the able manner in which he has discharged his duties. Mr. Edmison has won the affection of his pupils and the esteem of the friends throughout the section.—Com.

JAPAN.

Quiet does not seem yet to reign in Japan. Intestine troubles and foreign complications engross the attention of the Government. Assassinations of foreigners are common. The indemnity money of Satsuma has been paid. The Government, it appears, intend sending embassies to different courts on its behalf. The Dutch are there in considerable force to demand satisfaction for the wanton attack upon the corvette Medusa in the Strait of Simoneski in June last. They will, likely, very speedily open this Strait, which, to the obstruction of commerce, has now been closed for over six months.

MR. LINCOLN AS PRESIDENT.

Mr. Lincoln is pretty sure of being President for the next four years after his present term of office expires. The following fourteen States have already indicated their preference for him, viz.:—Pennsylvania Legislature, New Jersey Legislature, California Legislature, Ohio Legislature, Maryland Legislature, Michigan Legislature, Wisconsin Legislature, Kansas Legislature, Rhode Island Legislature, Minnesota State Convention, Iowa State Convention, Indiana State Convention, New Hampshire State Convention, Connecticut State Convention.

The Fenians and the Priests.—The Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States have issued pastoral letters in their respective dioceses, condemning the Fenian brotherhood. Bishop Duggan of Chicago is the last who has done so, and he gives directions to his priests to withhold penance and communion from any member of the Church who shall continue to identify himself with this secret order. Far from being obedient sons of the Church, the Fenians of Illinois demur at being called "a secret, unlawful and criminal order," and intend to go on with their project for freeing Ireland from Saxon rule. Could Ireland be brought generally under the power of the Gospel, it would once more become the land of saints, its greatest troubles would cease, and its title "first gem of the sea" would have truth in it as well as poetry.

Against Adulterated Liquors.—Mr. Bourassa has introduced an act to prevent the sale, by retail, of adulterated liquor, whiskey wine. &c. It defines the adulteration as being "the mixing with liquors destined for sale of any ingredient calculated to give increased strength or a more agreeable taste, or to impart a color to such liquors." The penalty imposed is to be $50 and the destruction of the liquors, (at discretion of Justice) before the residence of the manufacturer. An Inspector is to be appointed, and all tavern-keepers must pay one dollar each for a slavery for him. He is to be under the control of the Revenue Inspector.

Death in Toronto.—Mr. Chas. Daly, Clerk of the City Toronto Council, died on the 17th inst., in the 56th year of his age. Mr. Daly occupied the position of City Clerk for about a quarter of a century. On the same day Mr. Charles C. Small, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, an old and well known citizen in Toronto, died after a short illness.

"If I war drunk," said he, "and knowd I war drunk, then I warn't; but if I war drunk, and and didn't know I war drunk, then I war drunk." The drunkard's logic did not suffice, and the magistrate made him pay the drunkard's fine.

Tell Your Friends.—If you are a temperance man don't be ashamed to acknowledge your principles boldly, before the world. If you experience any benefint or relief from the use of Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, let your friends khow that they may also have the benefit of using it. The Elixir is warranted to cure coughs and colds. Give it to your children for croup. Take it for hoarseness and sore throat. John F. Henry & Co. Proprietors, 303 St. Paul St. Montreal C. E.

Nothing Better.—Than Henry's Vermont Liniment for Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Cholic, Diarrhea, &c. The universal testimony of all who have used it is that they have never used anything they liked half so well. We do not warrant it to cure everything. In fact it is not intended as a panacea for all diseases, but for the above named complaints it is a sovereign remedy. Sold everywhere, price 35 cts. John F. Henry & Co. Proprietors, 303 St. Paul St. Montreal C. E.

Too Truth Eclipsed.—We read there has been a race between the New York Showmen to obtain possession of one George Washington Nutt, who is said to be several inches shorter than General Tom Thumb, and that P. T. Barnum has succeeded in getting him for three years for $30,000, board and expenses. It is a great thing to be a small man! and is it not equally as great to have a medicine that can be depended upon for curing colds, rheumatism, barns, bruises, summer complaints, cholic, &c., if so get at once a supply of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," at the nearest Medicine dealers for 25 cts.

A Want Supplied.—The public have long felt the want of something that could be depended upon for the cure of coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, bronchitis, sore throat &., and we are happy to say that that want is supplied in the shape of "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers." They are a truly wonderful medicine, and one which effect an immediate and permanent cure in all cases for which it is recommended. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Address from the Bar.—Just before the closing of the County Court yesterday morning, Mr. O'Reilly intimated to Judge Mackenzie that it was the intention of the members of the Bar in this city to present his Honour with an address on the occasion of his retirement from the Bench, and requested him to name a convenient time and place for the presentation. His Honour appointed this afternoon (Thursday), at three o'clock, at his own house, at which hour the address was there presented.—Kingston American.

The New York Metropolitan Police Bill was signed on Tuesday by Gov. Seymour, and Messrs. Acton, Bergen, Bosworth, and McMurray, are now Commissioners of Police for a term of years and during good behavior. The Tribune says that "the satisfaction at this result is very general; both parties are represented; the demoralizing effect of expected change in the Department is removed; its organization and discipline necessarily remain untouched, and it will be used, we hope and believe, for the purposes for which it was created, uninfluenced by partizan bias, and for the protection of the life and property of citizens."

"Strike" of Railroad Engineers.

Their was, lately, quite a "strike" of the Railroad Engineers on the roads leading out of Chicago. It arose in consequence of the promulgation of some rules the Engineers did not like. It was soon, however, put under. These "strikes" and "unions," when they get beyond their legitimate sphere do more harm than good to the unfortunate workmen.

Skating.—The rink, at Spalding's Bay, which has been useless for some time on account of unsettled weather, is now in excellent order. The ice has been in good condition all this week, and advantage has been taken of it by subscribers to the club to indulge in the exhilarating exercise of skating. We advise our skating friends to make the most of it now, while they can, as the ice cannot stand the sun much longer.

Accident.—Mr. W. Robertson, of Ashburnham, had his right leg badly injured, a short time ago, by the machinery of his shingle mill—the small bones were broken and the ancle badly injured; he is recovering.

We call the attention of those in want of a good 7 octave piano forte to the advertisement of Groveteen & Co., of New York, who offer them at extremely low prices. Send for their descriptive circular.

The Market Tolls were sold on Saturday last to Alex Morrow, Jr., for $320, same as last year.

The friends of Mr. Robert Graham, Teacher of music, presented him with a beautiful silver tea service, on the 2nd inst.

Several articles and letters are unavoidably left over.

Mr. Conger's Motion and Speech.

Mr. Conger moved that "when this House adjourn on the evening of Wednesday, the 23rd inst., it do stand adjourned until Tuesday the 29th inst."—The hon. gentleman said he thought this motion was one that would meet with the entire approbation of the House. He believed that when hon. members reflected for one moment upon the inconvenience of proceeding at this season with the business of the House, and on the large amount of cost which any delay, at this time, would entail upon the country, and how contrary such would be to all the professions of economy on the part of the Ministry—that there would not be, in regard to the motion, one dissenting voice. (Cheers.) It was already admitted that the large expense of legislation was annually increasing; and it would be seen from the accounts that there was a very considerable addition for last year. This might in some measure be accounted for—he was not going to say it would not. But the cost of legislation had certainly arrived at that figure, that there was no one, taking the slightest interest in the condition of the country, but must feel it would be imposing on the people of this country a heavy additional burden, should a longer adjournment be granted than this motion asked for. The expenses of legislation for 1861 amounted to $462,424; for 1862, to $432,048; and for 1862, to the enormous sum of $627,377. Look at the great expense to the country of each day's sitting of this Legislature. Allowing the session to extend over a period of 100 days, we found our daily expenses amounting, in round numbers, to $6,000 per diem. Should this House adjourn for 15 days, at this rate the expenses would reach the modest total of $75,000, and this spent without the country receiving any legislation during the period in question. By adjourning for the short period only, we should effect a saving of $60,000. (Hear, hear.) Only fancy that while this heavy daily expense is running on members should be allowed so absent themselves for a fortnight, merely for the purpose of seeing their families. Why the thing was so preposterous that he wondered how any one having the slightest regard for the interests of the country could for a moment contemplate it. He found that after deducting all possible expenses, the cost to the country for even the adjournment proposed by this motion — providing members were paid for the time of their absence would reach $59,000. He did not for one moment suppose that any honorable member, particularly hon. gentlemen on the Treasury benches who had always made strong professions of retrenchment, would be found voting against his motion. He should, therefore, leave the matter entirely with the House, not having the slightest doubt but that the motion would be carried by a large majority.

The Cotton Trade at Matamoras.—The New York World's correspondent says:—Large trains of cotton arrive at Matamoras every day. The road from Eagle Pass to Monterey and from there to Matamoras is now in excellent condition. The large English houses in Liverpool and Manchester have now commenced to send their ships with supercargoes to Matamoras, where they discharge the cargo and await their cotton, which is brought in the following way: A clerk or supercargo leaves England two or three months before the ship, and goes on horseback to Eagle Pass and from there to San Antonio, Texas. In San Antonio or another place in Texas he buys the cotton, engages the mules and trains, and the cotton starts for Mexico; mule-trains arrive commonly in thirty or thirty-five days. Cotton is between five and six cents per pound in Texas, but fifty per cent, has to be paid extra as tax to the Confederate States Government. The Confederate Government supports the trade in every way, but no train is allowed to go on the road below Loredo, for fear it might fall into the hands of the Northern troops. With all expenses, a pound of cotton in Matamoras comes to twenty-one or twenty-five cents, but is worth in the place thirty-five. Since January, 1863, about eighty or eighty-five thousand bales of cotton have been shipped from here. A pound of cotton sent to Liverpool, after been pressed, shipped, and every expense paid, will cost 36 to forty cents. The different taxes in Texas and Mexico bring it to that sum; but as there are many accidents, it is not possible to make a positive statement.

Mr. Foley's Representation Bill.—The following are the provisions of the Bill "to provide for the better Representation of "the people of Upper Canada in Parliament," introduced by Mr. Foley a few days since:—"1. From and after the end of the present Parliament, the town and township of Niagara shall cease to be represented in the Legislative Assembly of this Province as a separate constituency, and for that purpose shall be and from part of the county of Lincoln. 2. From and after the end of the present Parliament, the county of Bruce shall be detached from the county of Huron for the purposes of representation in the Legislative Assembly of this Province, and shall be entitled to be represented therein by one member."

FIRST FIGHT OF THE FENIANS.

From the London Times.

The Fenian Brotherhood have gained their first victory on the sacred soil of Ireland. From all the Northern States of America the eyes of the expectant Irish may now be turned to the spot where, amid the din of conflict and the shouts of victory, the green flag has at last been unfurled. The long promised invasion has come off. The wrath of millions, so long nursed and so successfully kept hot, has at last blazed forth. Those Irish who, whether in Ireland or England or America, must always have somebody to hate and something to charge with all that goes wrong with them, may at last welcome the arrival of the day when they may appear as invaders and conquerors in the old cities of the Celt. It has long been promised them that this should be. Banded brotherhoods have been tenderly treated and confidentially bid to hope, and they have kept themselves ready for the long-watched-for opportunity of vengeance. Further attempt at concealment is vain, and it must now be announced with horror and dismay, that after a terrible and enduring conflict the Fenian Brotherhood have made themselves masters of one of the principal public building of the city of Dublin.

Whether the invaders came direct from America we cannot tell, for, although it was remarked that the Federal American uniform was worn among them, that may possibly be accounted for by engagements entered into on this side of the Atlantic. However that may be, whether the uniform was the mark of a prudent desertion and an ignominious flight or of honorable discharge combined with an equally honorable poverty or whether the smart coat was but hurriedly bought with a bounty to be earned hereafter, there it was. That long expected American uniform appeared in Dublin, and if there were any powder in the Irish magazines now was the time for it to explode. When those boys thronged the highways the car-drivers and the nursery-maids must have anxiously expected the issue of the first attack, which was, of course, about to be made upon the Queen's troops. These were not the faint-hearted followers of Smith O'Brien. These were the true Fenian leaguers so celebrated in New York newspapers, and although scarcely ever heard of in England and not very much known in Ireland, yet very rife in America, and thought equal to a more glorious enterprise than a skirmish in a cabbage garden. But why do the Fenians avoid the Saxon barracks and crowd towards the Rotunda? The object is, no doubt, explicable. There is a great meeting at that Rotunda. All the great Irishmen of these days are assembled there. They are engaged there in trying to wake the sulky old echoes which roared themselves hoarse in O'Connel's days, and have never deigned to give voice since. The Sullivans and O'Donoghues are hopelessly endeavoring to say something which shall make a noise outside the hall. They are straining their their throats in what they call a protest against erecting a statute of Prince Albert in College green. Everybody thought, however, that the Fenians and the O'Donoghueities were natural allies. According to all the fitness of things, the O'Donoghue ought to have been raised upon the shoulders of the Fenians and proclaimed as O'rue Finn, or he should at least have been carried in triumph to the castle and installed there to await the arrival of further orders from New York. Strange, however, to say, the affair took altogether another turn. The Fenian Brotherhood came, not as friends and disciples, but as enemies. They seem to have had respect for nothing, not even for the blood of Brian Boru and the titles of the ancient Irish Princes. It is to be doubted whether if the Psalter of Tara itself had been there it might not have become a missile weapon. Why the Fenian Brotherhood declared such sudden warfare against the great protesting O's has not yet been fully explained, but the battle which followed is worthy of the first recorded battles which took place in Ireland. It is related that when the great-grand-son of Magog, who was Noah's second son, settled in the same island, he had it at first all his own way, and probably protested mildly against any little matter he did not like, just as the O'Donoghue might do at the Rotunda. But after a time there came a bloodthirsty crew called "the Fawmorries," and, by a series of bloody battles, succeeded in reducing the sons of Magog to such extremity that they were obliged to give up their quiet Irish estates and go forth and found the Greek and English, and French, and some other inferior nations. The Fenian's onslaught was as fierce as that of the Fawmorries. The O'Donoghue was driven from his seat; the Fenian Brotherhood stormed the platform; the Chairman and Committee fled, routed by the Fenians; fifteen minutes of desperate battle cleared the great O's and all their machinery for protests out of the Rotunda, and at the end of this time the green flag was waved over a perfectly harmonious assembly.

The O'Donoghue's faction fled away like the great Irish patriarchs before the face of Fawmorries, and we suppose we may expect them over here to tell us their wrongs. But what is the experience which the O'Donoghue and his friends will gather from this lively little Irish gathering? Will it teach them the lesson that, however ill-conditioned and unscrupulous any Irishman may fancy himself to be, there is always a faction still more ill-conditioned and unscrupulous, ready to come and drive him out of his place and despoil him of his popularity? Even Parthalan has his Fawmorries, and every O'Donoghue has his Fenians. Upon this occasion there were, we are told, two hours of fighting, more or less strenuous, and fifteen minutes of talking. The talkers were persons whom we more or less all know. The fighters are said to be soldiers from the United States, sent over to drill the mechanics of the city of Dublin. The O'Donoghue and his companions may not be very wise, but we give them full credit for intending the welfare of their countrymen. They can hardly fail to read the lesson written in this little episode. It cannot be to the advantage of any man in the O'Donoghue's position to nurse an agitation which must lead to useless bloodshed. This Fenian folly is not a thing to be tampered with by any men who have a name that can be tarnished. In a political point of view it is as puerile and absurd as any folly can be; but nothing is ridiculous which may cost the lives of misguided men.

A Submarine Vessel of War.—Experiments were made a few days ago in the port of Rochdale, to test the qualities of a submarine vessel of war, the invention of Capt. Bourgeois, of the French navy. The vessel was stated to be so, constructed as to admit of being almost instantly submerged by compressed air and a peculiar apparatus with which it was provided. The only part that remains visible is a small tower, whence the commander may observe the position and motions of the ship to be attacked, and direct his men which way to steer in order to strike her hull with the formidable spur which constitutes the chief means of attack of the new contrivance. The experiments, however, were not satisfactory; more than an hour elapsed before the new vessel got under water with an indolent sort of see-saw motion. She slowly performed the whole distance of one end of the port to the other, and then veered round to return. On nearing the starting point she nearly ran foul of one of the vessels in the port, whereby the power of her spur would have been tested in rather an unexpected and unwelcome manner. This first trial, however, met with indulgence from the spectators, it being evident that with some improvements the new contrivance might become a terrible engine of war.

Revenue and Trade Returns of Nova Scotia.—Hon. Receiver General of the N. S. Legislature laid before the House the annual returns of the revenue and expenditure of the Province for the year 1863, also various statements connected with the Trade and Commerce of the Province for the year ended 30th September, 1863. The total expenditure last year, part of which was for services previous to 1863, was $1,146,298 88. The amount of excise duties collected in 1863 was $861,969 41, being an increase over 1862 of $31,862 84. The increase is mainly on ale and porter, brandy, Geneva, oil, rum, (12,131 82,) tobacco, and goods paying 10 per cent ad valorem duty. Among the items of expenditure are $8,550 to Thos. C. Haliburton, Esq., late Judge of the Supreme Court, for pension to 30th September, 1863, and $333 33 to the same gentleman for costs of appeal. The values of the imports for 1863 is $16,291,191, being an increase over 1862 of $1,756,349. The value of the exports for 1863 was $6,548,033, being an increase over 1862 of $699,677. The value of new ships registered in Nova Scotia in 1863 was $1,963,814. The lumber exported from Pugwash in 1863 was 22,954,173 superficial feet—from all the rest of the Province 42,379,987; in all, 65,334,260 superficial feet.

Literary Celebrities.—Bancroft will be 64 years of age the 3d of next October; Motley, 50 the 15th of April; Emerson, 61 the 20th of May; Bryant, 70 the 3d of November; Longfellow, 57 the 27th of February; Whittier, 57 in December; Holmes, 55 the 29th of August; Lowell, 45 in February; Mitchell, (Ike Marvel) 42 in April; Curtis, 40 the 24th of February; Stoddard, 39 in July, and Bayard Taylor was 39 the 11th of January. All were born in New England except one; no less than eight of the twelve saw the light in Massachusetts; and Maine, Rhode Island Connecticut and Pennsylvania, each produce one.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—The immaculate "Reformer," of Dummer, has again displayed his feelings of disappointment to the public eye. But, sir, I should have said "Reformers," as more than one had a hand in the composition of the tantological article, which occupies so much of your valuable space. "Reformer," sir, is very unwilling to see what does not suit his purpose. Surely his brain has been muddy when reading my communication, for I did not say that he had personal interest in the appointment, as I knew that he could not have any. What I said, sir, was that 'would have wished it had rested on interest'—and this I know, had the appointment been made as he would have wished, there would have been no comment from "Reformer." His insinuation about "paltry dollars," has no force when applied to the gentleman in question, as he never had the habit of making "dollars" his aim in any public transaction, nor has he sought to be appointed to the office as others have done.

Now, Mr. Editor, a wise man tell us "even a fool when he holds his peace is considered wise," but "Reformer" has shown his ignorance by accusing a gentleman of "imbecility and bringing positive disgrace upon our Common Schools," when he has not taken possession of the office as our present Local Superintendent's term has not expired; and as to the slur of "Reformer" upon the "blunders and ludicrous dialect" of our present Local Superintendent, I leave that gentleman to deal with it himself. Now, Sir, "Reformer" would do well to remember that facts are stubborn things, and that his boast will not deter me from showing to your readers that his very "sincere desire for the welfare of our children and the prosperity of our Common Schools" has its origin in sore disappointment. Permit me, Sir, to request the sympathies of your numerous readers for "Reformer" in his sore disappointment.

Yours,
A SUBSCRIBER.

MINERAL LANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,

Quebec, 3rd March, 1864.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands approved by His EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL in Council.

1. That the tracts shall comprise not more than four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of the tracts in unsurveyed territory be forty chains in front by two hundred chains in depth, and bounded by lines running due North and South, and East and West, or as near to these dimensions as the configuration of the locality will admit.

3. The applicant for a tract in unsurveyed territory must furnish a plan and description thereof by a Provincial Land Surveyor.

4. The price shall be one dollar an acre, payable on the sale.

5 That a tax or duty of one dollar per ton be charged on all ores extracted from the tract payable on removal from the mine.

This condition applies to all Mining lands sold since the 1st day of April, 1863, and is in lieu of the Royalty of two and a half per cent chargeable on the ores from those lands.

6. That in surveyed Townships lots presenting indications of minerals, be sold on the above conditions, but at not less than one dollar per acre in any township, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

7. That not more than one tract of four hundred acres be sold to one person.

8. The above regulations do not apply to mines of Gold and Silver.

9. All previous regulations inconsistent with the above are cancelled.

WM. McDOUGALL,
Commissioner.

☞ All Locations of Mineral Lands on the North shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, and on the adjacent islands, which, on the 15th March, 1861, were liable to forfeiture for non-performance of conditions of sale and location and which have remained liable to forfeiture to the present time, are forfeited.

The locatees, and their assignees, provided the assignments were made before the date hereof, are allowed to apply the payments they may have made on any location, over and above the deposit, or first instalment, towards the purchase of the same, or any other location which shall be open for sale at the date of their application to have the same so applied; but such application shall be regarded as a new purchase subject to existing regulations and must be filed in the department of Crown Lands on or before the FIRST day of NOVEMBER, A. D., 1864.

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

IN returning thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, beg to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS

OF ALL SIZES,

GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,

Brass Castings of all kinds.

WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS.

ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,

Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the Forges in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Wrought Iron Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Rider Wheel, from 3 to 5 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them advantages second to none by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—among which is an improvement on their well-known No. 3 CANADIAN: the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Bickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Ploughs yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N.B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are overdue, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

MY AULD WIFE.

O, dinna say her looms fade
Is altered by the touch o' Time;
Nor say her form has lost the grace,
The matchless grace that mark'd its prime
To me she's fairer, lovelier now
Than crowned wi' bloom o' early days;
For changefu' years have only made
More winsome all her looks and ways.

List to her voice! Was e'er a tune
Sae full o' tender love and truth?
Match me its music if ye can
Wi' a' the gleesome air o' youth!
And then her e'e—her gentle e'e;
What though its laughing light has fled,
Wi'in its calm blue depths I see
A heaven of peace and joy instead?

Her many looks—yes, they are changed:
Yet still I bow to time's behest,
For though the rogue has stolen the gold,
I love, I love the silver best.
What could become that fair, meek brow
Like those smooth, lustrous bands of white?
I touch them reverently, as one
Might touch an angel's crown of light.

For life's inevitable storms—
Its waves of grief, its clouds of care,
Its many trials, bravely borne,
Have made these what they are.
But praise to him who rules the world!
God smiles beside each frowning ill—
The storms, dear wife, that bleached thy locks
Have made thy spirit whiter still.

If thou didst seem a flower before.
For sportive days of sunshine given;
Thou smilest on my pathway now,
The star that lights a clouded heaven.
What though the lengthening shadows fall,
That show me near my day's decline,
I fear no doom, I dread no change,
While thy dear hand is clasped in mine.

Ah, they who name the woman weak,
Know not what thou hast been to me!
One Being, only One, can know
The holy strength I've learned from thee.
All cares were sweet, all burdens light,
All crosses crowns while thou wert nigh!
Thy love hath taught me how to live
Thy smile shall teach me how to die.

BUDGET OF BLUNDERS.

We have all heard of Sir Boyle Roche's blunders. Dickens gives an account of some of those which happily are preserved. In one of his speeches he said:—"Sir, I would give up half—nay, the whole of the constitution to preserve the remainder." This however, was parliamentary. Hearing that Admiral Howe was in quest of the French, he remarked somewhat pleasantly, that the Admiral would "sweep the French fleet off the face of the earth." By-and-by came dangerous times of disaffection, and honest men's lives were insecure. Sir Boyle writes from the country to a friend in the capital of this discouraging view of his position:—"You may judge," he says, "of our state when I tell you that I write this with a sword in one hand and a pistol in the other." On another occasion, when the famous letters to the Public Advertiser were attracting universal attention, Sir Boyle was heard to complain bitterly of the attacks "of a certain anonymous writer called Junius." He it was who recounted that marvelous performance in gymnastics, when, in a tumult of loyalty, he "stood prostrate at the feet of his sovereign." He it was who denounced in withering language the apostrate politician who "turned his back upon himself." He it was who introduced to the public the ingenious yet partially confused metaphor of the rat. "Sir," he said, addressing the Speaker of the Irish House, "I smell a rat. I see him floating in the air; but mark me, I shall yet nip him in the bud."

There was a famous speech which confounded generation. "I don't see Mr. Speaker, why we should put ourselves out of the way to serve posterity, what has posterity ever done for us?" He was here disconcerted by the burst of laughter that followed, and proceeded to explain his meaning. "By posterity, sir, I do not mean our ancestors, but those who are to come immediately after them." His invitation to the gentleman on his travels was hospitable and well-meant—but equivocal. "I hope, my lord, if ever you come within a mile of my house, you'll stay there all night." He it was who stood for the proper dimensions of the wine-bottle, and proposed that it should be made compulsory that 'every pint bottle should hold a quart.' Very pleasant, and yet perfectly intelligible, was his meaning—though it unhappily took the bovine shape—in his rebuke to the shoemaker when getting shoes for gouty limbs:—"I told you to make one longer than the other, and instead of that you have made one shorter than the other—the opposite.

TAKING THE STARCH OUT.

A capital example, writes a reader, of what is often termed "taking the starch out," happened recently in a country bank in New England. A pompous, well dressed individual entered the bank, and addressing the teller, who is something of a wag, inquired:

"Is the cashier in?"

"No sir," was the reply.

"Well, I am dealing in pens, supplying the New England banks pretty largely, and I suppose it will be proper for me to deal with the cashier."

"I suppose it will," said the teller.

"Very well; I will wait."

The pen-peddler took a chair, and sat composedly for a full hour, waiting for the cashier. By that time he began to grow uneasy, but sat twisting in his chair for about twenty minutes, and, seeing no prospect of a change in his circumstances, asked the teller how soon the cashier would be in.

"Well, I don't know exactly," said the waggish teller, "but I expect him in about eight weeks. He has just gone to Lake Superior, and he told me he thought he should come back in that time."

Pen-seller thought he would not wait.

"Oh, stay if you wish," said the teller, very blandly. "We have no objection to your sitting here in the daytime, and you can probably find some place in town where they will be glad to keep you nights."

The pompous peddler disappeared without another word.

AVOIDING THE POINT.—A young lady on Wabash avenue tells a good story about an Irish servant girl in their family. The lady in question was engaged with her dress maker, and "burrying up" some work for which she had special need; accordingly she instructed Mary that she was "at home to no one to-day." But Mary said she had conscientious scruples about saying her young mistress was not at home "and her in the house at the moment." "Well, then," said the young lady, "answer that I am unable to see any one to-day, or make some sort of an indirect reply—for I won't be disturbed." In the afternoon a beau called; and after a word with Mary went away again, having received an "indirect reply," after this sort, in answer to his inquiry for the lady: "'Dade, sur, an' she's gone off in a balloon wid her two aunts from Milwaukee and left word she'd be back next Sunday. Wid ye come in an' wait for her?"

GREAT SALE!

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 400 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT!

Cures Humor to whose Humor is due.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Dressing Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Caked Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons on whose word entire reliance may be placed.

(FROM A MINISTER.)

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted so at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it into my eyes for a short time, my eyes began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as far off as any person.

Respectfully yours,
Rev. HARRY W. BIRD.

Cold Water, Mich., }
Sept. 14, 1863. }

REMARKS.

If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, we is an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I was in the summer of 1862 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I must heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.

Yours very truly,
Rev. GEORGE VANDARK.

Shanesteties, N. Y. }
July 21st, 1863. }

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your letter of 21st inst., is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.

Very respectfully,
JOS. TIM. CHOU.

Branch County, Michigan, }
October 3rd, 1863. }

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I have used your German Ointment for sick headache and think it the best remedy I can use.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. MARIA HOOPER.

Camden, N. Y. }
Nov. 12th, 1863. }

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.

Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COON.

Cold Water, Mich., }
Oct. 9th, 1863. }

Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few doses of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar causes many doctors to squeam from the truth. A great many run for a doctor if they do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided. Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it in his own practice. He has been called up a great many times in the night to go 5 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Whereas if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors lose 15 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to go early graves, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my Rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and in nine days the disease had disappeared. Even the bed that had been my worn drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.

Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

STAND LIKE AN ANVIL.

BY BISHOP DOANE.

"Stand like an anvil!" when the stroke
Of stalwart strength fell thick and fast;
Scorns but more deeply rent the oaks,
Whose brawny sum embrace the blast.

"Stand like an anvil!" when the sparks
Fly far and wide, a fiery shower;
Virtue and truth must still be marks
Where smallest proves its want of power.

"Stand like an anvil!" when the bar
Lies red glowing on its breast:
Duty shall be life's leading star,
And conscious innocence its rest.

"Stand like an anvil!" when the sound
Of ponderous hammers pains the ear:
Thine but the still and stern rebound
Of the great heart that can not fear.

"Stand like an anvil!" poise and heat
Are born of earth, and die with time;
The soul, like God, its source and seat
Is solemn, still, serene, sublime.

Reply to the Accusations of the Opposition Press Concerning the Quebec "Mercury" and its Publisher.

(From the London Free Press.)

A number of the Opposition journals—among whom they be classed the Leader, the Montreal Gazette, Hamilton Spectator, Peterborough Review, and a few lesser lights—have thought fit to assail, in a most unprofessional and uncalled-for manner, Mr. Josiah Blackburn, the publisher of the Quebec Mercury. These "organs" of the Opposition have all been grinding to the same tune: their endeavor has been to show that Mr. Blackburn has been one of the blood suckers on the public purse of the Foote stamp; that is, that he has swindled the government by excessive prices. The charge has been echoed and re-echoed throughout the land, and the expenses of Mr. Foote's transactions are sought to be covered up by attacks on Mr. Blackburn.

In furnishing a general reply to the wanton attacks of the organs referred to, it may be as well to commence at the beginning, and to give a brief sketch of Mr. Blackburn's connection with the Government printing, and to show that, so far from being benefited to the extent the Opposition prints would have the public to believe, he has not been sufficiently remunerated for the labour that has been thrown upon him.

In the [illegible] Mr. Blackburn went to Quebec, and was induced by political friends there to undertake the management of a journal in the interest of the government. At that time the Mercury was a small semi-weekly paper of no great local influence, and entirely unknown in the Upper Province. It was necessary that the then government (the Macdonald-Cartier), should have a journal to which it could have access as a medium of communication between the government and the country. Attacks on the policy of the government in the Upper and Lower Opposition papers had to be replied to through some journal, or else it would have been asserted that they had nothing to offer in defence. Again, it was also found convenient, if not indispensable, that the policy of the government should occasionally be indicated to the press of the country semi-officially through some journal, and hence it was that, following in the footsteps of all previous Administrations, the government decided to make terms with some publisher. The upshot of it was that Mr. Blackburn became the publisher, and the Mercury the Organ of the Administration, Mr. George Sheppard as editor, but in no way connected with the paper other than in an editorial capacity.

The Mercury was forthwith ushered into life as a daily paper on Jan. 1, 1863—not as a commercial undertaking for every issue contained a loss—but for the purpose explained above. Presently, the Parliament met, and it was found necessary that the debates in both Houses should be carefully and faithfully reported. Mr. Blackburn, at a very serious outlay, engaged the services of three or four gentlemen whose reporting abilities were of first class merit, and during the long and boisterous session the reports of the Legislature found a place daily in the columns of the Quebec Mercury; other papers, even the Globe, Leader and the Montreal press—copying verbatim the reports so furnished to the press of Canada. The office was kept open day and night during all that session, and the entire cost to the publisher was nearly $4,000. During the summer, and throughout the general election, the Mercury appeared as a daily sheet—always carried on at a great loss, be it remembered, there being no adequate commercial support to keep it up—and after the election, another session, entailing a fresh charge of $3,500 to $4,000 had to be borne; the press of Canada being furnished with the debates, and the policy of the government constantly enunciated through its columns.

Those who are acquainted with the expense of daily journalism in Canada, know perfectly well that there are two sources of profit for the publisher, which form, as it were, the life-blood of the undertaking—advertisements and circulation. The Mercury, from its position, could command neither of these sources of profit: it was not pretended that it was a commercial paper; it was put forward as a medium of communication between the government and the press of Canada and the members of the Legislature. Such being the case, it is clear no man in his senses would shoulder such a burden without some adequate remuneration. But how was this to be accomplished? From what source could the necessary pecuniary support be derived? The government could not pay the expenses of a paper like the Mercury out of the public chest, or the law would not warrant it. How, then, was the organ to be sustained?

This brings us to the printing question about which such a handle has been made. The government of the day has at its disposal the giving out of a large quantity of printing required for the different departments. In order to reimburse Mr. Blackburn his outlay, the Government diverted from the printers who formerly executed this class of work sufficient to cover his loss. Hence, during the time the Mercury has been under his control, he has had offers for work to a considerable extent, the profits on which "have nearly all been absorbed in the publication of the paper, and the reporting of the debates." Now, then, comes the important inquiries:

1. Was the work given to Mr. Blackburn to execute, necessary or required for the public service?

2. Were the prices charged for such work fair and reasonable, or were they excessive and exhorbitant?

We contend that this is the fair way of looking at the question; and before Mr. Blackburn should be held up to the public derision as a man of the Foote stamp—a man who charged three or four prices for work done and rendered—these questions should be fully and fairly answered.

So far as Mr. Blackburn is concerned, we may say in reply to query No. 1. That all the work he has executed was required for the public service, as the work itself will testify; and 2, That the prices charged were fair and reasonable. Further, an examination for his accounts, taken as a whole, will show in very large saving—not only over the charges of Mr. Foote, but over the prices previously paid for similar work under former Administrations.

Now we put it to the Press of Canada and the public, if, as we state the work was required, and the prices were fair and reasonable—where lies the injustice, and why should Mr. Blackburn's transactions be classed as "Jobs?" Mr. Blackburn undertook a very difficult, expensive, arduous, and thankless task, and his remuneration has not been in proportion to the labor and anxiety attending his efforts! It may be stated in all sincerity, and with perfect candor, "that the loss Mr. Blackburn has sustained in conducting the Mercury, has been at least $10,000—that the profits accruing from the work he has performed, and the goods delivered—say $50,000—taken at an average of 20 per cent., have, unfortunately, not adequately repaid him." He went to Quebec to undertake a certain work, and the spirit and ability with which that work has been done calls down upon him the howling vituperation of the assailants, the envious, the unprincipled among the press of Canada—journals which, like the Leader, Spectator and others, have been proved, together with Foote, to be opposed to their [illegible] Happily, Mr. Blackburn is not [illegible] of such attacks; he has nothing to fear from the fullest investigation—Foote's jobs can be laid at his door; his conduct has been fair, upright and above board. Mr. Jackson, member for Grey, who moved for the return of the printing accounts, will prove to be Mr. Blackburn's best indicator, and when his prices are compared with those charged by the Coalition printers, it will be seen whether he is to be classed with Foote of Quebec, Gillespy of the Spectator, or Beaty of the Leader. But the Opposition papers have not the decency or manliness to wait till the matter can be fairly sifted: their object is to blast the character of a brother journalist, who has always stood high in his profession, and whose name has been unsullied. If, by the reiteration of false charges and malignant accusations, they can only succeed in inflicting some injury upon Mr. Blackburn, and the Government for which he has worked, they reck not the lies they tell and the mischief done to the morals of the community, by the circulation of their abuse, false though it be.

A simple measure of justice should induce the journals referred to to quote this article, as an answer to the attacks that have been made. But we do not expect such fair play at their hands. Like the scorpion or the rattlesnake, it is the fit work of such prints as the Prototype, Leader and Spectator to institute their foul position—not to supply the antidote. We spurn with contempt their gross attempt to blacken Mr. Blackburn's character, feeling satisfied that all honorable men will yet acquit him of any attempt to defraud the Government of even a single dollar.

A WONDERFUL SCARF.

The young wife of a Turkish pasha used to pride herself on a scarf of extraordinary richness and beauty, said to have cost her husband £700 sterling. It had a border each eighteen inches deep, displaying a parterre of the most splendid flowers—roses, anemones, narcissuses, tulips—so fresh and gorgeous of hue as those which drooped or nodded in his gardens in the valley of the Sweet waters. When she wore it round her waist, showing the borders to depend down her left side, each fold was so disposed as to exhibit in succession a rose, a tulip, a narcissus, enveloped in a galaxy of buds, especially of the same rose, which seemed to project from the surface of the fabric, fresh and steeped in the dews of morning. The wild and forward beauty who coveted it sometimes took it from her waist, and twisted it round the head of a favorite, in order to behold the splendor of the flowers not off by contrast with his black beard.

Along the side of the scarf ran a border of about four or five inches in depth, resembling in richness of colors a most gorgeous painted windows in an old cathedral; and through what may be called the field, there ran long strems or wreaths of fanciful blossoms, fading away toward the center into an opal light, which surrounded, like a halo, the circle of a diamond rose. It may well be doubted whether the chevie manufactured for the Russian and Persian ambassadors, which cost twelve thousand rupees, exceeded in magnificence and loveliness that of the Turkish lady we have described. To suggest more completely the idea of a garden, parts of the scarf had been steeped in one perfume, and parts in another, so that, as she moved along, the scent of jasmines, roses or violets fell upon the senses alternately.

INTO THE SUNSHINE.

"I wish father would come home."

The voice that said this had a troubled tone, and the face that looked up was red.

"Your father would be very angry," said an aunt, who was sitting in the room with a book in her hand. The boy rested himself from the sofa, where he had been lying in tears for half an hour, and with a touch of indignation in his voice, answered:

"He'll be sorry, but not angry. Father never gets angry."

For a few moments the aunt looked at the boy, half curiously, and let her eyes fall again upon the book that was in her hand. The boy laid himself down upon the sofa again, and hid himself from sight.

"That's father now!" He started up after the lapse of nearly ten minutes, at the sound of the bell reached his ears, and went to the room door. He stood there for a while, and then came slowly back, saying with a disappointed air:

"It isn't father. I wonder what keeps him so late. O, I wish he wouldn't come!"

"You seem anxious to get deeper into trouble," remarked the aunt, who had only been in the house a week, and who was neither very amiable nor very sympathizing towards children. The boy's fault had provoked her, and she considered him a fit subject for punishment.

"I believe, Aunt Phebe, that you'd like to see me whipped," said the boy, looking wrathfully, "but you won't."

"I must confess," replied Aunt Phebe, that I think a very wholesome discipline of the kind you speak of would not be out of the place. If you were my child I am sure you would not escape."

"I'm not your child; I would not like to be. Father is good and loves me."

"If your father is so good and loves you so well, you must be a very ungrateful or a very inconsiderate boy. His goodness don't seem to have helped you much."

"Hush, will you!" ejaculated the boy, excited to anger by this unkindness of speech.

"Phebe!" It was the boy's mother who spoke now, for the first time. In an undertone, she added: "You are wrong, Richard is suffering quite enough, and you are doing him harm rather than good."

Again the bell rang, and again the boy left the sofa, and went to the sitting-room door.

"It's father!" And he went gliding down stairs.

"Ah, Richard! was the kindly greeting, as Mr. Gordon took the hand of his boy. "But what's the matter my son? You don't look happy."

"Won't you come in here? And Richard drew his father into the library. Mr. Gordon sat down, still holding Richard's hand.

"You are in trouble, my son. What has happened?"

The eyes of Richard filled with tears as he looked into his father's face. He tried to answer but his lips quivered. Then he turned away, and opened the door of the cabinet, brought out the fragments of a broken statuette, which had only been sent home the day before, and set them on a table before his father, over whose countenance came instantly a shadow of regret.

"Who did this, my son?" was asked in an even voice.

"I did it."

"How?"

"I threw my ball in there, once—only once in forgetfulness. The poor boy's tones were husky and tremulous.

A little while Mr. Gordon sat, controlling himself and collecting his cheerfulness.

"What is done, Richard, cannot be helped. Put the broken pieces away. You have had trouble enough about it I can see—and reproof enough for your forgetfulness—so I shall not say a word to add to your pain."

"O, father!" and the boy threw his arms around his father's neck. "You are so kind—so good!"

Five minutes later and Richard entered the sitting-room with his father. Aunt Phebe looked for two shadowed faces; but did not see them. She was puzzled.

"That was quite correct," she said, a little while after Mr. Gordon came in. It was such an exquisite work of art. It is hopelessly ruined."

Richard was leaning against his father when his aunt said this. Mr. Gordon only smiled, and drew his arm closely around his boy. Mrs. Gordon threw upon her sister a look of warning; but it was unheeded.

"I think Richard was a very naughty boy."

"We have settled all that, Phebe," was the cold but firm answer of Mr. Gordon; "and it is one of our rules to get into the sunshine as quickly as possible."

Phebe was rebuked while Richard looked grateful. and, it may be, a little triumphant; for his aunt had borne down upon him rather hard for a boys patience to endure.

Into the sunshine as quickly as possible! O, is not there better philosophy for our homes? Is it not true Christian philosophy? It is selfishness that keeps angry and rebels, because a fault has been committed. Let us get the offender into sunshine as quickly as possible, so that true thoughts and right feelings may grow vigorous in its warmth. We retain anger, not that anger may act as a wholesome principle, but because we are unwilling to forgive. Ah, if we were oftener right with ourselves, we would oftener be right with our children.

A few weeks before Thackeray's death, while at a public dinner in London, he was challenged to give an illustration of his dexterity with the pen. He produced a four-penny piece, and having marked the circle of the coin with a pen on a piece of paper, he drew in the centre a crown, and filled up the remaining space with the Lord's Prayer, which he transcribed without a single contraction except in the case of the word "which," spelling it "wh." The pen used was an ordinary goose-quill which happened to be in the room.

HAVING A PURPOSE.

Youngster—school boy, clerk, or apprentice—you've work or fun in your eye. If you have success in any matter pertaining to the affairs of the evening, you must have a purpose—a determination that, God helping you, you will achieve success. You may be poor, friendless, and alone—your fortune may be at the foot of the ladder: no matter. Whatever your position may be, do your duty in it, energetic and perseveringly, with your eye fixed [illegible]

[illegible] to your employer, diligence in your business, economy in your expenditures, and strict integrity in all your dealings, will be sure to secure you success, respectability and friends. Your path may be rough and your prospects dark. Do everything well—no shirking, no [illegible] duty, but faithfully and perseveringly. Watch your own time and strive to improve it. Always bear in mind that "character is capital." To gain this you must be scrupulously honest, that you would be as ready to put five cents into your pocket as a penny that is not yours. Never run in debt: do without what you cannot at once pay for, even though you should suffer somewhat.—No matter what the amount of your earnings may be, save a portion every week, and invest it in a savings bank of good standing; it will grow, and will stand you in good stead some day. Better temporary abstinence and constant plenty afterward, than unearned present comfort and future perpetual want.—Never lie openly or covertly, by word or action. A liar may deceive his fellows—God and himself never. Conscious of falsity, a liar can have no self respect; without self respect, reputation cannot be achieved.

With a noble purpose as the end of all your actions, and with action becoming your purpose—your success is merely a question of time, always provided you have some brain and abundant common sense.

SINGULAR DISCUSSION IN COURT.

During the trial of the cause of Springer vs Young et al., at the Hamilton County Court, yesterday, Mr. Cosby, D. Reid, who appeared on behalf of one of the defendants, was about to ask a question of one of the witnesses, when Mr. Freeman, who appeared for another of the defendants, objected, on the ground that Mr. Reid was not dressed in proper costume. The following conversation ensued:

The Judge—Certainly, Mr. Reid you must be aware that you cannot be heard here in your present dress.

Mr. Reid—If your honor will tell me what is the proper costume, I will be glad to adopt it, but I insist that in this country there is no rule on this subject.

The Judge—Well, you should wear a gown and a white choker!

Mr. Reid—And a wig, bands, and black breeches?

The Judge—Well, the gown covers all that. Certainly it would be proper, but I am sorry to say that gentlemen at the bar are not so particular as they ought to be.

Mr. Reid—Yes; look here at Freeman! He is a Queen's Counsel, and should wear a coat away garment, with a lot of big buttons on the sleeves, and properly a pair of knee breeches and silk stockings, but he comes here in a pair of gray trousers and shooting coat. In the court above in full term, I appeared in my present attire, and was heard without objection in a matter affecting my station as an officer of that court.

The Judge—Mr. Reid, you know as well as any one what is your professional costume, and you cannot be heard as an advocate in any other dress.

Mr. Reid—I might as well insist upon your honor appearing here with a pair of bands and your head covered with horse-hair, and I shall insist upon addressing the jury in my present dress. I hold with the late Chancellor Blake, when a similar objection was made to his appearance, that the court should regard the color of a gentleman's argument and not the color of his garments.

Mr. Freeman—As this matter will be brought before the public, I wish to state that I would not have made this objection had not Mr. Reid appeared in the manner he has out of contempt for this court, whose dignity I wish to uphold.

Mr. Reid—That is false.

The result of this singular discussion was that Mr. Reid was allowed to address the jury.

Influence of Temper on Health.

Excessive labor, exposure to wet and cold, deprivation of sufficient quantities of necessary and wholesome food, habitual bedlodging, sloth and intemperance are all deadly enemies to human life: but none of them are so bad as violent and ungovernable passions. Men and women have survived all these, and at last reached an extreme old age; but it may be safely doubted whether a single instance can be found of a man of violent and irascible temper, habitually subject to storms of ungovernable passion, who has arrived at a very advanced period of life. It is, therefore, a matter of the highest importance to every one desirous to preserve "a sound mind in a sound body," so that the brittle vessle of life may glide down the stream of time smoothly instead of being continually tossed about amidst rocks and shoals which endanger its existence, to have a special care about all the vicissitudes of life to maintain a quiet possession of his own spirit.

The Peterborough Examiner:

THURSDAY, MARCH 31st, 1864.

RESIGNATION OF THE MINISTRY.

As we stated in our last, the Macdonald Dearner Ministry on the 21st, placed their resignation in the hands of His Excellency. The speech of the Premier in which this was announced to the House, was characterized with much good judgment, and was listened to in profound silence. He adverted to the circumstances under which he assumed power, had briefly reviewed the policy and events of the two successive cabinets of which he had been head. He stated that from the smallness of the majority the party in power had, the ministry were unable to carry out the different measures they wished to do, and after exhausting the political means at his command, they had unanimously come to the determination to give way to others, their position having been placed in the hands of the Governor during the day. After some further remarks of a personal nature, he moved the House should adjourn. The motion was seconded by Mr. Gaston, and carried unanimously. The Governor, convinced that the Liberal party had a majority, intrusted the reconstruction of the cabinet to the Hon. Francois Blair. He made overtures to Sir E. Tache, but the latter gentleman declined to co-operate on the plea of age, but consented to support and serve the Government. After being unsuccessful in the Lower Canada section of the House, he finally failed, Mr. Blair communicated to the Governor his inability to reconstruct the Administration entrusted to him. Mr. Cartier was then called upon, but having failed to form a cabinet, Sir E. Tache was invited to undertake the task. He at once immediately put himself in communication with the leaders of the Conservative party. Mr. Cartier is the leader of the Upper Canada part of the Ministry; it is said that John A. was offered the post, but that he would not accept it. Overtures in the mean time have been made to the leaders of the Liberal party, to form a Coalition Ministry, but they have resulted in placing the two parties wider apart than ever.

Since writing the above, there has been another shuffle. Mr. John Hillyard Cameron is now mentioned as the Upper Canadian leader. It seems very doubtful that the Conservatives will be able to form a ministry at all. Great dissensions are in the camp. It is positively asserted that John A. Macdonald and Mr. Sydney refuse to embark in the new launch. The giving of names, therefore, is premature.

A ministry is proposed; or at least a part of one; for at the time of our writing a couple of places yet remain to be filled. It is not a coalition ministry; and we think that the leaders of the Liberals of the province will refuse at this. How the new Ministry would succeed remains to be seen; but from the complexion of the House and the circumstances under which they would assume office, we are inclined to think they would have a hard road to travel. They are sensible that they have a large Upper Canada majority against them; but then they are in a minority as regards the whole house. Why they should accept office, it is hard to say, except on the Micawber principle of expecting something to turn up; to this expectation, however, we think they would find themselves grievously disappointed. The Liberal party seem determined to remain firm; and if they do, the will of the new Ministry would soon constitute an ignominious defeat. Tache was too old to form a government when approached by Mr. Blair; has all at once he has become rejuvenated and strong, and sees office like, is willing to bear the whole burdens of the province upon his shoulders. Wonderful change. It is pleasing to see that the overtures lately made to the leaders of the Liberal Party were rejected. This is well: Upper Canada does not want a Cartier-Macdonald government at the head of affairs, and disguise it as you will, the proposed Ministry, but such a one with another name. The figure head cannot deceive.

By telegraph there is a report that the Legislative Assembly of Nova Scotia has passed a message for the union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island under one government, and with one legislature. There ought to be a federation of all the Provinces. It is the only thing that will destroy the feeling now existing between the two Canadian sections.

Mr. A. J. McDonald, Recorder of Kingston, died at Philadelphia, whither he had gone for his health, on the 26th inst. He was only 41 years of age, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He leaves a widow and three children.

CONFIDENCE.

If ever a party deserved censure and condemnation at the [illegible] country, it is, certainly, the present Opposition party. With a "present Opposition," for they are not [illegible] their terrible [illegible] power, deserted [illegible] in the full flush of disappointment. Their conduct, ever since the resignation of the Cartier-Macdonald ministry, has been such as only a spirit of faction, aggravated by personal and party spleen, could have actuated. Without any policy of their own, they have ever made it a point to assail, gentleman and violently opposed each measure or object that the Ministry has proposed. Its intrinsic merits have never at all been considered. The consequences has been that public business has been arrested, impeded, and absolutely put an end to, by the course the Opposition have seen fit to pursue; and the country—already groaning with debts—has been saddled to no purpose with fresh pecuniary obligations, which the people have yet to discharge, and which they must discharge. A pretty party, this, certainly, to be allowed again to rule the country! To what depth may we not expect to sink in the case of such an event? It is impossible to tell. It is to be hoped, therefore, that Upper Canadians will be more alive to their own interests than in days past. If they only act unitedly, there is no danger of Cartier and his Lower Canadian majority imperiously ruling the Province, and disposing of its resources in the manner that seems to them best. Those Upper Canadians (and there are many) that are willing to coalesce with these to effect this purpose, should be watched. They are traitors to their professions, and pledges, and avowed principles; and should, so far as possible, receive a traitors dopm; political decapitation.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

Denmark, it seems, is totally unwilling to join in the proposed conference. The Federal Diet is actuated by the same spirit. The war does not, therefore, look like having a speedy termination. The Danes are sanguine in their ability to defend themselves. Europe is looking on in a very quiet mood. In Britain, the war is causing considerable excitement. The Tories are trying to make capital out of what they call the temporary policy of the Ministry. England, evidently, does not want to go to war if she can help it, and both Austria and Prussia want to keep in her good graces. Both state their willingness to acknowledge Christian as sovereign of the Duchies, if only guaranteed their independent administration. The Danish king demurs to their intermeddling with what he deems his own business. What the result will be it is almost impossible to tell from present appearances. Hungary and Italy do not seem to be in a very settled condition; but very little is wanting to set the smouldering elements therein ablaze.

TUNNELING THE ALPS.

One of the most important and stupendous works of the age is the tunnelling of the Alps. When first broached the project was looked at and ridiculed as the wildest of chimeras. That far-seeing and enlightened minister, Cavour, grasped at it as the grand solution of the problem, how to make Italy prosperous, and resolved to back and support it with all his [illegible] influence. A bill for the purpose was introduced into the Piedmontese Chamber of Deputies, and passed by an immense majority. The report of the engineers was highly favorable. The route of the tunnel is fixed through Mont Cenis, a distance of eight miles. After many trials and obstacles, on account of the war in 1859, the work was fairly begun. The machinery is worked by compressed air, which is conveyed in pipes through the great length which the tunnel at both ends has now attained. The work is first tunnelled nearly round, and then blasted, and the gases cleared away by the air. At first there were only one [illegible] in the twenty-four hours; but now things are so improved that several can be obtained in the same space of time. The various kinds of machinery that have been invented and used demonstrate in a remarkable manner the superiority of man's genius over, apparently, insuperable obstacles. It is acknowledged that the tunnel will be completed in about twelve and a-half years, and that the total cost will be about 65,000,000 francs. Already, nearly one-fifth of the whole distance has been accomplished. The vast benefits that the tunnel will, when completed, confer upon Italy, it is almost impossible to exaggerate. It will be joined to the rest of Europe, from which it is now in a measure cut off, and will become the highway by which thousands will travel—who are now forced to take a more unpleasant and circuitous route.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The conduct of the English Ministry with regard to the German-Danish war is severely criticised in Parliament by the Opposition. The Ministry was upbraided with partiality to the Federals. Lord Palmerston denied the latter charge. The future Emperor at Madeo was visiting Victoria. One steamer brought from the West Indies £1,000,000. Maximilian will shortly depart from Mexico. French troops, with the exception of 6,000, are to be withdrawn. The debt due Rothschilds to be paid in fourteen annual instalments, 25,000,000 francs each. The Cabinets are endeavoring to gain Napoleon to favor their line of policy. Nap. is an mysterious and secret as ever. The Danish soldiers are on the look-out for the vessels of their foes. The bombardment of the Dappel fortifications had commenced. There had been an important engagement. All exports have been prohibited from Jutland.

AMERICAN NEWS.

General Grant is proceeding with his reorganization of the Army of the Potomac. He was lately in consultation with the President, Secretary of War and Gen. Halleck. He is in favor of employing all the Generals now shelved. It is reported, therefore, that important commands will be assigned to Fremont and McClellan. Battles upon a small scale are now going on at different points. The Federals captured Alexandria Ia., on the 13th inst. On the other hand, the Confederates, it is said, captured and sacked Paducah, Ky., on the 25th instant. It is rumored that the entire organized militia of the North will be called into service for six months for garrison purposes. The Confederates appear to be preparing to meet invasion in every quarter. They are massing their armies and perfecting their organization. The Secretary has given order to issue "gold bills" to pay duties. The consequence is that gold has declined somewhat. The action of the Secretary of State is anxiously watched by speculators.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of Mr. MacDougall's school passed off on the [illegible] during the hours of examination; and there [illegible] to the Trustees of the [illegible] Mr. MacDougall to see the room crowded to the door, with an interested and delighted audience. The school was, in a manner, examined twice, and on both occasions came out of the contest with flying colors. The reading was distinct, the spelling accurate, the meaning well given, the subject well understood. The arithmetic was readily and accurately performed—from numeration to decimals and roots. The specimens of writing won the admiration, of the crowd; and the copies contrasted the easily with the latter stages of progress to the credit of both pupil and teacher. Book-keeping, a very useful, but much neglected branch of education, was well attended to. The lessons were lightened with singing, and the feats of learning was crowned with a descent of century and recitation. Some good essays were read. The whole day was spent with pleasure to the school; and all expressed themselves highly satisfied with the great and marked progress of the school under the management of Mr. MacDougall, who, as an instructor of youth, stands among the very first in the neighborhood.

Prizes were distributed at the close to the three who stood highest in each class:

Highest Class.—Mary B. Reed, E. Davidson, E. Fitzgerald.

2nd Class.—Sarah MacDougall, Maria Roseborough, Fanny Davidson.

3rd Class.—J. N. Bell, Helen M. Elliot, James A. Bell.

After the distribution of prizes, the following gentlemen very generously offered for the next examination, prizes as follows:

Lieut. Col. Strickland, a book worth $1, Sir Spalding. The Rev. T. Clementi, two [illegible] worth $1 each, and the Rev. E. H. Koyle, two books, one worth $1 the other 50c., for general proficiency.—Com.

SPAIN.

Spain, aroused from the lethargy into which for some time she seemed to be sunk, has, of late years, been making rapid strides in the essentials of national prosperity. She will, certainly, before long, be entitled to be considered again one of the great powers of Europe—if she is not so now. Lately, a new Electoral Bill has been before the House. The Bill proposes that the Chamber of Deputies to consist of a number corresponding to one for every 40,000, chosen by electoral districts. In case of additional 20,000 a deputy will also be allowed. All Spaniards over 25 years of age, and paying in advance 400 reals of direct taxes on personal property are to be eligible. No doubt the Bill will be considerably modified, but it shows that the Spaniards are alive to their own interests and the wants of an age.

ST. DOMINGO.

The news from Island, whose war on a small scale is overshadowed and obscured by the greater one near home, is conflicting. One account represents the blacks as unanimous and victorious; another, that they are divided, and that the Spaniards are pouring fresh troops into the Island, with the determination of subjugating it at whatever expense. It seems almost impossible that the blacks could long continue to cope with their white enemies; but hitherto they have been able, certainly, to hold their own.

CANADIAN ITEMS.

The upper end of Lake Erie is open for navigation. McKae was arrested at Kingston for enticing persons to desert. McDermott, a policeman of Kingston, is to be presented with a gold medal for saving Lieut. Morris from drowning. Cunning Murray's new steamer will shortly be launched at Niagara. Two children lately manufactured in medicine at McGill's College. A Magnum millin company received files second prize under the recent inspection by Col. Hoste. There was an accident on the Grand Trunk a little below Montreal, last week, and a brakesman killed. A child in an Eastern township was burned to death on Saturday last—cause, liquor. There has been another fire in London. A youngster, last week, in Ottawa, stole $200 from his step-father; the thief and several friends are now in prison awaiting trial. A boy in Lutherville killed a bear a couple of weeks ago. The Ascott copper mines are reported as succeeding favorably. Messrs. Gilmour are about building a large vessel at Trenton—the first ever built there. The police magistrate of Hamilton was violently assaulted by a party he had fined; the offender was committed for the assizes. Mr. George Tillson Spar, the founder of the village of Tillsonburg, died shortly since. Judge Mackenzie of Kingston is about to resign his judgeship, and assume the position of the bar. A warrant is out for the arrest of Mr. T. Freeman, a magistrate, on the charge of incest. The St. Jacob's woollen factory was burned lately—loss $7000. A gambling house trial is now going on at Toronto; some queer revelations may be expected.

Several articles and communication left over for our next issue.

MINERAL LANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,

QUEBEC, 3rd March, 1864.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands approved by HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL in Council.

1. That the tracts shall comprise not more than four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of the tracts in unsurveyed territory be forty chains in front by one hundred chains in depth, and bounded by lines running due North and South, and East and West, or as near to these dimensions as the configuration of the locality will admit.

3. The applicant for a tract in unsurveyed territory must furnish a plan and description thereof by a Provincial Land Surveyor.

4. The price shall be one dollar an acre, payable on the sale.

5. That a tax or duty of one dollar per ton be charged on all ores extracted from the tract payable on removal from the mine.

The condition applies to all Mining lands sold since the 1st day of April, 1862, and is in lieu of the Royalty of two and a half per cent chargeable on the ores from these lands.

6. That in surveyed Townships lots presenting indications of minerals, be sold on the above conditions, but at not less than one dollar per acre in any township, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

7. That not more than one tract of four hundred acres be sold to one person.

8. The above regulations do not apply to mines of Gold and Silver.

9. All previous regulations inconsistent with the above are cancelled.

WM. McDOUGALL,
Commissioner.

☞ All Locations of Mineral Lands on the North shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, and on the adjacent islands, which, on the 15th March, 1861, were liable to forfeiture for non-performance of conditions of sale and location and which have remained liable to forfeiture to the present time, are forfeited.

The locations, and their assignees, provided the assignments were made before the date hereof, are allowed to apply the payments they may have made on any location, over and above the deposit, or first instalment, towards the purchase of the same, or any other location which shall be open for sale at the date of their application to have the same so applied; but such application shall be regarded as a new purchase subject to existing regulations and must be filed in the department of Crown Lands on or before the FIRST day of NOVEMBER, A. D., 1864.

SEWING MACHINE DEPOT.

OVER S. WHITE'S SHOE STORE

AND DIRECTLY

Opposite W. Cluxton's Store,

GEORGE STREET,

PETERBOROUGH.

THE very great demand existing here for Sewing Machines has induced the undersigned to open an office in Peterboro' for the sale of Sewing Machines. He will at all times keep on hand a variety of the most

Improved Machines

BY DIFFERENT MAKERS,

Which he will supply at the very lowest rates, and will give his personal attention to the proper working of each machine sold by him, and also keep the machines in good running order for one year.

The most popular Sewing Machines now before the public, and which he will keep on sale, are

Wanzer's Sager's

SEWING MACHINES,

FOR MANUFACTURER'S USE,

Sold usually at $85, now offered for $65.

WANZER'S COMBINATION,

For Family use and light Tailoring. Worth $45, now offered at $40.

Wanzer's Wheeler and Wilson's,

For Dressmakers and other fine work, worth $45, now offered at $40.

C. W. WILLIAMS & Co's

UNEQUALLED DOUBLE THREAD

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES,

Equal to the Grover & Baker's $60 Machines, offered now at $30.

Patterson's Sewing Machines,

Manufactured at and known as the Belleville Sewing Machine, and a favorite with many persons, now sold at $30.

WAXED THREAD MACHINES,

for Harness or Shoemaker work at reduced prices.

The advantages offered by the establishment of this depot, are a great choice of makers, and that all Machines will be guaranteed to be kept in order for one year.

VERY LOW PRICES.

These Machines are all made in Canada, and in the event of any part becoming broken, it can be replaced by one.

No Family should be without a Sewing Machine.

Call and see the Machines and the Certificates of parties using them.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to authorize the Warden to issue Debentures on the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

WHEREAS, it is necessary to raise funds for the erection of a new Jail, and it is deemed advisable to raise the same by the issue of Debentures upon the credit of the Non-Resident Land Fund.

The corporation of the County of Peterboro' hereby enacts:—That the Warden of this County be and he is hereby authorized to issue Fifteen Debentures, for the sum of One Thousand Dollars each; two of which shall be made payable on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five; and two on the first day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy; and two on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one; and one on the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two; the said Debentures to bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, to be paid half-yearly on the first day of July and the first day of January in each and every year.

And be it enacted, that the aforesaid Debentures, and interest on such Debenture as aforesaid, shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the County of Peterborough.

County Council Chamber,
Peterborough, 27th January, 1864.

The above is a true copy of the proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at the Council Chamber, in the Town of Peterborough, on THUESDAY, the 23rd day of JUNE, 1864, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Foundry & Machine Shop.

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

BEG respectfully to return their sincere thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, and to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS

OF ALL SIZES,

GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,

Brass Castings of all kinds,

WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,

ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,

Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forges in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Bass and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 2 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Elder Wheel, from 3 to 5 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns on hand on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and equalled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Which embraces every implement required on a Well or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 3 CANADIAN; the second-hand in mould-board two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is put up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Wallace and Hicks Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Plough yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Harrow and Steel Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood-Sawing and Reaping Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Ash 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

Shatter joy on every hand,
In the happy, golden hours.

Soon will summer come again,
With its melody and song—
Echoings from hill and plain
Soundly the glad notes prolong;
Down beside the silver streams,
Where the daisies thickly grow,
There are murmurs as in dreams,
Heard amid the waters flow.

Soon will summer come again:
Brighter hours are on the wing;
Winter will quit his chilling reign—
Yield his empire to the spring,
And, descending from the skies,
With a majesty serene,
Comes she 'mid a thousand dies—
Royal summer—gorgeous queen!

"TIPIT ON IT."

A good story has been told of a limping officer in the army, having been victimized by a brother officer (noted for his cool deliberation and his strong nerves,) and his getting square with him in the following manner: The cool joker, the Captain, was always quizzing the limping officer, a Lieutenant, for his nervousness.

"Why," said he, one day, in the presence of his company, "nervousness is all nonsense; I tell you Lieutenant, no brave man will be nervous.

"Well," inquired his listening friend, "how would you do, those a shell with no inch futhee should drop itthof into a walled angle, in which you had taken theltter from a company of tharp tmasterth, and where it with thertain, if you put out your nose, you'd get peppered."

"How," said the Captain take it cool and spit on the fuse."

The party broke up and all retired, except the patrol. The next morning a number of soldiers were assembled on the parade and talking in clusters, when along came the limping Lieutenant. Lazily opening his eyes, he remarked:

"I want to try an experiment thith morning, and thee how cuththeedingly cool you can be."

Saying this he walked deliberately into the Captain's quarters where a fire was burning on the hearth, and placing in its hottest centre a powder canister, instantly retreated. There was but one mode of egress from the quarters, and that was upon the parade ground, the road being built up for defense; the occupant took one look at the canister, comprehended the situation, and in a moment dashed at the door, but it was fastened on the outside.

"Charley, let me out if you love me," shouted the Captain.

"Thpit on the canther I" shouted he in return.

Not a moment was to be lost. He had at first caught up a blanket to cover his egress, but now, dropping it, he raised the window and out he bounded, sans cullottes, sans everything but a very short under garment, and thus, with hair almost on end, he flashed upon a full parade ground. The shout which hailed him called out the whole barracks to see what was the matter, and the dignified Captain pelted a Sergeant is front of him to hide himself.

"Why did'nt you thpit on it?" inquired the Lieutenant.

"Because there were no sharp shooters in front to stop a retreat," answered the Captain.

"All I got to thay, then, ith," said the Lieutenant, "that you might thafely have done it; for I'll thware there wasn't a thingle grain of powder in it."

The Captain has never spoken of nervousness since.

Jem Bangs, we are sorry to state, has deceased. He departed this life last munday. He went 4th without any struggle; and such is life. To day we are as paper grass—mighty smart—to morrer we are cut down like a cowcumber from the ground. Jem kept a nise store, which his wife now wates on. His virchues was numerous to be beheld. Many of things we bot at his grocery, and we are happy to state to the admirin world that he never cheated, speshally in the wate of makrel, which we then and smelt sweet, and his survivan wife is the same wn. We never knew him to put sand in his sugar, though he had a big sand bar in frunt of his house; nor wotter his lickers, though the Ohio River run past his dore. Peas to his remains.

POETRY.

he died in his bed,
a grate buk he red,
a prayer hollered out,
then turned over un2 his bed,
and die—ded.

He leaves 1 wife, 9 children, 1 cow, 4 horses, a grocers store and other quadruped to morn his loss—but in the language of the poit, his loss is their eternal gain.—Times.

AN EDITOR SOLD.—"The Editer of an English paper was recently presented with a stone, upon which were carved the following letters. The Editor was informed that the stone was taken from an edifice, and he was requested to solve the inscription. It reads:

FORC	ATT
LETOR	UDTHE
IRTA	IIs Ag
A In	Sr—

Earnest men were called in to consult upon the matter, and after an immense amount of time was consumed, they were informed that the stone was—

"For cattle to rub their tails against."

SOME WHISKEY.—A boy was carrying a "demijog of alechers, to a customer on Wabash avenue, Chicago, when he dropped it, the cork came out, and a portion of the liquor was spilled. Being near the customers house he entered and told his tale, saying that there "wasn't moren'n drink or two spilt." Customer took down a common "duster" with a painted handle, and inserted it in the mouth of the demijohn to take a measure of the depth of the fluid. When he drew it out, he found the thing marked on the handle a little plainer than he expected, for the paint was entirely gone.

A PRINTER'S ERROR.—A indiscrom blunder appears in a Ripon paper, caused by a line which properly belonged to a meeting report having been accidentally placed between the announcements of births. The record read as follows:—"On the 3rd inst, at Ellington, the wife of Mr. Terry, schoolmaster, of a son. He spoke indistinctly, but was understood to say that, on the 5th instant, at Bond-gate, Ripon, the wife of Mr. Joseph Loadsale, tailor, of a daughter."

GREAT SALE!
OF
REAL ESTATE.
THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 16th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the
BEAVER MEAD FARM,
Containing in all about 600 acres.
That portion of property not off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, on Cut-stone and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.
Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.
The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.
There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.
The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.
TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

THE SELF-EMPTYING
WATER-DRAWER.
THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated
PATENT WATER-DRAWER!
AT BLYTHE MILLS.
You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

DR. TANNER'S
GERMAN OINTMENT!
Give Honor to whom Honor is due.
TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Draining Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Caked Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the testimonials below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons on whose word entire reliance may be placed.
(From a Minister.)
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted on at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it freely over for a short time my sight began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as fair as any person.
Respectfully yours,
Rev. HENRY W. ROSE.
Cold Water, Mich., Sept. 14, 1863.
REMARKS.
If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, was an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I was in the summer of 1862 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I must heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.
Yours very truly,
Rev. THOMAS VERPLANK.
Skaneateles, N. Y., July 21st, 1863.
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your letter of 21st inst., is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.
Very respectfully,
Hon. EZRA COOS.
Branch County, Michigan, October 3rd, 1863.
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I have used your German Ointment for sick headache and think it the best remedy I can use.
Respectfully yours,
Mrs. MARIA HAIGHT.
Canaan, N. Y., Nov. 12th, 1863.
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.
Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COOK.
Cold Water, Mich., Oct. 9th, 1862.
Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few doses of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar causes many doctors to separate from the truth. A great many run for a doctor if they do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided. Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it in his own practice He has been called up a great many times in the night to go 5 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Would it if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors loose 15 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to an early grave, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.
VALUABLE TESTIMONY.
DR. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and in nine days the dreadful disease left me. I was so bad that my limb was drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.
Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

A most Scientific Invention
An instrument for the cure of general debility, or Nocturnal Emissions, more properly known as Seminal Weakness, &c. These complaints can be permanently cured in from 20 to 60 days to two months by the use of this Instrument, when used conjointly with medicine.
Dr. AMOS & SON, in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of this Instrument, pledge themselves that in any instance where it may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the Instrument in good order. Price Ten Dollars, by mail or express.
YOUNG MEN TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE
Those who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately. Self abuse is one of the most formidable enemies to health, for nothing else in the dire catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the human system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system rapidly, wastes away the energies of life, causes mental

Poetry.

The Friends of my Childhood and Youth.

The friends of my childhood and youth,
How varied and scattered their lot!
While one is a teacher of truth,
Another's a dissolute sot.

And with bachelor George, solid coins
And real estate is the tune,
He'd be pleased with what land his adjoins,
And a few building lots in the moon.

And there's Charlie, a penny, weak boy,
In a wide-awake, portly M.D.,
And a merchant, who while he prescribes,
Can just think of a new stock of tea.

J, who made wretched work with the truth,
Was in prison, I heard, long ago—
An indolent, profligate youth,
Reaping what he'd the follow to sow.

Sir Robert, whose figures ne'er lied,
Is a dignified justice of peace,
Who, when bickering quarrels betide,
Settles well how the strife ought to cease,

Silas teaches young ideas to shoot,
And Al. has invested in Mills:
Poor Isaac, I learn, is insane,
And William still digs in the hills.

Where, where are the friends of my youth?
I miss them, there are none by my side;
Some remain, some are gone, some are dead,
And I among strangers abide.

THE LATE GOVERNMENT.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

(From the Hamilton Times.)

The value of their services will be differently estimated according to the standpoint of the observer. The tax payer will see in them men who have earnestly devoted themselves to the task of reducing the expenditure of the country, equalizing its income and outlay, and in every possible way endevoring to reduce the cost of departmental management. Dismissed officials, on the other hand, will view the government as being composed of men who have violated their rights, by depriving them of the hold they had on the public chest, and will rejoice at their downfall as a boon to the country. The first view we are disposed to think the proper one to take of their services. In entering upon power, they did so with the determination of making financial reform their most prominent work. To it they devoted themselves, and what it was in the power of a Government to do in that direction, they resolved should be done. The work was an unpopular one in the House, and so the Government soon found. Members of Parliament are loud-mouthed in their advocacy of retrenchment when they are before the people, but when they reach the seat of Government, they are not unapt to forget their pledges. To retrenchment in the abstract they willingly commit themselves; but when it comes down to individual cases, they are somewhat inclined to murmur. The Government remained firm to its purpose, and by so doing created hosts of enemies. A more liberal dispensation of patronage, a more lavish appropriation of the public funds for the benefit of individuals might have strengthened them, but they refused, and were made to bear the consequences. They now go out of power before the work they had laid out for performance has been completed; but it cannot be said that they have failed in the accomplishment of great good. They have exposed the iniquities under which the country has suffered for so many years—they have reduced the annual deficit from five million dollars to less than one million per annum—they have shown that the public service can be efficiently maintained without the lavish expenditure of former years—they have established the fact that a government can be maintained in power without bending the knee to the Grand Trunk magnate and Ecclesiastical authorities, of whom John A. Macdonald and Cartier were but puppets; and what they have done, they have done in the face of the most bitter and unrelenting opposition from Cartier's Lower Canadian phalanx, and the Upper Canadian corporal's guard of John A. Macdonald.

From the Montreal Transcript.

The Ministry have resigned, and the House stands adjourned until the pleasure of his Excellency is known. We were not unprepared for this. There has been so much of factious Opposition made against them since they accepted office; their own friends, and two of their former colleagues, proved so untruthful and treacherous; and the Ottawa members who ought to have supported them so lukewarm, that, although they command an absolute majority in the House, it was not a working one, and worse than that, it was a majority from one section of the Province. When Upper Canada was ruled by a Lower Canadian majority, loud was the outcry, and tremendous the denunciations thereunent. In that outcry the Globe took the lead, and the utterances of Mr. Brown, (its Editor-in-Chief and Proprietor) were, if not oracular, consistent. He advised Ministers to appeal to the Governor General and reconstruct: he objected to the position in which they found themselves, and he said they wanted strength in Lower Canada. We believe Mr. Sandfield Macdonald did what he could to get the support that was wanted, the result shows that he has failed. There is no question about it, that he has made himself personally unpopular by his unflinching determination to do the state some good. But still it may be said of him,

"No common object to your sight displays,
But what with pleasure Heaven itself surveys;
A great man struggling with the storm of fate,
And greatly falling with a falling state."

From the Simcoe Examiner.

Unlike their corruptionist predecessors the members of the Macdonald-Dorion Government yielded up their portfolios unasked and without compulsion, on Monday evening last, and now only hold office until their successors are appointed. With a gracefulness and dignity seldom witnessed in our Canadian Legislature, under the most trying and exciting influences, the Attorney General, in a speech remarkable for its temperate language and manly candor, smoothed to the House the previously unknown fact, that he and his colleagues had placed their resignations in the hands of His Excellency the Governor General. In the face of this straightforward and unselfish conduct on the part of the Premier and Cabinet, there were, will it be credited, members on the opposition side of the House so bitter in their personal antipathy to Mr. Macdonald that they had to interrupt his remarks with unfeeling and unworthy taunts! But, actuated by consciousness that he had endeavored to discharge his public and private duties faithfully and honestly, he brooked their gosding insults and made the House feel that though an opposition to his government, unparalleled in the Parliamentary records of Canada for its unrelenting bitterness, had driven him to resign his position as a minister, no taunts, no matter how despicable and uncalled for, could make him resign his character as a man and a gentleman Firding the working majority he had in the House so small as to militate against the desired advancement of the public business, Mr. Macdonald did not, like the Cartier-Macdonald Cabinet, tenaciously cling to the seals of office till they could strengthen themselves by bribing their opponents; but like men true to the principles they profess as Reformers, having the good of the country at heart, yielded up the reins of power without being beaten on any test question. Even the personal enemies of Mr. Sandfield Macdonald have been deprived of a long-sought revenge in his last act, for the manner of his descent from the high position he held, and, we believe, honestly and efficiently filled, was more like that of a man having achieved a victory than of one who had lost a battle. He vacates his seat respected by even his political opponents, and they give expression to the regret that the conduct of the Opposition was not more manly and liberal towards him and his colleagues.

(From the Galt Reporter Opposition.)

We have not often found it necessary to compliment Mr. Sandfield Macdonald, but we really must congratulate that gentleman on his closing speech as Premier in the House. It was, as reported in the Leader, temperate, gentlemanly, and to the point, and reflects the greatest credit on the member for Cornwall.

[From the Berlin Telegraph.]

Since our last issue the Macdonald-Dorion Government have resigned. The reasons for this step are fully set forth in the able and statesmanlike speech of the Hon. J. S. Macdonald, which will be found in another column, so that we need not here discuss them at any length. It will be a matter of deep regret on the part of every true Reformer of Upper Canada, that the Ministry were compelled, through the traitorous conduct of such men as Foley, McGee, and Dr. Bown, to surrender the reins of government. That they commanded a majority of the House is admitted on all hand, but it was too small to warrant them in proceeding with the business of the country with that vigor which is so desirable, consequently they resigned.

MR. SANDFIELD MACDONALD.—During his career as Premier, the conduct of Mr. Sanfield Macdonald entitles him to the respect and confidence of the country. The public business has always been promptly and prudently attended to under his administration. An end has been put to the corruption and jobbing which were so prevalent under the Coalition. The public have been taught to feel that promises made by a Ministry are not necessarily to be understood as worthless. Though his administration has been assailed with the most determined opposition, and every shaft that trickery and cunning could devise has been hurled against it, Mr. Macdonald has met his opponents in a straightforward, manly manner, and baffled them at every turn. He has been ready to listen to the representatives of friends in regard to public matters, but he has never been guilty of making heedless promises of concurrence regardless of the public interests. He has known how to say "no" to any person, when in his opinion, his duty to the country required it. In almost every respect, his conduct as Premier presents a pleasing contrast to that of his predecessor, the member for Kingston.—Kingston American.

RATHER FRENCH-Y.

A Paris paper tells the following very Frenchy story of "a worthy gentleman," who, having married a termagant, resolved to become a widower in a way not to expose himself to the penalty of the law. Without expressing any opinion as to the moral of the husband's conduct, we copy the anecdote, trusting that his example will not find imitators in this region:

"He owned a beautiful country-seat situated on the bank of a delightful river, to which his lady was much attached, and which she visited regularly every Sunday morning. She had for this purpose a charming little mule, with splendid trappings, and of which great care was taken. For three day's previous to the lady's accustomed visit the husband had deprived the animal of all drink, so that it was almost famished. Sunday morning came—the lady set out on her mule, accompanied by her husband who was anxious to see the sport. The poor beast sought water on all sides, and had no sooner discovered the river than with the rapidity of lightning, he started off and stopped not until he had plunged himself head and ears into the river. The bank was steep, and the stream both rapid and deep at this place, and lady and mule were soon buried beneath the waves. The husband regretting the loss—of the mule, but reasoned like a philosopher, that to accomplish one's purpose, sacrifices must be made."

THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD.

If we have not a scattering of the Fenian Brotherhood among us, we have at least, sympathizers with that fraternity, we are sorry to think. We do not believe that these form any considerable portion of the loyal Irishmen of Montreal. So manifest an absurdity could receive no countenance from them; and an open organization could hardly exist in the face of the determined attitude of the Catholic Church. But a circumstance, stated by an eye-witness, was brought to our notice yesterday, which we think of sufficient interest to publish. There was a dinner held at the Exchange Hotel in this city on the evening of St. Patrick's day, at which there were about one hundred persons present. The tone of the speeches was disloyal and seditious; of treasonably sentiments were uttered. One of the performances was to a parody of the "Red, white and blue," and one of the refrains ran in this elegant style:—

"Britannia, the curse of the ocean,
The scourge of the brave and the free;
To hell with the red, white and blue."

And this song we are told was received with immense applause. One of the orators said that Irishmen "would be a Fenian Brotherhood, to extend throughout all the world—a universal body of United Irishmen, which would exclude all those from their society who, while claiming to be Irishmen, regarded the real properties of Ireland, to wit, the Roman Catholic Irish, as an inferior race, and their religion a system of idolitary." They hoped the time was fast approaching when Britain as a nation would cease to exist." They hoped that poor down-trodden Ireland would soon be enabled to free itself from the iniquitous and accursed yoke of England." Mr. H. J. Clarke, advocate, of this city was among the orators, and he talked of the time "when the holy priests were compelled to shed their blood in defence of Irish freedom." All this to say the least, is very ridiculous, but as a London contemporary stated some time ago, nothing can be considered contemptible which may cost misguided men their lives. We don't think there is any danger of this Fenian fraternity ever attaining such a head in this country as to lead to bloodshed, but in furtherance of its Quixotic objects it might induce some foolish men to mix up in this war, being waged in the South—the whole design of the Fenian Brotherhood evidently being to play upon the susceptibilities of the Irish in the Northern States to induce them to recruit, in order that when the war with the South is over they may go to Ireland with their victorious arms in their hands. The Catholic Church in the Northern States has strongly condemned the Fenian Brotherhood, and the Bishops have issued Pastoral letters against it. For the rest, we do not think that Irishmen in any part of the Queen's dominions—certainly not Irishmen in Canada—have anything to envy in the lot of their brethern in Yankeedom. The Americans will use Irishmen, will profit by their labor, will get them to fight their battles, will play upon their passions for political objects, but they will not fraternize with them as citizens, any more than they will the negroes. It is unnecessary for us to recall the numerous ways in which they have insulted them. The most intelligent Irishmen have put the facts on record. Vide, for instance, Mr. McGee's letter to Mr. Gavan Duffy. Mr. Fothergill in his recent lecture in this city, quoted the Bishop of Louisville in support of the proposition of the readiness of the Americans to use Irishmen as tools while they denied them sympathy. In Canada they have the utmost liberty, without a single cause of complaint, and there is no reason to doubt they appreciate the blessing.—Montreal Gazette.

TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

At no time for many years have the friends of temperance in Vermont been so active as they now are. This revival has been occasioned in part by the alarming increase of crime arising from intemperance. Two men have recently suffered the penalty of death on the scaffold for murders committed while drunk. Numerous other crimes, some of them quite heinous, are traceable to the same cause, and the necessity of doing something to dry up the fountain from which flow so many bitter streams, has impressed itself even upon the most apathetic. The more immediate stimulus, however, probably is the frequently repeated assertion that the law is not and cannot be enforced; and an attempt to procure a appeal of the law. It has been pretty thoroughly demonstrated, within the past month or two, that the law can be enforced anywhere in the state. At its last meeting, the Vermont Temperance Society recommended the formation of town leagues for the enforcement of the law. Such leagues have been formed in Burlington, Williston, Weybridge, Bristol, Lincoln, and various other places, and the good result of them are already apparent. Seizures of liquor and prosecution of runsellers are now almost daily occurrences. At Bellow's Falls the runsellers have been fined from $20 to $200 each. At St. Johnsbury a tavern keeper has been fined $140 upon his second conviction, and has good assurance that a third conviction will consign him to the cold cells of a jail that is hard by his house. In Windsor County, one man has been fined $600, and another $810. At Woodstock, one of the incorrigibles has been sent to jail three months, and the traffic is so thoroughly suppressed that a glass of liquor can with difficulty be procured in that town. While the law is thus enforced with unsparing severity, "moral suasion" is neglected. One of the objects of the temperance leagues, as declared by their constitution, is "the thorough agitation of the public mind upon the subject of temperance." Temperance lectures are coming into use again.—Am. paper.

THE BEST PAYMASTER.

An old minister in Wales, hearing of a neighbor who followed his calling on the Lord's day, went and asked him why he broke the Sabbath. The man replied that he was driven to it, by finding it hard work to maintain his family. "Will you attend public worship," said the minister, "if I pay you a week day's wages?" "Yes, most gladly," replied the poor man. He attended accordingly, and received his pay. After some time the minister forgot to send the money, and, recollecting it, called upon the man and said, "I am in your debt." "No, sir," he replied, "you are not." "How so?" asked the minister; "I have not paid you of late." "True," said the man: "but I can now trust God, for I have found that he can bless the work of six days for the support of my family just the same as seven.

A SAD STORY.

WHAT CAME OF A BOY'S RUNNING AWAY FROM HOME.

From the Cincinnati Daily Times.

About a year ago, the anxious, bewildered face of a poor woman in search of her lost boy, was familiar on the northern railroad in the Northern part of Ohio. Her name was Catharine Buck, and she lived in the vicinity of Columbus. The following was the story of her affliction, which she told to such sympathizing strangers as were prompted to address her. She was a widow with an only child, a boy of about twelve years of age. He was a bold, forward boy of that now scattered all her hopes and fears. One day she corrected him for some offence, and that day he disappeared from home.

She made inquiries for him in the neighborhood as soon as his absence was discovered, but heard nothing of him. Conjecturing that he had joined some military company and gone to the war, she had made a visit to the various camps that she could hear of, but although she found many boys of her son's age, not one of them gave to her heart that nameless thrill which a mother feels at the discovery of her missing offspring. Restless and anxious, she would return home (home so much without her boy! poor heart) to again start out upon the weary and fruitless search.

Her wild and haggard countenance, on which a settled grief had traced many lines, became familiar upon the railroads, as she was allowed to come and go as she pleased, no conductor troubling her for ticket or fare. Her story was known, and her affliction gave her immunities that nothing else could have obtained. At the depot, on the arrival and departure of trains, she would be seen anxiously scanning the moving throng, and there was but one image on her mind—that of her wayward and blessed boy. Her form would be seen gliding through the "soldiers' train" that was bearing away volunteers to the war, and the earnest soldier checked his mirth and withheld his rude jest when he saw that pale and sorrowful face, and caught the anxious, unsettled glance of her eye as she eagerly scanned the countenances before her.

We once saw the poor woman at a depot on the Cleveland and Columbus road. She had been engaged in her fruitless search for over three months. A compassionate by-stander was attempting to comfort her by telling her that her son was doubtless taken care of somewhere. She said she could be happy if she only knew that he was not suffering from hunger, and she could not sleep, for the picture of her boy without shelter was constantly in her mind. Her anxiety and grief had made fearful inroads upon a countenance that must have been prepossessing once (she was only in middle life) and there was a strange glitter in her eye that betokened approaching insanity.

In the following brief paragraph in a recent number of the Cleveland Herald, we find the sequel to the sad story of Catherine Buck:—

"KILLED BY THE CARS.—An insane woman was fatally killed by the cars on the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad, near West Greenville, Pa. She was sitting on the track, and made no effort to escape, until it was too late. The cow-catcher struck her, throwing her down an embankment, killing her instantly. Her name was Catharine Buck."

The weary heart is at rest. What a lesson is the above to wayward, thoughtless boys, who think rushing away from home such a brave achievement. A loving mother driven to insanity and death.

A DISTRESSING CASE.

Our attention has been called to a very melancholy case. It is that of a family residing in the county of Middlesex, in which out of eleven children, seven are deaf mutes. The oldest of these is a fine girl aged twenty-five years, while the youngest of the afflicted is eight years old. The parents are in humble circumstances, and quite unable to pay the expense of paying for their education in an institution for the deaf and dumb. Recently the attention of Mr. McCann, the Keeper of a school for the deaf and dumb in this city, has been called to the case of this family. By his exertions means have been provided for the education of four of them—two are already in his institution, and two more are about being sent for. These are the oldest four—being those most likely to get beyond the years of instruction, if longer neglected. We believe that they have been instructed for a short time in a Common School in Middlesex. The book used in the one recently issued by Mr. McCann, and which has been found exceedingly useful in the education of deaf mutes. In his endeavours to procure the necessary funds for the education of these deaf mutes, Mr. McCann has been lecturing in different places. At Oshawa he realized forty dollars and at Pickering twenty two dollars. The County Council of Middlesex was applied to pay the expense of the education of these unfortunate residents of their county, but refused on the plea that they would benefit the establishment of a school for the deaf and dumb at London. The decision was a reverse of credible to the Council of one of the wealthiest counties in the Province.—Globe

THURSDAY, APRIL 7TH, 1864.

Formation of the Ministry.

At last after nearly two weeks suspense we have to announce the formation of a new ministry or rather the old Coalition back again with the addition of two or three new members. Whilst the rest of the world daily makes progress Canada ruled by a firm phalanx of Lower Canada Habitan retrogrades. Time was when ministerial supporters and friends could dip their hands deep in the public purse. When lavish expenditure nearly doubled the revenue. When express trains and pic-nic parties at the public expense were every day occurrences; with these days—we are sorry to say we are again threatened. CARTIER and JOHN A. are once more in power. Corruption, extravagance and incompetence will be once more rampant. The post office will no longer pay expenses. Twenty acres of worthless land will now be sold for twenty thousand dollars. Withall, we feel better satisfied with the ministry as it is than we would have felt had it been composed of honester men from the same side of the house. We refer to the master spirits when we say this, not to the make weights. These were the men who so largely increased the public debt, and it is but right they should be the parties to devise means of paying it. The odium of doubling the taxation could not be on better shoulders. Upper Canada must pay and pay heavily to support the Lower Canadians in power—let her narrowly watch Upper Canadian members associated with them.

The new ministry is composed of the following men.

SIR E. P. TACHE, Receiver General.
HON. JOHN A. MCDONALD, Attorney General West.
HON G. E. CARTIER, Attorney General East.
HON MR. GALT, Minister of Finance.
HON MR. CAMPBELL, Commissioner of Crown Lands.
HON MICHEAL FOLEY, Postmaster General.
HON DARCY MCGEE, Minister of Agriculture and Statistics.
HON ISAAC BUCHANAN, President of the Executive Council.
HON M. CHAPAIS, Commissioner of Public Works.
HON MR. SIMPSON, Secretary and Registrar.
HON MR. LANGEVIN, Q. C., Solicitor General East.
HON MR. COCKBURN, Q. C., do do West.

We wish the title of Honorable could be honestly appended to all the above names. We have so many Honorables in Canada now-a-days, we don't respect them as we ought. Let us take a homlier word and much of the same significance and append it to two or three of these men's names and see how it looks thus,

HONEST JOHN A.
HONEST MICHAEL FOLEY.
HONEST COCKBURN.

The association of honorable with these names seems all right, but Honest ! !

Opposition to the New Ministers.

The people of Hamilton are determined to elect a more Honorable man than Mr. BUCHANAN. At a large and influential meeting the Mayor, Mr. MCELROY was unanimously chosen to be the Opposition candidate and Mr. MCELROY having signified his acceptance of the nomination, a vigorous canvas was determined on.

There is every prospect of his success, Mr. BUCHANAN's friends are alarmed—and every thing that can be done they will do to return their honest friend. Bribery, corruption and promises easily broken as pie crust will not be wanting. MR. FOLEY will have opposition in Waterloo. Waterloo has always been a reform constituency and Mr. FOLEY is a renegade like Mr. COCKBURN from the reform side of the house. MR. FOLEY has a hard road to travel.

MR. SIMPSON is not likely to be returned. Already the people of East Northumberland are bestirring themselves. A large meeting was held at Baltimore yesterday to nominate a reform candidate instead of Mr. COCKBURN, the result we have not yet learned but we doubt not that a fit man will be chosen by the electors who will worthily represent their views in the house instead of Mr. COCKBURN rejected. We doubt not that the men who supported MR. COCKBURN formerly will to a man vote against him now. His chances of re-election are small. At last election JOHN A. was brought all the way from Kingston to do battle with the valiant and then full of promise mFenner. We wonder how it will look like to see them fighting side by side now. Down with JOHN A. said Mr. COCKBURN then. Huzzah for CARTIER, MCDONALD & Co., is now his cry. Honorable Mr. COCKBURN.

.....The next fair of the New-York State Agricultural Society is to be held in Rochester. The fact will favor a visit by many Canadians.

LUMBERING.

The Lumbering season has drawn to a close, and lumbermen are now getting ready their rafting stuff—only waiting for the opening of the rivers and lakes to make a bold push for Quebec. We hope that all will be as fortunate in rescuing the cradle as they have been successful during the winter in manufacturing the timber. We learn by letters from England that prices are likely to be pretty good. Good fair rafts of waney timber from England that prices are likely to be pretty good. Good fair rafts of waney timber from 80 ft. average and upwards will be in demand, and probably brag in Quebec about twopence for 80 ft., elevenpence from 90 to 100 ft., and more for larger averages; lesser averages are not likely to do so well, as there has been a great deal of small stuff got out. Square board timber is likely again to command a fair price. Good spars will be in demand at average rates. Masts not likely to be so much enquired for. On the whole, manufacturers of timber are likely, if the spring prove favorable, to receive remunerative prices and ready sales. Until the arrival of the shipping list of the 1st of April, it will be difficult to speak definitely as to the number of vessels that will visit Quebec this season. Freights, at one time, were high, and there was a probability of a large fleet; latterly they have receded, and many ships that would have visited the American coast are likely to be put in the Baltic trade, since the insurance on both Danish and German vessels will be at war rates.

A. F. AND D. MACKAY'S TIMBER CIRCULAR.

10, Canada Dock, Liverpool.
March 11th, 1864.

Since our Annual Circular, dated 1st February, 20 vessels, 17,319 tons register, wood-laden, have arrived from British North America, viz., from Quebec, 15, from St. John, N. B., and 5 from other ports; at the same date last year, 16 vessels, 14,305 tons had arrived.

During the period above referred to, the trade in wood, although not so active as to be called brisk, has been fair in character, with, however, in some instances, prices slightly in favor of the buyer. Some expectation was indulged in here that the disturbed condition of the Scandinavian Kingdoms might, or rather would have the effect of enhancing the value of colonial wood produce, but this has not been realized at this port to the extent anticipated. Up to the present time, the import of colonial wood has been considerably larger than during the same period of last year.

Yellow Pine Timber—Quebec, per cubic foot, 1s 0½d to 1s 6d.

Waney Board—1s 3d to 2s.

Red Pine, Quebec, per cubic foot, per load of 50 cubic feet, Queen's calliper, 1s 3d to 1s 8d.

Oak, 2s 4d to 2s 10d.

Elm, 1s 4d to 2s.

Ash, 1s 2d to 1s 4d.

Birch, 1s 4d to 1s 11d.

Masts, Calliper—Red, 2s 3d to 2s 9. Yellow, 2s 3d to 2s 9d.

Spars, spruce, 1s to 1s 4d.

Deals, per load of 50 cubic feet, Quebec Yellow, per stand—1st quality, £15 to £18. 2nd quality, £11 to £13. 3rd quality—£8 10s to £10.

Staves, Quebec—Not exceeding 72 inches in length nor 7 inches in breadth, nor 3¼ inches in thickness, standard per M, £46 to £50.

W. O. Puncheon per M, £14 to £16.

Pine Timber.—Since the issue of our annual circular, the sales of cargoes from Quebec have been chiefly by private treaty, at prices which have not been made public. By auction, lots of different sizes of merchantable quality have been sold at from 15½d to 16½d for 70 feet average. The cargo ex Pensacola, landed at Birkenhead, brought at auction 12½d for small-sized wood.

Quebec Deals.—At an auction sale on the 25th ult., at Birkenhead, eight lots bright seconds sold at an average of £11 5s per standard. At other sales first quality bright brought from £15 15s to £16 10s per standard.

Birch.—This wood from Sherbrook has been sold by auction at from 16½d to 18d per foot.

AMERICAN NEWS.

General Grant, the captor of Vicksburg has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the American Armies and the campaign this spring appears to be about to be carried on with more vigor than ever, on every side immense preparations are being made—and every thing betokens a tremendous struggle. The whole Northern Militia it is said is about to be called out for sixty days to defend places at present garrisoned by Federal troops. All the troops at present in garrison are about to be sent to the field. An immense army of 300,000 men is to be concentrated for the capture of Richmond. On to Richmond is once more the cry. Immense preparations are being made in and around Washington for the reception of the wounded. The government of the United States have seized all the locomotives building in the Northern States, 600 of these it is said will be ready for operation in thirty days. From these facts and also from Gen. Grant's visit to Fortress Monroe, there is little doubt that an attempt will be made in a few weeks at farthest to concentrate the largest army that has ever been massed under one commander in modern times and push it forward at all hazards for the capture of Richmond. The Northern troops are said to be enthusiastically devoted to U. S. Grant and anxious only to be led to the attack. With what success time alone will tell.

The Confederates are not idle, again we hear of an invasion of the North, and too well we remember that these threats were not made in vain. The Confederates have all along shown a courage and resources worthy of a better cause. We learn that they have built themselves an iron clad fleet and may soon hear of fearful damage not only to Northern Commerce but to Northern cities.

A DESERTER CAUGHT.—A Yankee agent succeeded a few days since in inducing a sergeant of the 54th regiment, who was acting as drill-sergeant at Peterborough, to desert the service of Her Majesty. Passing through Port Hope, they were seen by the secret police who knew the deserting sergeant. A telegram was at once sent to the Toronto authorities to watch the trains, and arrest the guilty parties, a description of whom was sent across the wires. The police here were at once set about their work, and when the train arrived, the deserter was arrested. His Yankee companion escaped in the confusion which ensued. Such a case of desertion as this ought to be punished with the extreme penalty the authorities can enforce.

We clip the above from the Toronto Leader of the 2nd instant. The Leader must be misinformed as to the parties. We saw Sergeant BOULT only yesterday and feel certain he was in town on the day the above event transpired in Toronto. That some one may have been arrested at Toronto we doubt not, but that the efficient drill sergeant who has been stationed at Peterborough for more than a year is the party, we are in a position to deny. Peterboro' could furnish a host of veterans but not one deserter,

.....The Wilmington Journal says, that the statistics of the past year show that only 5 per cent. of the blockade runners have been captured

TOWN COUNCIL.

MONDAY, April 4th, 1864.

The Council met, present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Hamilton, Eastland, Chambers, McNaughton, Lennard, Lundy, Burnham, and Scarlett.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Accounts amounting to $161 25, were referred to the Finance Committee.

A report from the Finance Committee was submitted, received and adopted. The report could not recommend the prayer of the petition of Mrs. Donovan.

As to the petition of Mary Ann O'Neil, it recommended that the sum of two dollars be allowed her per week from 21st March to 23th April.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, Messrs. Burnham, Toole, Lundy, McNaughton and the mover were appointed as a Court of Revision.

On motion of Mr. Chambers, the taxes due by Mr. Ostrom for 1863 for the building on the Market Square were remitted.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the Street and Bridges Committee were instructed to level up and repair the side walk on George-street, from Murray-street to MacDonald-street, and to extend the same from there to Smith-street to five planks wide, and also to raise the side walk on the west side of Water-street between Brock and Murray-streets.

The Mayor informed the Council that he had been requested to have a night watch appointed.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the motion was rescinded, authorising the Street and Bridges Committee to make arrangements with Mr. Tanner for some gravel.

The Treasurer was instructed to keep his accounts entirely at the Bank of Montreal.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

FEARFUL CALAMITY.

TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY PERSONS KILLED.

From mails by the Africa and North America we learn that a fearful accident occured at Sheffield, England, by which over two hundred and forty persons were either killed or drowned. We have seldom read a more heart rending account. Most of the sufferers were quietly sleeping in their beds, when the terrible accident occurred. The reservoir or lake that supplied Sheffield with water, was over a mile in length, and was calculated to contain over one hundred and fourteen millions of cubic feet of water. Owing to heavy falls of rain the dam had been unusually full the day before the accident occurred; and the engineers in charge of the works had been apprehensive of danger. An inspection was made; but, unfortunately, they seemed to apprehend nothing serious. Fortunately, about 9 o'clock at night, a labouring man passing that way, saw that the water had begun to make a breach, and succeeded in giving a partial warning, so that many escaped with their lives, but with the loss of their all. Had it not been for this warning, partial as it was, it is fearful to think how much greater the loss must have been. The account of this calamity, in another part of this paper is truly heart rending.

Peterboro' Protestant Relief Society.

The Treasurer of the Peterboro Protestant Relief Society, begs to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt from "the Committee of the Orange Association, of the County of Peterboro," of $10 25; being the proceeds of the Soiree held in the Victoria Hall, on the 17th of March.

The last meeting of the season was held on Wednesday, the 30th ult. A balance-sheet of the accounts of the Society will shortly be published.

WE (Ottawa Citizen,) give in another column an account from the Court Circular of the christening of the young Prince. The subject is expatiated upon at some length, in all the English journals. The Royal infant, it is said, did not like his first introduction into public life, and yelled and struggled most lustily. Neither nurse nor grandmamma the Queen could quit him; and the Archbishop of Canterbury, who performed the ceremony, had to raise his voice to its loudest key to make himself heard above the squalls of the infant he held in his arms. No little amusement and some slight vexation was caused by this freak. But knowing mothers say, a baby is all the luckier for crying when it is christened; and that those who remain passive and quiet are not "long-lived." Judged, therefore, by the published report of the strength of his lungs by Albert Victor, he is likely to live long and flourish amazingly.

OPEN YOUR EYES.—To the fact that Patent Medicines are doing more good in the country than most people are willing to admit. What a solace it is to know that, when disease makes a sudden and unforseen attack, you have a remedy at hand, a family physician in the house as it were. Such is "N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir," that ought to be kept always at hand to be ready in season and out of season like a faithful sentinel ever on the watch to ward off the attacks of an unscrupulous foe. Price only 25 cts. See advertisement in another column. John F. Henery & Co. Proprietors, 303 St. Paul St. Montreal C. E.

A FRIEND IN NEED.—Is a friend indeed! That's a fact. It has been said that man's best friend is money; but we know of something better, "Henry's Vermont Liniment," because it cures the pain that gold will fail to do. A single bottle that costs but twenty-five cents may save you a Doctor's Bill of twenty-five dollars. Every family should have a bottle at hand in case of accidents. It will quell a raging toothache in ten minutes. There is nothing better for burns, bruises, lameness, cholic, griping, &c. &c. John F. Henry & Co. Proprietors, 303 St. Paul St. Montreal. C. E.

DESERVING OF CONFIDENCE.—Of the many preparations that are thrown into our Canadian market for lung diseases, we believe none can be found to equal that staunch old remedy. "Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry." Contrary to the general rule, with preparations of this kind, this remedy maintains everywhere its primitive popularity, and every season brings fresh witnesses of its remarkable efficacy in curing coughs and colds, whilst even cases of what has appeared to be confirmed Consumption, have yielded to its magic influence. We can, with an uncomon degree of confidence, recommend it.—Quebec Mercury.

THE ELECTIONS.

KINGSTON—Nomination day, the 11th.

MONTREAL—Nomination day in both Divisions, the 11th. Polling days, 18th and 19th.

CONSUMB—Nomination day, 12th.

CATARAQUI DIVISION.—The day of nomination for this division is fixed by the Sheriff's proclamation for Saturday the 16th of April, and the polling is to begin on Monday the 27th April.

We beg to draw attention to Mr. D. SUTHERLAND'S advertisment in another, column. Parties requiring to purchase seed grain will, we are satisfied, obtain an article to their satisfaction, as we are aware that Mr. S. has selected his assortment, as he says, with great care so as to meet the wants of the farming public.

THE Detroit Free Press tells of one John S. Fry, a "full private" in the Federal service, who, being ambitious of figuring as an "hossifer," donned a lieutenant's uniform and shoulder straps without proper authority for so doing, and was placed under arrest or more strictly speaking, under the surveillance of a guard for the offence. Being somewhat hankered on his bond account, he, on Tuesday night last, presented his landlord with a check for $500 upon the Michigan Insurance Bank, remarking at the time with fine dramatic effect that, to use a figurative expression, he was parting with his flesh and blood. With swimming eyes and choked utterance, he declared that that was his all; that he was parting with the means which he had purposely set apart for the education of his child, but who now would have to grow up in ignorance. The drama was finely brought out and had the desired effect. Mr. Sutherban cashed the check, deducting the amount of Fry's indebtedness, which was comparatively trifling, and handed over the balance. Yesterday morning he presented the order at the Bank for payment, when he was politely informed that "Lieutenant" John S. Fry had no funds placed to his credit in that institution. Astonished and confounded, Mr. S. returned to the hotel to recover at least the amount he had disbursed upon the check. But he was too late. Mr. John S. Fry was non est, having but a short time previous prevailed upon his guard to allow him a few minutes release from military surveillance, and decamped. It appears that the "lieutenant" was subsequently traced out and arrested. He will, in all probability, be tried and found guilty of conduct "unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

THE Telegraph Line from India to Europe is soon to become a fixed fact. A despatch has been transmitted from the Persian Gulf over the first section of the cable. It states that the contents of the first two cable vessels had been successfuly paid out—about 450 miles. The cable was in perfect order and working well. Two other vessels had arrived at Bombay, and the expedition would continue paying out the line towards Europe. We shall not, it appears, have now to wait long until the globe is girded about, and communications from every quarter of it received, in less time than we take to pen these remarks.

COMPLEXION.—It is an impossibility for any person afflicted with a diseased liver, or with any disorder of the digestive organs, to have a good or clear complexion. "Hoffland's German Bitters" will remove all disease from the liver and digestive organs, remove that sallowness of appearance and roughness of the skin noticed in so many. These Bitters are prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by all druggists and dealers in medicines.

NEW COUNTERFEITS ON THE BANK OF MONTREAL.—Counterfeit bills upon the Bank of Montreal have lately made their appearance in various places, and are pretty generally believed to have attained a wide circulation. They are well executed, and would not easily be detected, though the papers is of an inferior quality. They consist of the denomination 5s, and purport to have been issued at Quebec and Kingston. Those 5's supposed to come from Quebec may be detected by the name being spelled 'Quebeck,' instead of Quebec: while those supposed to come from Kingston there is no motto round the rim of the shield of the Bank's coat of arms in their upper left hand corner, which motto exists in the genuine bills.—Quebec Mercury.

POSTPONED.—We are requested to say that the Lecture which was to have been delivered this evening by the Rev. Mr. GILMOUR, is still further postponed on account of the continued indisposition of the Rev. gentleman. The Rev. Mr. CARROLL will deliver a lecture on "Self Cultivation," on Thursday evening 14th inst. The discussion of this subject ought to secure a large attendance, for every one is interested in the advancement and mental culture of our people.

INFRACTION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.—With the recent escape of a prisoner from custody in this city is connected one incident that may possibly reach the attention of high authority and create a basis for diplomatic intercourse. It is well known that the escape was accomplished by an extensive and well laid plot, and parties in Cape Vincent knew that the attempt was to be made, and the same evening were aware that the fugitive was en route for that place. During the night a strong body of men, well armed, left the Cape to meet the escaped prisoner, and prevent his apprehension. They crossed to Wolfe Island a number made their rendezvous at a school house in the vicinity of Hon's tavern, and not content with the perpetration of a hostile invasion, they proceeded to destroy the furniture of the school house, books, &c., and so effected damage to a considerable extent. Thus a person convicted of crimes committed upon our soil is aided in his escape from justice by subjects of a foreign power; and taken in connection with outrages upon British nationality which the past few weeks have witnessed, well may our citizens feel serious apprehensions, should this last occurrence go unheeded.—Kingston British American.

FAMILIES IN HOTELS.—The New York Times in an article on "Hotels versus Homes," says the growing preference for hotel life, for the mere purpose of "avoiding trouble," or in other words of shirking every duty in life but that of eating and drinking, and wearing fine clothes, is one of the curses of New York, and is doing a serious injury to the whole community. There can be nothing worse for women than an idle life in a hotel, and without a single duty to perform that affords the slightest amount of exercise for either mind or body. There can be nothing worse for children than to grow up without the knowledge of what a home is, without any of its influences or associations, and without any more endearing and elevating remembrances of boyhood or girlhood, than those of hotel "feeds," and the noise and glare, and dirt of hotel corridors and parlors, and the folly, and frivolity, and vulgarity of the promiscuous crowd that throng them.

THE HON. M. H. FOLEY.

We cannot but regret that Mr. Foley found it necessary, owing to pecuniary circumstances, to step at the bait held out to him by his old enemies—Galt, Macdonald and Cartier, in the shape of the mail bags. His treachery to the Reform party would forever have prevented his return to office in the Liberal interests, and the offer of a department by Cartier, under an extraordinary Ministerial emergency, was the last he was ever likely to receive. He did wisely, therefore, to accept it. The Tache-Campbell Government, we apprehend, cares little whether he be beaten in North Waterloo or not. If he should be, they will be rid of a trouble, and a supporter who can bring no assistance other than his own vote, and if he should unexpectedly be returned, they will soon find the means of shelving him in order that his place in the Cabinet may be filled by one of their own creatures. Mr. Foley has been an ambitious man, and struggled hard for high political honors, but the last he has won is at the sacrifice of all that remained to give him respectability as a politician, and instead of the office he holds being an honor, it is the badge of his disgrace, and will be a living testimony to his desertion of principle and friends for the sake of the emoluments attached to the office of Mail-bag Chief.—Hamilton Times.

LONDON, MARCH 17, 1864.

A FEARFUL CALAMITY—TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY-ONE PERSONS KILLED.

The public mind of all England is absorbed in the catastrophe that has happened at Sheffield, of which you have already received accounts. No similar calamity, on so gigantic a scale, has ever occurred in England before; for that at Hollinfirth, a few years back, was trifling compared to this. The only horrible event with which it can be compared is the Hartley coal-pit accident, when 200 men and boys were buried alive; and then the feeling that was aroused was perhaps more intense even than now, because of the dreadful uncertainty of the fate of many of the poor miners, and the certainty that not a few of them must, for more than a full day, have been suffering the most distracting mental anguish possible to man. In this case we know the worst—and oh, what a worst it is! Two hundred and forty-one persons, at least, drowned or smashed to death in a few moments, most of them while sleeping quietly in their beds! Some very touching accounts are given of the appearance of the dead, showing that not a few of them passed away in utter unconsciousness. In one place were discovered a man and his wife lying side by side with a little one of only a few days old at the breast of the mother. In another, an aged couple whose days were naturally approaching a termination; and anon, three little children of one family clasped in each other's arms, as though buried in the soundest slumber. Many, however, were dreadfully mutilated. Instance after instance is reported of whole families being swept away, and in other cases of the seemingly miraculous preservation of a family, even of little children and babes. Your readers will understand that the reservoir, or rather lake, by which the inundation was caused, is situated among the hills West of Sheffield, and distant nearly seven miles from the town, it is nearly a hundred acres in extent, a mile in length, and was calculated to hold a million feet of water. Owing to heavy falls of rain and snow, the dam had become unusually full on Friday and a strong wind prevailing, the water was dashed in great waves upon the embankment, which alone kept back the more than two million tons of it from falling into the valley below. This awful quantity of water—"enough to float all Her Majesty's navy"—was suspended as as it were, in the hills above Sheffield at the head of a steeply descending gorge. The embankment was formed for the most part of earth, surmounted with masonry. Early on Friday fears were entertained of the giving way of some portion of it, and the engineers of the company went to look at it. Whether they then attempted to strengthen it does not yet appear, but certainly they were satisfied that no serious danger threatened. At nine o'clock, however, a laboring man passing that way saw a crack through which the water was oozing, and he ran after the aforesaid engineers, who, on returning, discovered that something must be done, but still they dip not apprehend the greatness of the impending mischief. An attempt was made to find a vent for the angry water in a direction that would draw it off the embankment, but the time was now too short for any effective operation, and the crack becoming a considerable fissure, warning was given to the dwellers in the valley immediately below the lake. They heeded it and so escaped, with the loss of their all indeed, but with their lives. It is generally believed that the same warning could have been communicated to all the people of the valley, and into Sheffield itself, before midnight, when the catastrophe actually occurred: and had this been done all might have escaped. The engineers, however, had manifestly no conviction that there was any cause for apprehension to the people living a mile away, and so they did not think it desirable to create what might turn out to be a needless alarm. Their mistake was fatal; for presently the dam gave way, and the whole body of water rushed with a prodigious roar into the valley below, and a noise, say those who heard it, like heaviest thunder, accompanied with fearful hissing; destroying everything in its course, trees, bridges, mills, houses, whole streets indeed, and two hundred and forty-one human lives, besides large quantities of sheep and oxen, leaving nothing behind but a scene of utter desolation—ruin to the last conceivable degree. Of "ruins," properly so called there are none, for when the morning dawned the whole face of the valley was seen to have undergone a wondrous transformation. Where the night before there had been smiling villages and gardens budding into spring beauty, farm houses and numerous workshops, nothing was to be seen but a long low brown mass of alluvial deposit, with here and there a scattered and branchless tree sticking up through the waste, or a solitary gable wall where once stood a noble house, and in the centre a rushing torrent still making its way in huge volumes to the adjacent town of Sheffield. The stoutest heart sickened at the sight, even before it was known there had been such an awful destruction of life. There is no evidence at present to show who, if any one, is responsible; but heavy must be the heart of any person who has reason to feel that for this terrible callamity his own want of skill or care is to blame. The Home Secretary sent a very competent engineer to the spot on Monday, to instigate a rigid investigation.

DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.

Compared with the loss of life the destruction of property may well be regarded as of no account. But even this will entail great suffering upon a vast number of people. The value of the property destroyed is estimated by some at 500,000; others say that this is far below the amount of loss. It would seem that the Water company is liable to make good the damage, but their total capital is only £400,000, and many of the shareholders are widows and orphans. It is not likely, therefore, that the claim will be pressed, especially seeing that 'a public subscription' is already set on foot, and is pretty sure to reach any amount that may be required. In the three days only that have elapsed the contributions received are reported to be close upon £20,000.

SHOCK OF AN EARTHQUAKE. — Between 5 and 6 p. m., on Friday, the 18th, there was felt along the town line of Markham and Scarboro' a light shock of an earthquake. J. W. Mitchell, Esq., our informant, says that while taking tea at a friends house at the foot of the 8th concession of Markham, he, with the family was much startled by a most unusual noise, which made the house tremble. On returning home, one and a half miles distant, his wife hastened to tell him of her fright at the strange sound she had heard, and which jarred the house and made the dishes in the cupboard rattle. He is confirmed in his belief that it was the shock of an earthquake, for on making enquiry of his neighbors, he learned that others had observed the same phenomen.

THE MEMBER FOR NORTH WATERLOO.—What will our friends in North Waterloo say if the Hon. Mr. Foley becomes a member of a Tory Government, especially those of them who have manifested such a generous leniency towards his recent backslidings? The hon. gentleman need hard language towards the coalition at the Mount Forest dinner,—he will be now, if offered a place, accept it from John A. Macdonald? We should trust that, for the honor of our race, he will not. If he does, he may take a last long lingering look at North Waterloo, and no one knows this better than Mr. Foley.—Dumfries Reformer.

Mr. Foley evidently does not know, or, knowing it, wilfully shuts his eyes; for, if our information be correct, he has already accepted office.

NEW STEAMBOAT LINE.—The Portland Press, of the 22nd, understands that Messrs. H. & A. Allan principal proprietors of the the Motreal Ocean Steamship Line, proposes to extend the accomodations of their line by additional steamers, and also to put on a line to London as soon as the proper vessels can be constructed. Both lines will make Portland their winter port.

ARRIVAL OF THE CITY OF CORK.

NEW YORK, April 2.

The steamship City of Cork from Liverpool via Queenstown 21st, arrived this morning. The Cork's mail of the morning of the 21st has the following:—

Copenhagen, March 19th, 1.30 P.M.—Yesterday three Prussian men-of-war attacked the Danish blockading squadron off Gretswald, Pomerania. After an engagement of two hours the Prussian vessels retired to the harbor. Artillery firing was renewed to-day at Duppel.

Berlin, March 20.—The commander-in-chief of the Prussian navy has received a report stating that yesterday the Arcona with three gunboats put to sea in search of hostile shipping. The cruise had no result, however, all the Danish ships having left Prussian waters. The report concludes, therefore, that there can be no question of an existing blockade of the Prussian coast.

Hanover, March 19.—The Danish government has decreed the lease of the Hungarian ships under embargo in Danish ports.

Londsburg, March 18, 9 A.M.:—On Thursday there was heavy cannonading and fighting all along the line of Duppel village and the Longsberg position was taken by the Prussians after a heroic resistance by the Danes.

The position of Duppel is still unharmed. The numbers of the Prussians are always four to one. Their artillery has ranged four miles.

A Danish Colonel was killed to-day, and 70 wounded were brought in. The enemy's losses are severe. The Danish army is undaunted.

Copenhagen, March 17.—The Prussian batteries opened fire yesterday morning on the Duppel entrenchments. The enemy fired altogether 500 shots. We replied occasionally, in all 35 times. Our firing seemed to be successful, as two of the enemy's batteries were silenced for some time. We have two officers killed, and one wounded; 16 privates were killed and 49 wounded.

Cardiff, Sunday.—Two fires occurred here last night, doing considerable damage. No lives lost.

The City of Cork bring no later commercial advices.

VERY LATEST PER CITY OF CORK.

Hamburg, March 19. — Advices from Stockholm to the 15th state that fresh disturbances had taken place. The police office was attacked, and the windows of the residence of the chief police were smashed. The military were called out to quell the riot and 11 persons were arrested.

The Dagbladet insisted on more energetic measures being taken by the government.

The French ambassador has left Christiana.

Flensburg, March 18.—The bombardment of the entrenchments of Duppel was resumed to-day. A terrific cannonade is being heard here.

Turin, March 17.—News from a reliable source at Rome states that the illness of the Pope has become alarming.

The official Gazette of Turin announces the appointment of twenty-three new Senators.

Hamburg, March 17. — According to a hand-bill, emanating from the printing office of Greeve & Tiedemann, and distributed in this city at 8 o'clock this morning, Prince Frederick of Augustenburg was found dead in his bed at Kiel. The rumour requires confirmation.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—I am sure your readers must have been amused on reading the communication signed "One of the People," in your last issue, in reference to our Town Councillors and the proposed new Town Hall. What a dreadful fever the gentleman has fallen into! If it does not soon abate, we shall have some talking in the Council this year also, after all. Why, this writer, in some of his letters earlier in the year, led us to believe that these Councillors were like a flock of sheep which he could direct without even rising from his chair in the Council Chamber! Well, it now appears that the rate-payers were not so much mistaken in their choice after all; and that although their representatives are not all classical men, they are better endowed—having a fair share of common sense.

A stranger reading your correspondent's letter would fancy that we were on the eve of a riot—that the people had been clamoring for the passage of the new Town Hall By-law—that numerous petitions had been presented by the rate-payers, which had received no attention from the Council—and that some disinterested and patriotic councillor had endeavored to pass the By-law, but these masters of the people had violently given it the six months hoist. Well, such a person would be astonished when told that the question of the By-law had not been mooted in the Council, and that no one had asked for its pass

MINERAL LANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,

QUEBEC, 3rd March, 1864.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands approved by His EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL in Council.

1. That the tracts shall comprise not more than four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of the tracts in unsurveyed territory be forty chains in front by one hundred chains in depth, and bounded by lines running due North and South, and East and West, or as near to these dimensions as the configuration of the locality will admit.

3. The applicant for a tract in unsurveyed territory must furnish a plan and description thereof by a Provincial Land Surveyor.

4. The price shall be one dollar an acre, payable on the sale.

5. That a tax or duty of one dollar per ton be charged on all ores extracted from the tract payable on removal from the mine.

This condition applies to all Mining lands sold since the 1st day of April, 1863, and is in lieu of the Royalty of two and a half per cent chargeable on the ores from these lands.

6. That in surveyed Townships lots presenting indications of minerals, be sold on the above conditions, but at not less than one dollar per acre in any township, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

7. That not more than one tract of four hundred acres be sold to one person.

8. The above regulations do not apply to mines of Gold and Silver.

9. All previous regulations inconsistent with the above are cancelled.

WM. McDOUGALL,
Commissioner.

☞ All Locations of Mineral Lands on the North shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, and on the adjacent islands, which, on the 15th March, 1861, were liable to forfeiture for non-performance of conditions of sale and location and which have remained liable to forfeiture to the present time, are forfeited.

The locatees, and their assignees, provided the assignments were made before the date hereof, are allowed to apply the payments they may have made on any location, over and above the deposit, or first instalment, towards the purchase of the same, or any other location which shall be open for sale at the date of their application to have the same so applied; but such application shall be regarded as a new purchase subject to existing regulations and must be filed in the department of Crown Lands on or before the FIRST day of NOVEMBER, A. D., 1864.

ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,

Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forge in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Rider Wheel, from 3 to 5 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Well or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 8 CANADIAN; the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Bickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draughts, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Ploughs yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

THE subscriber has opened a new store in the building lately occupied by R. P. McDougall, where he offers for sale a large and well selected assortment of GROCERIES, consisting in part of SUGARS OF ALL KINDS.

Teas, Coffee, Spice, Rice, Tobacco,

COAL OIL LAMPS,

OF THE MOST IMPROVED KINDS,

COAL OIL, AMERICAN STONE WARE,

OF EVERY VARIETY,

And other articles too numerous to mention.

Well knowing [after an experience of twenty years in the trade] that the "nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling," he will sell for small profits, having bought his stock with CASH he is confident that he can sell goods for ready pay cheaper than any other merchant in Peterboro'. As the goods offered for sale by the undersigned are all paid for, he does not confine himself to selling them "cheap for cash only," but will cheerfully exchange them for all kinds of country produce, at cash prices. The subscriber does not attempt to enumerate all the articles which he offers for sale.

☞ Call and examine the goods and see how cheap the "yankee" can sell them.

Paddy and Paddy's Eye-water.

Ooh, I'm kilt, Biddy dear, as I live;
Sure my head is as light as a top;
For I'm morthis for one that won't give
To a cratchure what nades it, a dhrop.
'Tis provokin' that one cannot swig
Paddy's eye-water off wid a toss—
Not a dhrop, aither little or big,
Widdout sthakin' a march on the boss.

He's contrary, an' says it is wrong;
For to dhrink it at all is not right,
Be it over so wake or so strong,
Aither marnin, or noon, or at night.
But the quarest ov all—you wad think
That 'twould never be said by a Turk—
Share he says it's not good for to dhrink
Paddy's eye-water whin at one's work.

For to take to could water, avick,
An' to dhrink it at all is no joke;
Shure, avourneen, 'twill make me so sick,
An' so wake that I can't work a stroke.
Is't a wonder, thee, Biddy, agrah,
That yer own Paddy Murphy's so wake
An' so poor that he's scarce worth a straw?
Oh, you'd take him at once for a rake.

Now there's pow'r in a horn ov good rye;
It revives a man's sprits so nate;
An' a horn or two more, none deny,
Will protect from the could an' the hate.
O, this send for the staff ov this life—
Paddy's eye-water's jist what I mane;
This wont you? like a good little wife!
An' I'll wager my strength I'll regain.

THE MONKEY IN CHURCH.

There was once an eminent clergyman by the name of Cassubon, who kept in his family a tame monkey, of which he was very fond. This animal, which was allowed its liberty, liked to follow the minister, when he went out, but on the Sabbath was usually shut up till his owner was out of sight, on his way to Church.

But one Sabbath morning, when the clergyman, taking his sermon under his arm went out, the monkey followed him unobserved, and watching the opportunity while his master was speaking to a gentleman on the steps, ran up at the back of the pulpit, and jumped upon the sounding board.

Here he gravely seated himself, looking round in a knowing manner on the congregation, who were greatly amused at so strange a spectacle.

The service proceeded as usual, while the monkey, who evidently much enjoyed the sight of so many people, occasionally peeped over the sounding-board, to observe the movements of his master, who was unconscious of his presence.

When the sermon commenced, many little forms were convulsed with laughter, which conduct so shocked the good pastor, that he thought it his duty to administer a reproof, which he did with considerable action of his hands arms.

The monkey, who had now become familiar with the scene imitated every motion, till at last a scarcely suppressed smile appeared upon the countenance of most of the audience. This occurred, too, in one of the most solemn passages in the discourse; and so horrible did the levity appear to the good minister, that he launched forth into violent rebuke, every word being enforced by great energy of action.

All this time, the little fellow overhead mimicked every movement with ardor and exactness.

The audience, witnessing this apparent competition between the good man and his monkey, could no longer retain the least appearance of composure, and burst into roars of laughter, in the midst of which one of the congregation kindly relieved the horror of the pastor at the irreverence and impiety of his flock, by pointing out the cause of the merriment.

Casting his eyes upward, the minister could just discern the animal standing on the end of the sounding-board, and gesturing with all his might, when he found it difficult to control himself, though highly exasperated at the occurrence. He gave directions to have the monkey removed, and sat down to compose himself, and allow his congregation to recover their equanimity while the order was being obeyed.

Singular Courtship and Marriage.

In a recent biographical sketch of the Gorham family, published in a Cape Cod paper, the following amusing story is related respecting the courtship and marriage of Col. John Thacher of Yarmouth:

The Colonel married Lydia Gorham, Jan. 1st, 1683 or 84. His first wife was Rebecca, daughter of Josiah Winslow, of Marshfield, the niece of Governor Edward. He was married Nov. 6, 1651, and some little time after his return to Yarmouth he and his bride called at Capt. Gorham's. Lydia was then an infant only two months old. Col. Thacher taking the babe in his hands, presented it to his wife, and said in a sportive manner "allow me to introduce you to my second wife." Mrs. Thacher took the babe and kissed it.

July 15, 1683, Mrs. Rebecca Thacher, wife of Colonel Thacher, died, and "many lamentable verses" he wrote on the occasion. Before ink was dry with which he penned the elegies, he thought of Miss Lydia who was then 22, and unmarried. Common decency required that he should wait three months before proposing to marry her; but passing the house of the widow Gorham, one evening, he saw his son Peter's horse hitched at the door.

Mistrusting that Miss Lydia was the object of his visit, Col. Thacher on the morrow privately asked his son if he thought of marrying Miss Lydia. The young man blushed, and frankly admitted that to be the object of his visit.—"Now," said the Colonel, "if you will agree to discontinue your visits, I will give you my black oxen."

Peter accepted the oxen, and the Colonel married Miss Lydia 5 months and 16 days after the death of his first wife, whom he had so deeply lamented, in most dolorous rhymes. Mrs. Lydia Thacher survived her husband. She died, Aug. 2, 1746, aged 82 years.

Sayin's and Doin's of Josh Billings.

"GIVE THE DEVIL HIS DUE."

This is good advise. I don't know who was the author or it, if I did, I would go for rewarding him, either with a sett or plated ware, or a prize in the art union. No man would give better advise or consolashun; he ought tew have a 2 story monument, when he dies, with an epitaff on it, founded on fac; he ought to have at leaste fifteen hundred little children named after him each year; he ought tew be mourned in mens memorys like a pleasant dreame, that afterward turned out tew be true. He ought tew hav his fot graff taken bi every new skylight in the land; he ought tew hav sett tew musick, and he sung in connekshun with the doctrealogy; he ought tew be stereotyped, so that an edishun could constantly be worked oph to meet the pressng demand.

GREAT SALE! OF REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 400 acres.

That portion of property not off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 35 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT!

Give Honor to whom Honor is due.

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by many Doctors in their practice for Dressing Burns, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sick Headache, Cubed Breast, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, persons on whose word entire reliance may be placed.

(From a Minister.)

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was afflicted so at one time that I was compelled to leave my pulpit, but after using it by working it into my eyes for a short time, my eyes began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as far off as any person.

Respectfully yours,
REV. HENRY W. REED.

Cold Water, Mich., }

REMARKS.

If a person break his limb he does not expect to get cured by any Ointment; but for a family Ointment, this is superior to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, was an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold every years, keeping a great many hands at the laboratory employed to put it up. The Ointment does not contain any ingredient injurious to either man or beast.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I was in the summer of 1862 afflicted with the rheumatism. I was compelled to use two canes. I used your Tanner's German Ointment as you directed for about two weeks, when I began to get better. I am now able to walk without any canes and consider myself cured. I must heartily recommend your Ointment to the public as a good remedy for the Rheumatism.

Yours very truly,
Rev. GEORGE VERPLANK.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

Your letter of 21st inst., is received, asking me if I were cured of the piles by the use of your Ointment. When you first recommended to me your German Ointment for the piles, I had little or no faith in it. I used it for two weeks. I am now perfectly well. I was so bad at that time, I was compelled to keep my bed. I have no hesitancy in giving you my letter for publication as I think every body afflicted ought to try it.

Very respectfully,
HON. EZRA COOS.

Branch County, Michigan, }

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I have used your German Ointment for sick headache and think it the best remedy I can use.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. MARIA HAIGHT.

Canaan, N. Y., }

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

I have used your German Ointment for chilblains, and I think it the best remedy in use for that complaint.

Yours truly, etc.,
HENRY G. COON.

Cold Water, Mich., }
Oct. 9th, 1863. }

Why is it that Doctors discourage the use of many good medicines sold at the drug stores? Simply because it hurts their business and nothing else. If a man is ill and is ill and is cured by a few doses of Ayer's Pills, the doctor is not profited in any way. The almighty dollar causes many doctors to squeeze from the truth. A great many run for a doctor if they do not feel as well as usual, and accumulate doctors' bills, when with a little common sense and watchfulness it could be avoided. Doctor Tanner has been a physician for over 40 years, and in making mention of the above facts from experience, has seen it in his own practice He has been called up a great many times in the night to go 5 or 10 miles in the country to see persons, and after arriving on the spot found his services hardly wanted. Whereas if they would have taken a dose or so of some remedy commonly kept about the house it undoubtedly would have cured them. The time has arrived when the people should have less to do with the calomel, mercury doctors. On an average the most of doctors lose 15 cases out of a hundred. A Dr. is called, he leaves the poisonous stuff that takes thousands to an early grave, making the family believe when the patient takes it, that it contains no mercury and that it will not hurt him.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,

When you called at my house urging me to try your Ointment for my Rheumatism, I had little or no faith in it. I took it more to please you than myself. I began to make applications of it, continued doing so for nine days and nights, renewing the Ointment every 12 hours. After using it for six days, my rheumatism was better, and it nine days the dreadful pains left me. I was so bad that my limb was drawn up, keeping me in my bed. I hope every body afflicted with the rheumatism will give your German Ointment a trial.

Your obedient servant,
NATHAN ROBERTS.

Picture of the Millennium in the Nursery.

The Prophet's eye was opened
The golden time to see,
When wolf and lamb together
Shall dwell in unity;

When calf and royal lion
Are led by tiny hand,
And none shall hurt or injure
Within God's peaceful land.

Upon thy little table,
Thy childish play to me
Presents the golden era,
Earth's blessed jubilee.

When from thy ark thou talkest
Beasts tame as well as wild,
And sheep and wolves together
Receive thy welcome mild.

The lamb whose leg was broken,
Thou playfully dost chide,
And gavest to the tiger,
That he may be its guide.

Thou feedest dove and martin
With crumbs of bread and cake;
The hungry bear and lion,
The same repast do take.

A cosy bed thou makest
The hen and heavy bear:
The timid hare and leopard,
How soundly they sleep there!

Thus on thy little table
Thy play reveals to me
The sacred, golden future;
Peace be, dear child, with thee!

Miscellaneous.

A Chapter from the Life of a Three-Penny Piece.

BY H. F. D.

It was a cold and drizzly afternoon in the month of November, and I was lying, in company with several shilling, sixpenny and fourpenny pieces on the counter of a small general-dealers shop in a little country-town in the north of England. A few pence were also in our immediate neighborhood, whose existence I had nearly forgotten. As these do not move in the same sphere as my-self, (I being of silver, and they only of more vulgar copper,) I always make a point of keeping them at a proper distance. Not that I am by any means proud of my superior position, nor that I wish to act unkindly towards them; for I am, in general, very condescending and courteous when in company with them beneath me. Still, you know, there are certain land-marks in society which must be kept up; and if we were not particularly careful to make some little distinction between its different grades, the lower orders would set no bounds to their presumption, and life would be rendered quite intolerable. But however much I might be tempted to question the politeness of this ignorant and inconsiderate shopkeeper, in thus throwing us all down together upon his counter, and allowing us to lie there higgledy-piggledy, without any regard to our feelings upon this point, still, there we were. Desiring to accomodate a neighbour with small change for a sovereign, he had turned us, with many other coins of different value, out of a little drawer in his desk, which stood behind the counter. A portion had been drafted off and we were the remainder.

Now my master, the general-dealer, was in the book-parlor behind the shop, sitting by the fireside with his feet upon the fender; a habit he would persist in continuing, in spite of the constant injunctions of his wife, a most notable little woman, whose furniture and fire-irons always looked as bright as her own face; and that is no little praise let me tell you. Yes, there was my worthy master, taking a glance at his paper during a lull in business. He was a wee bit of a radical, was the general dealer, and loved his paper, though it was but a cheap one. He usually took in the Penny "Examiner and Times;" for, as he used to say, "It's worth the money for waste paper in the shop; and then, there's the news for nothing!" Whilst my master was thus pleasantly occupied, I amused myself by looking about me. From the spot on which I lay I could command a view of a portion of the shop-window; and through this I gazed curiously at the passers by. Several persons paused for a moment to look in. At length a little red-cheeked boy, about eight years of age, stopped to look at some fine oranges piled up in a corner of the window. His face was a very expressive one; and I watched with much interest the different changes which passed rapidly over it, for I am somewhat of a physiognomist. First there was that indescribable expression which usually accompanies what is called "the watering of the mouth." This was followed by a look of much thoughtfulness, which in turn gave way to one of earnest calculation. The oranges had evidently became the objects of his desire, and he was therefore estimating their probable cost. At length he drew a penny out of a little breast pocket, and turned it over in his hand several times, looking as if he would like to double it at every turn. His mind, however was soon made up; he entered the shop, and shuffled on the floor with his feet. The shop-keeper being accustomed, I presume, to such a primitive kind of summons, looked up from his paper through the window of the back parlor; and, seeing his littler customer at the counter, came forward into the shop. As he did so he laid his paper down heedlessly on the change, and thus slightly shifted my position; placing my right little person a few inches in advance of the rest.

"How do you sell those oranges?" said the boy, with a somewhat anxious look. "Two for three-pence, my little man! They're very fine ones, and worth the money!" "Two for three-pence," said the boy, "that's three half-pence a piece, I suppose?" "Yes, my lad, that's the ticket!—None at a penny!" said the child, with a searching glance. "No! They're all alike!" The little purchaser's countenance fell but he commenced looking round the shop for some other article which his penny would compass. Finally he decided upon a currant bun. Whilst my master stooped down to wrap it in paper for him, the boy caught sight of me, as I lay most temptingly on the counter, just within his reach. Like lightning it flashed upon his mind, that, if I were his, he could purchase what he so much desired. The temptation, alas! was too strong for him. Before the bun was wrapt in paper and presented to him, I was lying at the bottom of his pocket, and his hand was stretched out to receive it!

Having thus unlawfully gained possession of my coveted person, my new master hurriedly left the shop; intending to return and obtain the oranges which he longed for. But young as the boy was, he had a conscience; and that conscience immediately began to trouble him. He had not gone a dozen yards before his conscience smote him. The bun stuck in his throat. He felt no appetite for it. He only took a bite or two, and then threw it away. He felt uncomfortable and ill at ease. He never even once took me out to look at me. Situated as I was, in the breast-pocket of his little coat, I could feel how his heart was beating. Even then he would have given all he had to place me where I was before.

You may imagine how deeply I felt for the little fellow; and how gladly I would have leapt out of his pocket on the counter again; but I had not the power. I was compelled by my destiny to lie where I was, and patiently wait for the issue. Having walked about for a little while, my young master felt that it was time that he was at home for tea. With shame and reluctance he bent his steps in that direction. That was the worst tea, I venture to say, that he ever ate, or rather did'nt eat! The bread and butter, and even the buttered toast, usually so palatable, would not go down; whilst the tea almost chocked him. At last his gloomy looks and want of appetite could no longer escape his mother's watchful eye.

"Why, Willie, darling, what is the matter? Are you not well, my child?" "Yes, mamma dear, I am quite well, thank you; but very unhappy!" And here followed a deep sigh, whilst down went the curly head lower than ever. "Not happy, my dear!" said his mother, "and why not?" Here all the faces round the table, both big and little looked up in wonder. The fact of merry little Willie's being unhappy seemed to be something quite out of the way, "Yes, mamma," said the child, "I am very, very, unhappy! There's something in my mind which troubles me! May I ask you a question alone after tea?" "Certainly, dear; as many as you like!" was the reply.

A silence fell upon the party for the rest of the meal. The mother saw that something unusual weighed upon her boy's mind, and wisely questioned him no further; feeling sure that she would know all in due time.

When the cloth and tea-things were removed; and when his mother had purposely gone into her room for a few minutes to fetch something; then it was that little Willie rose up with a heavy heart and followed her. I was still in his pocket. You can guess how interested I was. That was indeed a turning-point in the boy's life. Nothing but the perfect confidence and understanding between the mother and her child saved him. "Now, Willie," said his mother, drawing him to her side and placing her hand fondly round him, "what is it that troubles you? Let me see if I am clever enough to answer your question?" "Well, mamma, dear," said the little fellow, longing to unbosom himself, and yet ashamed to do it all at once, "I know a boy he is'nt very old; and he took a three-penny-piece which didn't belong to him from a counter in a shop, because it would just buy some oranges he wanted. He did'nt buy them directly; but he thought he would come back by and by and get them." "That was a very sad deed, Willie, but what followed?" "Why, mamma, as soon as the boy left the shop he felt he wanted to put it back, only he was afraid Now, I want to know what you would advise him to do? You are always so clever in these things?" "What little wisdom I have, dear Willie, I am thankful for; and I will make the best use of it I can in advising your little friend on this important point. Under such circumstances as these, I should certainly recommend him to go at once to the person he has wronged, taking the three-penny-piece with him. Then let him manfully confess his sin; and say, "sir, I have been very wicked. I was tempted to take this from your counter; but no sooner had I done so, than I felt I had done wrong. I could not be happy; I could not sleep; I could not ask God to forgive me; until I had returned it to you again, and asked your pardon!" "Oh! but mama, that would indeed be terrible, to go and face the man from whom it was taken. Could'nt the boy go to his mamma, and ask her to take it back for him; or at any rate to go with him when he took it back?" "No, my child, I should not advise this. Remember, it would not be nearly so dreadful for this poor boy to face the man he had injured, especially if he had brought back to him what he had taken; as it would be for him to face an offended God, if he did not return it, and feel sorry for his wrong deed. And, as he committed the crime by himself, I think, if he possibly could, he should make reparation by himself. I am sure, dear Willie, you will agree with me when you have thought a little more on the subject. However, if you would like to take your little friend my advice, we can spare you for a little while this evening; but you must not be gone long."

Slowly and steadily the little fellow departed taking his hat from a peg on the hall, he passed into the street. A few tears and he had decided on his course of action. There was a flush on his cheek, and tears stood in his round blue eyes; but there was nevertheless a look of fixed determination on his face. He reached the shop. The shutters were up. This was another obstacle; but he overcame it. He stood on the step and gently pulled the bell; telling the girl who opened the door that he wished to see her master for a few moments alone. He was shown into the shop which was still dimly lighted. How his little heart did beat to be sure; almost enough to throw me out of my place in his breast pocket. It was indeed a trying time for little Willie; but he was acting upon the advice of her whom he loved most in the world, and this gave him strength.

At last the parlor door was pushed open by my late master. In a moment I was out of his pocket, and the child was on his knees before the man whom he had wronged. "Oh, Sir!" said he; "I was tempted this afternoon to take this three-penny-piece from off your counter! I could not feel happy until I brought it back to you, and asked your pardon. Will you—will you forgive me?" Then followed a rush of tears, as his head sank upon his bosom. The general dealer was but flesh and blood. He had children of his own, and his heart was touched. He took the child up in his powerful arms, and his own tears flowed freely. "Forgive you, my little man? Yes, that I would, if you had taken my whole shop and not brought even a shilling back!" So saying, he kissed the boy on the forehead; and with a full heart turned into his little back parlor, with a better opinion of human nature than he had held for many a day. He murmured a few words as he went; but I could only catch the latter part of the sentence—"as we forgive them that trespass against us."

The boy was off like a shot. Both of them had entirely forgotten me, and I was left lying neglected upon the floor of the shop; but still I know what followed. "Mamma! mamma!" said Willie, rushing into the house and throwing himself into his mother's arms, "the boy has been to the man, and the man has forgiven him!"

Royal Relationships and Foreign Politics.

The Prince of Wales, as every one knows, is married to the daughter of the King of Denmark, one of the parties to this German contest. His eldest sister, the Princess Royal, is married to the Prince Royal of Prussia, one of the parties opposite to the King of Denmark. His second sister, Princess Alice, is married to the Prince Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt, whose mother is a Princess of Prussia, and whose brother is an officer in the Prussian army. These are go direct relationships; but there are others scarcely less with which the public are not so well acquainted. Prince Frederick of Augustenburg—the Duke of Augustenburgh as he is generally called here—although that title properly belongs to his father, is a very close connection of our royal family, and is much better known to the Court than to the people of these realms. It will be remembered that when the mother of Queen Victoria married his Royal Highness the Duke of Kent she was a widow. She was first married, in the year 1703, to the Prince Emich Charles of Leiningen, who died 4th July, 1814. By this marriage the Duchess of Kent had one son, born 1804, and one daughter, born 1807, who were consequently half brother and half sister of the Queen. The Queen's half brother, Charles, Prince of Leiningen, died 1856, and was succeeded by his son, Prince Ernest of Leiningen, nephew of the Queen, who is a captain in the Royal Navy of Great Britain. The half sister of the Queen, the Princes Anne of Feoderovna of Leiningen, married in 1828 Ernest Prince of Hohenlone-Langenburg. He died in 1860, leaving a widow and five children, the latter nephews and neices of the Queen. Of these children, the third son, Prince Victor of Hohenlohe, who took the name of "Count de Gleichen" on his marriage with a daughter of Admiral Sir G. Seymour, is a captain in our Royal Navy. His next sister, the Princes Adelaide Victoria of Hohenlohe (born 1835,) married in 1856, Frederick Christian Augustus, Prince Hereditary of Schleswig-Holstein - Sonderburg - Augustenburg, the Pretender to the sovereignty of the imaginary state of Schleswig-Holstein, who is by his marriage the Queen's nephew. Besides these relationships to our Royal Family with the contending parties, there are others less immediate. The King Leopold of Belgium is the Queen's uncle. His eldest son and heir, the Duke de Brabant, is married to an Archduchess of Austria, and his daughter, the Princess Charlotte, is married to the Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian, brother of the Emperor of Austria, another party to the contest. Besides these connections the Duchess of Cambridge, who was a Princess of Hesse Cassel, is an aunt of the Queen of Denmark, who was also a Princess of Hesse Cassel. Every party to the Dano-Germanic contest may therefore be said to be more or less connected with the Royal Family of Great Britian.

AN IMPROMPTU WEDDING.—In the "Memoirs of Mrs. Delaney," recently published, we find the following anecdote of one of the strong-minded of the last century: "A lady in an elegant carriage, arrived at an inn in Birmingham, and requested the landlord to find her a husband, as she intended to be married before she left the house. The host bowed and smiled, thinking the lady in jest. She convinced him, however, that she was in earnest; and mindful of his duty to provide for the wants of his guests, he proceeded in search of a man who would marry a fine lady and no questions asked. An exciseman at last consented, declaring that he couldn't be worse off than he now was. A license was obtained and the ceremony performed, immediately after which the lady gave the bridegroom two hundred pounds and departed, leaving them to unravel the riddle as they could. A few hours after the departure two men arrived in pursuit of her. They had traced her along the road, and to this inn; but on learning that she was married, they gave up the pursuit, and went home. It was supposed that the young lady, in a fit of desperation, to avoid marrying a person she disliked, took this eccentric mood of ridding herself from him for ever!"

The London Times Printing Office.

A correspondent of the Ecclesiastic has paid a visit to Printing House Square, and passed through the various offices of the London Times, excepting the "Lion's Den," which no one is permitted to enter, or have communication with unless by writing. This is the office of the Editor-in-Chief. The writer says:

At the right hand of the square is the office for advertisements, looking like a busy and crowded post office. The advertising of the Times is immense. Everything about the Times office is done with the utmost system and economy; there is a place for every thing, and every thing in its place. There is a perfect division of labor, and a place for each division. You enter a long room on the first floor, where the "form" is got ready for stereotyping; for with the exception of a single page, left open till the last moment for the latest intelligence, every portion of the paper is stereotyped before it goes to press. A part of this room, as well as one of the same size above it, is used by the compositors; these are always at work, day and night, having two sets of hands.

In another room were two telegraphic apparatuses—one communicating with the office of Reuter, the king of telegraphs, the other with both Houses of parliament. What comes from Louis Napoleon or Palmerston's brain, is here almost as soon as it is there. The department of proof-readers is prominent and complete. Every word and point undergoes the utmost scrutiny.

The stereotyping was to me the point of culminating interest. To set up a single page of the Times takes six men eight hours, and there are sixteen pages. From the moment the "form" is finished until it is reproduced in stereotype is exactly twenty-five minutes. Away it is whisked to the press, and another page quickly follows. In stereotyping, tissue paper is laid on the types, and over that pasteboard: the whole is subjected to heavy pressure. The impression thus obtained is enclosed in a mould, the metal is poured on it, and the work is done. Sixteen tons of paper are consumed each day. From the Times office, 130,000 sheets are sent forth daily.

I have not time to speak of the luxury of the reporters' room, of the library or the multitude of things, curious and useful, that were shown to me.

"And now," said I, when the gentlemanly conductor had taken me through the establishment, "can you let me see Jupiter, the head thunderer?" He answered solemnly, "He is invisible; he is to be communicated with only by writing!"

THE Troy papers tell a touching story of the fruitless efforts of a Mrs. Cassin, to discover her boy "Con," who is an idiot and was cozed away from home and enlisted. She has traveled many times from Troy to Albany and back; has been four weeks with the Army of the Potomac, and once within the rebel lines; has nearly succeeded in seeing the President, and finally has returned home and gone to work energetically to earn money for another trip. This poor lost waif, it seems, is loved as much as if he were bright; the mother cannot rire in her search. The Press says: A government detective arrived here this morning from Washington, having been detailed by the War Department to investigate the whole matter. The efforts of the poor woman to discover the guilty wretch who abducted her son, may yet be successful.

DUPPELL.—This place, before which some desperate fighting was going on at last accounts, is a fortress, which the Danes have surrounded with a series of ingenious and novel defences. The first obstruction which the assailants will meet in an irregular line of sunked ditches, with sharp stakes firmly fixed at the bottom to impale the unlucky man who may fall through; next came a line of chevaux de frise; then another of large man-traps: and finally, a common wire fence—the latter a single but very effective impediment to both infantry and cavalry. Not content with these lines of circumvallation, the Danish engineers have crowned both scarp and counterscarp of the earthworks with palisades crossed with a bristling line of sharp swords, an expedient borrowed apparently from the French defences of the breach at Badajoz. Both within and without the works are fixed planks studded with long nails and concealed by a light covering of earth. We must add to these amenities the mines that underline all these assailable parts.

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY.—We have a letter from a gentleman residing in this county upon its progress and the state of business generally.—He says:—Last year's crop of Winter Wheat was a good one, though, unfortunately, the breadth sown was only small. When brought to market it fetched 90 to 98 cents, and in one time as much as a dollar. The Spring Wheat did not thresh out so well as was anticipated. During the past winter great activity has prevailed, especially in hauling. Most of the farmers in this section sent their teams into the shanties, and many horses and men were thus taken away, that sufficient cord-wood has not been brought in. I am informed that about 200,000 saw logs have been got out, which will be sawn at the various mills on the Otonabee River, and sold in the U. S. market. There has also been a large business done in square-timber, masts and spars. The new land agent has located a number of settlers in the new townships opened up by the Burleigh Road, but they are terribly poor, and years must elapse before they will be able to make much improvement. The most intelligent men that are wanting to settle on farms, go to the Western States and take premium lots. They say the land is better and can be obtained in closer proximity to railway or water communication.—In Canada, too, the Government reserves all the timber from the settler, which is unfair, and the lumberers who purchase the same waste it. Wit-

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1864.

HONORABLE MR. COCKBURN.

As our readers are already aware, Mr. Cockburn has accepted a seat in the new Ministry. The nomination is fixed for the 16th inst. Considerable anxiety is naturally felt by both parties as to the likelihood of his re-election; and no pains have been spared to make his past parliamentary career appear in as favorable a light as possible. We have before us, at this moment, a copy of Mr. Cockburn's address in 1861, and feel that it must be extremely difficult to reconcile it with his past conduct. In 1861 Mr. Cockburn was the Reform candidate chosen to oppose Postmaster-General Smith. Mr. Smith, himself, had been elected by the Reform party, and on his accepting office under the Cartier-Macdonald Ministry was re-elected by them. They found, however, that the conduct of the Ministry of which Mr. Smith was a member was totally at variance with their ideas of good government; that it was extravagant, nay, wasteful; that it was corrupt, and, especially, so far as Cobourg was concerned, that the Government patronage was exercised in a disgraceful manner. The finances of the country, too, were recklessly mismanaged. Heavy debts were contracted, for which no proper equivalent was obtained. In short, the Reform party believed that the Government, as then conducted, was unworthy the support of any right thinking man who honestly wished the good of his country. Mr. Cockburn, formerly a Conservative—but making great professions of honesty, coincided in Reform views—and professed great indignation at the extravagant conduct of the then administration. And at a Reform Convention, held at Baltimore, prior to his election, pledged himself to oppose to the utmost the then existing Cartier-Macdonald Ministry. His speeches, at that time, were wholly Reform; indeed, the most "rabbid Grit," to use a favorite Conservative expression, could not have found fault with his professions. Trusting in his honest pledges, the Reform party chose him as their candidate to oppose Mr. Smith. In his address he says "that the Cartier-Macdonald Ministry have forfeited the confidence of the people, and are not deserving of a continuance of the trust which they have held. If elected, my vote shall be unhesitatingly given against them in every question involving a want of confidence. Non-confidence in Messrs. Cartier and Macdonald, and Representation by Population are the two great questions on which I take issue with the Postmaster-General. My anxious wish has been and still is to see all parties united by a common bond of interest and sympathy. It is evident to all that so long as Lower Canada remains as she is—united—and we, needlessly, divided into parties—having really no divided interests, that we shall be weak and unable to accomplish the objects which we fervently desire. Let our watchword be 'Justice to Upper Canada.'" In his speeches he declared that he was only the exponent of the party who elected him. "Voluntarily my pledges were given and faithfully they shall be performed." Holding, as we do, that the leading spirits of an administration gives character to it. That from such men as Lord Palmerston and Earl Russell, any administration with which they may be connected will always take its tone and policy. That no Government in which such men make part can ever be called by any other name. We are persuaded that the Government of to-day is, essentially, the same in character and policy as that of 1861. No matter that a feeble old gentleman is the nominal Premier, Messrs. Cartier and Macdonald are really the leading and guiding spirits—they will dictate the policy of the administration—and so far as Sir E. P. Tache, Mr. Cockburn and the rest are concerned, they might as well have been called any other names from the same side of the by House. They must all be subject to the dictation of these two distinguished politicians. That Mr. Cockburn held the same views, we may gather from his speech of the 4th Sept., 1861. He said:—"I desire to see a complete change of the Government. It has been suggested that this Government may be re-constructed so as to be acceptable to the people. I do not believe this to be possible. I believe that whilst the leading spirits remain in that Government it will be a Government distasteful to the people of this country." Is it right—is it honest, then, for Mr. Cockburn to ally himself with these men? Sitting on the same side of the House would have been bad enough; but Mr. Cockburn not content with giving his vote and influence to the very men he was chosen and pledged to oppose, weds himself to them by becoming an integral part of a new administration formed by them.

In 1861, Mr. Cockburn pledged himself in the most faithful and solemn manner to oppose these men to the very utmost; declaring they had forfeited the confidence of the people. In 1864, he voluntarily breaks his pledge and gives them his support. In 1861 he said non-confidence in the Cartier-Macdonald Ministry was the issue, 1864 he bargains for $6,000 to serve under them. In 1861 he declared that no Government that did not make Representation by Population part of the Ministerial policy could have his support. In 1864 he joins a Ministry in which the only three men who represent constituencies West of Kingston that are opposed to that principle form a part—a Ministry in which there is a bargain that that great principle is not even to be mooted. In 1861 he declared, in effect, that owing to the misconduct of a small factious Upper Canada minority, Upper Canada had too long been at the mercy of United Roman Catholic Lower Canada; and that his most anxious wish was to see all parties in U.Canada united by a common bond of interest and sympathy. In 1864 he joins the same factious Upper Canada minority, and allying himself to a Lower Canada majority, seeks to rule Upper Canada by Lower Canada votes. He declared then that he was only the exponent of the principle of the party who elected him. He is now a traitor to their cause. In almost his own words we may say: voluntary his pledges were made and most faithlessly were they performed.

It is argued for him that the Reform party did not carry out their own policy when in power—that they, too, made Representation by Population an open question—and that by so doing they forfeited their right to Mr. Cockburn's support. It is true that the Reform party were unable to carry this measure, but it was solely owing to the conduct of such men as Mr. Cockburn now allies himself to, and to that want of union among Upper Canadians which Mr. C. at that time so much deplored, but now by allying himself with a small factious minority of them, seeks to foster. Mr. Cockburn himself, saw the impossibility of carrying that measure, and spoke strongly in favor of leaving it in abeyance until the finances of the country were in a more settled state. His apologists of to-day say "that his acting with the Liberal party for a time only proves that he was attracted by the speciousness of their platform—and had faith in the sincerity of their statements—and that he is now acting with the party to which he always professed to be attached: for he ever claimed to be a Conservative."

We can scarcely conceive of anything more dangerous to the morality of the people than such an argument as this: that because the men to whom the welfare of a country is entrusted are not honest in the discharge of their duty, therefore the men who were chosen to counsel and direct them should also become dishonest. It would have been no argument for Mr. Cockburn's apostacy had every member of the Reform party in the House turned traitor. Mr. Cockburn was not responsible to them but to the men who elected him and to whom he gave his pledges.

Granting even his apostacy, say they. Granting that his professions were all hollow—his pledges insincere—and that he really has coalesced with men whom he denounced and declared to be corrupt—there is no good reason to oppose his return now; the Globe has vilified men, too, and yet Mr. Brown has allied himself with them. Granting all this—granting that the terrible Globe has been everything in its day—that Mr. Brown has been up to all sorts of things—what better does that make the conduct of Mr. Cockburn? George Brown to use his tongue—Mr. Cockburn will be tried on his own merits, not on the demerits of Mr. Brown. That cause must be a bad one which requires a worse one to defend or palliate it. Such an argument is worse than childish.

ELECTIONS.

Quite a number of elections took place on Monday last. Messrs. Cartier, McGee, Macdonald, Simpson and Galt were re-elected by acclamation. Doubtless, opposition would have been offered to many if not all of these, were it not that a feeling prevails that a new election cannot be far distant. Indeed it would be almost impossible for the present Ministry to carry on the business of the country with the small majority they will be able to command in the present House. Mr. Buchanan, of Hamilton, will have a hard run of it; and were it not for the immense means at his command and the liberal use he is said to be making of them, he would scarcely have the ghost of a chance. As it is, Mr. McElroy is receiving liberal support, and at every meeting his appearance is hailed with immense satisfaction. In North Waterloo Mr. Foley is meeting with the determined opposition his conduct deserves; perhaps there is no man in the whole Ministry who deserves worse at the hands of Reformers. On Saturday last a Reform Convention was held at the village Conestogo, a few miles northwest of Berlin, in the County of Waterloo. Much interest was felt in the result. In the course of the forenoon, Mr. Foley himself arrived, accompanied by Geo. Jackson, M. P. P. for the county of Grey; on the other hand, the arrival of Mr. McKellar, M. P. P., Mr. Stirton, M. P. P., and Mr. Cowan, M. P. P., shewed that if a public discussion should arise after the meeting of the Convention, the Reform cause would be well represented. After considerable deliberation Mr. J. E. Bowman was unanimously chosen as the Reform candidate to oppose the Postmaster General, and in a manly and straightforward speech accepted the nomination. The feeling largely prevails that Mr. Bowman will carry the election. He is an old consistent Liberal, most popular in the Riding—and every way fitted to represent the County with credit. We have learned that on Tuesday Mr. Caleb R. Malloby, of Hamilton, had been chosen to oppose Mr. Cockburn. Mr. Malloby is well known in West Northumberland, and has always been a Reformer. He comes late into the field, but so much faith do we put in the Reform cause that we would have no doubt of his success if the Reformers of West Northumberland would only earnestly put their shoulders to the wheel.

ABSTRACT.

From the report of the Principal of the Grammar and Union School, presented to the Board of Trustees at their meeting on the 5th April inst, ordered by the Board to be printed and circulated among the parents of pupils attending the School.

"On this point I would wish that the Board should particularly impress upon the parents that irregular attendance is in one sense worse than no attendance; it is not merely so much time lost, but what is of far greater importance, so much foundation not laid, without which it is impossible for any pupil to rear upon it a solid superstructure. It also discourages the pupil, and utterly prevents him from attaining an accurate and thorough scholarship."

"Furthermore, I think the Board should deprecate the system of some parents who send their children for one month, and keep them away the next; better to attend six months steadily than irregularly."

By order of the Board,
GEO. BURNHAM,
Chairman.

Peterborough, April 7th, 1864.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

About two o'clock on the morning of the 6th inst., a fire occurred in the Blythe Mills by which the whole of the mills and factories at that place were entirely consumed. These Mills are situate on the right bank of the River Otonabee, and are about three quarters of a mile from the village of Fairbairnville. The buildings consisted of a large Saw Mill, a Chair Factory, a Shingle Mill, and a Grist and Flour Mill. The buildings and most of the machinery were owned by William Snyder, Esq., but were under lease to various parties. The upper building was a large Saw Mill which Mr. Hilliard, the lessee, was fitting up for the Spring trade, and in which he had nearly completed extensive repairs. Adjoining this were the Chair Factory and Shingle Mill; and about 40 feet below the latter the Flour Mill was situate. The fire originated in the Saw Mill, and when first observed had made good headway; so much so that it would have been impossible to save any portion of the three upper buildings—even had the fire engine been on the spot. The roof of the Flour Mill soon caught, and in spite of every exertion, the whole were consumed—little but a smouldering heap remaining after the space of two hours. No explanation can be given of how the fire originated. It occurred shortly after midnight. There was no fire in the building when the workmen left about 6 o'clock the evening previous; and from the heavy loss to all concerned no one could for a moment imagine that any one connected with the property had any interest in its destruction. Mr. Sparvy is of opinion that some one may have gone into the Saw Mill and lain down amongst the shavings, probably lighted their pipe on waking up, and by dropping the match, set the Mill on fire after they left. The mills and machinery were worth about $16,000, and were insured in the "Royal" for $5,000 and in the "Western" for $3,000. Mr. Snyder's loss will, therefore, be about $8,000. Mr. Hilliard, the lessee, will loose about $800. The millwrights lost all their tools. Mr. Geo. Schneider, the lessee of the Chair Factory, was insured for $600 in the "Liverpool and London." Mr. Sparvy's loss, we are sorry to say, is heavy, amounting to about $1,400, including, with 112M. shingles all his machines and tools. He was not insured. The Flour Mill was leased to Mr. Carnagie. He was insured for $2,500 in the "British American." A large quantity of flour had fortunately been sent off during the Winter, otherwise his loss would have been much heavier; his loss is estimated at $1,450. Mr. Swanston, baker, had a large quantity of wheat stored in the Mill during the Winter; fortunately he had been drawing it off; he was insured for $1,000 in the "Western" and $1,000 in the "Montreal"; his loss will be about $1,750. The total loss is estimated at about $20,000; amount covered by insurance, about $12,000.

POST-OFFICE REPORTS.

We have just received the report of the Postmaster General, for the year ending 30th September, 1864. From it we learn the Post Office has been self-sustaining, and for the past term the revenue has exceeded the expenditure. The figures stand thus: Revenue, $759,475.60; Expenditure $753,-057 05; number of letters transmitted thro' the Post Office for the year ending Sept., 1863, 11,000,000.

In November, 1863, provision was made for the transmission by post in Canada and to and from the United States at a postage rate of one cent per ounce, of packages of seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions or grafts, book manuscript, printer's proof sheets, maps, prints, drawings, engravings and photographs—a valuable privilege worth knowing.

The increase on the net postal revenue collected over 1862 is 836,422, or about 5 per cent.

It is worthy of note that; the good habit of prepaying by stamps is on the increase.

The proportion collected by pre-payment in stamps was 1860	34 per cent.

1861	39 do
1862	42 do
1863	47 do

It is curious to see how the Expenditure is made up. At first sight one would be apt to think that stage, steamboat, railway, and other payments connected with the carriage of the mails, would be the largest sum; but it is not so, the total expenditure for these purposes was only $339,674; whilst salaries commissions, allowances for rent, stationary and printing, and miscellaneous disbursements, all connected with the office, amounted to $353,633. The items of general printing, advertising and stationary are $12,681 95 less than 1862.

The number of trips from Quebec to Liverpool made by the Canadian mail steamers from 16th April, 1863 to 2nd December 1863, was twenty-eight; average length of passage Eastward, eleven days eleven hours; Westward, twelve days nineteen hours—including all detentions.

Messrs Millar & Bertram call attention through our columns, to their stock of Ironmongery and Hardware generally. Their stock is large and varied; and being intimately acquainted with the wholesale trade, they have been able to buy low and will sell cheap. They particularly request that the Ladies would call and inspect their Cog Wheel Clothes Wringers.

County Assizes.—The Spring Assizes for the County of Peterborough, opened here on Tuesday, before his Lordship, Chief Justice Richards. There is very little civil business before the Court, and but three indictments to be disposed of. The trial of Robert Jamieson for the murder of Benjamin Reves, and of Joseph Newby, for arson, will come off to-day; and in all probability the Court will be closed this evening.

We beg to call attention to the advertisement of Mr. King, Principal of the Union School. Mr. King is a scholar and a gentleman, and we have no doubt that parents committing their children to his care, would have every reason to be satisfied with the care and attention they would receive at his hands.

At a meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club held in Caisse's Hotel on the evening of Wednesday the 6th April, the following were the officers appointed for the current year, viz:—

President	H. T. Strickland.
1st Vice President	W. H. Wrighton.
2nd do.	H. B. Higginson.
Committee,	T. Clementi.
	G. Burnham.
	F. Burnham.

Secretary and Treas. W. N. Kennedy.

CANADIAN ITEMS.

....The Great Western Railway Company are erecting a stupendous rolling mill at Hamilton. The whole cost of the building and the necessary machinery for the mill will not be much under $80,000.

....On the 29th ult., the forging, machine shop, stove shop, tin shop, and two large stone houses belonging to Mr. H. A. Massey, of Newcastle, were, with their contents, destroyed by fire. The tin shop was occupied by Mr. Gorman. Mr. Massey's loss is about $20,000, which is covered by about $10,000 insurance.

....The late government had, it is said, concluded the sale of the steamers Queen Victoria and Napoleon III. The purchaser is an American, through a Canadian agent, and the price paid $160,000. We shall miss here of these vessels as gunboats blockading the Southern coast.

....We learnt yesterday (Thursday) by telegraph that in course of the morning a farmer from Logie, named Walter Jewel, who had gone to the mill at Carronbrook, with logs to be sawed, fell in front of the circular saw, which passed through his chest, literally sawing him in two pieces.—Stratford Examiner.

Marmora Iron Company—As an evidence of the vitality of this Company we may mention, that within a few days past the agent here has paid back taxes upon its property, to the amount of $793,79, in this County alone. We hope soon to chronicle the commencement of active operations in the Iron and other ores, which they possess.

....Yesterday an abandoned female, brought before the Recorder for drunkenness, had the impudence to attempt to pass herself as being a certain respectable young lady of this city, to whom she happens to have a strong personal resemblance. She gave the name of the latter as being her own, and so far deceived the police that the gentleman her supposed parent, was sent for; and, when he came, she, being resolved to carry on the hoax, exclaimed, "Oh, papa, papa, forgive me this time." The gentleman, who was almost startled with the likeness between her and his daughter, indignantly repelled her advances, and she was fined $5 or 1 month.

....We learn from Brigade Major Villiers, that he is making arrangements for two grand Volunteer reviews to come off in the course of the summer. The first, we believe, will be at Clifton, Suspension Bridge, in June, and the other at Brantford in September. Much interest has already been manifested in the proposition, and it will certainly be carried into effect. Clifton is the only place East of this where a suitable review ground can be had. In addition to the reviews, it is also in contemplation to have a great volunteer gathering in Hamilton during the holiday of the Provincial Show. Maj. Villiers deserves the highest praise for his exertions in the matter, and we trust his efforts will be crowned with success.

....The Elora Observer says that a young married woman in that neighborhood, lately started in chase of a deer, which was intercepted near her house by a little dog, and caught it by the tail. Heedless of its superior weight, the deer still continued his course over hill and dale, and through fields, bush, and woods. The woman still retained her hold, fearful only that the deer's tail, like that of Tom O' Shanter's mare, would break. It did not break, however, and after hanging on for over two hours, she seized a club and with one or two well directed blows, succeeded in despatching the now exhausted animal.

....The Stratford Beacon has received from John Carroll, Esq., the following information concerning the Burleigh Road Settlement. The lands are being rapidly disposed of, and although broken in places by granite ridges, yet they contain a very large portion of land excellent in quality, and well adapted for agricultural purposes. Unbroken tracts of land are to be found containing from 1,000 to 30,000 acres. The broken tracts are generally covered with a heavy growth of valuable pine timber, which can be readily floated down the large streams so frequently occurring, and which afford at the same time excellent privileges. These lands are being sold at the exceedingly low price of 70 cents an acre, or one dollar, payable in five annual instalments; and besides being low in prices and good in quality, have the advantage of being more accessible than any public lands ever offered for sale.

....The Erie Canal.—This Canal is 360 miles in length, and Tolls collected upon it for 1861 amounted to over three million dollars, which is nearly double the amount collected in any previous year; and while our neighbours have so much reason to be pleased at this result, it is gratifying to know that the sales of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," for the cure of coughs, colds, frostbites, chilblains, &c., is increasing much faster. Sold by all Medicine dealers at 25 per bottle.

We always welcome new places of business, but they are doubly welcome when started by old friends. W. C. Thompson & Co. advertise that they will open out their stock, of spring and fancy goods—on the 22nd inst. They have been mostly bought from the manufacturers for cash, and will be sold cheap. Mr. Thompson has been long and favorably known in Messrs Nicholls' & Hall's. We wish him every success in his new enterprise.

The Choir of St. John's Church, assisted by several amateurs from Peterborough and Port Hope, gave a concert of sacred music on the evening of Thursday, 7th inst. The church was crowded, and all in attendance were gratified with a rich treat; when all sang so well it would be invidious to particularize; but some of the solos were very finely rendered—all the performers, however did full justice to the part allotted to them. The concert passed off with great eclat.

Mr. A. Williams advertises in to-day's issue, a large collection of Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Coal Oil Lamps, &c. Mr. Williams, it is well known, sells cheap; his style is "small profits and quick returns."

George Stentan & Co., have opened a new Hardware Store in Coulter's old stand, George Street. We have known Mr. Stenman for a long time, both in Fowlie & Co's Store, and more recently in the employment of Messrs. Millar & Bertram, and feel assured if he displays the same business qualities in his new position, he will be successful.—See advertisement.

AMERICAN ITEMS.

....The Persia passed the Pennsylvania, for Liverpool, off Kinsale. She brings one hundred passengers, including the Duke and Duchess of Athol.

....A marriage took place at Newport last week in which the ceremony of joining hands was entirely omitted, the bridegroom having no hands to use. He had his arms blown off at the shoulders by a powder explosion, not even stumps remaining to which artificial arms can be attached.

....The boats on the Hudson river are to be lighted by gas the coming season. A large tank is to be placed on each boat as a gas receptacle, which is to be filled from the city gas houses on the arrival of a boat. They will thus be supplied with sufficient gas to keep the boat well lighted while going up or down the river.

....A capital sell came off at a masquerade ball recently in Boston. Two wealthy merchants were paying their devotion to a young lady in mask, each striving for the largest place in her affections. The time for raising the masks arrived, both suitors were clinging to the arms of their charmer—when lo! the fascinating fair one proved to be a boy employed in their own establishment.

....A young wife in New York—Mrs. Michael Cheley—gently concentrated with the partner of her joys and sorrows because he kept her waiting for his return until nearly four o'clock Saturday morning, when he mildly interrupted her with the remark:—"That's enough. Here, take the contents of this," thereupon discharging into the head of the unfortunate woman the contents of a revolver, and her complainings ceased forever.

....An idea of the gigantic proportions of the present war in the United States may be obtained from the fact that eighty-three steamers, carrying 48,000 tons of stores, arrived at Nashville recently, having been enabled by the spring rise of the water to ascend the Cumberland River, and that 200,000 tons are expected to be discharged at Nashville whenever during the high water season; this great supply being only for one of the three or four armies into which the forces of the United States are divided.

ENGLISH ITEMS.

....It is stated that Heenan, the prize-fighter, is not expected to live long. He has never recovered from his contest with King.

....From experiments on the London and North Western Railway, it is contended that one pair of steel rails will last as long as ten pair of iron rails, subjected to the same amount of wear.

....The Lord Mayor of London has received in the course of two days, between £500 and £700 for the benefit of the sufferers at Sheffield.

....Dr. Lankester has ascertained that in the course of three years as many females have lost their lives by fire in the metropolis as were sacrificed at Santiago, chiefly through crinoline—over 1,500.

....The London Times says there will be no intervention in American affairs, the Americans will be left to work out the result by themselves.

....The London Morning Herald says that unless Napoleon and Maximilian recognize the South the establishment of the Mexican Empire will be a fruitless waste of blood and treasure.

....The greatest feat yet on record in the department of gunnery, was achieved on the 16th, Sir W. Armstrong's 600 pounder muzzle-loading shunt gun, was tried against a plate eleven inches thick. A 344 lb. steel round shot was fired against the plate, which it drove back a foot, shivering the 3-inch oaken wooden supports to splinters against Mr. Fairbairn's target and then breaking the plate itself into four or five pieces. The steel shot itself was unbroken. The initial velocity of the steel shot was proved to be 1,706 feet per second, and on impact 1,585 ft. No injury was done to the gun.

....The London Morning Star says the Chancellor of the Exchequer's surplus will be very large—considerably in excess of any amount that has yet been raised. There is reason to believe that the excess of calculated income over necessary and probable expenditure will be between three and four millions.

....In England the cities have increased at a much more rapid rate than the country at large:—

	1821	1831	1851
London	1,274,800	1,476,646	2,362,236
Manchester	133,788	182,812	401,321
Liverpool	118,972	165,175	375,955
Birmingham	106,722	146,986	232,841
Leeds	83,796	133,393	172,270
Bristol	96,788	117,016	137,328
Total 6 cities	1,813,866	2,212,028	3,681,951
Rest of Eng. land	9,447,571	10,878,977	13,239,937

While the cities doubled in thirty years, the rest of England increased but forty per cent.

....The object of Garibaldi's visit to England, according to some, is to consult a celebrated English surgeon, while others imagine that he wishes to excite the public mind in England in favour of Italy.

....The Queen has evinced her sympathy for the sufferers of Sheffield by send to Mr. Roebuck a very kind letter, in which was enclosed a cheque for £200. The total number of dead and missing is, so far as can be ascertained, 241.

....During a party who had gone on a visit of inspection to a biscuit factory was Miss Mary Nelson, accompanied by Mr. Burrows, to whom she was to have been married within a few weeks. The party had not been more than two minutes in the mill, and were still examining the basement story, when a piercing shriek from Miss Nelson, who had tarried slightly in their rear made them pause in terror. Her attention had been attracted by an Archimedean screw, which was fenced by a brass rod breast high—but when she stopped to look at, her expanded skirts caught by the machinery, and when her friends turned to look at her it was rapidly drawing her into its grasp. Mr. Burrows clasped his betrothed round the waist, and strove to draw her back—but the steel of her hoops had been clutched by the wheels, and all his efforts were powerless. The engine dragged her out of her lover's arms, and whirled her round and round before his eyes; all her limbs were shivered into fragments, and her body was lacerated and mangled almost out of human semblance.

....The London Danish Relief Committee has now sent to Copenhagen £6,000. Amongst the subscriptions are £10 from the Speaker of the House of Commons, and £250 from members of the London Stock Exchange. The aristocracy are largely represented in the list.

....A clever conundrum, stated to be the composition of one of the Royal family is now going the round of society in London. It runs thus:—My first expresses numbers; my second magnifies numbers; my third multiplies numbers; and my whole destroys numbers. The solution of the riddle is found in the word—Coloseo.

....From the abstract of the census returns just published, it appears that 49,561 persons were engaged in Scotland in working or dealing in flax [lint,] and linen goods; while 82,861 persons were engaged in working or dealing in cotton and cotton goods.

....It is proposed to present a testimonial memorial to Sir Rowland Hill, to consist of a penny stamp contributed by every man and woman in England. That would be about £70,000; but the difficulty would be collection. Let the Post Offices but receive them for one week, and Sir R. Hill would be buried beneath his own stamps.

....Every shot of rifled artillery, according to the Prussian system, says a Berlin letter, costs at least £1 sterling. The works of Duppel being armed with 120 heavy guns, about 300 will be required to undertake the attack, each of which is expected to fire from 700 to 1,000 shots. At the lowest estimate, then, the cost of the bombardment must be set down at £210,000. In this, however, is not included the cost of the timber, the gabions, shovels, brushwood, &c. Then there is another heavy item, accruing from the transport of the guns and ammunition—300 24-pounders weighing no less than 30,000 cwt., while the ammunition required weighs about five times as much.

....It is stated on trustworthy authority, that Queen Victoria remains faithful to honor, treaty, obligation, and the latest charge of her consort husband, in her attitude towards the United States. The Queen of England has little positive power, but her negative influence is immense. She can say, Yes, and No, and nothing can move without these, her royal monosyllables. It is said that in this way she has steadily resisted Palmerston and supported Russell, preventing a war, which, under the latter peppery old man, would have been inevitable. Her influence has made Mr. Gibson, President of the Board of Trade, so much one of her personal friends before the dissolution party. It is a good omen, and our loyalty for the Queen must be continually increased by the almost unexpected strength of character with which she sustains [illegible] against the aristocratic majority which fraternizes with the slave-drivers and hates the democratic North.—*N. EDITORIAL ITEMS.

The Rev. Mr. Carroll will lecture this evening in the Victoria Hall, Subject: Self Cultivation. As the subject will, no doubt, be handled in Mr. Carroll's usual happy manner, a treat may be expected.

....We are sorry to state that Scarlet Fever has made its appearance in Town, but fortunately of a very mild type.....The Quebec Bar have remonstrated against the appointment of M. Langevin to the Solicitor-Generalship, from the fact that he has never been in practice as a Barrister.

....We regret to learn from exchanges that the wheat crop in many parts of Canada and the Western States has been severely winter killed, so much so as in many places to require resowing. As far as we have heard the wheat in the County of Peterboro is doing well and gives promise of an excellent crop.....The rumour that the American Government had prohibited the exportation of coal to Canada, mentioned in our last, is only partially true. The prohibition relays only to Anthracite Coal—Bituminous Coal will still be exported as usual.....A child was lately poisoned in London by a Worm Lozenge containing Morphia. People should be on their guard against quack-medicines.....The Steamer Rochester commenced her regular trips on Monday morning last. At present she leaves Port Hope at 8 a. m., instead of 11 a.m., as advertised.

....The people of Port Hope have made arrangements to celebrate the Tercentary of Shakespeare's birth-day.....The Smith Falls Review contains a shocking account of the death of one William Holliday and his wife on the same night. They were both the worse of liquor, and were observed in the evening sitting quarrelling on a heap of stones and on the following morning the body of the husband was found in a pool of water near the place, and that of the wife near the heap of stones. No marks of violence were observable on either. A bottle filled with whiskey was found by the dead body of the wife......An attempt was made to rob and murder Mr. J. C. Mewburn, banker, Hamilton, on Tuesday morning.—Mr. Mewburn fired a pistol at the robber who fired in return and made off. DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED!

About a quarter past two o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the third story of the Globe Hotel, Cobourg, situated on King Street, and as a very strong wind prevailed at the time, the flames spread with great rapidity, and in less than three hours the noble Hostelry building was completely destroyed. The roof and all the floors fell in, and at the present time only the bare walls serve to show where the building stood for many years. There were several boarders who had very narrow escapes, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Smith of the Bank of Toronto, and Mr. Lacey, who had barely time to escape in their night dresses; Mr. and Mrs. Weller were more fortunate, as they occupied rooms on the ground floor, and were thus able to save some of their things. The bar-tender, T. Bunbury, a young lad of about 12 years of age, and a man in the employ of Mr. H. McKechnie, had a most narrow escape, as they could not get down the stairs owing to the raging of the blaze. The greatest excitement prevailed, and in their despair they got out of the window and hung on the window sill a distance of about a hundred feet from the ground. While the poor fellows were clinging the flames burst out of the windows and severely burnt their hands. The young lad in his agony cried out to hurry up with the ladder, as he could hold on no longer. He was encouraged to exert exertions by cheering calls from the crowds below, that the ladders would be brought, and just at the last minute a ladder long enough was found, and to the joy of the horror-stricken spectators he was brought down in safety. The man was next rescued by the same means. Several parties were slightly burnt and bruised while endeavoring to save the household goods. The Globe was kept by E. Pauwells, late of the Taunton House, and had lately been thoroughly repaired and newly furnished. It was originally a joint stock concern, then in the possession of T. Duignan, but it recently became the property of the Trust and Loan Company. There was an insurance on the building, but not to its full value, and there was also some insurance on the furniture, &c.; but Mr. Pauwells will be a heavy loser. The stables, sheds, &c., were also consumed in the conflagration. All his friends here deeply sympathise with him in his misfortune. The total loss is estimated at about twenty thousand dollars.

Your Appointment has been Confirmed. Such missives are now all the fashion, over the telegraph wires, and they are good news for some, and bad news to others. For one box of Dyer's Pulmonic Wafers you pay 25 cents. They cure a cold, hoarseness, sore throat, croup, &c., in a few hours. Sold by all Druggists.

Horrible if True.—The New-Haven Journal says that a lady was buried a few weeks ago at a place on the line of the Naugatuck Railroad, under the protest of intelligent physicians who considered that the evidence of her being dead was not conclusive. She became sick a few days before and fell into a condition of sleep which lasted three days. On Saturday, the 19th, a doctor pronounced her dead, and, as the body was warm, with a perspiration visible between the shoulders, the windows were opened to cool it, and shortly afterward the funeral

GREAT SALE!
OF
REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,
Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes containg 347 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots, and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 of 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

5 County Clerk.

MINERAL LANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,
QUEBEC, 3rd March, 1864.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands approved by His EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL in Council.

1. That the tracts shall comprise not more than four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of the tracts in unsurveyed territory be forty chains in front by one hundred chains in depth, and bounded by lines running due North and South, and East and West, or as near to these dimensions as the configuration of the locality will admit.

3. The applicant for a tract in unsurveyed territory must furnish a plan and description thereof by a Provincial Land Surveyor.

4. The price shall be one dollar an acre, payable on the sale.

5. That a tax or duty of one dollar per ton be charged on all ores extracted from the tract payable on removal from the mine.

This condition applies to all Mining lands sold since the 1st day of April, 1863, and is in lieu of the Royalty of two and a half per cent chargeable on the ores from these lands.

6. That in surveyed Townships lots presenting indications of minerals, be sold on the above conditions, but at not less than one dollar per acre in any township, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

7. That not more than one tract of four hundred acres be sold to one person.

8. The above regulations do not apply to mines of Gold and Silver.

9. All previous regulations inconsistent with the above are cancelled.

WM. McDOUGALL,
Commissioner.

☞ All Locations of Mineral Lands on the North shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, and on the adjacent islands, which, on the 15th March, 1861, were liable to forfeiture for non-performance of conditions of sale and location and which have remained liable to forfeiture to the present time, are forfeited.

The locaters, and their assignees, provided the assignments were made before the date hereof, are allowed to apply the payments they may have made on any location, over and above the deposit, or first instalment, towards the purchase of the same, or any other location which shall be open for sale at the date of their application to have the same so applied; but such application shall be regarded as a new purchase subject to existing regulations and must be filed in the department of Crown Lands on or before the FIRST day of NOVEMBER, A. D., 1864.

PETERBOROUGH

Foundry & Machine Shop

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

IN returning thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, beg to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a workmanlike manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS
OF ALL SIZES,
GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,
Brass Castings of all Kinds,
WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,
ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,
Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forge in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Wood Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Elder Wheel, from 3 to 5 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by few between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THEIR

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. They will also keep a large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—three of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 2 CANADIAN, the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have made in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Pickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Plough yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and pattern, Hand Turnip, Root Sowing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

Poetry.

[illegible]

By a Son of Mars.

Och, saith brith! boy, times now go joy—
Yes, ivery mother's son of 'em
The politishin, the Fenian,
Contrived for the Irish nation
That fales young men, with Sullivan,
The boys was bent on anin' them
How would they loike a blow to stroike,
Not enough beneath the Saxin thumb?

For some did mane on College Green
(They makes Greek and Latin there)
The Prince Consort for to import
Amongst us Slavy Shamus there,
(Och, did they think that we would shrink,
Through any timor of slavery,
To make a row, whin they throw how
We think of said complasency?)

Convaned to mate we was at night,
The Dublin grand Rotunda in;
Och, round the daze and on the flare,
How heavily was the thunderin!
One, Misther Gill, he cried, "Be still,"
When on the platform gat he was.
And to the throne, that stud up there,
Promoted Misther Crotty was.

Next came in view the O'Rahokum,
And spoke about them images,
When sudden all within the hall
Commenced indulgin' sarimanages.
Each hero there took up a cheer,
As howld as a garnaimen—
His sowl on foire with the desoire
To crack his neebour's cranium!

To that same plaze, 'twas party soon
Deserted that the platform was;
Until Father Tom first bowled from
The corner where his fat form was,
And Crotty, too, shunned the shuffles,
And from his post old Gill he ran,
The O'Donoghoe made no offers,
But lift a frightened filly run.

At posts behoind, they chanced to find,
A postage all attacks against:
You may be sure they locked the dure,
And likewise put their backs against.
None did persoom to quit that room,
Each prisoned sin into to temain he was,
Till all the lot wid finished quoit,
And the Rotunda empty was.

Och, sure, bedad, the larks we had,
The howlin' and shillelahin',
For Governmint they never sint
One interfarin' Peler in!
"Whin thim fall out," sez they no doubt,
"We'll p'raps be gittin' good of 'em,
Each Fignia brother all smack another,
And save our lettin' blood ov 'em!"

Och, holy saints, 'tis faint I paints
What edifyin' starters was!
Though Dan afraid somehow mislaid
A few of the reporters was.
By Pat Magrath the table-cloth
It brandished for a banner was,
While we hoorooed and waved a sword,
Which quite in warlike manner was!

With forms and sates, and broken pates,
Black eyes, and bloody noses, thus
They filled up all that mighty hall,
And terrified our foes is thus:
For though none knows how it arose,
Or why the row begun there was,
A glorious day for Old Ireland they
Vow that in the Rotunda was!

For all in vain's the Saxon's paine,
To tache her peace and industry!
She passes her nights to brawl and fight!
Who dares to oppe her shtandin by?
Subjugated yet not, delaighted she is,
From Saxons and soft sawderin',
Hould fast yer will, and rivel still
Wrong ropins, and disorder in!

Variétés.

Rob White Boy—Clear the track nigger! Small American Citizen of African descent—Now you jes' tuf me alone! I guess you'll mish you was a nigger yourself afore dis time's done.

A farmer, finding a dozen idlers stretched out on the ground offered a crown to the laziest one of the whole lot. Eleven jumped up claiming the reward, each asserting himself to be the laziest one. The crown, however, was given to the twelfth, who had resolutely kept his position; and who, when it was rendered him, drawled out, "Can you put it in my pocket?"

A sailor, about being married, could not find change enough for the parson's fee. The reverend gentleman, unwilling to tie the couple without the accustomed fee, demurred. Jack placing his hand in his pocket, drew out a few shillings, saying:

"Never mind, brother; marry us so far as it will go."

GALLANTRY.—A sudden gust of wind took the parasol from the hand of its owner, and a lively Encelander, dropping his hod of bricks, caught the parasol, and presented it to the lener, saying—

"If you were as strong as you are handsome, it would not have got away from you."

"Which shall I thank you for first—the service or the compliment?" said the lady, smilingly.

"Troth, madam," again touching the place where once stood the brim of what was once a beaver, "that look of your beautiful eye thanked me for both."

THE DUNDAS AND THE MANUFACTURES—Any one acquainted with the personal appearance of the Duke of Newcastle and Cleveland, will know that the first has a striking and noble exterior, the second [illegible]. When the noblemen were traveling together in a railway carriage, into which a Nottingham manufacturer entered; and shortly afterwards the Duke of Newcastle ejaculated [illegible]. The Duke of Newcastle sighing, the Nottingham traveller asked his companion if he knew the name of the gentleman with whom he had been conversing? "The Duke of Newcastle," was the reply. "What!" rejoined the astonished manufacturer; well now, only to think that such a great gentleman should be so tallent in—find out any way to live such snobs as you and me!"

FREAK OF THE IMAGINATION.—A young man had a strong imagination that he was dead, and constantly begged his friends to bury him. They consented, by the advice of the physician. He was laid upon a bier and carried upon the shoulders of [illegible], when quite pleased [illegible], up to the business, that the procession had journeyed some distance, they perceived, [illegible] a very good [illegible] think, for the world is well rid of a very bad character, which the gallows must have had in due course." This young man now living dead hearing this, popped his head up, and said they ought to be ashamed of themselves in thus trudging his fair form, and if he ever alive he would thrash them for their flattery. But they continued to utter the most disgraceful language. Flesh and blood could no longer bear it; up he jumps, they run, he after them, until he fell down quite exhausted. He was put to bed: the violent exertion he had gone through promoted perspiration and he got well."

HEAD OFFICE,—Place D'Armes, Montreal.

A. DAVIDSON PARKER,
Secretary for Canada.

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

GREAT SALE!

OF

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 400 acres.

That portion of property not off for farming purposes contains 241 acres, divided into equal parts having much a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; but about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

W. S. CONGER.
Or
G. F. ORDE,

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

The main remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a common Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray for five years from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

HENRY'S VERMONT LINIMENT.

READ THESE

CERTIFICATES.

MONTREAL,
April 6th, 1860.

Messrs Henry & Co.

YOUR Vermont Liniment has entered me of a Rheumatism which had settled in my limbs, and for which blessing you may well suppose I am grateful.

T. QUIMBY.

South Granby, C. W.

Mr. Henry R. Gray, Chemist, Montreal.

SIR,—I am most happy to state that my wife used Henry's Vermont Liniment, having accidentally got a needle run under her finger nail. The pain was most intense: but by using the Liniment, the pain was gone in a few minutes.

Yours very respectfully,
W. GIBSON.

Montreal,
Dec. 12th, 1860.

Messrs. Henry & Co.

Having on various occasions used your Liniment, I am happy to say that I have always found it beneficial. I have frequently used it for bowel Complaints and it has never known it to fail in effecting a cure. I think it the best medicine I ever used for Diarbon summer complaint, and on orders of a similar character I have always found it a never failing specific for Colds, and for affections of the lungs. I always recommend it to my friends, and, would not be without it in the house for any consideration.

W. BARNES.

(A Testimony from Hon. Judge Smith.)

Montreal,
Feb. 5th, 1862.

I have used Henry's Vermont Liniment, and have found great relief from it.

N. H. DOWN'S VEGETABLE BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

A CERTIFICATE

WORTH A MILLION.

An Old Physician's Testimony.

READ:

Waterbury, Vt.,
Nov. 24th, 1858.

Although I do not like the practice of Physicians recommending indiscriminately, the patent medicines of the day; yet after a trial of ten years, I am free to admit that there is one medicine before the public that any Physician can use in his practice, and recommend to the public with perfect confidence; that medicine is Rev. N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir.

I have used it myself with the very best success, and now, whenever I am troubled with a Cough or Cold, I invariably use it. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from a Cold or a Cough, for the Croup, Whooping Cough, and all diseases tending to consumption, and to the Profession as a reliable article.

I am satisfied of its excellence beyond a doubt, having conversed personally with the Rev. N. H. Downs about it. He informed me of the principal ingredients of which the Elixir is composed, all of which are purely Vegetable and perfectly safe.

J. H. WOODWARD, M.D.

Now Brigade Surgeon U. S. Army.

This old, tried, standard remedy still maintains its popularity When all others have proved ineffectual, the Elixir alone continues to give satisfaction.—Use it for

COUGHS, COLDS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, CROUP,

Incipient Consumption and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs.

Thirty years ago the Elixir first made its appearance; and even then, in its primitive and imperfect state, produced such extraordinary results that it became, at once, a general favourite. Many have made it, what it really is, a Family Medicine.

For as more than half the diseases "to which flesh is heir," originate from colds, so this may be considered a general preventive of all diseases, by removing the primeval cause.

ADULTS

Should always keep this Family Physician at hand; and by its timely use save hundreds of dollars that would otherwise be swallowed up in discharging doctor's fees.

☞ Sold at every Drug and country store throughout Canada.

WEE WILLIE WINKIE.

BY WILLIAM MILLER.

Wee Willie Winkie
Rins through the toun,
Up stairs an' doon stairs
In his nicht-goun,
Tirlin' at the winnocks,
Crackin' at the locks,
"Are the weans in their beds,
For it's noo ten o'clock?"

'Hey, Willie Winkie,
Are ye comin' hen?
The cat's singin' grey thrums
To the sleepin' hen,
The dog's speldert on the floor,
And deems a' is asleep,
But here's a waukrife laddie!
That winna ha' sleep.

'Onything but sleep, you rogue!
Glow'rin like the moon!
Rattlin' in an airn jug
Wi' an airn spoon,
Rumblin', tumblin' roun' about,
Crawin' like a cock,
Skirlin' like a kenna-what,
Wauk'nin' sleepin' folk.

"Hey, Willie Winkie,
The wean's in a creel!
Wamblin' aff a bodie's knee
Like a verra eel,
Ruggin' at the cat's tug,
And ravlin' a' her thrums—
Hey, Willie Winkie—
See, There he comes!"

Wearied is the mither
That has a stoorie wean,
A wee stumpie stoussie,
Wha canna rin his lane,
That has a battle aye wi' sleep
Afore he'll close an e'e—
But ae kiss frae aff his rosy lips
Gi'es strength anew to me.

Miscellaneous.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS.

Four-and-thirty years ago, Bob Ainslie and I were coming up Infirmary Street from the High School, our heads together, and our hands intertwisted, as only lovers and boys know how or why.

When we got to the top of the street, and turned north, we espied a crowd at the Tron Church. "A dog-fight!" shouted Bob, and was off; and so was I, both of us all but praying that it might not be over before we got up! And is not this boy-nature? and human nature too? and don't we all wish a house on fire not to be out before we see it? Dogs like fighting; old Isaac says they "delight" in it, and for the best of all reasons; and boys are not cruel because they like to see the fight. They see three of the great cardinal virtues of dog or man—courage, endurance, and skill—in intense action. This is very different from a love of making dogs fight, and enjoying, and aggravating, and making gain by their pluck. A boy—be he ever so fond himself of fighting, if he be a good boy, hates and despises all this, but he would have run off with Bob and me fast enough; it is a natural, and a not wicked interest, that all boys have in witnessing intense energy in action.

Does any curious and finely-ignorant woman wish to know how Bob's eye at a glance announced a dog-fight to his brain? He did not, he could not see the dogs fighting; it was a flash of an inference, a rapid induction. The crowd round a couple of dogs fighting, is a crowd masculine mainly, with an occasional active, compassionate woman, fluttering wildly round the outsides, and using her tongue and her hands freely upon the men, as so many "brutes;" it is a crowd annular, compact, and mobile; a crowd centripetal, having its eyes and its heads all bent downwards and inwards, to one common focus.

Well, Bob and I are up, and find it is not over: a small thoroughbred, white bull-terrier, is busy throttling a large shepherd's dog, unaccustomed to war, but not to be trifled with. They are hard at it; the scientific little fellow doing his work in great style, his pastoral enemy fighting wildly, but with the sharpest of teeth and a great courage. Science and breeding, however, soon told their own; the Game Chicken, as the premature Bob called him, working his way up, took his final grip of poor Yarrow's throat,—and he lay gasping and done for. His master, a brown, handsome, big young shepherd from Tweedsmuir, would have liked to have knocked down any man, would "drink up Esil, or eat a crocodile," for that part, if he had a chance: it was no use kicking the little dog; that would only make him hold the closer. Many were the means shouted out to mouthfuls, of the best possible ways of ending it. "Water!" but there was none near, and many cried for it who might have got it from the well at Blackfriars Wynd. "Bite the tail!" and a large, vague, benevolent, middle-aged man, more desirous than wise, with some struggle got the bushy end of Yarrow's tail into his ample mouth, and bit it with all his might. This was more than enough for the much-enduring, much-prospering shepherd, who, with a gleam of joy over his broad visage, delivered a terrific facer upon our large, vague, benevolent, middle-aged friend,—who was down like a shot.

Still the Chicken holds; death not far off. "Snuff! a pinch of snuff!" observed a calm, highly-dressed young buck, with an eye-glass in his eye. "Snuff, indeed!" growled the angry crowd, affronted and glaring. "Snuff! a pinch of snuff!" again observes the buck, but with more urgency; whereupon were produced several boxes, and from a mull which may have been of Culloden, he took a pinch, knelt down, and presented it to the nose of the Chicken. The laws of physiology and snuff take their course; the Chicken sneezes, and Yarrow is free.

The young pastoral giant stalks off with Yarrow in his arms,—comforting him.

But the Bull terrier's blood is up, and his soul unsatisfied; he grips at the first dog he meets, and discovering she is not a dog, in Homeric phrase, he makes a brief sort of amende, and is off. The boys, with Bob and me at their head, are after their down Nibley Street the game, keen as mustard; up the Cowgate like an arrow—Bob and I, and our small men pacing beside.

There, under the single arch of the South Bridge, is a huge mastiff, unattended down the middle of the causeway, as if with his hands in his pockets: he is big, grey, bald-headed, as big as a Highland bull; and has the Shakespearian double chin hanging on his gorge.

The Chicken makes straight at him, and fastens on his throat. To our astonishment, the great creature does nothing but stand still, hold himself up, and roar—yes, roar; a long, serious, concentrative roar. How is that? Bob and I are up to them. He is muzzled! The besom had proclaimed a general muzzling, and his master studying strength and economy mainly, had accompanied his huge jaws in a home-made apparatus, constructed out of the leather of some ancient breeching. His mouth was opened as far as it could; his lips curled up in rage—a sort of terrible grin; his teeth gleaming, ready, from out the darkness; the strap across his mouth tense as a bowstring; his whole frame stiff with indignation and surprise; his roar asking us all round, "Did you ever see the like of this?" He looked a statue of anger and astonishment, done in Aberdeen granite.

We soon had a crowd: the Chicken held on. "A knife!" cried Bob; and a cobbler gave him his knife: you know the kind of knife, worn away obliquely to a point, and always keen. I put its edge to the tense leather; it ran before it; and then!—one sudden jerk of the enormous head, a sort of duty mist about his mouth, no noise,—and the bright and fierce little fellow is dropped, limp, and dead. A solemn pause: this was more than any of us had bargained for. I turned the little fellow over, and saw he was quite dead: the mastiff had taken him by the small of the back, and had broken it.

He looked down at his victim appeased, ashamed and amazed; snuffed him all over, stared at him, and taking a sudden thought, turned round and trotted off. Bob took the dead dog up, and said, "John, we'll bury him after tea." "Yes," said I, and was off after the mastiff. He made up the Cowgate at a rapid swing; he had forgotten some engagement. He turned up the Candlemaker Row, and stopped at the Harrow Inn.

There was a carrier's cart ready to start, and a keen, thin, impatient black-a-vised little man, his hand at his grey horse's head, looking about angrily for something. "Rab, you thief!" said he, looking at the mastiff; my great friend, who drew aethging up, and avoiding the heavy shoe with more agility than dignity, and watching his master's eye, slunk dismayed under the cart,—his ears down, and as much as he had of tail down too.

What a man this must be—thought I—to whom my tremendous hero turns tail! The carrier saw the muzzle hanging, cut and useless, from his neck, and I eagerly told him the story, which Bob and I always thought, and still think, Homer, or King David, or Sir Walter were alone able to rehearse. The severe little man was mitigated, and condescended to say, "Rab, ma man, puir Rabbie,"—whereupon the stump of a tail rose up, the ears were cocked, the eyes filled, and were comforted; the two friends were reconciled. "Hupp!" and a stroke of the whip were given to Jess; and off went the three.

Bob and I buried the Game Chicken that night (we had not much of a tea) in the backgreen of his house in Melville Street, No. 17, with considerable gravity and silence; and being at the time in the Iliad, and, like all boys, Trojans, we called him Hector of course.

Six years have passed,—a long time for a boy and a dog: Bob Ainslie is off to the wars; I am a medical Student, and clerk at Minto House Hospital.

I saw Rab almost every week, on the Wednesday; and we had much pleasant intimacy. I found the way to his heart by frequent scratching of his huge head, and an occasional bone. When I did not notice him he would plant himself straight before me, and stand wagging that bud of a tail, and look up, with his head a little to the one side. His master I occasionally saw; he used to call me "Maister John," but was laconic as any Spartan.

One fine October afternoon, I was leaving the hospital, when I saw the large gate open, and in walked Rab, with that great and easy saunter of his. He looked as if taking general possession of the place; like the Duke of Wellington entering a subdued city, satisfied with victory and peace. After him came Jess, now white from age with her cart; and in it a woman, carefully wrapped up,—the carrier leading the horse anxiously, and looking back. When he saw me, James (for his name was James Noble) made a curt and grotesque "bow," and said, "Maister John, this is the mistress: she's got a trouble in her breast—some kind o' an income we're thinkin'."

By this time I saw the woman's face; she was sitting on a sack filled with straw, her husband's plaid round her, and his big-coat, with its large white metal buttons, over her feet.

I never saw a more unforgetful face—pale, serious, delicate, sweet, without being at all what we call fine. She looked sixty, and had on a mutch white as snow, with its black ribbons; her silvery, smooth hair setting off her dark grey eyes—eyes such as one only sees twice or thrice in a lifetime full of suffering, full also of the overcoming of it: her eyebrows black and delicate, and her mouth firm, patient and contented, which few mouths ever are.

As I have said, I never saw a more beautiful countenance, or one more subdued to settle quiet. "Ailie," said James, "this is maister John, the young doctor; Rab's friend, ye ken. We often speak about you, doctor." She smiled, and made a movement, but said nothing; and prepared to come down, putting her plaid aside and rising. Had Solomon, in all his glory, been handing down the Queen of Sheba at his palace gate, he could not have done it more gracefully, more tenderly, more like a great gentleman, than did James on that occasion. The contrast of his small, swarthy, weather-beaten, keen, worthy face to hers—pale, subdued, and beautiful—was something wonderful. This latter, on collecting herself, turned to the master, and said something [illegible] the nurse, the gossip or acquaintance. After she had crossed great Jess's back, and had her two front feet on the ground, she continued, looking from one of us to the other, "I'm thinking, sir, that this is the last time that I'll ever see Jess, or Rab, or you, sir, or Maister John, or Jess's master, my own dear husband, or any of my friends in this world." After she had crossed great Jess's back, and had her two front feet on the ground, she continued, looking from one of us to the other, "I'm thinking, sir, that this is the last time that I'll ever see Jess, or Rab, or you, sir, or Maister John, or Jess's master, my own dear husband, or any of my friends in this world."

"As I was saying," she's got a kind of trouble in her breast, doctor; we'll ye tak' a luk at it?" We walked into the consulting room all four; Rab grim and comic, willing to be happy and confidential if cause should be shown, willing also to be the reverse, on the same terms. Ailie sat down, undid her open gown and her lawn handkerchief round her neck, and, without a word, showed me her right breast. I looked at and examined it carefully,—she and James watching me, and Rab eyeing all three. What could I say? there it was, that had once been so soft, so shapely, so white, so gracious and beautiful, so "full of all blessed conditions,"—hard as a stone, a centre of horrid pain, making that pale face, with its gray, lucid, reasonable eyes, and its sweet resolved mouth, express the full measure of suffering overcome. Why was that gentle, modest, sweet woman, clean and loveable, condemned by God to bear such a burden?

I got her away to bed. "May Rab and me bide?" said James. "Yes may, and Rab, if he will behave himself." "I'se warrant he's do that, doctor;" and in shook the faithful beast. I wish you could have seen him. There are no such dogs now: He belonged to a lost tribe. As I have said, he was brindled, and gray like Rubislaw granite; his hair short, hard, and close, like a fish's; his body thick set, like a little bull—a sort of compressed Hercules of a dog. He must have been ninety pounds' weight, at the least; he had a large blunt head; his muzzle black as night, his mouth blacker than any night, a tooth or toe—being all he had—gleaming out of his jaws of darkness. His head was scarred with the records of old wounds, a sort of series of fields of battle all over it; one eye out, one ear cropped as close as was Archbishop Leighton's father's; the remaining eye had the power of two-and above it, and in constant communication with it, was a tattered rag of an ear, which was forever unfurling itself, like an old flag; and then the bud of a tail, about one inch long, if it could in any sense be said to be long, being as broad as long—the nobility, the instinctiveness of that bud were very funny and touching, and its expressive twistings and wrigglings, the intercommunications between the bud and it, were of the oddest and liveliest.

Rab had the dignity and simplicity of great men; and having fought all along the road to absolute supremacy, he was as mighty in his own line as Julius Cæsar or the Duke of Wellington, and had the gravity of all great fighters.

(Concluded next week.)

The Loss of the 'City of New York.'

(From the Cork Examiner.)

The ship had an extraordinary fine passage across. Her average rate of speed was up to 300 miles a-day. Before two o'clock on the (Tuesday) morning she sighted the harbour, and as the weather was exceedingly clear she was kept at the rate of 14 miles an hour as she approached it. The moon was shining brightly at the time. The wind was N.W., that is blowing off the land, and it is stated that Captain Kennedy, in order to keep the windward of the rock, in coming took the inner passage, the breadth of which is about three-quarters of a mile. All was going on fairly when, at 2.40 or so, the ship ran with a loud crash right upon the centre of Daunt's Rock. The concussion shook all the passengers who had retired to sleep, it is described as resembling a series of shocks, and the ship seemed literally to drive over ledge after ledge, impelled at almost full speed, she dashed upon the rock. The water rushed into her compartments in immense volumes, and in a very short time it had risen to the level of the sea. A scene of the greatest confusion ensued. The passengers, some half-dressed, others as they had risen from sleep, rushed about not knowing the extent of their danger, but the ring from the terrible shock the ship received that she would go down on the instant. All attempt to move her on any way was out of the question, for in a few minutes after she struck, the water had put out the fires, and was still rising. The only thing that could be done was to put out the boats, and to obtain assistance from the shore. A number of the blue lights were thrown up and signal guns were fired incessantly. Help from the shore, however, did not reach the vessel until half-past four o'clock. About twenty minutes to three o'clock the tugboat which met the steamers to receive the mails and passengers left Queenstown, the "City of New York" having been at that time signalled, and proceeded out as far as Roche's Point. It wasted there for some time until some of the ship's signal guns were heard, and then, surmising that an accident must have occurred, the tug-boat proceeded. On getting a little further out, the "City of New York" was found fairly placed upon the rock, with her head turned towards Queenstown, and within about ten feet of the Daunt's Rock buoy. The tug-boat was immediately got alongside, and under the directions of Captain Kennedy, the mails and as many of the passengers as possible, were put on board. There were 78 cabin and 75 steerage passengers on board the ship, besides the crew, which numbers about 120 men.

Lord Stanley stated at the annual dinner of the Westminster volunteers, on Thursday, that when the volunteers were first enrolled, foreign governments expressed great surprise that the English Government should run the risk of putting arms into the hands of the people.

ANNUAL PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—[illegible] President of the Provincial Agricultural Association of Upper Canada, has issued a circular containing valuable information relative to the approaching Provincial Exhibition at Hamilton. The exhibition will be held on the 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th of September. The Provincial Board of Agriculture has granted nearly $12,000; the usual attractions [illegible] horse, cattle and implements, the continued [illegible] many of leading up breeding cattle for exhibition, which is so objectionable. The Board of Agriculture has granted it [illegible] only to give power to the Judges to reject such as in their opinion, have been [illegible]. The Prince of Wales' prize (1860) will be given for the best pregnant animal on view; for the past two years it has been given for horses and cattle; now, two [illegible] the machines are to have a chance. Another important feature of the show is to be will be a grand ploughing match. [illegible] is intended to take place on the [illegible] of the week specified. Alterations have been made in the list of the arts and manufacturing department, which will be brought to the notice of the public through the journal. These are principally the striking out of a few trifling prizes, and adding others of a more important character, such as for resin, tar, turpentine, and two prizes of sixty and forty dollars, respectively, for not less than six varieties of linen goods, manufactured in Canada, from flax the product of the Province. "Favourable arrangements will be made with the railway companies, and steamboat proprietors, for the conveyance of articles, &c., to and from the Exhibition.

ATTORNEY'S ACTIONS.—At the close of an action which he reported on Tuesday, Mr. Justice Monahan said:—I am sorry I have not Jurisdiction to make attorneys pay the costs of actions they should not bring. We believe the public are sorry too. If judges had the power, far fewer actions would be brought. Where there is reasonable ground for proceedings the attorney is not to blame, but where there is a palpable disregard of law and right, it is the attorney, not the client, who ought to suffer. The latter may be ignorant—the former should not. If both are rogues together, they may divide the loss between them if they like, but when an action is brought for the sake of costs, or in the hope of worrying a person on whom the worrier has no pecuniary claim, all who knowingly aid in it should be made, not only to suffer, but to reimburse the person whom they have combined to wrong. The respectable members of the profession will agree with us.—Cork Constitution.

PROFITS OF STEAMBOATING.—When Cornelius Vanderbilt was a young man, his mother gave him $30 of her own savings to buy a small sailboat, and he engaged in the business of transporting market-garden-ing from Staten Island to New York city. When the wind was not favorable, he would work his way over the shoals by pushing the boat along by poles, putting his own shoulder to the pole, and was very sure to get his freight into market in season. This energy gave him always a command of full freights, and he accumulated money. After a while he began to build and run steamboats, and he is now reputed to be worth more than nineteen million of dollars, after making the government a present to a free gift, of a steamship that cost $800,000!—New Paper.

THE DISCOVERY OF A MURDER THIRTEEN YEARS AGO.—At the Thrapstone Police Court on Monday William Weekly Ball, who is at present in custody upon suspicion of being concerned in causing the death of Lydia Atley, as long ago as July 1850, was brought up for further examination. The evidence was to the effect that the prisoner and deceased cohabited, and that the deceased was very near her confinement. On the night previous to the day when she was missed some of the witnesses heard, as they believed, Ball and Atley conversing together in the orchard at the back of Ball's house when they were evidently quarrelling, and the supposition was that the dispute had reference to the parentage of the child. The woman was never seen alive after. The enquiry was adjourned.

SIR JOHN DEAN PAUL.—The Madras Times gives some curious information respecting the notorious fraudulent banker, Sir John Dean Paul. Immediately after he was sentenced to penal servitude, Lady Paul realized all the property entitled to her and proceeded without delay to Australia, where she purchased a beautiful villa in the suburbs. Her husband having arrived at a penal settlement in another part of Australia as one of a gang of convicts, the wife of the convict baronet applied to the Government for his services, and was permitted to hire him as her "assigned servant." We need scarcely add that having thus released him from his present restraint she placed all the newly purchased property in his hands,

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1864.

Report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands of Canada for 1863.

We have received a copy of this Report and have given it a careful and patient perusal. At the present moment when so much doubt appears to exist as to the value of the unsettled Crown lands in Canada, such a Report is doubly welcome. It contains an immense amount of information; but we cannot help saying we are sorry that it does not contain much more. We feel greatly disappointed with the Reports of the Agents of the various Colonization and Free Grant Roads, and also with the Reports of the various Surveyors of the new Townships. They are very meagre, and seem too often to have been written by men who had the interest of their country very little at heart. We have selected a few items of local and general information for the benefit of our readers who may not see the Report themselves. And first the BONCHERVOUE ROAD.

At page 56 we have the Report of the late Mr. Hughes, the agent of the southern part. He says "from information gathered from the free grant settlers individually, that there is a large increase both in amount and value of the crops in 1863 over those of 1862.

During the year 1863 there were very few free grant lots taken up. Most of the good lands available for free grants having been previously located and new comers preferring to purchase either portions of the free grants from their occupants or portions of the Government lands at 70 cents per acre in more available parts of the district. The bad state of the Bobcaygeon Road too, has very much impeded the sale of lands during the past season. The Road as far as Burnt River is just passable and beyond that almost impassable, and in the spring really dangerous.

Among the improvements of the year are two grist mills in successful operation, one at Gull River and one at Burnt River, each capable of grinding a large quantity of grain. And it is estimated that now there is enough wheat grown in the country to keep them fully employed. There is a saw-mill attached to each of these Grist Mills; and also two saw-mills in the township of Stanhope.

As to the settlement and population of the Townships in the neighborhood of the Road, Mr. Hughes thought they would contain about 6,000 of a population, or nearly six times the population of the free grant portion; and would be found to have a proportionate superiority in the amount of crops raised. He says too little about the lands available for settlement still not taken up. Simply stating that large blocks still exist in the Townships of Galway, Snowden, Cavendish, Stanhope and others, and perhaps about 70 lots in the Township of Minden and Somerville. On the Free Grants there is a population of 1,002, of whom more than half are Irish; nearly one-fourth English, and the balance Scotch, German, Canadian and Swedes.

The Free Grant settlers have cleared about 2,500 acres, have 322 acres more chopped; have raised 400 buildings, including houses, barns, stables and saw-mills; possess—38 horses and over 800 head of oxen, cows, young cattle, pigs and sheep.—They raised last year about 9,500 bushels of wheat, and over 8,500 bushels of other grains; besides large quantities of turnips, potatoes and hay. The also made over 2,000 lbs. maple sugar; their agricultural and other products are estimated to have been worth over $35,000; and their live stock worth nearly $11,000. All which, Mr. Hughes adds, shows unmistakeably that this is one of the most prosperous of the newly settled sections of the country. Had Mr. Hughes been in good health we have no doubt much more information would have been given. We have heard good accounts of much of the land remaining to be sold, still there is much that is very rough, and will not be of great value for many years; there are also many valuable lots that when cleared will make as good farms as any of those along the front.

The Agent for the north half of the Bobcaygeon Road has a Report also. We agree with the writer of it, if it is rather limited.—We learn from it, however, that on this section of the Road 54 lots have been located, with a total population of 130, that their agricultural produce was worth about $4,307 and that they had 62 head of live stock. He does not say whether all the lots are taken up or not; or whether there are any more lots there than the 54.

From the Report of the Superintendent of Colonization Roads we learn that the Burleigh Road has been opened to the 23 mile-post north of Burleigh Falls, and a contract entered into for the completion of 20 miles more by the month of November, 1864. And from the Report of two gentlemen who have lately travelled over a great portion of the lands this Road will open up, we are led to believe, that this is one of the best sections of land unsettled in Upper Canada.

CROWN LANDS IN UPPER CANADA,—of these already surveyed, there remain over three million acres disposable; and during last year over 90,000 acres were sold at about $1 per acre. There were about 12,000 acres of Clergy Reserves sold last year, leaving to be disposed of about 62,000. There are 50,000 acres of Grammar School Lands still in market. About $1,200 was realized from the sale of 1,500 acres sold last year. The Common School fund was benefited by $100,426, the net proceeds of the sale of 2,378 acres, leaving only 6,297 acres of the Common School Lands unsold. The amount of Revenue collected from timber dues appear to have been over $500,000; and the various Indian Roads appear to have been paid about $142,000, leaving at the credit of the Indian Fund the sum of $2,430,220.

A large amount of land seems to have been subdivided into farm lots during the past three years. We are sorry that more full information has not been given as to the quality of land in these new survey's. It seems not to have been the custom to give such information, but the late government have made a begining towards supplying this want—the Crown Land Agents having been instructed to make examinations of the lands in the Townships of their several agencies, thus ascertaining where the best lands are situated, with a view to facilitate the selection of lands by interesting purchasers. Copies of the surveyors field books are also being prepared for their information. A colored map has also been prepared showing the character of the land and timber in the newly surveyed townships between Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River. We would respectfully suggest that this map be published at a cheap rate, and that every information as to the character of all the lands already surveyed and still disposable, may be bound up along with it. The late Government had this in view, we hope that now in power will not forget it.

The conflicting interests of the lumbermen and settlers appear too, to have begun to receive attention; we hope some means will be devised of setting the public mind at rest on this question. It appears that in some of the new townships and their immediate neighborhood there are large tracts of land not very valuable for farming purposes densely covered with pine which are in great danger of destruction by fire if the present mode of promiscuous settlement is carried on. It would be well if the extent and value of these "pineries" were at once ascertained, and as far as possible all danger from fire averted. Canada is dependent on the lumber trade in a very great degree for its present prosperity; and if by judicious management the trade cannot only be fostered but made to yield both directly and indirectly a large revenue, it would be well that some means should be devised not only to protect the pine forests from destruction by fire from settlers clearances, but also from wanton waste by the lumbermen.—Complaints are frequently made by timber surveyors that from the fact that at present only one price is charged for all qualities of timber by the Crown. Many of the lumbermen who own large limits are in the habit of destroying vast quantities of valuable timber cutting it down and leaving it to rot on account of the smallest blemish: and that if the lumbermen were allowed a more permanent interest in their limits this state of things would not obtain, since they would be more careful of what they cut, knowing that the poorer timber though not so valuable at the present to them, might become so in a year or two. We had intended to have added extracts from Surveyor's Reports given in the end of the volume, but the length of this article will not permit; at a future time we will return to the subject.

NOMINATIONS.

The nominations for the city of Hamilton, for North Waterloo and Northumberland West are now over, and as we stated in our last in each of these sections the Ministerial candidates have been opposed. Mr. MALLORY has been brought out to oppose Solisitor-General COCKBURN in Northumberland, and at the present moment there seems little doubt but he will succeed. We had an opportunity to-day of talking to a number of Mr. COCKBURN's friends, and with one exception, they admitted that the cause seemed rather doubtful. Mr. MALLORY's friends on the Reform side are up and doing. Many respectable men who never interfered at an election before have buckled on the armour now and are doing their best to unseat Mr. COCKBURN. We are confident if the Reformers of Northumberland are determined to support Mr. MALLORY, that there will be no difficulty of running him in.

"Save me from my friends." We once heard the late Postmaster-General, then member for Northumberland, say. If they were like the sample that went from town yesterday to electioneer for Mr. COCKBURN, we have no doubt he said it in all sincerity.

In North Waterloo, Mr. BOWMAN was nominated to oppose the return of Mr. FOLEY. At the nomination Mr. FOLEY had the shew of hands. From all we can learn the contest will be severe. We wish Mr. BOWMAN all success, and hope that the electors of North Waterloo will do as they have always done before—return a Reformer, they can do it if they like. The Globe says Mr. BOWMAN's friends are extremely sanguine that they will elect him by a large majority.

The nomination in Hamilton took place on Monday. The Honorable Mr. BUCHANAN and the Mayor, Mr. MCELROY, were the candidates nominated on either side. Mr. MCELRO

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 460 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having such a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

TERMS.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

PETERBOROUGH

Foundry & Machine Shop

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

IN returning thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, beg to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS

OF ALL SIZES,

GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,

Brass Castings of all kinds,

WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,

ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,

Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without Gudgeons, furnished direct from the forge in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Mill and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Rider Wheel, from 3 to 5 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 3 CANADIAN; the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Bickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Plough yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

Poetry.

THE LITTLE BOY'S DREAM.

Last night when I went to bed,
Such fun in my dreams I had!
I dreamed that I was grandpapa,
And grandpapa was me.

I thought I wore spectacles,
And took snuff without a single sneeze
A double pinch of snuff.

But by my stick a boy boy,
And dressed in baby clothes.
And I thought I smashed his face, because
He wouldn't blow his nose.

And I went walking up the street,
And he ran by my side;
But because I walked too fast for him,
My goodness how he cried!

And after tea I washed his face,
And when his prayers were said;
I blew the candle out, and left
Poor grandpapa in bed.

I must relate a little incident which happened to your humble servant on his return home from the wars. I was walking along the street, lookin' as usual for the (illegible) brass hats an' bloo bottles, and other military baubles, when an excited female rushed out ov a house, throwed her pinny besides aroun' my neck which part I did'nt mind much, as they were round once—and exclaimed:

"Doo I behold the once again!"

"You do—an' I think you are holding me too tastly," sez I, trying to release the excentric female's arms.

"O, her you cum back—her you cum back!" she wildly cried, hangin' tighter to my neck.

"Certainly I've cum back," sez I "or else I wouldn't be here. But I dont think I know you exactly."

"Not know me—your own Claretta Rosetta Belleta—she who has not not her eyes out, you for more'n two years? Yes," she continued, pitchin' her hands onto my shoulders, an' lookin' up into my face like a cow boss-fly—"yes, I see my own Alfreda's eyes, his nose, his ears, his———"

"Madam," sez I, "excuse me, but allow me to correct you. If I air not mistaken, these earses an' noses an' eyeses belong to myself individually an' your Alfred never owned 'em scarcely."

"Away with this farce," sez she. "You cannot deceive your Claretta; cum into the house and see your little son, Lincoln Burnside McClellan Bazor."

It was evident that the female was mistaken—that it was not me, but another man, she wanted.

"How old is he?" sez I.

"Which?" sez she.

"Them little sons, Lincoln Burnside McClellan an' so 4th."

"He's just six months—the little darling!"

"Well, madam," sez I, "if the Lincoln McClellan Burnside an' so forth, is only six months old, an' you havn't not eyes onto your Alfred for more'n two years, I think there's a mistake somewhar, an' that I'm not your Alfred, but another man altogether."

The widow said she knew like (illegible) but the (illegible) that Fanny her good Alfred.

The Tribune' New York correspondent says the Americans look upon every black recruit as a satisfactory reason for the non-employment of a white conscript. "The greater the number of black men who fight in this war, the smaller the number of white men will be required." If the negroes fight well they never come back, so much the better." "Black food for powder is better than white." The general feeling among the working classes (and all the poor men who would be liable to the conscription if the Government had courage to enforce it), with regard to the employment of black soldiers, has been expressed in an Irish song which has acquired immense popularity. It is supposed to be written by one Miles O'Reilly, a private soldier in the army of the Potomac. Miles is altogether an imaginary personage, and is represented by his clever inventors, in a book recently published, as the typical Hibernian soldier of the war. He hits off in a few idiomatic verses, the real feeling of the army, and of the conscriptable portion of the public, with respect to what he calls the "Naygers." The song is sung to the Irish air of the "Lowbacked Car:"—

"Some tell me 'tis a burning shame
"To make the naygers fight,
"And that the thrade of being kilt
"Belongs but to the white;
"But as for me, upon my sowl—
"So liberal are we here— [myself
"I'll let Sambo be murthered instead of
"On every day in the year,
"On every day in the year,
"And in every hour of the day, [him,
"The right to be kilt I'll divide wid
"And divil a word I'll say.

"In battle's wild commotion
"I shouldn't at all object
"If Sambo's body should stop a ball,
"Thag was jumping for me direct,
"And the prod of a Southern bagnet,
"So generous are we here,
"I'll resign and let Sambo take it,
"On every day in the year.
"So here me all boys, darlins,
"Don't think I'm tippin' you chaff,
"The right to be kilt I'll divide wid
"And give him the largest half."

If the popularity of a sentiment such as this be any test of its accordance with the spirit of the multitude, there can be no doubt that the closing years of this decade, whether Abraham or Rebel reign, will be Miles O'Reilly on the negro question.

Bishop Morley was fond of a joke. Once, when the footman was out of the way, he ordered the coachman to fetch some water from the well, to which the coachman made a grumbling objection that his business was to drive, not to run errands.

"Well then," said Morley, "bring out the coach and four, put the pitcher inside, and drive to the well;" a device which was several times repeated, to the great amusement of almost all the village.

GENUINE BULL.—The following amusing bull was lately perpetrated at Bristol.

A magistrate asked a prisoner if he were married.

"No," replied the man.

"Then," replied his worship, amid peals of laughter, "it's a good thing for your wife."

Some time since, two young ladies near Newmarket fell into company with a gipsy, who, for a trifling sum, proposed showing them their future husbands' faces in a pail of water. The water being procured, they were desired to look. They did so; and, discovering nothing strange, they exclaimed:

"We see only our own faces."

"Well," replied the gipsy, "those will be your husbands' faces, when you're married."

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY!

SIR JAMES CLARKE'S

CELEBRATED FEMALE PILLS.

Prepared from a Prescription of Sir J. Clarke, M. D., Physician Extraordinary to the Queen

THIS invaluable medicine is unfailing for the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excesses and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied upon.

TO MARRIED LADIES

It is peculiarly suited; it will, in short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity. Each bottle, price One Dollar, bears the Government stamp of Great Britain, to prevent counterfeits.

CAUTION.—These Pills should not be taken by females during the first three months of Pregnancy, as they are sure to bring on Miscarriage; but at any other time they are safe.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections pain in the back and limbs, fatigue on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics and Whites, these Pills will effect a cure when all other means have failed—and although a powerful remedy, they do not contain iron, calomel, antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution. ☞ Full directions in the pamphlet round each box, which should be carefully preserved.

Sole Agent for the United States and Canadas

JOB MOSES, N. Y.

N. B.—$1 and 6 postage stamps enclosed to any authorised agent, will insure a bottle, containing over 50 pills, by return mail.

HENRY'S VERMONT LINIMENT.

READ THESE

CERTIFICATES.

MONTREAL,
April 9th, 1860.

Messrs Henry & Co.:

Your Vermont Liniment has cured me of a severe pain in the side which had baffled all other remedies. I have also found it a most excellent Pain-killer. Full directions as to use accompany each bottle. I have no hesitancy in recommending it to be used internally for

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Toothache,
Headache,
Burns,
Scalds,
Bruises & Swellings
Sore Throat,
Lumbago,
&c., &c.

and may be used internally for

Colic and Pain,
Cholera Morbus,
Bowel Complaints,
Diarrhœa,
Wind Chollc,
&c., &c.

Much might be said of its remedial properties and magical effects, but the limited space of this Advertisement will only admit of a general summary.

It is prepared with great care; great pains being taken to allow an exact proportion of each of its ingredients, in such a manner that the combination will be, in every respect, at once more rapid in its operation, and more effectual than any other similar medicine.

☞ A single Teaspoonful taken in warm water or otherwise as the taste may dictate, checks, DIARRHŒA,—CHOLIC, and all BOWEL COMPLAINTS,—within a most incredible short space of time.

☞ Sold in every Drug and Country Store throughout Canada.

Price 25 Cts. per Bottle.

N. H. DOWN'S VEGETABLE BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

A CERTIFICATE
WORTH A MILLION.

An Old Physician's Testimony.

READ:

Waterbury, Vt.,
Nov. 24th, 1858.

Although I do not like the practice of Physicians recommending indiscriminately the patent medicines of the day: yet after a trial of ten years, I am free to admit that there is one medicine before the public that any Physician can use in his practice, and recommend to the public with perfect confidence; that medicine is Rev. N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir.

I have used it myself with the very best success, and now, whenever I am troubled with a Cough or Cold, I invariably use it. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from a Cold or a Cough, for the Croup, Whooping Cough, and all diseases tending to consumption, and to the Profession as a reliable article.

I am satisfied of its excellence beyond a doubt, having conversed personally with the Rev. N. H. Downs about it. He informed me of the principal ingredients of which the Elixir is composed, all of which are purely Vegetable and perfectly safe.

J. B. WOODWARD, M.D.

Now Brigade Surgeon U. S. Army.

This popular medicine is no longer an experiment. It has been before the public for years, and has borne witness to its superior excellence as a Liniment and a Pain-killer. Full directions as to use accompany each bottle. It is to be used internally for

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Toothache,
Headache,
Burns,

N. H. DOWN'S VEGETABLE BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

This old, time-tried, standard remedy still maintains its popularity. When all other boasted remedies have proved inefficient, the Elixir alone continues to give satisfaction.—Use it for

COUGHS, COLDS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, CROUP,

Incipient Consumption and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs.

Thirty years ago the Elixir first made its appearance; and even then, in its primitive and imperfect state, produced such extraordinary results that it became, at once, a general favourite. Many have made it, what it really is, a Family Medicine.

For as more than half the diseases to which flesh is heir, originate from colds, so this may be considered a general preventive of all diseases, by removing the primeval cause.

Should always keep this Family Physician at hand; and by its timely use save hundreds of dollars that would otherwise be swallowed up in discharging doctor's fees.

☞ Sold at every Drug and country store throughout Canada.

Price 25cts., 50cts., $1 pr. Bottle.

TANNER'S

GERMAN OINTMENT!

TANNER'S GERMAN OINTMENT is an article that has long been tested in South America and the United States, and is recommended by the highest authorities in Medicine, Called Brunet, &c. We will leave the public to judge for themselves of the virtue of this Ointment by reading the certificates below from Gentlemen of high standing, proved, on whose word entire reliance may be placed

Dr. TANNER,
Dear Sir,
Your German Ointment I have used in my family for a good many years and consider it a very good article for Sore Eyes. I was advised to at one time that I was compelled to leave off work, but after using it for a short time it began to grow stronger and get better. I am now able to read print as far off as any person.

Respectfully yours,
Rev. HENRY W. BOYD.

Cold Water, Mich.,
Sept. 14, 1863.

REMARKS.

If a person breaks his leg he does not expect to get cured by an Ointment; but for a family Ointment, there is no other to any now in the Market. Dr. Tanner, the inventor, was in an old physician, has used this Ointment in his practice for over forty years. At the present time, there are millions of boxes sold yearly, keeping the Factory const

The Burning of Santiago Cathedral.

Santiago's great Cathedral
Glows with trembling sheafs of light;
False Ugarte and his order
Hold grand carnival to-night.

They have cast their nets with cunning,
To ensnare the city youth;
Craftily have they devised
Wretched counterfeit of truth.

Twenty thousand burning tapers
Flash their scintillating rays;
Cloth of gold and stream of flowers,
Catch the reflex of the blaze.

Santiago's fairest daughters
Kneel upon the temple floor;
Victims to a tricked out worship,
Rotton to the very core.

Peals the organ through the silence,
Came the priests along the aisle—
And a wave of adoration
Trembles through the stately pile.

White-robed acolytes with censers,
Throw the perfumed incense round;
While the coral diapason
Strikes the roof with lofty sound.

Hark! a cry of many voices
Drowns the volume of the hymn;
Sheets of flame ascend the pillars,
And along the arches swim.

"Mater Dei!" "Mater Dei!"—
Hear the bells alarum toll!
See the mockeries of Heaven
Shrivel as a parched scroll.

Giant tongues of leaping fire
Lick the follies root and branch;
Down upon the mass of horror,
Pours the blazing avalanche.

Hundred—frantic for the rescue,
Pile their corpses at the door;
Hundreds lie, burnt up and trampled,
On the furnace-heated floor.

Righteous priesthood—did ye suffer
Any throes of gasping breath?
Did ye with the sacrificed
Seek the chivalry of death?

Did ye stretch the holy emblem
To the sisters ye had slain?
Did ye kneel with dead, and dying,
Underneath the fiery rain?

No! ye superstitious dastards—
That were far above your ken;
In childish zeal for relics,
Ye forgot that ye were men.

Aye—not only were ye cowards,
But ye took a deeper shame;
For ye blocked one path of refuge,
From the tempest of the flame.

Shepherds false—ye little cared
For that pen of tortured sheep—
Ye have sown the storm, ye cravens,
And the whirlwind ye shall reap.

Miscellaneous.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS.

(Concluded.)

You must have often observed the likeness of certain men to certain animals and of certain dogs to men. Now, I never looked at Rab without thinking of the great Baptist preacher, Andrew Fuller. The same large, heavy, menacing, combative, sombre, honest countenance, the same deep inevitable eye, the same look,—as of thunder asleep, but ready,—neither a dog nor a man to be trifled with.

Next day, my master, the surgeon, examined Ailie. There was no doubt it must kill her, and soon. It could be removed—it might never return—it would give her speedy relief—she should have it done. She consented, looked at James, and said, "When?" "To-morrow," said the kind surgeon—a man of few words. She and James and Rab and I retired. I noticed that he and she spoke little, but seemed to anticipate everything in each other. The following day at noon, the students came in, hurrying up the great stair.—the first landing place, on a small well-known black board, was a bit of paper fastened by wafers, and many remains of old wafers beside it. On the paper were the words—"An operation to-day. J. B. Clark."

Up ran the youths, eager to secure good places; in they crowded, full of interest and talk. "What's the case?" "Which side is it?"

Don't think them heartless; they are neither better nor worse than you or I; they got over their professional horrors, and into their proper work; and in them pity—as an emotion, ending in itself or at best in tears or a long-drawn breath, lessons, while pity as a motive, is quickened, and gains power and purpose. It is well for poor human nature that it is so.

The operating theatre is crowded; much talk and fun, and all cordiality and stir of youth. The surgeon with his staff of assistants is there. In comes Ailie: one look at her quiets and abates the eager students. That beautiful old woman is too much for them; they sit down, and are dumb, and gaze at her. These rough boys feel the power of her presence. She walks in quickly, but without haste; dressed in her best mutch, her neckerchief, her white dressy short-gown, her black bombazine petticoat, showing her white worsted stockings and her carpet-shoes. Behind her was James with Rab. James sat down in the distance, and took that huge and noble head between his knees. Rab looked perplexed and dangerous; forever cocking his ear and dropping it as fast.

Ailie stepped up on a seat, and laid herself on the table, as her friend the surgeon told her; arranged herself, gave a rapid look at James, shut her eyes, rested herself on me, and took my hand. The operation was at once begun; it was necessarily slow; and choloroform—one of God's best gifts to his suffering children—was then unknown. The surgeon did his work. The pale face showed its pain, but was still and silent. Rab's soul was working within him; he saw that something strange was going on,—blood flowing from his mistress, and she suffering; his rugged ear was up, and imperturbable; he growled and gave now and then a sharp impatient yelp; he would have liked to have done something to that man. But James held him firm, and gave him a glower from time to time, and an intimation of a possible kick; all the better for James, it kept his eye and his mind off Ailie.

It is over: she is dressed, steps gently and decently down from the table, looks for James; then, turning to the surgeon and the students, she curtsies,—and in a low, clear voice, begs their pardon if she has behaved ill. The students—all of us—wept like children; the surgeon lapped her up carefully,—and resting on James and me, Ailie went on to her room, Rab following. We put her to bed. James took off his heavy shoes, crammed with tackets, heel-capt and toe-capt, and put them carefully under the table, saying, "Maister John, I'm for nane o' yer strange nurse bodies for Ailie. I'll be her nurse, and I'll gang about on my stockin' soles as canny as possy." And so he did; and handy and clever, and swift and tender as any woman, was that horny-handed, snell, peremptory little man. Everything she got he gave her: he seldom slept; and often I saw his small shrewd eyes out of the darkness, fixed on her. As before, they spoke little.

Rab behaved well, never moving, showing us how meek and gentle he could be, and occasionally, in his sleep, letting us know that he was demolishing some adversary. He took a walk with me every day, generally to the Candlemaker Row; but he was sombre and mild; declined doing battle, though some fit cases offered, and indeed submitted to sundry indignities; and was always very ready to turn and come faster back, and trotted up the stair with much lightness, and went straight to that door.

Jess, the mare, had been sent, with her weather-worn cart, to Howgate, and had doubtless her own dim and placid meditations and confusions, on the absence of her master and Rab, and her natural freedom from the road and her cart.

For some days Ailie did well. The wound healed "by the first intention;" for as James said, "Our Ailie's skin's ower clean to beil." The students came in quiet and anxious, and surrounded her bed. She said she liked to see their young honest faces. The surgeon dressed her, and spoke to her in his own short kind way, pitying her through his eyes, Rab and James outside the circle,—Rab being now reconciled, and even cordial, and having made up his mind that as yet nobody required worrying, but as you may suppose, semper paratus.

So far well: but, four days after the operation my patient had a sudden and long shivering, a "groosin'," as she called it. I saw her soon after; her eyes were too bright, her cheek colored; she was restless, and ashamed of being so; the balance was lost; mischief had begun. On looking at the wound, a blush of red told the secret: her pulse was rapid, her breathing anxious and quick, she wasn't herself, as she said, and was vexed at her restlessness. We tried what we could. James did everything, was everywhere; never in the way, never out of it. Rab subsided under the table into a dark place, and was motionless, all but his eye, which followed every one. Ailie got worse; began to wander in her mind gently; was more demonstrative in her ways to James, rapid in her questions, and snarp at times. He was vexed, and said, "She never was that way afore; no, never." For a time she knew her head was wrong, and was always asking our pardon—the dear, gentle old woman: then delirium set in strong, without pause. Her brain gave way, and then came that terrible spectacle,

"The intellectual power, through words and things, Went sounding on its dim and perilous way;"

she sang bits of old songs and Psalms stopping suddenly, mingling the Psalms of David, and the dinner words of his Son and Lord, with homely odds and ends and scraps of ballads.

Nothing more touching, or in a sense more strangely beautiful, did I ever witness. Her tremulous, rapid, affectionate, eager, Scotch voice,—the swift, aimless, bewildered mind, the baffled utterance, the bright and perilous eye; some wild words, some household cares, something for James, the names of the dead, Rab called rapidly and in a "fremyt" voice, and he starting up, surprised, and slinking off as if he were to blame somehow, or had been dreaming he heard. Many eager questions and beseechings which James and I could make nothing of, and on which she seemed to see her all, and then sink back misunderstood. It is very sad, but better than many things that are not called sad. James hovered about, put out and miserable, but active and exact as ever; read to her, when there was a lull, short bits of the Psalms, prose and metre, chanting the latter in his own rude and serious way, showing great knowledge of the fit words, bearing up like a man, and doating over her as his sin Ailie. "Ailie, ma woman?" may sin bonnie wee dawtie!"

The end was drawing on: the golden bowl was breaking; the silver cord was fast being loosed—that animula blandula, vagula, hospes, comesque, was about to flee. The body and the soul—companions for sixty years—were being sundered, and taking leave. She was walking, alone, through the valley of that shadow, into which one day we must all enter,—and yet she was not alone, for we know whose rod and staff were comforting her.

One night she had fallen quiet, and as we hoped, asleep; her eyes were shut. We put down the gas, and sat watching her. Suddenly she sat up in bed, and taking a bedgown which was lying on it rolled up, she held it eagerly to her breast, to the right side. We could see her eyes bright with surprising tenderness and joy, bending over the bundle of clothes. She held it as a woman holds her sucking child; opening out her nightgown impatiently, and holding it close, and brooding over it, and murmuring foolish little words, as ever one does when his mother comforteth, and who soothes and is satisfied. It was painful and strange to see her wasted dying look, keen and yet vague—her immense love.

"Preserve me!" groaned James, giving way. And then she rocked backward and forward, as if to make it sleep, hunting it, and wearing on it her infinite fondness. "Woe's me, doctor, I declare she's thinkin' it's that bairn." "What bairn?" "The only bairn we ever had; our wee Mysie, and she's in the Kingdom, for forty years and mair." It was plainly true: the pain in the breast telling its urgent story to a bewildered, ruined brain, was marred and mistaken; it suggested to her the uneasiness of a breast full of milk, and then the child; and so again once more they were together, and she had her ain wee Mysie in her bosom.

This was the close. She sank rapidly: the delirium left her; but, as she whispered, alas was "clean silly;" it was the lightening before the final darkness. After having for some time lain still—her eyes shut, she said "James!" He came closer to her, and lifting up her calm, clear, beautiful eyes, she gave him a long look, turned to me kindly but shortly, looked for Rab but could not see him, then turned to her husband again, as if she would never leave off looking, shut her eyes, and composed herself. She lay for some time breathing and passed away gently, that when she was gone, James, in his old-fashioned way, laid the mirror to her face. After a long pause, one small spot of dimness was breathed out; it vanished away, and never returned, leaving the blank clear darkness of the mirror without a stain. "What is our life? it is even a vapor, which appeareth for a little time, and then vanished away."

Rab all this time had been awake and motionless; he came forward beside us; Ailie's hand, which James had held, was hanging down; it was soaked with his tears; Rab licked it all over carefully, looked at her, and returned to his place under the table.

James and I sat, I don't know how long, but for some time,—saying nothing: he started up abruptly, and with some noise went to the table, and putting his right fore and middle fingers each into a shoe, pulled them out, and put them on, breaking one of the leather latchets, and muttering in anger, "I never did the like o' that before!"

I believe he never did; nor after either. "Rab!" he said roughly, and pointing with his thumb to the bottom of the bed. Rab leapt up, and settled himself; his head and eye to the dead face. "Maister John, ye'll wait for me," said the carrier, and disappeared in the darkness, thundering down stairs in his heavy shoes. I ran to a front window: there he was, already round the house, and out at the gate fleeing like a shadow.

I was afraid about him, yet not afraid; so I sat down beside Rab, and being wearied, fell asleep. I awoke from a sudden noise outside. It was November, and there had been a heavy fall of snow. Rab heard the noise too, and plainly knew it, but never moved. I looked out; and there at the gate, in the dim morning—for the sun was not up, was Jess and the cart,—a cloud of steam rising from the old mare. I did not see James; he was already at the door, and came up the stairs, and met me. It was less than three hours since he left, and he must have posted out—who knows how?—to Howgate, full nine miles off; yoked Jess, and driven her astonished into town. He had an armful of blankets, and was steaming with perspiration. He nodded to me, spread out on the floor two pairs of clean old blankets, having at their corners, "A. G., 1794," in large letters in red worsted. These were the initials of Alison Graeme, and James may have looked in at her from without—himself unseen but not unthought of—when he was "wat, wat, and weary," and after having walked many a mile over the hills, may have seen her sitting, while "a' the lave were sleepin'," and by the firelight working her name on the blankets, for her sin James's bed.

He motioned Rab down, and taking his wife in his arms, laid her in the blankets, and hopped her carefully and firmly up, leaving the face uncovered; and then lifting her, he nodded again sharply to me, and with a resolved but utterly miserable face, strode along the passage, and down stairs, followed by Rab. I followed with a light; but he didn't need it. I went out, holding stupidly the candle in my hand in the calm frosty air; we were soon at the gate. I could have helped him, but I saw he was not to be meddled with, and he was strong, and did not need it. He laid her down as tenderly, as safely, as he had lifted her out ten days before—as tenderly as when he had her first in his arms when she was only "A. G."—sorted her, leaving that beautiful sealed face open to the heavens; and then taking Jess by the head, he moved away. He did not notice me, neither did Rab, who presided behind the cart.

I stood till they passed through the long shadow of the College, and turned up Nicolson Street. I heard the solitary cart sound through the streets, and die away and come again; and I returned, thinking of that company going to Libberton Brae, then along Roslin Muir, the morning light touching the Pentlands and making them like on-looking ghosts; then down the hill through Auchindinny woods, past "haunted Woodhouselee;" and so—daybreak came—sweeping up the bleak Lammermuirs, and fell on his own door, the company would stop, and James would take the key, and lift Ailie up again, laying her on her own bed, and, having put Jess up, would return with Rab and shut the door.

James buried his wife, with his neighbors mourning, Rab inspecting the solemnity from a distance. It was snow, and that black ragged hole would look strange in the midst of the swelling spotless expanse of white. James looked after everything; then rather suddenly fell ill, and took to bed; was insensible when the doctor came and soon died. A sort of low fever was prevailing in the village, and his want of sleep, his exhaustion, and his misery, made him apt to take it. The [illegible] was not difficult to re-open. A fresh fall of snow had again made all things white and smooth. Rab never stirred—looked on, and drank home to the stable.

And what of Rab? I asked for him next week at the very earliest. He got the goodwill of James's business, and was master of Jess and her cart. "How's Rab?" He put me off, and said rather crossly, "What's your business with the dowg?" I went not to be put off. "Where's Rab?" He, getting confused and red, and interrupting each his other, said, "Dead, sir, Rab's dead!" "Dead! what did he die of?" "Weel, sir, I canna be, getting auldest, he didna exactly die; he was killed. I had to brain him wi' a rack-pin; there was nae dain' wi' him,—He lay in the [illegible] wi' the mare, and wadna come out. I tempit him wi' kail and meat, but he wad nae pairtake, and creepit into Tam feeling 'the tould,' and he was aye gae gentle, and grip promptly the by the legs. I was [illegible] the auld dowg, his like canna return the auld Testament—but, friend, she'll dee nae mair nae mair. I believed him. Pit and for Rab, quick and complete. His teeth and his friends gone, why should he keep the peace and be civil?

BRITISH TRADE FOR 1863.

(From the London Times.)

The love of trade have been more successful in their operation, for in one way or another they have done all the work that was to be done. Our exports last year amounted to no less than £246,489,768, against £123,992,264 the year before—an increase of 18 per cent. Some of the items would have startled the most sanguine believers in progress twenty years ago.—We sent to India near twenty millions worth of goods, against fourteen and a half the year before. To Australia we sent twelve and a half millions' worth; to British North America nearly seven millions' worth. We sent to all our possessions all over the world about fifty-one millions worth,—that is nine millions more than the year before. To the United States we sent directly fifteen and a half millions' worth, besides much indirectly by blockade-runners, and appearing in the returns under other hands. To Turkey we exported above seven millions' worth—half as much again as in the year before. Italy took nearly a million's worth more than in 1862. To Spain, Portugal, Russia, China, Mexico, New Grenada, all South America, and many other countries, we also show an increased amount as most indicate either that they fully repay our loss by the dearness of our materials, or are become larger customers generally. To Egypt it is almost needless to say our exports were nearly doubled in value; while the reports from that country seem to show that its prosperity is on a permanent basis. No doubt the cheapening of cotton will have a proportionate effect on the money value of our exports, but all rises and falls stimulate enterprise. A dead level of prices and supplies does not suit human nature any more than a dead level of nature or of human affairs. A high price is necessary now and then to tempt the speculator, whether he makes the article or only deals in it. A low price is necessary on the other hand, to encourage consumption. But for this cotton famine, India would now be doing as little as she has ever done, and her treasury would be in difficulties. The shot fired three years ago at Fort Sumter has given an impulse to her railways, her agriculture, and her trade, from mountain to cape, from one sea to the other. There has been the same throb of commercial life and the same mutual stimulus among all the many heads of vast commercial confederacy. That is only because England allows herself to be the free medium of this world-wide circulation, monopolizes nothing, and grudges none their gains. She desires to be rich only on the condition that she divides her wealth with all that chooses to deal with her, knowing that her interest is bound up with theirs.

THE NEW NAVY REGISTER.—The Navy Register for 1864 is just issued at Washington in a pamphlet of two hundred and eighty-nine closely printed pages—larger by forty pages than the Register of 1863. The record is brought down to the 12th ultimo, at which date there were six hundred and twenty-two vessels of all classes in the navy, four hundred and thirty-two of which were steamers, and seventy-four iron-clads and rams. The total number of naval vessels lost, captured, destroyed or sold since the beginning of the war is forty-two. Of these eleven fell into the hands of the Confederates, namely:—The "Clifton," "Diana," "Harriet Lane," "Indianola," "Isaac Smith," "Morning Light," "Reliance," "Sanborn," "Satellite," "Underwriter," and "Velocity."

"Give the Devil his due." Young man, this advice was got up for you. If you owe the Devil anything pay him up at once, and then discharge him and don't have him over again at any price. That's what the author meant. Be honest, pay even the Devil, if you owe him, but don't owe him again. If the proprietor of this world-renowned (Give the Devil his due,) stimulant also Priest had the pictures of the horrible sin-tow him, if he ever wrote anything even good advice, he can get it in all its ostiff purity and innocence, by dropping a line to his everlasting wall—maker.

—Mr. Gladstone presented a favourable Budget to Parliament. The expenditure was more than a million sterling under the estimates. The surplus is over two and a quarter millions. He proposes to reduce the duty on corn from 1s. per quarter to 3d.

—Mr. Layard, in reply to enquiries, said that English Consuls confirmed the accounts of kidnapping Irishmen in New York and Boston, and Lord Lyons had made representations to the United States Government.

OPPOSITION AT ELECTIONS.

The Honorable Mr. Cockburn has been re-elected in West Northumberland by a majority of 416! We anticipated it all along; nor did we see any necessity for the contest that took place between the Honorable gentleman and Mr. Mallory.

Mr. Mallory is, as he says himself, a plain farmer, and, we doubt not, a very decent man; but just as fit to represent a constituency in Parliament as we are to command the Armies of the Potomac. We hope that this election will open the eyes of all right thinking men to the fact that there is such a thing as carrying opposition too far. We care not on which side it is, opposition such as Mr. Mallory's to Mr. Cockburn, only holds up the weaker party to the ridicule of their neighbor—knowing they are certain of defeat, they yet determine to give as much trouble as possible—and by loud blustering and silly declamation, try to persuade not only the public, but, we doubt not, themselves, that they are doing a very magnanimous thing. We contend that such a course, instead of aiding any cause, whether it be the Reform or the Conservative, does, on the contrary, an immense amount of harm. It may be contended that if your cause is right you ought to support it by every means in your power—that you ought to be continually protesting against what you believe to be wrong—and that no opportunity should be lost of aiding the cause of justice. We grant this. But is it supporting and aiding your cause to be continually declaring what you know to be untrue? Is it right to be continually obtruding and pushing for ward your man when you know he will be beaten? What would the world think of a General who, with a mere handful of men, was continually boasting of what he would do to an enemy he knew to be immensely more numerous, and who was continually seeking an opportunity of assailing his opponent, though conscious that disaster, defeat and disgrace were certain—simply because his cause was right—justice was on his side? And yet such has been the course of conduct of public men of both parties in this country for a long time, and we feel sorry that in this kind of work our own friends, the Reformers, have lately been prominent. They have grasped at straws, nay, at anything in the shape of a man who would consent to be nominated to oppose the opposite party—caring nothing, apparently, whether the man put forward as their candidate was a fit and proper person or not, or whether or not he had the slightest chance of success. We would like to see less of this. It does in future harm. It only exasperates and sets men determinedly against any one associated with the opposite side of politics. The public patronage, too, is often on this very account mismanaged. At every election, the successful candidate becomes more and more indebted to his friends and supporters, and often find himself compelled to recommend to the patronage of the Crown men whom he cannot but despise, and who, had it not been that a causeless opposition at his last election thrust them upon his friendship, very likely he would never have known.

The hurtful effect of such a course of conduct on the public press, too, is noticeable, and much to be deplored. In the heat of the contest much is written that had better have been left out—truth is often perverted; in short so prevailing has this custom of deceit, perversion, misrepresentation and abuse become in the public prints of to-day, that one hesitates to believe anything political, announced even in the organs of his own party. To-day they bepraise a man, to-morrow they abuse him. They announce this as a fact now, to-morrow they give it a flat contradiction. We are sorry that these features, indicative of a corrupt and partisan press, becomes day by day more noticeable. Day by day many of the public prints of Canada are becoming less independent, more untruthful and abusive. And we have no hesitation in tracing, in a great degree this downfall in the purity, not only of the public press, but of public men to the ungentlemanly, uncharitable and untruthful way political facts and the actions and motives of public men are distorted by the leading journals.

The way in which the character of public public men in this country, their history, both public and private, has been abused, is something shameful. Day by day it is becoming more painfully evident that the leading journals of Canada, instead of being as they ought to be, the exponent of honest and correct principle, are becoming only the medium for heaping abuse upon political opponents. And how often, within the few past years, have they, in their intemperate haste, heaped abuse upon men more deserving of praise, imputed dishonest motives to men whose probity no reasonable man could dare to doubt, and in the vilest language tried to heap obloquy even on their very memories. The effect is obvious. The character of every public man, has, at one time or another, either by some member of his own or the opposite faction, been so strongly textured that men grow careless of their reputation, and end in doing many things which they would never have dared to do, had their judgments not been perverted by the untruthful and time-serving journalism of the day, and their character so thoroughly ruined by misrepresentation and abuse, that even their own friends are in doubt as to their honesty.

We would notice one feature more of this downward tendency. Many of the smaller provincial journals conducted by men of much less ability and education than their city confreres, copy and even outdo them in slang and abuse. Their sarcasm, if less polished and cutting, is not less repulsive, and the abusive epithets found too often in their daily exchanges are re-printed in all the heathenishness, without one ray of sweetness or of genius to enliven the depending picture. Surely it is possible that there may be trustworthy men on both sides of politics—that a man may be either a Reformer or a Conservative, and yet be thoroughly honest—and that journalists may differ with public men, either individually or as a body, without impugning their motives or maligning their characters. Until this be the case the press will not be what it ought to be: a terror to evil-doers and a praise to them that do well.

THE ELECTIONS.

Solicitor-General Cockburn has been re-elected in West Northumberland by a majority of 416. It was a pity any opposition was offered. It is well known that Mr. Cockburn is a strong man, and from his position in the Government—able to command vast influence—no one but an exceedingly popular candidate ought to have been brought out against him.

Postmaster-General Foley has been defeated in North Waterloo. We are not sorry—and we have not met any one, be they Conservative or Reformer, who seems to feel sorry for him. A deserter from his principles, his best friends distrust him—whilst the party into whose arms he threw himself could not trust him. Many in Peterborough will recollect that not long ago he took some hours to villify and abuse the very men to whom he is now allied. We can scarcely conceive of a career more degrading in a public man than that of Mr. Foley. We hope this will be a warning to him and a lesson to all. Mr. Bowman, who had a majority of 163 over the Postmaster-General is said to be a thorough Reformer—a man of honest principle, who will fulfil what pledges he has made to his constituents.

Mr. Buchanan has defeated Mr. McKellar in the city of Hamilton by a majority of 14. We are sorry for it; the Reformers of Hamilton seem to have done their best to oust him; and, indeed, on the evening of the first day's polling it seemed all but certain they would be successful. Whilst we deplore their defeat, we feel as if we had almost a victory to chronicle. The majority against them was very small, when we take into consideration that the candidate they were opposing was the very strongest man the opposite party could bring forward—a Cabinet minister and one of the wealthiest men in Upper Canada. Charges of bribery are bandied about in the various journals. We hope that none of them will be found true. We would rather have Mr. McElroy defeated a hundred times than believe that he had bought a single vote.

Complete returns have not yet been obtained from the Cataraqui Division, but there is no doubt but Mr. Campbell has been re-elected—the opposition to him was very much like that offered to Mr. Cockburn: too trivial—and we are not sure that even if the Reformers had run in Mr. Britton they would not have been disappointed. We have known Mr. Britton for a long time and think if he ever gets into the House he will be apt to sit on both sides of the floor.

The Ministry, then, have all been returned but Mr. Foley. The Globe claims that this will give a majority for the present Opposition, and that the present Ministry will have to retire. This gains corroboration when we consider, also, the utterances of the Leader. In their issue of Monday they say:—"The defeat of the Postmaster-General and the election of an opponent of the Ministry in North Waterloo will make two votes difference in the House. In other words, the Ministerialist majority will, by the result of this election, be reduced by two. This, there, is no disguising, tends to weaken the probability of Ministers being able to command a sufficient working majority in the present House, and to increase the chances of a general election." The Leader, then, is doubtful of the ability of Ministers to meet the House with any chance of success. It goes on to argue that many members are anxious to avoid the necessity of a general election, and as the more moderate men of the late Ministerial party have virtually the decision in their own hands, they will not be likely to do anything rashly or suddenly to precipitate a general election. Does not this argument, Mr. Leader, cut two ways? If the present Ministry, by reason of their being in a minority, are unable to carry on the business of the country, might not the Governor General call on some one else to form a Ministry and as the Reform party have, as you say, the decision in their own hands, may they not agree to support a new Ministry more strenuously than they did the old—and thus avoid the necessity of a new general election. We sincerely hope this may be the case. We are sadly in want of legislation; and in having a Responsible Government we are afraid that for some time past we have paid too dear for our whistle. In other words, legislation for some years has cost more than it was worth.

$100 REWARD.

I WILL give the above reward for the taking and delivering to me, in Athens, Ont., or confining in jail, LOUISA, a stout, healthy, negro woman. 30 years old, about 5 feet 6 inches high, will weight 160 pounds, dark color, of modest mien and address, speaks softly, usually with cast down eyes; she is stout and well formed. Louisa was raised, I think, near Petersburg or Norfolk, Va., and is possibly trying to escape in company with a white man. She has usually a neat appearance.

mh4-3m V. K. STEVENSON.

We clip the above from a Southern paper, and give it insertion here merely to show how they advertise lost chattels in the South. We cannot say we feel sorry for V. K. Stevenson—"Louisa's" owner; we are, rather, glad she has got away, if it should be in company with a white man. Mr. S. surely does not value "Louisa" very highly; the $100 he offers as a reward for her re-capture would only be worth about $6, Canadian currency.

On Thursday evening, the last of the course of lectures, given under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance, was delivered in the Town Hall, by the Rev. Mr. Gilmour. The Lecture, the subject of which was "Empire as it tided 'eward the West," was very interesting and instructive, and was satisfactorily treated by the Reverend gentleman. The audience was a very miserable one, as has been the case always on every such occasion. The Sons of Temperance have had no encouragement offered to them, in fact so little interest has been taken in their course of lectures, that the society now find themselves behind in funds, and thus as a reward for their efforts to instruct and amuse, is not at all creditable to either the intelligence or literary tastes of our townspeople.—Com.

....Mr. Cossern left Town on Tuesday afternoon, for Quebec. We were sorry to see him looking so unwell. Mr. Cossern goes to the capital a day or two earlier than was expected, in order to get ready the report of the Canal Commission. He is of opinion that if a canal is ever built it must be by the Trent Valley; all the other routes proposed having been proven to be nearly impracticable.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.

The annual Dinner of St. George's Society took place on the evening of Monday last, in the St. Andrew's Hall. Shortly after 8 o'clock, about fifty sons of St. George with their friends, sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided by mine host of the Hoffman House. The tables were laid for a much larger number, and we have no doubt that many more would have been present to partake of the good things so lavishly provided, but for the unfavorable evening; and many who do not boast of an English origin, we doubt not, would have liked to be present to do honor to the English Bard, if the St. George's Society had not seen fit, wisely or unwisely, to forbid the sale of tickets to any but Englishmen.

The Chair was ably occupied by Lieut.-Col. Strickland, supported on the right by the Rev. Mr. Clement, Chaplain of the Society; A. Smith, Esq., President of the St. Andrew's Society; and Mr. Moloney, President of the St. Patrick's Society. On the left we observed R. J. Dallas, Esq., Bank of Montreal, and Rose. Dennistoun, Esq., Barrister. After the desert the usual loyal toasts were given. Then the President in an eloquent and appropriate address, gave "The Memory of William Shakespeare, the Bard of Avon;" after the toast was drank, the Rev. Mr. Clementi passed a glowing eulogium on the immortal bard, reviewing briefly not only the history of Shakespeare himself, but also his cotemporary celebrities, shewing that they, though famous in their day, were almost forgotten, whilst the works of Shakespeare were year by year and century by century, increasing in popularity. Both the Rev. gentleman and the President related a number of interesting anecdotes concerning Shakespeare and his times.

The Vice-President, Capt. Poole, then gave "The Day and all who Honor it,"—"St. George's Day,"—"The Land we Live in,"—"The Member for the County."

The Secretary, W. J. Fowler, Esq., gave "Our Guests." Feelingly replied to by R. J. Dallas, Esq., Bank of Montreal.

"Our Sister Societies," was then given, and responded to by Messrs. Smith and Moloney.

Mr. Dallas gave "The Lumbermen of Peterborough," Mr. Scott and Col. Strickland replied. The latter especially giving some excellent information as to the timbered and farming lands to the north of us.

Mr. Dennistoun having been called upon made one of his usual neat replies, ending by bringing prominently before the meeting the necessity of providing some means for connecting more intimately Peterboro' with the back country.

The Secretary then gave "The Press," Mr. Graham replied.

"The Ladies." Mr. Scott being voted the youngest Bachelor in the company made an eloquent reply.

Col. Strickland gave "The Banking Interests." Messrs. Smith and Dallas replied.

As it was now about the wee short hour ayont the twal', our reporter left; but we understand some genial souls kept it up till nearly three a. m.

The dinner was all that could be desired; indeed we have seen no public dinner in Peterborough got up with better taste.

AMERICAN WAR.

The complaint for some time has been, that owing to the amount of rain that fell in the north part of Virginia this spring, it was impossible for either army to move; and that when dry weather set in the Federals would advance upon Richmond. The roads are drying up fast now, and in all probability before many days go past the struggle will have commenced. It is utterly impossible to form any opinion of the probable result of the struggle. Both the Federals and Confederates studiously seek to conceal their intentions and their strength; and, as a consequence, the most conflicting rumors have prevailed. The Federals, too, have the election of a President on their hands, and fears are entertained lest the coming campaign assume too much of a political character. Lincoln desires re-election; but if Gen. Grant were to make a successful advance upon Richmond, there is no doubt that in spite of all that Presidents Lincoln and his friends could do, the next President would be General Grant. And the American press hostile to Lincoln are not slow to insinuate that means will be used to detain Grant from achieving anything great till the Presidental contest is settled. There may be no truth in this. And if we may judge from the amount of preparation going on on both sides, we are about to see the most tremendous struggle modern history has recorded. The Federal army is said to be between five and six hundred thousand strong, whilst that of the Confederates is conjectured to be under four hundred thousand. General Lee still fronts Washington with his veteran army, strongly posted amongst entrenchments similar to those that proved so fatal to the Northern braves on the plains of Fredericksburg. General Grant with an army numerically much superior is only waiting for a convenient moment to attack him; whilst General Smith, with another army, is thought to be gone towards the Peninsula, to try to force an entrance by the road so fatal to McClellan—whilst Burnside will make a movement from the south through N. Carolina. It is said that Grant will order a simultaneous advance of the Northern troops from all quarters—not only the armies of Virginia but those of the west and south being now under his command. Several battles have taken place lately at isolated points, with varying success. Fort Pillow, on the Mississippi, was invested by the Confederates, and after a sturdy defence of two days, the Federal troops under General Sherman were obliged to surrender; unfortunately the garrison was a mixture of black and white troops, the white portion of whom had mostly deserted from the rebels. The Confederates are charged by Northern papers with butchering in cold blood over 400 of them, after the surrender. The truth of this report has not yet been ascertained. In Louisiana, too, the Federals have met a severe defeat. On the 8th inst., General Sloem's (chief of Banks' staff,) brigade having been nearly annihilated, and about 2,000 taken prisoners, together with a battery of artillery. Next morning another severe engagement took place at a place called Pleasant Hill, which ended in the defeat of the Confederates. General Banks has been compelled, however, to retire about 90 miles. On Tuesday the telegraph brought news of the capture of Plymouth, North Carolina, by the rebels—150 Federals killed and 2500 captured, along with 25 pieces of artillery and a large amount of stores. The Confederates are equipping an iron-clad navy, having built and completed during the past year over 30 iron-clads, one of which assisted very materially in the capture of Plymouth, by running down two Northern gun-boats, and severely damaging another. There are signs of discontent in the North-west; a wide spread conspiracy, in favor of the freedom of the South, is said to be in existence in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and other western States—to counteract which the whole militia of the border States is about to be called out. Whilst the North seems to be determined to conquer the South, every day adds to the certainty that they have a difficult and tedious task before them.

They were the property of Messrs. Strickland & Sons. They have a large raft in Deer Bay which is likely also to pass this place in two weeks at farthest; their raft will be about 97 feet average, and is of very fine quality; they have a large number of mast some of them nearly 100 feet in length. We wish them a good voyage to Quebec and a ready sale.

Sad Accident.—On the evening of Friday the 22nd inst., Mr. Michael Doherty, carriage-maker, Hunter Street, was firing off an old brass blunderbuss, in order to put it away empty, it exploded, and we are sorry to say seriously injured his hand. Two of his fingers were blown off, another much injured, and the whole hand so much mutilated that amputation was at one time thought to be necessary. Mr. Doherty is improving and the necessity for amputation is daily growing less.

The object of the Commision is purely benevolent—to aid and succor sufferers from the war, whether soldiers sick or wounded, in the field or in the fort, their wives and children; also the sufferers from the direct consequences of the war. One of the most exciting incidents connected with the New York fair is the subscription for swords to the favorite General and Admiral. Every dollar given counts one vote. The proceeds less the price of the swords to go to the funds of the fair. It was decided on Saturday night by an overwhelming victory for Grant, he received 36,291 votes against 14,509 for McClellan.

Accident at the Oil Springs.—The London Prototype says that a serious accident occured at the Oil Springs, resulting in the death of four persons. Two men were employed digging a well, and at the time, it is supposed, were preparing to blast a rock, when a premature explosion took place, killing instantly three persons and mortally wounding a fourth. The names of the killed are, a man named Donaldson, and his two sons. The wounded party is a boy, about fifteen years of age, named Abbey.

A later telegram informs us that the boy died shortly after the melancholy occurrence. It is now supposed that the explosion was not caused by powder, as the man took nothing of that description down the well with him. It is thought that he lit his pipe, while there, and that the gas took fire and caused the sad accident.

The Canvas and Company Burglars at work.—Our printers were at work all last (Tuesday) night, printing Mr. Mallory's address. They left the office looked about 7 o'clock this morning, when the form was on the press, and about 150 addresses printed in hand-bill shape laying adjacent. When the carrier boy arrived about a quarter past seven, the office had been broken open, a part of the partition was torn down, the addresses destroyed and the form knocked into pi. The limb was in a moment broken in two places, namely, at the hip and at the ancle, whilst a portion of the knee was taken away as if by a chisel. The horse was stopped when it had gone some three or four yards, the little fellow extracted, and Dr. Reddy having attended to him, he was afterwards taken to the English Hospital, where he now lies in a most precarious condition.

The Army of the Potomac.

Those who have seen French troops on parade, and heard the incessant cries of Numero trois, consigne pour huit jours! Numero cinq, trois jours de salle de police!—dire disciplinary inflictions for a button divorced from its hole or a strap fitting away; those who know what is the daily work of the British colonel, adjutant and sergeant-major in the orderly-room; and who are aware of how many hundred blows of a stick to perfect an Austrian soldier in his drill, would be surprised to mark the free-and-easy manner in which misdeeds, which at home would draw on the offender the greatest censure, are treated in the armies of the Great Republic. The time of regimental officers is not taken up with incessant and meticulous attention to details. Soldiers are expected to obey the word of command, and they do seem not only to obey with much alacrity, but to understand it with considerable quickness of appreciation. They are held to render obedience to the general ordinances of the camp, and, as a rule, to do as they are bidden by their officers. Beyond them they are very little troubled with any rules or regulations. I don't know whether any code of sumptuary laws exist for the "bonne tenue" of the army of the Potomac; but this I do know, that the private soldiers allow their hair, their moustaches, and their beard, to grow to whatever length their fancy may lead them, and that they are allowed to wash as little as ever they like, which is generally not all. It has been my fortune, in the course of a pretty active career, to see English, French, Russian, Prussian, Austrian, Turkish, Italian, and Spanish soldiers, without counting those of the minor States of Germany; I have seen some tolerably ragged and dirty ones, but I will take my affidavit that I never, until I visited the army of the Potomac, set my eyes upon desperadoes who so nearly resemble the brigands that Salvator Rosa used to paint as do the Federal warriors. It is not, I apprehend, the business of the American sergeants and corporals to look after the personal appearance of their men. That appearance is absolutely horrible. The uniform itself—abating its coarse materials, repulsive colors, and shrewdly cut—is not so very ugly; but the way in which it is pitchforked on to the soldiers' bodies, their unkempt hair, their dirty faces, their grimy hands their grimier nails, the filthy saddles, the ungroomed horses, the unchossed boots and accoutrements—the general slouching, out-at-elbows, up-all-night-and-drunk-again-the-next morning appearance of this surprising armament—is beyond any powers of imagination to conceive.

Communications.

Supplement to the Report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—In your editorial notice of the Report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands for 1863, in last weeks paper, you regret the meagreness of the Report, as to the amount of land available for active settlement in the rear of our county especially, and generally throughout Canada. I may explain that the reason of their being no report from the Burleigh Road for 1863 is that the late Government dismissed the Agent, Mr. Joseph Graham, last summer, without assigning any cause, and in January last, appointed Mr. Carroll. Will you allow me to give your readers a few particulars of our back country:—

The Burleigh Road, as you state, is made 23 miles from Burleigh Bridge; but in great many places needs shoring and repairing; the rocks about the bridge require fixing at one more crossways made, ditching done, and stumps taken out. There are 20 miles more under contract, of which 13 miles are chopped and a portion logged and cleared up, and the whole will be completed by November, which will open a direct route through nearly the centre of Chandos, and along the boundary between Cardiff and Monmouth, nearly the whole breadth of these townships.

There are now along the Burleigh Road from 150 to 200 settlers, all of whom have made improvements, more or less. There was a considerable quantity of potatoes, turnips, oats and wheat raised last year by the settlers, and the wheat sown last Fall looks as well as any in the neighborhood, at present. Great exertions are now making by the settlers to get in a good deal of Spring crop. There is, also, a Saw Mill in active operation. There are now about 60 head of cows and young cattle, and eighteen yoke of oxen in the settlement.

The land in four townships were put in market on the 25th Feb. last, and I believe about thirteen thousand acres have already been disposed of to parties who have actually inspected before purchasing. There is yet a very large quantity of land of really first rate quality remaining unsold in the four townships in the market, viz.: Anstruther, Chandos, Monmouth and Cardiff—quite enough to give comfortable homes to one thousand or fifteen hundred families—land as fine as any in Smith or Otonabee, in as large blocks as in either of these townships exist in Chandos, Cardiff and Monmouth.

Lead and copper have been discovered in two or three of the townships, and it is thought by persons who have made extensive examinations in looking for minerals in these townships, that considerable quantities of these minerals exist there. All the lakes abound in salmon, trout and white fish, and bass, perch, &c., was found in nearly every beaver pond; splendid brook trout are in great numbers in several of the smaller streams, and game of all kinds common to Canada, is plentiful. The four townships named above are not a pine country; the pine being scattered, there being not more than the settlers want for home use.

The lands are "eagerly sought after" by great numbers of intending settlers and before next November, I expect nearly the whole four townships will be disposed of; no person goes out to look for land but gets a lot to suit him in one or other of the townships. How much better would it be if scores of the hand-laborers of the county were to go out and buy land while it may yet be had at 70 cents per acre, cash, or $1 in five yearly instalments, and by that means add to the wealth of the country—build up comfortable homes for themselves—and, also, leave their places in the old settlements to be filled by the emigrant, who, in turn, will become used to our mode of farming, and by that means will be better fitted to begin a life in the bush.

Yours, &c.,
CANADIAN.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—Will you kindly permit me to afford your readers a few words of explanation in answer to "D. S. C." I may just state in the outset that as I am quite content myself to be abused for speaking the truth, I cannot reasonably blame Mr. Baxter (or "D. S. C." either) for speaking all the truth he knows. But "D. S. C." admits that Mr. Baxter "may have been in error in some things, as, undoubtedly, he is," and that is what I attempted to prove, and what I disapprove of.

But "D. S. C." is in danger of error, also, in speaking of the Papacy as "the Man of Sin," and "the Beast," without guarding himself from sharing the same spirit that gives to the Papacy that infamous title. "D. S. C." does not deny, I hope, that the Church of God will be one in Heaven, and should be one on earth—should be one in Body as well as in Spirit—one in Baptism as well as in Faith. The human race were designed to form one loving brotherhood the wide world over. The Son of God came down to earth to gather the outcasts again into one holy family, and to teach them again to speak the language of love and truth—and thus the Church of God on earth shall yet become a united body, and bear one name.

As to the insinuation thrown out by "D. S. C." of "some being ferocious for union and savage for love," that does not touch me at all. The union I advocate is a union founded in truth; and the way I propose to bring about that union is by inviting all christians to consider first, wherein they differ; and then to bring those differences singly to the test of Scripture, and where Scripture is silent, to agree to differ. This is my plan for uniting all christians in one body—as I believe they ought to be for the honor of their Lord. If "D. S. C." thinks otherwise, let him say so in plain words. But if he expects such a union let him say by what means he expects it to be brought about—by effort or by chance—by fair argument or by force of arms. I fully agree with "D. S. C." that a union without truth is worse than useless, and of this I regard the Papacy as the strongest proof. Are we then to despair of a Christian union on this side of Heaven?

I remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
CIVIS.

An Ice Jam at the Niagara Falls.

The Niagara Falls Gazette has the following:—"A change from the prevailing easterly wind to the opposite quarter brought down immense quantities of ice from the lake, last Wednesday night. For the first time, we believe, in the recollection of the 'oldest inhabitant' the ice formed almost a complete dam across the rapids between the bridge and the upper end of Goat Island. With the exception of a few rods in width near the main shore the rocks below the ice dam were bare. It was safe walking where usually flows an impetuous flood. And yet it was not quite so safe, as was proved Thursday morning when several young men wandered over the barren rocks and visited a boat that had been lodged there for several weeks. While enjoying a walk which we of this generation may never again hear of being done, the ice dam gave way, and the vast volume of water probably from five to ten feet deep came rushing through. The dam soon disappeared and the boat that had remained fixed against the ordinary torrent was swept away and over the Cataract. Of course there was a hurrying toward the Island shore and paper mill pier. Some escaped with a little wetting and a big scare while others barely escaped with their lives. A young man named Barlow was obliged to leap from one to another of the floating cakes of ice, and fully appreciating the necessity of making land before being carried too near the Cataract, lost no time in leaping from the last cake and swimming to the shore. Those who witnessed the scene describe it as exceedingly exciting. It commenced at an early hour in the morning and hence was seen but by few of our citizens."

THE QUEEN.

The following address, unanimously accorded by the English press to the son of the Queen honestly expressed in the Speech from the 6th inst. It is a dignified and direct reply to scribbles that have lately appeared in British journals relative to Her Majesty's disappearance from public life, and to the course which she has marked out for herself in future. It has excited great attention throughout the Kingdom, and is the first instance in English history in which the occupant of the throne has held direct intercourse with the public press of the country. Some of the passages in this remarkable State document are very touching and beautiful:—

"An erroneous idea seems generally to prevail, and has latterly found frequent expression in the newspapers, that the Queen is about to resume the place in society which she occupied before her great affliction; that is, that she is about to hold levees and drawing-rooms in person, and to appear as before at Court balls, concerts, &c. This idea cannot be too explicitely contradicted.

"The Queen heartily appreciates the desire of her subjects to see her, and whatever she can do to gratify them in this loyal and affectionate wish she will do. Whenever any real object is to be attained by her appearing on public occasions, any national interest to be promoted, or anything to be encouraged which is for the good of her people, Her Majesty will not shrink, as she has not shrunk, from any personal sacrifice or exertion, however painful.

"But there are other and higher duties than those of mere representation which are now thrown upon the Queen, alone and unassisted—duties which she cannot neglect without injury to the public service, which weigh unceasingly upon her, overwhelming her with work and anxiety.

"The Queen has labored conscientiously to discharge these duties till her health and strength, already shaken by the utter and ever abiding desolation which has taken the place of her former happiness, have been seriously impaired.

"To call upon her to undergo, in addition, the fatigue of those mere State ceremonies which can be equally well performed by other members of her family, is to ask her to run the risk of entirely disabling herself for the discharge of those other duties which cannot be neglected without serious injury to the public interests.

"The Queen will, however, do what she can—in the manner least trying to her health, strength, and spirits, to meet the loyal wishes of her subjects; to afford that support and countenance to society, and to give that encouragement to trade which is desired of her.

"More the Queen cannot do; and more the kindness and good feeling of her people willl surey not exact from her."

LATEST FROM QUEBEC.

THE GOVERNMENT SHAKING!

JONES, WHO DEFEATED THE LATE SOLICITOR GENERAL WEST, TURNED AGAINST THEM.

Quebec, April 23rd, 1864.

Francis Jones, M. P. P. for Leeds and Grenville, the gentleman who recently defeated A. N. Richards, late Solicitor-General; came out to-day against the Governments.—The Ministerial ship is evidently sinking.—A letter from him appears to-day in the Quebec Chronicle, as follows:—

Sir,—I see in your issue of yesterday the following statement: "The Canal Tolls have been in part rescinded." Allow me to express the hope in behalf of the enraptured people of Canada that the above statement will not prove correct. What are the facts of the case in relation to these canals. In the first instance the people of Canada paid $15,000,000 for their construction, and during the years 1860, 1861 and 1862, we spent in repairs the sum of $751,023. Besides that we have spent in constructing a competing line of Railway—the Grand Trunk—the sum of $16,000,000, for which we will never receive any return. Now in view of these facts is it reasonable or right that the people of Canada should continue to be taxed at an average rate of $250,000 a year to keep the canals in repair, without receiving anything in return, and all for affording facilities to the farmers of the Western States to compete over our own farmers either in the markets of Canada or England, or perhaps benefit persons engaged in the forwarding trade.

I hope it will be borne in mind that this is an agricultural country, and that on the prosperity of the farming community depends the welfare of all other classes; and that this important and numerous class of the community should not be burthened with heavy taxes for the advantage of the farmers of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and a few forwarding merchants. I do certainly think that we have had sufficient class legislation already in favor of the Grand Trunk, without reverting to a second edition in favor of forwarding merchants.

(Signed) Francis Jones, M.P.P.

Persons in Quebec, in the confidence of Ministers, say that Buchanan's defeat is counted on by them as certain. Mr. O'Reilly's appointment as Recorder of Kingston, is here looked upon as merely temporary, till the elections are over, when he will exchange places with Judge Draper.—Hamilton Evening Times.

EARTHQUAKE IN QUEBEC.

Without going into minutes or seconds, may simply state that at a quarter-past one o'clock this afternoon, the earth trembled violently; every house was shaken as if an explosion of gas or gunpowder, or an ebullement of the rock had taken place—only no noise was heard. Some fancied that a heavy weight had fallen upon the floors above them, and, indeed, that was our own sensation. The walls of the house rocked; the windows rattled; and we rocked ourselves. To make sure that the power press had not fallen to pieces we examined the press-room, but found all right there.

The inmates of the rooms above us, horror stricken, came down stairs to enquire what the matter was; people from the street came tumbling in to ask as if we had felt any unusual sensation; the people over the way felt it; cruet stands were overset, plates broken, and the whole dinner table service at Russell's set in motion; the soldiers rushed out of their bomb-proofs on the citadel, were the shock was, we are informed, the most severe; in St. John street, without, people ran from their houses; and hosts of people besieged the gates of the Gas Works. In the streets, however, the shock was not so sensibly felt and by some persons not felt at all.

It is fully believed that the concussory effect upon the houses was greater than when the laboratory blew up.

A gentleman informs us that the shock appeared at Mount Pleasant, to come from the south west with a gradual increasing rumbling noise, and ended with a report as of a distant explosion.

At the house of Mr. Maingy in Scott street near Lewis Road, the earth has opened in two places in a passage leading to the yard, and a quantity of earth has been thrown down from the siding of the cellar.

EARTHQUAKE ELSEWHERE.

Father Point—Two shocks of an earthquake were felt here about 11 o'clock this morning.

L'Islet—Two shocks of an earthquake were felt here at 1 10 this p. m. It nearly capsized several of the Grand Trunk Railway cars.

Danville—Two shocks of an earthquake were felt here at 1 10 this p. m.

Bonaventure—The earthquake was not felt here.

Montreal—The earthquake was not felt here.

River du Loup en bas—Did not feel an earthquake here.—Mercury

Justice to a Patent Medicine.

It is not often we lend a word in favor of Patent Medicines, as we very seldom are satisfied of their good results. But there is one preparation so long established, and of such acknowledged merit, that we feel we do the public a service in recommending it. We have reference to Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry the most remarkable remedy of the age for all throat an lung diseases. Many of our citizens can attest to the truth of this from personal observation.—Quaker Chronicle.

GREAT SALE!
OF
REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned has been instructed to sell by Public Auction, on Wednesday the 14th day of April, 1864, the whole of that desirable and very valuable property known as the

BEAVER MEAD FARM,

Containing in all about 440 acres.

That portion of property set off for farming purposes contains 247 acres, divided into equal parts having each a frontage upon the Keene Road. On one of these lots stands the residence of the late Judge Hall, a large and commodious Cottage, an extensive and well-built stone Barn and Stables, fitted up in the best manner, together with an excellent young Orchard just beginning to bear, and a good Garden. The Meadow covers an area of about 60 acres, equally divided upon the two lots, and produces an abundant crop of very fine hay.

Upon the other lot there are no buildings; has about 40 acres cleared, and 25 or 30 acres of Beaver Meadow, the remainder under wood.

The Farm is in good order, productive, and within one mile of the Town of Peterborough.

There is also a very excellent mill site, most conveniently situated for milling and manufacturing purposes, with about 5 or 6 acres of land attached.

The remainder of the property is now being surveyed into lots varying in size from one to ten acres, and will be sold either at private sale or Public Auction, in lots to suit purchasers.

Terms.—One-eighth down, the remainder in seven equal annual payments, with interest at seven per cent. payable half-yearly.

Sale to open on the premises at 12 o'clock, noon

W. S. CONGER.
Or
ROBERT DENNISTOUN.
Peterboro', Jan. 11th, 1864. 2

ADJOURNED SALE.

The above sale stands ADJOURNED until THURSDAY, the 17th day of MAY, 1864.

WHYTE, HAMILTON & Co.

IN returning thanks to their numerous friends for the liberal patronage they have received for the last seven years, beg to say that every effort will be used on their part to merit a continuance of it, by executing all orders entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

They still continue to manufacture to order

STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS
OF ALL SIZES,
GRIST AND SAW MILL MACHINERY
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
DRY AND GREEN SAND CASTINGS OF ALL KINDS,
Brass Castings of all kinds,
WROUGHT IRON DOORS AND WINDOW SHUTTERS,
ORNAMENTAL CAST IRON FENCE RAILINGS,
Of various designs, for Cemeteries, Dwellings and Balconies.

Wrought Iron Shafts of any dimensions, with or without flanges, furnished direct from the forge in Glasgow, at lower prices than can be got elsewhere. Rose and other patterns of Water Wheels for Saw Mills, from 3 to 5 feet diameter. Also the Rider Wheel, from 3 to 6 feet diameter, which, for Grist and other Mills, where a vertical shaft can be used, is not surpassed by any other Wheel in the Province.

Having furnished the Engines and Machinery for all the principal Steam and Water Mills that have been erected in and around this neighborhood, for the past seven years, they have a complete assortment of all the above patterns, got up on the most improved principles.

With first-class Tools and Machinery, and workmen thoroughly acquainted with their business in every department, they are enabled to offer to all who patronize them, advantages possessed by no other establishment in this County, and excelled by none between Toronto and Montreal.

THEY INVITE PARTICULAR ATTENTION TO THE
AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT,

Which embraces every implement required on a Wild or Improved Farm. In addition to their large assortment of Plough Patterns, they have added three new STEEL PLOUGHS—one of which is an improvement on their well-known No. 3 CANADIAN; the mould-board is nearly two inches higher than any Steel Plough they have seen in the County, and is got up to suit all kinds of ploughing. Amongst the latest improved Iron Ploughs will be found the Walker and Bickle Ploughs, which are highly recommended by all who have used them; they are of light draught, and warranted to clean better than any Iron Ploughs yet offered to the public.

Gang Ploughs with steel and iron mould-boards, Double mould Ploughs, Cultivators, Horse Hoes, Straw and Root Cutters, Land Rollers of wood, and cast-iron, Horse Powers, Wood Sawing and Mortising Machines.

The Highest Price paid for Old Iron, Copper and Brass.

N. B.—Whyte, Hamilton & Co. beg to remind parties whose accounts and notes are over-due, and unpaid, that they must be settled in March next. Maple Logs 12 feet long, and White or Blue Oak 14, 15, 16 or 18 feet long, will be taken on account.

Poetry.

CONTENTED JOHN.

BY MRS. TAYLOR.

One honest John Tomkins, a hedger and ditcher,
Although he was poor did not want to be richer,
For all such vain wishes to him were prevented
By a fortunate habit of being contented.

Though cold were the weather, or dear were the food,
John never was found in a murmuring mood,
For this he was constantly heard to declare
What he could not prevent he would cheerfully bear.

"For why should I grumble and MURMUR?" he said;
"If I cannot get meat, I'll be thankful for bread;
And though fretting may make my calamities deeper,
It never can cause bread and cheese to be cheaper."

If John was afflicted with sickness or pain,
He wished himself better but did not complain,
Nor lie down to fret in despondence or sorrow,
But said that he hoped to be better to-morrow.

If any one wronged him or treated him ill,
Why, John was good-natured and sociable still;
For he said that revenging the injury done
Would be making two rogues where there need be but one.

And thus honest John, though his station was humble,
Passed through this sad world without even a grumble;
And 'twere well if some folks who are greater and richer,
Would copy John Tomkins, the hedger and ditcher.

"Pray, Miss Sophie, what are you making?" said Dr. L——to a young lady who was at work upon a garment of a certain description.

"A Sephy covering, Doctor," was the reply.

Figures won't lie, in an old and homely expression; but can men look upon a fashionable woman's figure now a days and say as much.

That was a fearful jest of Lord Norbury on sentencing to death a thief who had stole a watch:—You made a grasp at time, my lad, but you clutched eternity!

A SAILOR dropped out of the rigging of a ship-of-war some fifteen or twenty feet, and fell plump on the first lieutenant. "Wretch," said the officer, as he gathered himself up. "Where did you come from?" "And sure I come from the North of Ireland, your honor."

"Why, Bridget, said a lady who wished to refer her servant-girl for the amusement of the company, upon the fantastic ornamenting of a huge pie; "Why, Bridget did you do this? You're quite an artist; how did you do it?" Indade mum, it was myself did it," replied Bridget. "Isn't it pretty mum? I did it with your fine tooth."

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premium adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

THE SELF-EMPTYING

WATER-DRAWER.

THE undersigned, while thanking the public in general for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on him, since his commencement in business, begs to state that he continues to manufacture his celebrated

PATENT WATER-DRAWER!

AT BLYTHE MILLS.

You must remember that by buying one of my Water-drawers, you get your water pure, which you cannot do by a suction Pump. I warrant them NOT TO FREEZE, and to stand as long, if not longer, than any Pump; and, besides, you save over fifty per cent. I can sell them cheaper than any Pump-maker in Canada! If anything goes astray by fair play within one year from the time of purchase, I bind myself to re-place it; so you cannot be deceived. Now, any one who is in need of a Pump would do well to get one of my Water-drawers at once. I have two teams out at all times to deliver them, and persons residing at a distance will receive prompt attention by sending a letter to the undersigned

HENRY'S VERMONT LINIMENT.

READ THESE

CERTIFICATES.

MONTREAL, April 9th, 1860.

Messrs Henry & Co.

Your Vermont Liniment has cured me of a Rheumatism which had settled in my limbs, and for which blistering you may well suppose I fell grateful.

T. QUINLAN.

South Granby, C.W.

Mr. Henry R. Gray, Chemist, Montreal.

Sir,—I am most happy to state that my wife used Henry's Vermont Liniment, having accidentally got a needle run under her finger nail. The pain was most intense; but by using the Liniment, the pain was gone in a few minutes.

Yours very respectfully,

W. GIBSON.

Montreal, Dec. 12th, 1860.

Messrs. Henry & Co.

Having on various occasions used your Liniment, I am happy to say that I have always found in beneficial. I have frequently used it for Bowel Complaint, and I have never known it to fail in effecting a cure. I think it the best medicine I ever used for Diarhea summer complaint, and disorders of a diathetic character I have also found it a never failing specific for Colds, and for affections of the head. I always recommend it to my friends, and would not be without it in the house for any consideration.

W. BALDWIN.

(A Testimony from Hon. Judge Smith.)

Montreal, Feb. 5th, 1863.

I have used Henry's Vermont Liniment, and have found great relief from it.

N. H. DOWN'S VEGETABLE BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

A CERTIFICATE

WORTH A MILLION.

An Old Physician's Testimony.

READ:

Waterbury, Vt., Nov. 24th, 1858.

Although I do not like the practice of Physicians recommending, indiscriminately, the patent medicines of the day; yet after a trial of ten years, I am free to admit that there is one medicine before the public that any Physician can use in his practice, and recommend to the public with perfect confidence; that medicine is Rev. N. H. Downs Vegetable Balsamic Elixir.

I have used it myself with the very best success, and now, whenever I am troubled with a Cough or Cold, I invariably use it. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who are suffering from a Cold or a Cough, for the Croup, Whooping Cough, and all diseases tending to consumption, and to the Profession as a reliable article.

I am satisfied of its excellence beyond a doubt, having conversed personally with the Rev. N. H. Down about it. He informed me of the principal ingredients of which the Elixir is composed, all of which are purely Vegetable and perfectly safe.

J. B. WOODWARD, M.D.

Now Brigade Surgeon U. S. Army.

This popular medicine is no longer an experiment. Thousands of people who have used it, bear witness to its superior excellence as a Liniment and a Pain-killer. Full directions accompanying each bottle. It may be used externally for

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Tooth-ache,
Headache,
Burns,
Scalds,
Bruises & Swellings
Sore Throat,
Lumbago,
&c., &c.

and may be used internally for

Cholic and Colds,
Cholera Morbus,
Bowel Complaints,
Marrhea,
Wind Cholic,
&c., &c.

Much might be said of its remedial properties and magical effects, but the limited space of this Advertisement will only admit of a general summary.

It is prepared with care: great pains being taken to elicit an exact proportion of each of its ingredients, in such a manner that the combination shall be, in every respect, at once more rapid in its operation, and more effectual than any other similar medicine.

☞ A single Teaspoonful taken in warm water or otherwise as the taste may dictate, checks, Diarrhœa,—Cholic, and all Bowel Complaints,—within a most incredible short space of time.

Should always keep this Family Physician at hand; and by its timely use save hundreds of dollars that would otherwise be swallowed up in discharging doctor's fees.

☞ Sold at every Drug and country store throughout Canada.

Price 25cts., 50cts., $1 pr. Bottle.

N. H. DOWN'S VEGETABLE BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

This old, time-tried, standard remedy still maintains its popularity When all others have proved inefficient, the Elixir alone continues to give satisfaction.—Use it for

COUGHS, COLDS,
CATARRH,
ASTHMA, CROUP,

Incipient Consumption and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs.

Thirty years ago the Elixir first made its appearance; and even then, in its primitive and imperfect state, produced such extraordinary results that it became, at once, a general favourite. Many have made it, what it really is, a Family Medicine.

For as more than half the diseases "to which flesh is heir," originate from
